Note Support Firmer On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Jan. 15 (CP). — Slightly firmer support today in early afternoon stock market dealings checked western oils' decline but industrials slipped steadily.

Early profit-taking skimmed yesterday's sharp oil advance as speculators realized profits. Losses, however, were mostly small.

Western oil speculation again dominated trading but a penny gold—American Yellowknife — showed the most active trading with a turnover of about 130,000 shares during the first three hours. Volume reached 2,103,000 shares.

Oil losses outnumbered gains about five to one. Anglo-Canadian, Calvan Consolidated, Canada Southern, Del Rio, Pupiter, Pacific Petroleum and Western Leaseholds dipped. Scurry, a recent feature, lost about 15 cents.

Foods formed industrials' strongest section while manufacturing companies drew firm support. Liquors, banks and miscellaneous industrials, however, weakened. Papers, steels and refining oils were mixed.

Base metals edged lower, Consolidated Smelters added fractions but Falconbridge, Hudson Bay, Labrador and Quemont slipped.

Senior golds showed four losses against one gain. Juniors and prospects weakened while holding companies strengthened.

Canadian Naval Units Pound Shore Batteries

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 15 (CP)—British and Canadian naval units pounded shore batteries and other targets on both coasts of North Korea Monday. There was little ground action.

United Nations jets traded brief firing passes with Communist MIG-15s in MIG Alley over northwestern Korea today but there were no reports of damage to either side.

The Canadian destroyer Athabaskan claimed three direct hits on a railroad junction near Songjin on the east coast. The British light cruiser Ceylon and the Frigate Whitesand Bay bombarded Communist coastal guns on the west coast.

The UN communique gave no further details of the naval action.

Chief ground action was on the central front. UN troops threw back an attack by a Red company east of the Pukan River in a four-hour engagement.

Beer-Drinking Spree Described At Murder Trial

HAMILTON, Jan. 15 — (CP). —Frank Kenyon, charged with murdering his wife by forcing water into her abdomen, testified today of the events leading to her death in their home last November.

Kenyon told of a day-long beer-drinking spree with his wife. He said she drank at least 11 glasses of beer and that he had lost count of the number he had after consuming at least 20 glasses.

He said both he and his wife were drunk when they returned home and that he would not let her go to bed until she had washed herself.

He said she was "physically unclean" and that he picked her up and carried her into the kitchen to wash her. He said in answer to a question by his lawyer that there was no bath in the house.

"She was struggling," Kenyon testified. "It was just a mad scramble. She fell out of the sink several times, and I put her back. The last time I remember her falling out I stood her in the sink. She kicked me in the chest, and I fell back against the kitchen wall.

Memory Blank

"The next thing I remember was getting up from the floor; she was lying in the sink. I carried her to the chesterfield. She did not answer me. I kissed her. I was pretty scared; scared and upset, figuring there was something wrong."

Kenyon said his wife, who was divorced by her first husband, usually took a bath by putting a can in the kitchen sink and standing in it.

"She would get out to soap herself and then back in to wash it off," he added.

Smash Demonstrators With Tear Gas Bombs

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 15 (Reuters)—Police fired in the air and threw tear gas bombs to disperse a large crowd of high school students who were demonstrating today against any form of mediation in the Anglo-Egyptian dispute.

The students called for total and imediate evacuation of the Suez Canal Zone.

King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia has recently offered King Farouk his good offices for a settlement of the Anglo-Egyptian crisis.

The students were marching on the British and American embassies when the police halted them. They overturned a streetcar and were about to set it on fire when the police drove them back.

Pickets Leave Strike Ended

BOSTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Withdrawal of a CIO picket line today ended a labor dispute that virtually tied up the port of Boston since Dec. 3.

As the pickets dispersed, AFL longshoremen swarmed aboard the Isthmian Line freighter Steel Flyer to unload her cargo of canned pineapple.

The CIO set up its picket line when the Steel Flyer arrived because her engineers switched from a CIO to an AFL union.

The AFL honored the CIO picket line even though it was against its own federation.

Francis J. Couble, strike coordinator for the Boston CIO local, said last night:

"The pickets are being removed in deference to the staunch support received from longshoremen in the Boston area."

He added, however, that picketing of Isthmian ships in other ports will continue.

Port officials said some 70 ships have been diverted from Boston since the labor trouble began.

New Furniture For City Nearly Complete

Furnishing of the city hall has been completed to a few odds and ends, as reported at the meeting of the finance committee of the council Monday night.

In the distribution of appurtenances, it appears that the lawyers have fared leanly. The appointments of their room recently consisted of one chair. True, a table had been ordered, but the police are suspected of having appropriated it to their use. However, that is only a detail that can be duly supplied.

There are a few articles still to come for City Engineer Chalmer's office. Furthermore, Dr. C. B. Waite of the provincial laboratory has several items on his list that are not so negligible.

A sterilizer and some type of refrigerators are among the implements required for the work that has to be done for both the city and some four counties. Estimated cost is $4,000, but there maybe a grant from the Ontario Department of Health to pay part of that expense.

Invite Inspection

When Dr. Waite's establishment is completed, the council intends to invite an official of the Department to see what Peterborough has provided for the laboratory. Some ulterior purpose is probably inspiring that invitation.

Ald. T. D. Miller, chairman, said the purchasing of furniture had been a real problem in the selecting of suitable types, getting prices, enquiring into quality. It all took a lot of time, he remarked.

Pay $240 Bill

A motion by Mayor Waddell and Ald. S. J. Black approved payment of a bill for $240 covering the cost of some equipment for the Police Department.

Mayor Waddell recalled that when department heads were asked for an inventory of their needs the items were carefully reviewed. Transfers of articles were recommended in the cause of economy, that is from one department to another, and finally the list was referred to Ronald Winter, the council's consultant.

Any articles that appeared out of line were eliminated, it was said, and the revised recommendations were all authorized by Mr. Winter.

City Clerk Outram said Mr. Winter reduced the requisitions for some departments considerably. And for Dr. R. A. Kelly's board of health quarters some equipment was being manufactured of wood instead of steel.

Mr. Outram replied that Dr. Kelly had accepted an arrangement for hot water supply for the well babies' clinic that is to be held in the room which was first allotted to the Separate School Board.

The room was not planned for that use, and lacked hot and cold water connections. A cupboard is being made by Peterborough Lumber Co. providing for a water tank above a wash basin, and a receptacle below to contain the water that is used. Cost of this expedient is around $140, instead of an unestimated substantial sum that would have been incurred if the walls had to be broken through and other difficult work done to lead water lines into the room. It is to be used every Friday afternoon. Hot water will be stored in the tank just before the clinic begins.

Outline Of Body Seen On Abbot's Tomb

NUITS - SAINT - GEORGES, France, Jan. 15 (Reuters)—Villagers here are hailing as a miracle the shadowy grey outline of a shrouded body which appeared on top of a 17-century abbot's tomb in the local monastery.

Gabriel Gavinget, director of the monastery hospital, said today:

"It has the shape of a body with the arms by the sides. It is just in the position where the abbot's body would lie below the stone."

The hospital's Mother Superior, a member of the Order of Saint Marthe de Beaume, said: "The stone is pink and the shape of the body is lighter in color.

"I have no theories as to whether it is a miracle or what is the cause. The shape is there. That is all I know."

There are an assortment of theories advanced by those who don't believe the shadowy figure is miraculous.

The best suggests that the abbot, Antide Midan, who died in 1689, may have had a tomb built with an underlayer of some porous stone—perhaps containing some chemical — designed to show through centuries later when the weather is damp.

Exponents of this theory point to the inscription on the tomb: "When you cease to speak of this rare example of virtue, the stone will not be silent."

18 Die In Accident

CARACAS, Venezuela, Jan. 15 (AP)—A bus plunged over a 1,200-foot precipice into a river Monday in the southwestern state of Merida, killing 18 persons and injuring 13 others. Eight of the injured are in serious condition. The passengers were members of farm families travelling from a village to the Merida market. Only the ticket collector escaped injury. He jumped before the bus plunged over the cliff.

Silent About Talks

Mr. Churchill made no direct reference to his talks with President Truman in Washington early last week and his talks here with Prime Minister St. Laurent during the weekend.

The state dinner, attended by members of parliament, government officials and diplomats, followed his 105-minute meeting Monday with Mr. St. Laurent and the full Canadian cabinet. Mr. Churchill had with him several key ministers, including foreign secretary Anthony Eden.

A brief communique said the cabinet discussions ranged over the world situation, with particular empahsis on the North Atlantic council, and both sides found they had a "complete understanding" on all problems.

Personal Appraisal

Mr. Churchill is reported to have given the cabinet his personal appraisal of the world picture and to have reported on his Washington talks with Mr. Truman, including their discussions on raw materials, atomic information and plans to streamline the Atlantic Council.

Two concrete developments appeared to emerge from the Churchill visit:

1.—Governor-General Viscount Alexander, with whom the 77-year-old British Prime Minister has been staying, is expected to return to Britain shortly to become its Defence Minister.

2.—Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, head of Britain's internal eastern military command, is expected to lead a stepped-up British campaign against the Communists in Malaya. He flew to Ottawa from London to confer with Mr. Churchill.

The British statesman leaves by train today at 4:30 pm EST for Washington. He had planned to fly this morning, but bad weather forced him to alter his schedule. He will remain in the US until Jan. 23, when he sails for home. The others with him here either left or are leaving today, some to go to Washington and some to return to Britain.

Western Solidarity

In his address, broadcast throughout Canada and the United States and beamed to many parts of the world, he said his trip had brought fresh evidence of Western solidarity and, whatever the future may hold of wars or aggressions, "this time, at any rate, we are all United from the beginning."

Perhaps his most eloquent and inspiring declaration came when he spoke of his hope for the future based on what he has seen and heard on this visit:

"I claim here, in Ottawa, that in our gathering tonight we make a valiant and I believe unconquerable assertion of the spirit of our combined identity and survival.

"We have surmounted all the perils and endured all the agonies of the past.

"We shall provide against and thus prevail over the dangers and problems of the future—withhold no sacrifice, grudge no toil, seek no sordid gain, fear no foe.

Future Good

"All will be well.

"We have, I believe, within us the life strength and guiding light by which the tormented world around us may find its harbor of safety after a storm-beaten voyage."

He said nothing of Russia, but spoke of "the present hideous world muddle." Defeat of the enemies in 1945 and creation of the United Nations had given hope that wars were ended.

"It is certainly not that," he said. "Peace does not sit untroubled in her vineyard."

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization, "which owes much to Canadian statesmanship and the personal initiative of Mr. St. Laurent," stood now "not only the surest guarantee of the prevention of war but a sure hope of victory should our hopes be blasted."

Rents in effect Jan. 1, 1952, will be used as the basic figure for arbitration to establish the new maximum levels, Premier Frost said.

A special committee of the Legislature will be set up to review the regulations and keep them up to date as conditions warrant, he said.

The Premier also announced that in some areas of the province —those where the housing shortage is not serious—rents will be entirely decontrolled. He said that the municipalities will be notified that control will not apply after Sept. 1, 1952, unless the local council wants them continued.

transit service. And it left the 1,200,000 residents of the Greater Toronto area still dependent upon emergency transportation arrangements to get to and from work.

The strikers include bus drivers of Gray Coach Lines, TTC subsidiary.

Refuse To Budge

TTC representatives at the meeting refused to budge from their position that the highest wage increase they could offer was the five cents recommended by a conciliation board, bringing the basic hourly rate to $1.45. The union continued to insist on a 15-cent raise to $1.55.

Families of the 4,700 striking workers carefully budgeted what was left of the two weeks' pay—for the last half of December—they received last week. Union strike pay of $15 a week does not start until after the second week of the walkout, when the first week's payment will be made. If the strike ends before that time, no strike pay will be forthcoming.

10-Year-Old Brownie Kidnapped, Beaten

TORONTO, Jan. 15 (CP). — A 10-year-old girl from suburban Scarborough was kidnapped and beaten into unconsciousness Monday night while returning from a Brownie meeting, police chief Wilfred McClellan reported today.

She was found by two motorists about 10 pm with blood streaming from two severe cuts inflicted by a truck crank. She was unable to recall what happened after she was beaten by her abductor, police said. She was not raped.

Thirteen stitches were required to close cuts on the girl's head, and one finger was broken.

The girl was lured into a truck by a man who said he was to have picked her up.

Lloyd Welcomes Russ Proposal On Atom Control

PARIS, Jan. 15 (AP).—Selwyn Lloyd, British Minister of State, said today he welcomed Russia's new proposals for atomic control.

The British delegate warned the United Nations political committee, however, not to expect a "sudden or dramatic solution" to east-west tension to result from them.

Lloyd said he was not sure how much nearer this "new formula" brought the Russian position to that of the west and urged further study of it in the UN's disarmament commission.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky offered Saturday to accept international control of atomic energy at the same time that the atom bomb would be banned. He also offered to accept continuing international inspection of atomic facilities in Russia.

Ford Officials, Union Renew Conference

WINDSOR, Jan. 15 (CP)—Ford of Canada officials met again today with spokesmen for the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO-CCL) in a wage contract conference.

Officials of both said they are anxious to settle the seven-months long dispute over a 1951 contract. No announcement came from a conference Monday.

The Ford Company has offered a 15-cent-an-hour wage increase on a basic $1.35 to take effect on acceptance by UAW Local 200. The local is asking some union security benefits plus a 15-cent increase, partly retroactive to June 1.

Cyprus Police Clash With 1,000 Students

NICOSIA, Cyprus, Jan. 15 — (Reuters)—Police clashed today with more than 1,000 high school pupils, several of them girls, in various parts of this British-ruled Mediterranean island during demonstrations urging union of Cyprus with Greece.

The incidents marked the second anniversary of an unofficial plebiscite here which its Greek Orthodox organizers said resulted in 96 per cent of the island's Greek residents favoring union with Greece.

Nearly 900 pupils here and at a Limasol school went on strike today.

Most violent clash was at Paphos, a port 100 miles west of here. Mayor Christodoules Galatopoulos said about 500 students, 60 of them girls, marched from the school building and walked with banners towards the British commissioner's office.

"After breaking through a cordon of police the students approached to within 10 yards of the commissioner's office," the mayor said. "I saw about 15 policemen hit about 20 pupils including five girls."

The mayor said a police inspector told him he had instructions to break up the procession "by any means."

Evacuate Cabins

Thirty passengers of a Greyhound bus, stranded since Friday at Lake Audrain near Echo summit on US Highway 50, were reported evacuating cabins in which they had taken shelter. Continuing drifts threatened to bury the cabins.

The army convoy plans to take the Weasels as close as possible to the stranded streamliner on a relief train, then send them crunching over the deep snow to the train and return the 196 passengers to the relief train. The streamliner has a crew of 30.

It was estimated the relief train's rotary plow could chew its way to within three miles of the stalled City of San Francisco.

Perennial Mayor Dies

GUELPH, Jan. 15 (CP)—R. Beverley Robson, 60, known for many years as Guelph's perennial mayor, died Monday night. He had been in poor health for the last four years. For many years he was engaged in the automobile and garage business. Active in civic life for more than a quarter century, he served as mayor on 10 occasions—an all-time record here.

Defence Rests Case For Gunner

By BILL BOSS

SEOUL, Jan. 15 (CP)—The defence rested its case today on an attempted murder charge against Gnr. Lawrence Lang of Toronto.

The court then adjourned to enable the prosecution and defence to prepare closing addresses overnight.

Last month Gnr. Robert Stirling of Vancouver was convicted of attempted murder and of molesting Korean civilians, the same charges Lang is facing. They arose out of an incident Sept. 30. Stirling was sentenced to seven years.

At today's hearing, Lang testified he accompanied Stirling to a Korean house and found the household reluctant to receive them.

"I told him we might as well go back and he said no.

"Instead he handed me his carbine and said he was going into the inside room to see if any women were there."

Had No Reason

Lang said Stirling was inside two or three minutes and in the meantime he was sitting in the outside doorway holding Stirling's carbine.

Asked why he sat with his back to the room and facing two Korean men in the outer room, Lang said: "I don't know—no particular reason."

He said that Stirling shot one of two Koreans in the yard after the Korean had grappled with Lang and had been thrown back.

"Stirling said 'Let's go' and it didn't enter my mind to look at the man to see if he was badly hurt. I was pretty scared and wanted to get out as quick as possible."

Maj. Sam Pinkerton of Hamilton, Lang's battery commander, said in character evidence "Lang generally was above average as a soldier."

BREAK THE LAXATIVE HABIT THIS PROVEN WAY

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; eat a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's . . . be regular naturally.

When worry, overwork, overeating make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's temporarily. Never get the laxative habit.

Get mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drug store. Only 30c. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

Campbellford Mayor Third Of Family To Head Council

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 15 — (ENS) — The 1952 Campbellford town council held its inaugural meeting Monday morning, with Mayor W. A. Kingston presiding. The Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith officiated.

Mayor W. A. Kingston gave a short address, and thanked Dr. Smith for his words, saying they would inspire the new council during the year. He said he hoped the new council would be conscientious in discharging their duties, and expressed his satisfaction at having such a fine council to work with for the year.

He is the third generation of his family to receive the honor of being chief magistrate of the town. Sixty-two years ago, his grandfather, W. W. Armstrong, was elected reeve of the community, at which time it was a village. Twenty-four years ago, Mr. Kingston's father was elected mayor of the town and it was under his regime the first paving of the streets was accomplished.

"Although I have been in the council for a number of years, I feel there is still much to learn", he said. He pledged his personal cooperation with all committees and asked that council endeavour to keep their discussions short and to the point.

See All Viewpoints

The mayor also reminded his council that they are a representative body and as such must consider the other fellow's viewpoint, and vote according to the dictates of proper reasoning. He welcomed the three new council members, councillors D. Ness, A. F. Collette and Mrs. W. C. Tatham, first woman to sit on the Campbellford council.

A committee consisting of Reeve R. J. Locke, and councillors Maybee and Free was named to select committee heads and to report back when council reconvened after lunch.

At this point Reeve Locke moved that the council accept the invitation of the Campbellford Rotary Club to meet with them as their dinner guests. Council then adjourned until 2 p.m.

The afternoon session proved to be a lengthy one, with a good deal of business being accomplished.

The committee gave their report on chairmen selected for the various committees, and each committee head then selected his own committee members. The following committees were named: chairmen are first named, finance, Reeve R. J. Locke, councillors Free, Macmillan and Maybee; road and bridge, Dep. Reeve Oscar Mason, councillors Free and Macmillan; property, councillor Macmillan, councillors Maybee and Ness; legal, councillor Free, D. Ness and Reeve R. J. Locke; fire, water and light, councillor David Ness, councillors Collette and Macmillan; police, councillor Collette, Dep. Reeve Mason and councillor Maybee; relief, councillor Maybee, councillors Macmillan and Tatham; hospitalization, councillor Tatham, councillors Free and Maybee; industrial, Mayor W. A. Kingston, councillors Ness and Maybee and Reeve R. J. Locke.

Mayor Kingston said he was attaching more importance to the Industrial committee this year and for that reason wanted four members on the committee instead of the customary three.

A letter from the C. E. Hickey and sons, fire fighting equipment company, was given to the chairman of the fire, water and light committee, to turn over to Seymour council.

R. H. Townsend appeared before council on behalf of the Public Library board, and asked that council give a grant equal to that of last year. He pointed out that this amounted to one and a half mills and last year was $2,536.75. He said there were more than 1,200 borrowers at the library and that 27,489 books had been loaned during 1951. The 15,000 volumes in the library are valued at more than $30,000 and the library is reported to be one of the best in the province. Council later gave their regular grant amounting to 1½ mills.

J. C. Birmingham, tax collector, brought in the tax roll, showing $90,893.23 had been collected in 1951 taxes. This left a total of $7,347.01 in arrears and still to be collected, and some $235.63 that for various reasons the town would not try to collect. Mr. Birmingham said that he expected about $5,000 of the arrears would be collected in the next few weeks.

A bylaw re-appointing the Rev. A. E. Toombs to the public library board for another three-year term was passed.

As a matter of form, a bylaw authorizing the borrowing of $50,000 to meet current expenditures until taxes start to come in was passed, but it is unlikely that any money will be borrowed. It is hoped council will strike a tentative tax rate at a special meeting to be held soon, and the tax collector will be authorized to accept prepayment of taxes at this rate. The difference in the tentative rate and the official rate will be adjusted later.

After passing the pay sheet council adjourned.

Sure 6 Senators Support Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (CP)—Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.) said today six members of the 13-man Senate Foreign Relations Committee would "surely" support a move to get St. Lawrence seaway and power legislation to the Senate floor.

But when such a move might be initiated was not immediately apparent.

The measure is strongly opposed by Committee Chairman Tom Connolly (Dem. Tex.). He has said he will not call up the bill for committee consideration.

But his hand could be forced should a majority of the committee decide to overrule him. This, apparently is the strategy that Wiley and other seaway supporters will attempt.

The bill proposes the deepening of the St. Lawrence to accommodate ocean-shipping from the Atlantic to the head of the Great Lakes and creation of a 2,200,000-horsepower hydro-electric plant near Massena, NY. It was introduced months ago.

Since that time the House of Representatives public works committee has pigeon-holed similar legislation. Canada has completed legislative action authorizing an all-Canadian seaway.

The House public works committee has no present plans to reconsider the St. Lawrence proposal.

Mother Suicides

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 15 (AP)— A mother dropped her infant son from a third floor landing, then jumped to her own death Monday night from the fourth-storey roof of the Sunshine Sanitarium. Victims of the tragedy were Mrs. Matilda Reinhart, 39, and her two-month-old son, Allen. The woman's husband said his wife had been despondent over her health.

Get More People Or Lose Wealth Says Sandwell

LINDSAY, Jan. 15 —If Canadians think they are going to be able to hold their country's resources with 14 million people they are making a grave mistake, B. W. Sandwell well known journalist said in Lindsay recently.

Mr. Sandwell was the guest speaker at the January meeting of the Lindsay Canadian club.

The title of the speaker's address was, Population, Pressures and the Problem of Peace. Mr. Sandwell explained that his address was merely a talk on elementary economics.

He described economics as the science which deals with the whole relationships of human beings insofar as they are associated with the processes of production, distribution and consumption.

Calling Canadians the richest people in the world, not only per capita, but in total—14 million people owning half a continent whose natural resources were only scratched, Mr. Sandwell said that the only answer to world problems was a better distribution of population.

More people from overcrowded countries should be allowed into Canada. These people would help protect the porprietorship of our resources, he concluded.

Belgium Gets NewGovernment

BRUSSELS, Jan. 15 (Reuters) —Belgium got a new all-Roman Catholic government today under Premier Jean Van Houtte, in a musical-chairs re-shuffle of the administration of Joseph Pholien which was turned out of office a week ago.

Van Houtte was finance minister in the Pholien administration, also all-Catholic, which collapsed after criticism from leaders of the Roman Catholic Party, the Social Christians.

The party won a narrow overall majority in the House in the last election in 1950.

King Baudouin, facing the first ministerial crisis of his five-month-old reign, asked Van Houtte three days ago to form a new government.

The old government had been accused by its critics of bad economic planning and co-ordination.

Paul Van Zeeland, foreign minister under Pholien, retains his post.

Union Wage Demand Jumps Cent More

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15—(AP)—Union wage demands jumped one more cent today as the Baltimore transit strike entered its sixth day, apparently no closer to a solution than when it started.

The AFL Transit Workers Union, representing some 3,200 bus and trolley operators, has said it would increase its wage demand by one cent every two days the strike drags on.

It reduced its original demand of a 24-cent hourly increase to 15 cents, then stuck in the escalator clause when the Baltimore Transit Company rejected the offer. The workers now average $1.63 an hour.

The company's best offer is seven cents, part of it contingent on the firm getting increased revenues through zone fares and other measures.

He received 25,000 francs, plus gold and silver medals for his new recipe for cooking a saddle of mutton. Just how he did it is his secret.

Suggest Story On Alexander May Be Wrong

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Jan. 15 —(CP)—A cryptic note emerged today in the continuing speculation on the future of Viscount Alexander.

While The News Chronicle said unreservedly that Viscount Alexander will become Britain's defence minister when his term as Canada's governor-general ends in April, The Daily Telegraph dredged up an anecdote which cast a certain doubt on the situation.

The Telegraph said the report started with a remark by a high British official to a Canadian colleague about a "wonderful" plan that Prime Minister Churchill had for Lord Alexander. The Canadian official, not knowing what was meant, telephoned a Canadian newspaperman to find out whether there had been an announcement.

"That was enough," said the Telegraph. "A report that the Canadian governor-general would soon be in Churchill's cabinet as defence minister was front-page 'news' in all Canadian newspapers Monday.

"The way a report is started is often as interesting as the report itself."

Not New Speculation

The newspaper did not name the officials or make clear what "plan" Churchill had in mind.

Speculation on a new role for the governor-general is not now completely new. In a dispatch from London Dec. 3, the Canadian Press reported that Churchill might lay aside the defence portfolio. The dispatch quoted the weekly newspaper, The Observer, as saying there was talk that Churchill hoped to persuade Viscount Alexander to take the job.

The Canadian Press story also quoted The Observer as saying Churchill might make his offer to Alexander during the prime minister's visit to Canada.

Famed Bell Tolls To Honor Carlsen

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP) — The famed Lutine Bell at Lloyd's of London tolled twice today to honor Capt. Kurt Carlsen for upholding the highest traditions of the sea.

The Master of the Flying Enterprise was presented by the centuries-old insurance house with its silver medal for "meritorious services at sea."

Carlsen, still the shy and retiring sailor who came ashore at Falmouth last Friday after his 14-day ordeal aboard the Flying Enterprise, responded modestly to the honor.

"I have not done anything that deserves recognition," he said. "I tried as a seaman to prove what a seaman is expected to do."

Llyoyd's medal is awarded only in recognition of unique feats of seamanship. It has been handed out about 400 times in 60 years.

The Lutine Bell was recovered from HMS Lutine, a British frigate which sank in 1799 off the English coast in an Atlantic gale.

It is usually rung upon receipt of news of overdue ships. Two strokes mean good news; one stroke, bad.

Vagrant Jailed

Arrested Saturday and charged with vagrancy, Fred Brant, 21, who said his home is in Lindsay, pleaded guilty in police court Monday.

He was fined $10 and $2.50 costs or ten days in jail. "I guess it would be just as well," replied Brant, when Magistrate W. R. Philp told him he had better return to Lindsay when he gets out of jail.

FISHING COMFORT—Joseph Cantin, 78, of Ste. Anne de la Perade, Que., takes his winter fishing in comfort as he sits in a cosy shack and pulls in two "petit poissons de chenal"—tommycod. Perhaps one of the oldest tommycod fishermen on the frozen Ste. Anne River, Mr. Cantin set up his shack early for the seasonal sport.

POPULAR SPORT—Shacks dot the Ste. Anne River, between Quebec and Three Rivers, as fishermen dig holes in the ice and bait their lines for the "petis poissons de chenal"—tommycod. The tiny fish, a delicacy, swims up the St. Lawrence River each winter and spawns in its tributaries. The seasonal sport is a paying business for some.

Two Men Crawl On Knees From Mine Pit To Safety

By IRVING C. WHYNOT

STELLARTON, NS, Jan. 15 — (CP)—Fraser Lorimer, 62-year-old veteran mechanic and only man to walk away from the McGregor mine explosions Monday, sat pale and serious at his fireside here Monday night and recounted the awful moments when disaster struck. Only mark of his experience was a small bandage, covering a minor cut on his bald head.

Lorimer said he was talking to another survivor, Jim Hawboldt, an engine driver, at the time.

"We had just been talking about the fire discovered in the morning, when the blast came.

"There was one heck of an explosion. Flames, dirt and dust shook the whole place something terrific.

" 'There she is,' said Hawboldt, 'we've had it.'

" 'Neither of us is hurt," I said, 'let's get out of here . . .'

"The heat was beginning to get me and at that time I struck my head somehow and that's how I got nicked. I fell across the rails and my light came on. I was glad we had reached the rails for I knew we were nearing safety and I could feel fresher air. We got on our hands and knees to get out of the heat into the cooler air and kept going until we got out. I've never been in anything like that before and never want to again. I'm lucky to be here."

Hawboldt, former Maritime marathoner, couldn't be interviewed at his hospital room Monday night but his wife passed on all he could say:

"He wouldn't say very much about it. He was broken up, losing so many good friends. I'm a very lucky woman and I thank God for bringing Jim through safely."

Hawboldt told his wife he didn't remember how he got out of the mine or when he was struck on the hip by a flying rock.

LONDON, Jan. 15 (Reuters)—An international conference to work out a plan for settlement of Germany's pre-war external debts will open in London Feb. 26, it was announced Monday.

Canada is one of the 39 countries invited to send government and private creditor representatives to the conference which will be held under the direction of the tripartite commission on German debts—Britain, France and the United States. Iron Curtain countries are not invited.

Chance To Negotiate

"The conference is intended to provide an opportunity for negotiations for the settlement of Germany's pre-war external debts between representatives of the German federal government and the German debtors on the one hand, and representatives of the creditor interests concerned on the other hand," the announcement said.

Other countries invited to send representatives are:

The Bank for International Settlements, which also has a creditor interest, also was invited.

Great Soccer Classic Banned In Scotland

GLASGOW, Jan. 15. (Reuters) —One of Scotland's great sport institutions — the annual New Year's Day soccer match between Glasgow Celtic and Glasgow Rangers—was banned today.

Each year, when the two teams meet in Ibrox Park or Hampden Park, two of the world's largest stadia, the enthusiasm of their supporters leads to fist fights, bottle-throwing and often rioting.

At this year's game there were 12 arrests.

Today Glasgow magistrates and soccer officials decided that in the interests of safety the two teams will never meet again on New Year's Day.

Obscurity Not Lightened

We hope that the City Auditor has not misunderstood the tenor of our remarks last Friday on the obscurity which cloaks month-to-month city spending. His letter of today impels us to reaffirm that we did not suggest or in any way hint that there was any irregularity in the accounts nor did we imply that anybody was trying to hide how much money is being spent and for what purposes. As Mr. Humpage's own auditor's annual reports show with clarity and accuracy, the city's accounts are always in good order. Nor would we wish to impute to the City Auditor any withholding of information; indeed, his periodic summaries of the city's financial situation and helpful analyses of futurities are exactly the sort of thing we wish that the aldermen—and the public—could have before them each month as Council pays the bills.

* * *

The whole point of the editorial was to call attention to the paucity of information available to the aldermen, and to a greater extent to the public, when the monthly lists of accounts are presented to the Council for authorization. To be morally certain that the accounts are correct is not the same thing as to know what the accounts are for. We believe that many aldermen are quite uninformed about accounts for which they vote payment; and that from month to month they have only a hazy idea of the rate of expenditure by departments and on projects, in relation to the budget and the authorized orders. True, it all comes out in the end—when the City Treasurer balances the books for the year and the auditor analyses them. But that analysis is not public property until several months have elapsed, the old City Council is dead and the accounts which they incurred and the bills they paid are matters of history. Obscurity surrounds the current financial situation, in any one week, any one month, and at any Council meeting. Since the spending goes on week by week, it is month by month that the aldermen should know how money matters stand, and not sometime in the next year when it is too late to curb spending or check allocations of the 1951 financial year.

* * *

The aldermen may be better informed individually about the state of affairs than the procedure suggests at Council meetings, the third Monday of the month when they vote money to pay the long, uninformative lists of bills. If they are, why is there an annual deficit, unbudgeted for, and why is the amount of the deficit not known at the year's end? If they are adequately informed at all times about the current situation, why is there need to call a special meeting in the Fall so as to relate spending to the appropriations and try to bring them into line?

* * *

Certainly the public has a hazy notion about the current state of accounts. That is not the fault of this newspaper. Its City Hall reporter is our senior reporter. He has attended more Council meetings—and been a thoughtful sentinel at them—than any member of this or last year's Council. Yet despite his large experience as an observer of city affairs and his diligent attendance at Council and committee meetings for many years, he is unable to report month by month how the city's financial affairs stand. The obscurity of them is perplexing to the public. We again suggest that the procedure of presenting accounts to the Council be made more informative. The Council might usefully adopt the Board of Education's reporting methods of current expenditures and standing totals.

What Democracy Means In Bermuda

Most people think of Bermuda as a holiday resort. However, it has permanent inhabitants, and a governing body of sorts, called an Assembly. An odd thing happened there recently when a Bermuda newspaper, the Royal Gazette, was the subject of a vote of censure in the Assembly for "a breach of privilege and contempt." The dreadful action which called down this wrath was a report of a meeting of the Assembly. A debate on foreign exchange, which the Speaker said was not to be reported, was nevertheless reported—for the excellent reason that the debate was a public one, of the elected governing body, and the people of Bermuda had a right to know about it.

One member of the Assembly expressed his views on this matter publicly, and we think they are of interest:

"I think it ridiculous to say the editor acted in the interests of the public. Newspapers are in business to make money. They are in business to make a profit. If they can inform the public at the same time, well and good.

"There is no more abused figure of speech in the English language than freedom of the press—freedom to leave out what they please, freedom to put in what they please.

"I think it is high time this freedom of the press was curtailed. We must protect ourselves."

This is a quaint point of view—as quaint as Bermuda itself. For we understand from people who know that island well that Bermuda is a very quaint place, in which freedom—particularly economic freedom—is limited by rather quaint—that is to say, old-fashioned—methods. Indiscreet people have whispered to us that Bermuda's real government is a quaint, unacknowledged association of rich men who are known to the populace by the quaint name of The Forty Thieves. In fact, from all we hear about it, Bermuda is a delightful place—for a short visit.

How grim these little coral atolls, haunted by tourists and the parasites of tourists, must be! We extend our sympathy to the editor of the Royal Gazette; he lives in the moderate climate of Bermuda, but he is, it appears, subject to chill winds right from the seventeenth century.

Russia At The Olympics

Ever since the French nation was instrumental in reviving the Olympic Games, in 1894, there has been hope that these athletic contests would, in some degree, promote international goodwill; but there is little evidence to show that they have done so. Indeed, some hotly disputed international quarrels have been caused by the Olympic Games. Nations like to win in sport, just as they like to win in war.

The current Olympiad shows no signs of being more of a peacemaker than its forerunners. Russia has already announced that although her athletes will be in some of the contests, they will not mingle with the other competitors. Every day they will be flown the 200 miles from Leningrad to Helsinki; they will not live in the Olympic Village, where the other athletes will enjoy the hospitality of Finland, and such international athletic amity as they can work up.

We wonder how Russia will explain her inevitable athletic defeats to her people—for it goes without saying that Russia cannot win all the contests in which there are Russian entrants, and may not win any of them. So far as we know, Russia sets considerable store by athletic prowess; it is supposed to be an indication of national virility, though it has been shown time and again to be a doubtful gauge of any quality save athleticism. Will Russia maintain that her champions have not received fair treatment if they do not win? Will they find some Russian equivalent for the old North American cry of the defeated athlete—"We wuz robbed"? To be beaten by capitalists would be a bitter fate indeed for the champions of the Soviet.

Foire de Paris

Among the pamphlets which we received in the morning mail was one whose elaborate heading impels us to comment on it.

FOIRE DE PARIS
Universelle et Internationale
Paris, 23, Rue N.D. des Victoires

Also on the letter-head were telegraph, cable and telephone addresses, the head of a man wearing a winged helmet, and across from it, a rooster circled in black. The mimeographed sub-heading read: "125 acres 10,750 exhibitors 2,500,000 visitors"

A sub-heading read "Joyeux Noel et Bonne et Heureuse Annee — Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. The Foire de Paris sends you greetings and hopes to welcome you in France at the next Fair, May 17-June 2".

Thank you, thank you. We hope to have a Bonne et Heureuse year; but our hopes are fainter that we shall have part of it in Paris next May attending the Paris International Trade Fair. But it would be very nice to make a visit to France; Paris is very pleasant in May. However, dear Sirs of the Foire de Paris, we fear we shall be unable to attend. We therefore suggest that you cut down the number of visitors given in you subheading to 2,499,999.

The message itself began with a jolt which shook us right out of Paris.

"The shot fired at Concord, April 19, 1775, still rings round the world. It was fired against something which today is still being fired at in Korea and Indo-China. It is the same fundamental freedom that is at stake" etc. etc.

How this ties in with the International Trade Fair, or expects to tie us in with it, is beyond our imagining. French logic, perhaps. The kind of logic which is able in January to proclaim the number of visitors who will attend on the 125 acres and 10,750 exhibitors next May—all 2,500,000 of them.

International Trade Fairs have become a post-war national fetish. Canada herself set the pattern by opening in Toronto the first one after the war and continuing it thereafter annually. We wish the Paris International Trade Fair well, and regretfully state that this year at least, we must do our international and universal window-shopping at the Toronto show.

It could be said that the transport strike was all that Toronto needed to put it on its feet.

Science For Humans

By J. BRONOWSKI

WE live in a revolution of physics which began before 1900 and which is not yet ended. But we can now see that its heroic age ran roughly from 1925 to 1930. In those years one school seemed always about to prove that nature is made all of particles, and the other that nature is all waves. And then the rivalry of schools faded in a deeper paradox. The equations of both turned out to be right, but matter turned out to be neither particles nor waves, in the usual meaning of these words. Something more than a discovery had been made in those headlong years: physics had changed its conception of nature.

PROFESSOR Schrodinger is one of the rivals and heroes of that age. He shared the Nobel Prize with Dirac in 1933, and came to Dublin from Austria after the Anschluss in 1938. Since then he has become well known to non-scientists for his book "What is Life?" This absorbing book examines the laws which underlie a living process such as inheritance, and contrasts them with the laws of physics. The physical world is steady because the tiny variable events which go to make it overwhelm their own fluctuations by sheer numbers. But in the process of life a single event may be critical: and it is this individuality and finality, as it were in the face of statistics, that Professor Schrodinger found to hold the essence of life.

Not all scientists (or laymen) accept the conclusions of "What is Life?" But it had that rare merit in a book, that it had something to say to every reader, specialist and non-specialist, because its arguments were more challenging than its conclusions. Professor Schrodinger's new book ("Science and Humanism," by E. Schrodinger (Cambridge University Press), has the same merit. It again shows the reader, whatever his status, something in his habits of thought which he must discard before he can call his mind his own. Professor Schrodinger has again written an important book—short, direct and searching.

BUT it is not the book which the title promises. "Science and Humanism" is a phrase with almost as large a sweep as "What is Life?" But the book falls short of it, and confines itself in the main to a more modest topic. It is a clear and compact account of the limitations which physical science has to accept before it can describe the behaviour of the very small.

These limitations have deeply changed our notion of what makes a natural law, and our whole approach to the logic events. For intelligent men and women to live today in ignorance of these changes seems to most scientists as philistine an offence as if they were to refuse any taste more modern than Ruskin and Pinero. This is what Professor Schrodinger's large title is meant to say: that he is here presenting the fundamental concepts of modern science which must become familiar to humanists, and indeed to humans, if they are to remain masters of their own life.

THE limitations of physical method have of course been written about before. Those who have done so have usually found it most telling to put them in the form which Heisenberg gave in 1927: that every description of minute nature must contain uncertainties which cannot be refined away. Our knowledge of the future of the world is therefore limited by an essential uncertainty in its present.

This principle is sound. But Professor Schrodinger is right to be uneasy at the large place which it has come to take in accounts of modern science. The principle of uncertainty is only one formulation of the gap which physics has opened between present and future at each moment of time. And it is a dangerous formulation. For it suggests that the uncertainty in our description of small events is only a kind of human frailty—a defect of observation and no more, below which we may still suppose that nature runs as an imperturbable and exact machine.

This would be a grave misunderstanding. For the uncertainty is not ours. It exists within the events; it is embedded in nature. The logic of small events does not and cannot be made to fit any machine which moves strictly from known causes to sure effects. We can observe the action of an electron now and we can observe it later; but it is meaningless to ask where the action or the electron is meanwhile. The electron is not a particle in this sense at all, as if it were rolling through space and time like a billiard ball. It is indeed often meaningless to ask whether we are still looking as the same electron. We are looking at events, in which time and place and thing are inextricably bound together.

THEN what is there which does remain the same? Not substance, answers Professor Schrodinger, but structure. Something of this kind is, of course, familiar to us in daily life. This page and the ink on it are in constant change: it is the shape of what is printed which is lasting and meaningful. In physics, a wave is all structure, and a particle is all substance. Professor Schrodinger is a pioneer of wave mechanics, and he is at his best in this book when he explains the fundamental permanence of structure.

This is a structure not of things but of events: we must not surreptitiously put substance back into it. In so far as an electron is a wave, it is not a wave of something or in something: the word "wave" merely describes one of its modes of behaviour. This needs saying again now that Professor Dirac has suggested that physics may after all have to reinstate that ancient fiction, a universal ether. If there is a twentieth-century ether, it will not again be that homely elastic carrier of the stresses of nature with which Aristotelian philosophers long reassured themselves that nothing moves unless it is pushed. I stand with Professor Schrodinger in this, and with the empirical tradition running back to Duns Scotus and William of Ockham, which holds that we cannot force our analogies on nature.

It would be nice if nature in every part followed the rules with which we have grown up on our piece of it. It would be comfortable to go back to an ether as simple as a fishpond, and to electrons which are content once for all either to bounce or to wave. But nothing so relaxing will happen again. The electron will continue to be an electron, the total of its own properties and nothing else. It does not propose to opt either for a wave or a particle in order to save us headaches; and these neat models will remain what they are, figures of speech which we use because each describes its behaviour here or there. Nature will remain herself, and if we want to understand her we shall have to learn her language and her exciting logic.

"I should avoid asking them things like What do they think of their first Christmas under a Tory Government?"

The Sterling Area At The Crossroads

BY THE RT. HON. HUGH GAITSKELL, C.B.E., M.P.
(Late Labour Chancellor of The Exchequer)

THE Sterling Area today consists of a group of countries—including all the Commonwealth except Canada—which keep most of their currency reserves and settle their debts to one another in sterling—retaining balances in London for these purposes; who, except for South Africa, pay their dollar earnings into a common pool and draw upon this for their dollar requirements; and who voluntarily limit these requirements by restricting dollar imports and imposing exchange control on dollar transactions in their own territories.

The introduction of this last qualification in 1939 gave the present Sterling Area its distinctive character. Up to then the relationship between Britain and the other members was still essentially that of banker and customer. But when after the outbreak of war the most important remaining customers agreed with the hard-pressed banker not to exercise their rights to convert their sterling freely into dollars and agreed on action in common to protect the gold reserves, a new type of institution was created with far-reaching political and commercial implications.

ITS significance has been only gradually appreciated. Although common action implied a common understanding as to how each country should conduct its affairs, no central authority has ever been set up. There are informal contacts and occasional Ministerial meetings, but even today the members of the Sterling Area discuss one another's economic problems and policies a good deal less than the members of O.E.E.C. (Organization for European Economic Co-operation) discuss theirs.

Such is the institution whose formidable difficulties will be under examination at the Conference of Commonwealth Finance Ministers this week (beginning January 15). The paramount object of the Conference is to stop the dollar drain, and the essential step is, as in 1949, an agreement by all member countries to cut by specific amounts not only imports from dollar countries but all imports which directly or indirectly cost dollars. If this is not done, I fear the Conference will have failed. Success depends first on an absolutely frank discussion of the causes of the present situation and all its implications.

Much has been said and written already about the reasons for the huge current deficit. They are in large part the reversal of those which gave the Sterling Area an exceptionally favourable year in 1950. To that extent we are back in 1949, except that then the U.K. had a small overall surplus while it now has a large overall deficit and there is also now no Marshall Aid.

The Sterling Area has now too a large deficit in Europe which involves us in heavy gold payments. Liberalization and E.P.U. (European Payments Union) were desirable, but they increased the vulnerability of the Sterling Area. Other factors are the loss of Persian oil, and a fall in U.S. purchases of tin and rubber.

SINCE this is the third "crisis" since the war the question is bound to be asked, "Can and ought the Sterling Area to continue?" It can continue provided the members carry out the policies which its survival requires. But should it continue?

The existence of combined gold reserves and large sterling balances involves the very real danger that each member may hope to finance a trade deficit at the expense of the others with disastrous consequences to the reserves. If each country had to defend its own gold reserve and adjust its policies accordingly, this could not happen. But any gain from this would be far outweighed by the other disastrous consequences of breaking up the Sterling Area. The payment arrangements between the different members could no longer be based on readiness to hold unlimited amounts of sterling. Bilateral surpluses or deficits would presumably either not be allowed to exist or sooner or later would have to be settled in dollars. The fear of dollar loss would put an end to freedom of capital movements within the area; the sterling balances could no longer be convertible and would probably have to be completely frozen. Restrictions on trade similar to those imposed at present between sterling and dollar countries would be inevitable. All this suggests that if the Sterling Area were broken up, it would have to be rebuilt.

But if the Sterling Area is to remain solvent certain longer term changes are required—in addition to immediate cuts on all non-sterling imports. The Sterling Area cannot afford a dollar deficit and really needs a dollar surplus with the outside world in order to build up its gold reserves. But in broad issues of policy the difference between dollar and overall surplus or deficit can be ignored today: for in its trade with the non-dollar non-sterling world the Sterling Area also pays or receives dollars when the debit or credit balance becomes at all substantial. If therefore the Sterling Area is not to lose dollars no member can be in overall deficit unless some other member is to the same extent in surplus.

Here the existence of the huge post-war sterling balances has had a bad influence. They have created a feeling among the holders that they can afford deficits to an extent impossible before the war by running down their balances. Unfortunately, they have also sometimes led the British to feel that they can run a deficit too and finance it, as during the war, by an increase in the sterling balances.

TWO agreements are really required. First agreement about deficits and surpluses within the Sterling Area. Normally Britain herself should have not merely no deficit but a surplus of say £2-300 million million a year. But it is hardly reasonable to expect this at present on top of rearmament and adverse terms of trade. Provided Britain is in balance for the next two or three years this should be enough. In fact, the simplest agreement would be that for this period no country should allow itself to fall into deficit.

Secondly—and this is vital—it must be agreed that as each country strives to achieve a balance, it should not be frustrated by the others. No member must try to achieve an overall balance by cutting out imports from the others. Each country must improve its balance by operating on its non-sterling trade. For this reason it will not be enough to rely on monetary deflation alone which might simply lead to reduced imports from other sterling countries. Direct physical controls to foster sterling trades are essential.

Lastly, some improvement in the functioning of the Sterling Area is desirable. Low gold reserves do not provide an adequate cushion against rapidly-changing external conditions which cannot be accurately forecast, and substantial capital movements. The Sterling Area countries must therefore adapt their policies more rapidly to the needs of the changing situation. This calls for more continuous collective study and decisions. If Ministers can only meet once a year, officials at least could meet regularly to review progress and advise on changes in policy. This implies more up-to-date information about the economies of each member, and a greater willingness to take collective decisions. In all this Britain must give the lead, indicating her readiness to play her part to the full, but if the Sterling Area is to survive the conditions for its survival must be understood and accepted by all.

Letter To The Editor

NOT OBSCURE TO THE AUDITOR

Sir: It is not the usual custom of myself or any other person connected with the city affairs to correct any inaccuracies in the reports of the press upon city matters whenever they occur, as it is taken for granted that such inaccuracies are due to misunderstanding rather than an intent to convey incorrect information. However in reference to your editorial of Friday, January 11th 1952 under the heading "City Spending Obscured" I feel that it is only just and fair to the taxpayer that some comment be made upon this, because it is quite apparent that you have written this with little or no knowledge of the matters referred to.

Some of the statements are particularly surprising to me in view of the fact that a few weeks ago your City Hall reporter asked questions of a similar nature indicating that your thoughts are not of recent origin, to which questions I believe he was given quite satisfactory answers, and he was then taken for a brief examination of some of the records involved (this examination would have been extended if he had given the necessary time). It would appear as if your reporter either did not understand the pertinent facts of such records or else any report made upon the same was ignored and disregarded by you.

I appreciate the fact, sir, that no good purpose would be served by a lengthy discussion of the various points in this letter, however since you have no doubt ereated an element of doubt and suspicion in the minds of the average citizen, I would suggest that a similar examination of the procedures and records be made by yourself so that you would be able to present the facts with a fuller knowledge of the same.

I would therefore extend to yourself and the City Hall reporter an invitation to fully examine all the procedures and records referred to, and while no elected or appointed official would expect that the said procedures and records would be found 100 per cent. perfect, I am satisfied that after such examination that you would be able to inform the taxpayer that things were not quite as "obscure" as you had represented them to be.

Yours respectfully,
E. HUMPAGE,
City Auditor.

Home Building Slumps In 11 Months

OTTAWA, Jan. 15 (CP)—Home building slumped in Canada during the first 11 months of 1951, the Bureau of Statistics reported on Monday.

Up to the end of November, the number of starts on new residential units dropped 25 per cent from the same period of 1950, while the number of completions fell off 4 per cent.

Starts totalled 66,362, against 88,397 in the first 11 months of 1950. Completions fell to 74,811 from 77,725.

The combined result of the trends was that at the end of November there was a decrease of 26 per cent in the number of dwellings under construction. The 1951 figure was 50,449, compared with 67,779 a year earlier.

Only Increase

The only national figure to show a rise in the bureau's monthly report was that of houses completed during November. The figure of 8,842 topped the 8,766 in November, 1950.

The November starts plunged 43 per cent from those of a year earlier. The totals were 3,798 and 6,679.

Drop in residential construction apparently reflected in part a tightening up of the government's National Housing Act mortgage provisions put into effect early in the year. Up until the end of April, 1951, starts were ahead of 1950, while completions last year were ahead of 1950 to the end of May.

By provinces, starts were lower in all provinces both for November and for the 11-month period as compared with 1950. November completions were higher in Newfoundland, Quebec and Ontario, but dropped in the other provinces. The 11-month totals were higher only for Quebec and Ontario.

Special Kremlin Flavor Added To Polish History

By DON DALLAS.

LONDON, Jan. 15 (Reuters).—Polish historians have been ordered to rewrite the pre-Communist history of their country on lines the Kremlin will approve.

It's by no means an easy task, for in the past Poles and Russians didn't get along. Three times in the 18th century and once in the 19th, the country was partitioned between Prussia, Tsarist Russia and Austria. It was only after the First World War that Poland regained her independence.

Then, in 1939, after her short-lived resistance to Hitler's blitzkrieg, two powers again divided her—Germany and Soviet Russia.

An estimated 46 per cent of her former territory went to the Soviet Republics of the Ukraine and Byelorussia, though against this Poland advanced her western frontier by incorporating a good slice of pre-war Germany.

That's straight history which Polish historians now have to re-angle to suit current politics. The fact that Poland now is a Communist state, closely linked with Russia, means they have to clean up the "errors" of the old history books.

Soviet historians, expert in this word game, have done some "valuable research" into Poland's past history, which will serve as a guide to the Polish writers, says a Warsaw report.

General directives for the future work of historians were laid down recently by Edvard Ochab, secretary-general of the central committee of the Polish United Workers' (Communist) Party. Ochab told a Warsaw congress of historians they should take as the text for their work a declaration by Karl Marx's disciple Friedrich Engels that "Poland will be revolutionary, or there will be no Poland."

Polish history, added Ochab, must be written in such a way that "it helps President Boleslaw Bierut, the Polish United Workers' Party and the nation as a whole to build socialism in the country."

The party chief complained that the prewar history of Poland had been "to a great extent falsified to serve the ruling burgeois clique." But he added if they carefully studied the research work of Soviet historians, the Polish history writers would "find it easy to unmask the anti-Polish rule of the Vatican and English-American imperialism."

Marines Take Picton In Cage Play

Picton Athletics were the targets for another severe drubbing by Marines, coached by Gordon McIntyre Monday night in Picton. Marines, who dropped the Athletics in their first encounter at the YMCA by 96-31, walloped the Athletics again, this time 72-30.

The game was never in doubt for the Marines, but just the same it was important, for it set the scene for the "game of the season" in the YMCA Saturday night. Monday's win over Picton coupled with two Belleville Glen Roy victories ties Belleville and the Marines for the league leadership for the second time.

Saturday night will see the Glen Roys make their second appearance in the YMCA gym. In the first game the Marines edged through for a slim three-point win.

The Marines worked methodically on the Athletics whose home floor is quite narrow, in fact Coach McIntyre today said 'it's the narowest gym I've ever seen."

Long Shooting

Under these floor conditions the Marines' fast break was useless; to carry the ball in close meant close checking by the Athletics and practically every time a personal foul. Marines had to be content to pass the ball and wait for an opportunity to shoot for a long field score.

A game highlight was the return to action by Ted Payne. A week ago Payne crashed into the cement wall at the Belleville Collegiate gym during a game with Glen Roys and his back was hurt. With supports he appeared before game time Monday night and announced he would play.

This one-week comeback was topped off by Payne's return to form to lead Marines' scoring with 15 points. Guard Harold Grafstein sank 14 points, while centre Hugh Dibben produced his best game this season with 12 points. Athletics' Chalmers led their attack with 10 points.

The first half saw the Marines adopt the slow-wait-to-shoot game and with this style romped easily ahead. Grafstein and Payne sank the long shots while Dibben worked in close as the Marines distributed the first half's 40 points fairly evenly.

At the same time the Athletics could only muster 22 points, mostly by Chalmers and Anderson.

The Marines continued this slow, easy pattern during the third quarter and built the score up to the 60s. Then they sat back in the fourth quarter to pass the ball, keeping possession most of the quarter.

The lineups:

Marines 72—A Stewart 6, Dadson 2, Thompson 4, Northcott 6, Grafstein 14, Dibben 12, Trimm 4, Payne 15, Burns 9.

Picton —Hepburn 3, Chalmers 10, Colliver 4, Cornelius 3, Colliver 2, Anderson 8, Whitehall, Reynolds.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A letter comes in from Lindsay commenting on an item we had on Ford Loucks. The chap painted in some of the grid background of big Mike—as Ford was called in football circles here—in Lindsay Collegiate and later intermediate ORFU play ere going senior with our 1938 Orfuns. And the writer said: "Probably you didn't cover games Loucks starred in before he went to Peterborough." Ah, but we did. Covered many a high school scrap betwixt Ernie Legon's PCVS pack back around 1934 or so and the good LCI-ers of the days of Loucks, Ringland, Begley, Wakelin, et al. And the later intermediate ORFU jousts when Lindsay had a strong squad.

* * * * * * *

Indeed our sports coverage around here goes back quite a piece. We're now starting our 21st year as sportswriter with this paper, columnist and finally sports editor. Came on in 1931, so saw quite a sports' span in this city and district. As a matter of fact, we had a little to do with landing Loucks a job in this borough when jobs were almost as scarce as hens' teeth. Ott Cranfield will bear us out on that. Rollie O'Leary was sports scribe in Lindsay back in those grid days when Loucks was starting to star, and we had many a hot football argument over the respective merits of our teams.

Looking Ahead To Summer

Petes' Timbermen, senior "A" lacrosse champs of Canada—they have the Mann Cup to prove it—hold a banquet next Saturday night at the Empress. For officials, players, wives and a few guests. It is the windup "do" of 1951 for them, postponed from December as so many were busy at the time. A few of the players, away for hockey or college, won't be able to make it, but most of the athletes will be on deck. They gather at 6:30 p.m. It is possible that some of their 1952 plans will be mentioned at this affair, and plans are set for an early re-organization meeting. The lacrossers make their sports pretty much a year-around job.

Lindsay Kin play local Oddfellows at 8.30 tomorrow e'en in Civic Arena, an OHA junior "B" fixture. Whilst the IOOF-ers have had a lot of success against Kingston Vics, and lead 'em in the group standing now, they've found Lindsay and Belleville tough onions in a stiff race. They'll be out to pin back their opponents' ears in this home number, but will find the Kin full of fight, too. Should be a streamlined struggle with the husky rival juniors giving it all they have every minute. Johnny Godfrey's gang could do nicely with a win this time, and another good-sized junior crowd ought to be on hand for this group game. It'll be a hot one for sure.

That Early Lead Did It

Puck fans saw a swell struggle last e'en at the arena, a streamlined senior "B" lulu. But Belleville Hawks pulled out the 7-6 win o'er Petes to increase their lead in the loop. Red Doran's free-wheeling Quinte crew played mighty fine hockey and had ace net-minding, but they were lucky at that to win. A penalty shot, a carom off a home defender and a rink-length flip into an open net gained 'em three of their tallies. Petes poured it on plenty the last two heats and some exciting hockey was seen. At that, the Hawks were shy two players, so they must be given credit for quite a chore against the Ellis outfit on local ice. Speed galore and some good passing plays made it a right interesting duel to view.

Trent Valley Puck Loop has revamped its setup for the rest of the semester. There'll be three groups in future, instead of two. One known as the southern group takes in RCAF, Belleville and Trenton; central one includes Wellington, Frankford, Stirling and Marmora; and the northern group embraces Lakefield, Norwood, Havelock and Hastings. Idea apparently is to make for better-balanced groups within the league framework, since Belleville and Peterborough puckists have been bolstering district teams. Marmora and Havelock won games last eve. No new schedule has been sent us, so we can't list TVL tilts for tomorrow yet.

Lindsay Girls And Neills C... Hoop Tilts

Lindsay's lasses had an edge on play throughout Monday night's basketball game with the Civic Nurses for a shady 27-23 win. In another recent league game Neills continued their unbeaten streak with a thumping 49-15 victory over CGE.

Beverly Dawe with six points and Betty Jaquith with five kept Nurses clinging to the Lindsay lasses in the first half. But the girls from Victoria County divided 16 points between them for a slim one-point lead.

The girls settled down to a close-checking duel in the second half but Nurses still couldn't overcome a steady one or two-point lead held by Lindsay. Marj. Owen continued to lead Lindsay in the second when she sank six of her team's 11 in that half.

"Mooch" Owen easily led the scoring honors with a 12-point total. Her closest rival was Nurses' Bev Dawe with seven and another nurse, Bev Pringle, with six.

M. Gillen Shines

A 20-point scoring barrage by Neills' Mabel Gillen was more than enough to take a win from CGE girls in the other game. Neills', who have overpowered all opposition for two years undefeated, were too much for the CGE team throughout and it was clearly a walk-away.

Mabel Gillen led the parade for Neills' early in the game and continued her ferrific pace throughout. She sank five baskets for 10 of her team's 22 points in the first half, with others awarded to W. Byers, G. Poast, S. Bestard, M. Freeman and Joan Dunk.

With Joan Dunk, Mickey Callan, Grace Poast and Wilma Byers helping out, Mabel Gillen repeated her first half effort in the second as Neills' again outscored the CGE cagers, this time 27-6. CGE's only effective scorer was Barbara Luther who racked up four points in both halves for an eight-point total. Mabel Gillen copped the game's total with 20 while teammates Joan Dunk had eight, Grace Poast and Wilma Byers, seven each.

Lineups:

First game, Neills (49)—Dunk 8, Freeman 1, Callan 2, Smith, DeVarga, Bestard 4, Poast 7, Byers 7, Gillen 20.

CGE (15)—J. Luther 2, B. Luther 8, Rashotte, Batley 4, Waye 1.

Second game, Lindsay (27) — Gilson 3, Vanstone 4, Copp 2, Curtis 1, Robertson, Neath 4, Hawkins, Beard 1, Owen 12.

Nurses (23)—Davis, Smith 3, Flavelle, Slater, Dawe 7, Pringle 6, Jaquith 5, Stackhouse 2.

Central Victorious

Central seniors of the Public School Hockey League blanked Queen Alex 4-0 yesterday at the arena. B. Naish led the way with three goals and one assist, while Tranter had a goal and an assist, Kelly two assists, and Brown one. Goalie Craymer and J. Lustic also went well for the winners, while McClennan, Stewart and McNamee were best for the losers. Teams:

Central: Kelly, Naish, Tranter, Robbins, Brown, Craymer, Dunford, Lloyd, D. Lustic, Harrington, Patterson, Martin, Sorrie, Gray, J. Lustic.

Q.A.: Macklin, McClennan, Wannamaker, Stewart, Olmstead, Johnston, Jackson, Downer, Sanderson, Druce, Nelson, Ball, McNamee.

Douro Triumphs

WARSAW, Jan. 15 — (ENS) — Hustling into the second Bush League hockey game here last night, West Douro triumphed 9-6 over North Dummer. The first frame was scoreless. Mathews counted next inning for North Dummer but Douro replied with three, Jack Cupoli from Frank Leahy, Ellis from Joe Moloney, and J. Cupoli again from D. Herfernan. Cupoli got one more in the third, and North Dummer tied it on goals by Mathews, J. Cameron and Mathews again. Cupoli and B. Martell put Douro up but again Dummer sewed it up on tallies by Dafoe and Brault. Douro drove once more to sink three, Martell, H. Allen and Cupoli being the marksmen, the latter and Ferren each getting an assist. Dummer drew 13 of the penalties. Teams:

Douro—Flint, Ellis, Keating, Martell, J. Moloney, T. Moloney, Leahy, Johnson, Cupoli, Ferren, Heffernan, Coughlin, Allen, Foley.

North Dummer—Batten, Trudeau, Burley, Cameron, Whittung, Crowe, McCracken, Little, Mathews, Dafoe, Brault, McClure, Little, Cooper.

Hawks Yank Out 7-6 Victory Against the Petes In Sizzling Senior "B" Game

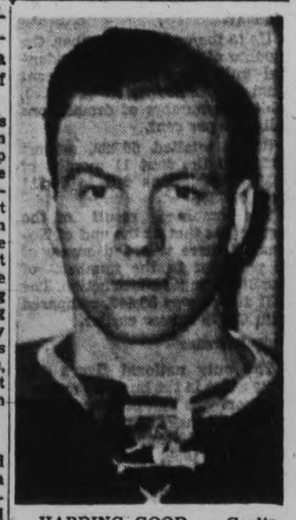
Edging out the Petes 7-6 here last night before 800 fans, Belleville Hawks lengthened their lead in the Central Ontario senior "B" hockey group race to two full games. While they played great hockey throughout, the visitors were lucky to grab off the win, one of their goals being a rink length shot by Red Doran on an empty net with Goalie Ray Harding pulled late in the game, and another Hawk counter being a side pass which skidded in off Ron Horton's skate.

It was a terrific tilt, both sides travelling at almost jet speed from start to finish and dishing up some dandy passing plays on the run. Petes spotted the opportunist Hawks a 4-1 lead in the first frame, but outscored them 2-1 in the middle heat and 3-2 in the windup stanza, getting their last goal with seconds to go. While there was a bit of stiff checking at times, and rivals were getting chippy in the dying minutes, play was quite clean. The homesters drew three of the five penalties, one resulting in a penalty shot which Goyer clicked on for an early tally.

Minus Two

The visitors were shorthanded two players, but came up with a fast-stepping and boring-in performance, while the Petes battled back bitterly all the way, and had a good margin of play the last two periods. It was a classy contest between the top two clubs in the group. Both goalies kicked a raft of rubber out, and Leforte was sensational at times in the last half of the joust. With a minute and a half of play left, Jim Ellis pulled his goalie and sent six hustling forwards on the attack but they could click for just one goal, which wasn't quite enough to sew it up, as Doran's long flip gained one during that time for the Hawks.

Knobber Day and Keith MacDonald tallied twice each for the victors, as Vern Goyer, Jackie Wardhaugh and Red Doran got one each. Don Barrett was in on two, and Day, Goyer, MacDonald and Peter Jones one apiece. For the Petes, Gus Leonard and Freddy Garvey led with a pair of markers each, Chum Fryia and Curly Mason notching the others. An assist apiece went to Ted Collins, Arn Dugan, Fryia, Junior West, Bob Wyatt and Don Floyd. Some fine defensive work was shown by Drake Jopling.



An Early One

The puck had just been faced off when Ted Collins siwashed through defence to hit the goalie, but Garvey came up fast to bat home the rebound. Wardhaugh later broke away as the Petes ganged up but was tripped from behind by Jake Wade, whose penalty did not have to be served when Goyer took the penalty shot and skated right in to slip the puck by Harding. MacDonald added another fast on in-close combination with Day and Barrett. Later in the heat, Wardhaugh took a return pass from Jones on a smart speedy play to whistle the bullet into the cage. Horton was off for interference when Day scored inside with Goyer and MacDonald helping.

Reeves went over in the second for hooking and Harding came out to spoil Doran's breakaway. Reeves returned and Doran went off when Hawks had too many men on the ice. Wyatt followed for charging but all were back when Mason reeled around defence to score on a play with Dugan and Fryia. MacDonald got that back shortly with a slap shot at the crease on Barrett's pass, but Gus Leonard scored right away when he hooked the puck from a Hawk at defence and blasted a hot angle drive into the net.

Sizzling Third

Petes went all out in the third on a do-or-die attempt and had most of the play. Leforte was both good and lucky and his mates aided plenty as the homesters poured in to pepper the enemy citadel. However, Hawks occasionally broke down the ice to make Harding hop, too. Play was fast and clean all the way. Fryia came close early and Jones was thefted on a breakaway. Gus Leonard finally slapped in a corner passout on a play started by West and Wyatt. A Collins-Garvey thrust almost paid off, and then Day's pass caromed in off Horton's skate as the latter was covering in front of the goal. Fryia fought his way out of a corner to cuff a hot one on an angle into the Belleville wigwam, and later he and Leforte did some pushing around with no damage done. With Harding pulled from the net,

HARDING GOOD — Goalie Ray Harding was good in the home cage last night, making a flock of fine saves in every period, but the Petes still dropped a 7-6 senior "B" decision to Belleville in a hot tilt.

the Petes roared in, but Doran flipped a long one down the ice and it slid into the cage. Garvey got one back with seconds to go on an in-close play, Floyd aiding, but time ran out.

Belleville: Goal, Leforte; defence, Bastedo and Semark; centre, Goyer; wings, Moher and MacDonald; alternates, Doran, Jones, Wardhaugh, Barrett, Day and Reeves.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Jopling and E. Leonard; centre, Garvey; wings, Collins and Floyd; alternates, Dugan, Fryia, Mason, G. Leonard, West, Wyatt, Wade and Horton.

NHL Spotlight On Battle For Second-Place Rung

MONTREAL, Jan. 15. (CP)—First and last places in the National Hockey League appear to be pretty well settled, at least for the time being, and the spotlight is on the battle for second place between Montreal and Toronto. The Toronto Maple Leafs are the present holders of second position but their perch is none too secure as their 44 points is only one more than the 43 held by Montreal's Canadiens. Both Leafs and Canadiens have played 40 games and the Habs have won more games than the Leafs. The point advantage comes from the eight tie games played by Toronto, three more deadlocks than Montreal.

As it stands now, Detroit continues to set the pace with 56 points, made up of 24 victories, eight losses and a similar number of ties. Toronto has won 18, lost 14, tied 8; Canadiens won 19, lost 16, tied 5.

The cellar-dwellers of course, are the hapless Chicago Black Hawks who have but 25 points to show for the 40 games they have played.

Lach In Lead

In the individual scoring department, Elmer Lach of Montreal continues to set the pace with 40 points, made up of 10 goals and a record 30 assists.

Maurice Richard and Gordie Howe of Detroit are tied for second spot, one point behind Lach. Richard has 24 goals, the mark to date this year, and 15 assists and Howe has 23 goals and 16 assists.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit continues to head the goalkeepers, his seven shutouts being four more than the three racked up by Al Rollins of Toronto.

Sawchuk has an average of 1:85 and Rollins 2:07.

Rangers are the least penalized club with 297 minutes in penalties and Toronto the most heavily penalized with 403 minutes. Individual bad-man "honors" go to Gus Kyle of Boston who has spent 89 minutes in the penalty box.

Lindsay Brawl Ruled No Contest

TORONTO, Jan. 15. — The OMHA juvenile game at Lindsay which ended in a brawl was declared "no contest" by an association investigating committee Monday. It will be replayed if it affects the league standing.

The association also directed Lindsay officials to place placards in the arena stating that spectators who go on the ice will be prosecuted. The officials also were ordered to provide suitable police protection.

The association said that neither Lindsay nor Cobourg officials were to be blamed for the disturbance. The fault was that of a few spectators.

Player Williams Burns, who received a match misconduct penalty for swearing earlier in the game stands suspended for three games; player Harold Williams was suspended for three games, for "conduct detrimental to minor hockey." Both are of Lindsay.

Granites Take Honors

TORONTO, Jan. 15 (CP). — Toronto Granites Monday night won group four honors in the Ontario Tankard curling tournament and the right to play off with three other groups at Oshawa Feb. 1 for the title. Only four of 10 eligible clubs were represented in the bonspiel here.

Powell Leads AHL Scorers

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (CP). — Ray Powell of Providence Reds continued to set the pace in the American Hockey League scoring race with 52 points on 19 goals and 33 assists including the games of Sunday night.

Three players, Jack Stoddard, formerly with Providence and now with New York Rangers, Real Chevrefils who last week transferred from Hershey to Boston Bruins, and George Armstrong of Pittsburgh, were tied for second place with 48 points each.

Armstrong was the leading goal-getter with 24.

Buddy O'Connor of Cincinati regained the lead in play-making with 36 assists.

Pete Durham of Indianapolis picked up eight minutes in penalties during the week and increased his league leading total to 121 minutes on the penalty bench.

Johnny Bower of Cleveland continued to lead the goaltenders for the second straight week, as he lowered his average to 2:54 on 99 goals allowed in 39 games.

Emile Francis of Cincinnati Mohawks registered his third shutout of the season Sunday, and took over the lead in that department.

Qualify In Playoffs

OSHAWA, Jan. 15 (CP).—Rinks skipped by Carl Asmussen of Kitchener and by Orillia's Mel Lamb Monday qualified for Friday's quarter-final play in the Col. C. S. McLaughlin Trophy, primary event of the eighth annual five-day bonspiel here. Bill Minett of Oshawa and W. Bell of Oakwood survived Monday's competition in the Fittings Trophy secondary event, and also will continue Friday.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Trent Loop Regroups Eleven Clubs

NORWOOD, Jan. 15.—At a meeting of team representatives and league executive held here on Sunday afternoon, the Trent Valley Hockey League decided to regroup its 11 teams into three groups, rather than two.

It became apparent that some of the smaller towns in the central section of the loop could not compete with the larger centres and other towns strengthened by Peterborough players. It was this that decided them to form a northern, southern and central division. Wellington, Frankford, Stirling and Marmora will form the central group; Belleville, Trenton and RCAF Flyers will be in the southern division; Lakefield, Norwood, Havelock and Hastings will operate in the northern division.

The northern and southern division teams will play an interlocking schedule, while the central section will play a double schedule.

Each of the three groups will declare a winner with the three group titlists clashing for the league championship and possession of the Thomas Bata Memorial Trophy, currently held by Peterborough Brintons.

Games already played between teams in the same groupings will stand as played, but all other games will be washed from the records.

Calgary Is Willing To Pay For Its Sports

CALGARY, Jan. 15 (CP).—The city of Calgary likes football — and pays for it.

For the last three years, it has foregone its 2½ per cent of Calgary's football Stampeders' gate receipts to pay for a new grandstand.

The grandstand's paid for now, so Monday night the finance committee decided that the city should forego its gate take for the next eight years to help pay off a proposed $100,000 debenture issue by the Western Interprovincial Football Union Club.

The recommendation goes before city council Monday for ratification. Included in the recommendation however, is the suggestion the club pay $5,000 a year for upkeep of the stadium.

C. E. Chesher, club president, told the committee Monday night that the money from the debenture will be used to pay off the club's deficit—$61,670.86 last season alone—and provide working capital.

SHE SOLOED AT TEN—Betty Lee Bennett, age 10, is congratulated by her father, Alfred Bennett of Conway, Pa., after she made her first solo flight in a light plane in Havana, Cuba. Looking on is Alfred Bennett, Jr., who soloed last year at age 11 in Mexico. Bennett, a flyer with 10,000 hours in the air, took his daughter to Cuba because US regulations forbid anyone under 16 to solo.

Furniture Show Attracts Buyers Across Canada

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The largest exhibition of Canadian household furniture and furnishings ever held in Canada now is in progress in three buildings of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

It is the third annual "Canadian Furniture Mart" and it is six times as large as in the first year. It opened Monday and lasts until Jan. 23. Thousands of buyers are expected from across Canada.

About everything in household furniture and furnishing is there. Among eye-catchers are nylon upholstery which is washable; a sectional chesterfield which divides into twin beds; hassocks especially designed for the television trade; a convex medicine-chest mirror, in the lower half of which the smallest member of the family may see himself without stretching, while in the upper half the six-footer-plus may ply his razor without stooping.

Business Views

William J. Shave, vice-president and general manager of Dun and Bradstreet of Canada, Ltd., writes:

"To offer a general observation for 1952, business will be good for businessmen.' That may sound like a prophet's hedge, but it is intended to encourage our business people to take one day at a time, examine its opportunities, and make decisions based on the individual merits of the case.

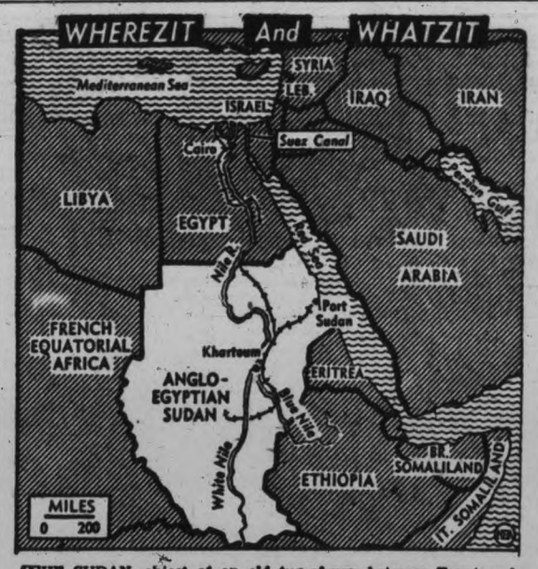
"There's plenty of business ahead, but rising costs in material and labor, some unbalanced inventory situations, and disruptions due to the defence production, are likely to increase the hazard to profits."

And "Industry," published by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, takes us back to the so-called "good old days" in an effort to cheer us up. It says:

"It's 1900. Living costs are cheap, but so is everything else. It takes a laborer a week to earn what a similar worker of 1951 will be paid in a day. Minimum wage laws are unheard of.

"There is no limit on hours of work. The eight-hour day is just a distant dream. Nobody has yet thought of the five-day week. Lots of people are still working 12 hours a day, seven days a week, with no pay for vacations . . .

Better Down On Farm



"Things have been improving down on the farm, too, as illustrated by two recent items.

"A farmer in Barrymore, Alta., has been keeping a cheque for 23 cents ever since 1933. On Aug. 18 of that year, explains The Edmonton Journal, the farmer sold three 900-pound two-year-old steers and one 270-pound calf through a livestock commission company.

"The four animals brought a total sale price of $9.63, but feed and commission and delivery charges ate up all but the 23 cents.

"The second is from the Lethbridge, Alta., Herald. At a recent auction sale of registered beef cattle in that city, 265 head of purebred stock sold for $145,350 —an average of $548.

"In 1951, nobody was giving away 2,970 pounds of beef for 23 cents."

THE SUDAN, object of an old tug-of-war between Egypt and Britain, became a rich jewel in the British Empire when cotton and irrigation were introduced to a 50-mile triangle of rich land at the junction of the White Nile and Blue Nile near Khartoum. The Sudan has long been the cross-roads of Africa for traders. On a continent still primitive in many aspects, the Sudan is crossed by ship, rail and bus routes to Cairo and Red Sea outlets to the world. Khartoum itself is the aerial cross-road of Africa. Nearly 8,000,000 people, most of them Arabs, mixed Arab-Negroes and black-skinned tribesmen, live in the Sudan. The country is supposed to be controlled equally by Britain and Egypt under a treaty dating back to 1899, when Lord Kitchener (with a young officer named Winston Churchill in his ranks) defeated the Mahdist fanatics and claimed the land jointly for the two nations. Since then, Britain has managed to keep the upper hand in the Sudan government, and Egypt's present rantings to "throw the British out" will probably never be backed by military force. Britain plans for the Sudanese eventually to choose their own form of government, but the people are widely divided on what kind of rule they want.

Freight Rates Lowered By Railways

OTTAWA, Jan. 15—(CP)—Rail freight rates were lowered today on a variety of articles moving between Eastern Canada and the interior west.

The reductions—subject of controversy before the Royal Commission on Transportation and at the last session of parliament—will chop some rates by close to 10 per cent. They will benefit Alberta chiefly.

The new rates were put into effect by the railways under the so-called "one and one-third rule" adopted by parliament late last year. The rule gives the interior west a share in the low "transcontinental" rates between the east and the British Columbia coast, which have been depressed by water competition.

The legislation, result of a long fight led by the Alberta government, orders that rates between the east and interior west may not be more than 1 1-3 those between the east and the BC coast.

Varied Products

Articles affected include such varied products as canned goods, soap, confectionery, vegetable oils, paper, roofing, glassware and miscellaneous steel items. The value of the traffic coming under the new rates has never been officially estimated but it amounts to several million dollars a year.

Perhaps the major item to undergo reduction will be canned goods moving to the west from Eastern Canada. The existing rate to Calgary and Edmonton from the Montreal-Windsor-Sudbury "triangle" area now is $3.23 per 100 pounds. This will be cut to $2.09. The $2.53 rate to Regina also will be $2.09.

SWEETEST TOWN—Candy and cake were the building materials Mrs. Emmanuel Trinklein of Frankenmuth, Mich., used to build this tiny town. Roofs are shingled with cookies, nutmeats, candy and frosting. Mrs. Trinklein built the mouth-watering display for use in a church program.

Use New Method Produce Steel

TORONTO, Jan. 1 — (CP) — Small-scale production of the newly-developed controlled density steel has started at Oakville, 20 miles southwest of Toronto.

The pilot run, under the direction of the Ontario Research Foundation, is intended to get the process into use in industry as soon as possible.

Pat Cavanagh, of the foundation, discoverer of the process, describes it as a simple way of making steel without melting iron ore. The process allows production of finished and semi-finished articles of steel directly from the ore.

Its greatest use probably would be in locations remote from present steel plants but close to suitable ore supplies. The foundation said that the process would not offer competition to standard steel production methods.

Six large Canadian corporations have applied for licences to operate the process and inquiries have come in from 70 companies in other countries.

The process involves heating ground ore after it has been put on porous molds and packed with coke dust and limestone.

Churchill Speech Highlights

OTTAWA, Jan. 15 (CP). — Folowing are the highlights of Prime Minister Churchill's state dinner speech:

The North Atlantic Treaty is the surest guarantee of victory should hopes for peace be blasted.

Peace "does not sit untroubled in her vineyard," and no one can predict with certainty what will happen

But this time at any rate "we are all united from the beginning."

Britain does not want to live on "our friends and relations, but to earn our own living and pay our own way. . . ."

The ordeal which lies before Britain "will be hard and will not be short."

"We shall not shrink from any measures necessary to restore confidence and maintain solvency, however unpopular these measures may be."

"We shall provide against and thus prevail over the dangers and problems of the future, withhold no sacrifice, grudge no toil, seek no sordid gain, fear no foe."

A "magnificent future awaits Canada, if only we can all get through the present hideous world muddle."

"Upon the whole surface of the globe there is no more spacious and splendid domain open to the activity and genius of free men, with one hand clasping in enduring friendship with the US, and the other spread across the ocean both to Britain and France."

Gets In Dig About Dominion

OTTAWA, Jan. 15 — (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill, with perhaps a sly dig at the Canadian government's move to drop the word "Dominion" from Canada's name, Monday night described this country as "the great Dominion."

He gave Canada that description in referring, in his address at a state diner, to the October Royal visit of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

Turning to Prime Minister St. Laurent, he said:

"Here in Canada you have had what may be called a wonderful visit. The Princess Elizabeth and her husband have travelled the length and breadth of what you will not mind my styling 'the great Dominion.'"

His diner audience, including scores of members of Parliament who have debated the issue, chuckled.

Dead Canadian Boy Goodwill Ambassador

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15 (AP) —A four-year-old Canadian boy who died last November became an ambassador of good will for the United States Monday.

The boy, Donny Morton, was brought here by his father, Arthur, of Atherwall, Sask., hoping for a miracle to cure him of spinal meningitis. Generous Southern Californians donated funds and two brain specialists donated their talents, without success.

Premier T. C. Douglas, of Saskatchewan, in a letter to Gov. Earl Warren, of California, Monday said: "It was clear that the citizens of the city of Los Angeles and the people of your state were quick to open their hearts to Mr. Morton and Donny . . ."

Speaks In French

OTTAWA, Jan. 15 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill spoke briefly in French Monday night while addressing a state dinner. He warned his listeners that he was about to speak in French and asked for their kindness and consideration. But his clear, easily understandable French won him a hearty round of applause.

Asks Lower Interest

TORONTO, Jan. 15 (CP)—C. O. Phillips, president of the Ontario Tourist Resorts Association, Monday asked for low-interest Ontario government loans to enable operators to attract more United States and Canadian tourist dollars.

Tribute To King

OTTAWA, Jan. 15. (CP)— Prime Minister Churchill last night paid a glowing tribute to the King in his speech at a state dinner. "We have a truly beloved King," said Mr. Churchill. "In constitutional duty he is faultless. In physical and moral courage he is an example to all his peoples. We are proud to pay him our tribute. This is no formal salute to loyalty, but the expression of our deepest natural feeling."

Lake Trout, Beef Served To Churchill

OTTAWA, Jan. 15 (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill was served Canadian lake trout and roast beef at a state dinner tendered him Monday night by the Canadian Government.

This was the menu:

Special canape, consomme double, cheese straws, Lake Superior trout with string beans, roast filet of beef from Western Canada, ice cream.

The head table guests were served champagne during the meal, along with red and white wines. Other guests were served martinis and sherry. At the end of the meal, brandy and liqueurs were served, along with cigars and cigarettes.

Pre-Clearance Check Made By Customs

TORONTO, Jan. 15 (CP). — An experiment in pre-clearance of United States customs passengers on American Airlines flights from here to US began Monday with the hope of aviation and travel officials that the system will be followed in other parts of the world.

The new system eliminates baggage checks at either Buffalo or La Guardia Field in New York. Now the baggage will be inspected at Toronto's Malton airport before passengers board their plane.

Raise Objective

TORONTO, Jan. 15 (CP)—Leopold Macaulay, chairman of the Canadian Red Cross Society, Monday announced a 1952 campaign objective of $5,222,000. He said if the goal—a four-per-cent increase over the 1951 figure—was not reached, the society would have to curtail or eliminate services.

RELATIVE SIZE

The Republic of India has an area of nearly 1,250,000 square miles, compared to 350,000 square miles in Pakistan.

Accept Company Wage Increase

HAMILTON, Jan. 15 — (CP) — Hamilton street railway employees Monday night accepted a company proposal for wage increases designed to maintain their take-home pay while their work week is reduced from 48 to 40 hours.

Fred Richardson, president of Local 107 Street Railway Workers' Union (AFL-TCL), said the men will accept the offer provided the company takes action on a fare increase within 30 days.

The company is now making application to the Ontario Municipal Board for an increase in fares to 10 cents. Tickets now cost 25 cents for three.

Mr. Richardson said the company offer represents an increase of 20 per cent on the basic hourly rate.

Ex-Bank Manager John Thomson Dies

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 15 (CP)—John W. Thomson, 65, retired Imperial Bank manager, died Sunday at nearby Queenston.

He came to Canada at the age of 19 and worked for the Imperial Bank until the First World War. After overseas army service he became manager of banks at Piapot, Tomkins and Moose Jaw, Sask. He retired as manager of the main Niagara Falls branch last May.

His survivors include Mrs. L. A. Roper, Victoria, a daughter; J. Donald Thomson, Hamilton, a son; and William T. Thomson, Victoria, a brother.

New Source of Supply

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 15 (AP)—Discovery of a possible human source of supply of the wonder hormone, ACTH, by the Yale University school of medicine, was announced Monday. ACTH combats arthritis and many other diseases. The medical supply comes from the pituitary glands of hogs. The new potential human source is the placenta, an organ formed during pregnancy to nourish an unborn baby and discarded after the baby is born.

Hunger Strike

ST. PAUL L'ERMITE, Que., Jan. 15 (CP)—Some 100 male immigrants at the Canadian Department of Labor hostel here staged a one-day hunger strike last week in protest of their separation from wives still in German refugee camps, it was learned Monday night. An immigration ruling requires that wives remain in Europe until their husbands find jobs.

Canadian Army Praised

OTTAWA, Jan. 15 (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill Monday night paid tribute to the Canadian army as the "only really formidable" force in Britain in the dark wartime days when Hitler might have launched an invasion across the English channel.

"Headache?..take a Disprin"

Why DISPRIN? Because DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives relief without delay.

DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

DISPRIN REG'D ... FOR PAIN RELIEF SAFE SPEEDY PLEASANT

Water, Water

Rain fell in plenty on Peterborough early on Tuesday morning, roughly between 3:30 and 6 am, but not a drop fell in the official measuring bucket of Weather Recorder James Harrison of the Filtration plant. He reported not a drop had fallen, but citizens east of the river and especially on Rogers St., where there was some flooding, knew better.

City Crews Clear Creeks Prevent Floods

As the first full-fledged January thaw hit the city, Board of Works employees started preventive work on creeks flowing through the city.

Aim of the work is to keep creeks as free of ice as possible during the winter to lessen chances of damaging spring floods.

First creek to get attention was the small one that crosses Armour Rd. and Rogers St. between Hazlitt and Caddy Sts. Water flowing over the ice had backed up in several spots, but was not threatening, as it does in spring, to flood backyards of Rogers St. houses.

Board of Works employees planned to blast the ice out this morning, but after the first charge failed to explode, they went ahead with picks.

Next to get attention will be Jackson Creek. Its two trouble spots within the city are at Hunter St. and Aylmer and Brock Sts. Workmen may have to use dynamite there.

In blasting ice from creeks, usually only a half-stick of dynamite is used. Wrapped in waterproof paper, the charge is tied to a long stick, the fuse is lit, and the stick pushed beneath the ice.

City Council Invites County Council To Tea

County council in their statutory session this week are receiving an invitation from the city council for tea on whatever afternoon is convenient to them.

It was suggested last year that the representatives of the county should be invited to see the new city hall. At that time the occasion was suggested for the formal opening, but it was decided to postpone the affair until the county administrators were here in a body and without a crowd of other guests.

So, there will be coffee and sandwiches and an hour of fraternization as proposed in a motion by Aldermen Burrows and Rehill.

H. Imming Sentenced To 6 Months

Jury Finds Accused Guilty of Forgery In Car Finance Deal

A Peterborough county jury took just 40 minutes Monday afternoon to find Hugh F. Imming, 32, formerly of Peterborough, guilty on a charge of forgery.

Judge J. A. McGibbon of Lindsay, presiding at the adjourned general sessions of the peace, sentenced Immings to six months definite and six months indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory.

Immings is alleged to have signed the fictitious name of Hugh F. Douglas on a conditional sales contract. On the strength of this phony contract the Colonial Finance Co., Toronto, forwarded $740 to Paul Immings, brother of Hugh Immings.

Jailed Three Years

Paul Immings and Aubrey S. Hancock are both serving three year sentences for their part in a used car swindle in 1949 that victimized the Colonial Finance Co. of an estimated $100,000.

Hugh Immings was employed as a used-car salesman at his brother's business, Ideal Auto Body, Hunter St. W.

Hugh Immings was undefended by legal counsel, but he put up such a strong defence that both Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, KC, and Judge McGibbon commented favorably on it.

"You did a pretty good job for an amateur," said Judge McGibbon. "If you'd turn your ability to an honest way of living and an honest trade, what a difference it would make."

The judge said he thought Immings had done a "rather despicable thing," but he added that he didn't think he was the only one involved.

"Your brother was the sole owner of the business."

"You did it for the purpose of getting easy money," said Judge McGibbon, before passing sentence. "I don't know why you do these things because the arm of the law is awfully long and the law never forgets."

Suggests Reformatory

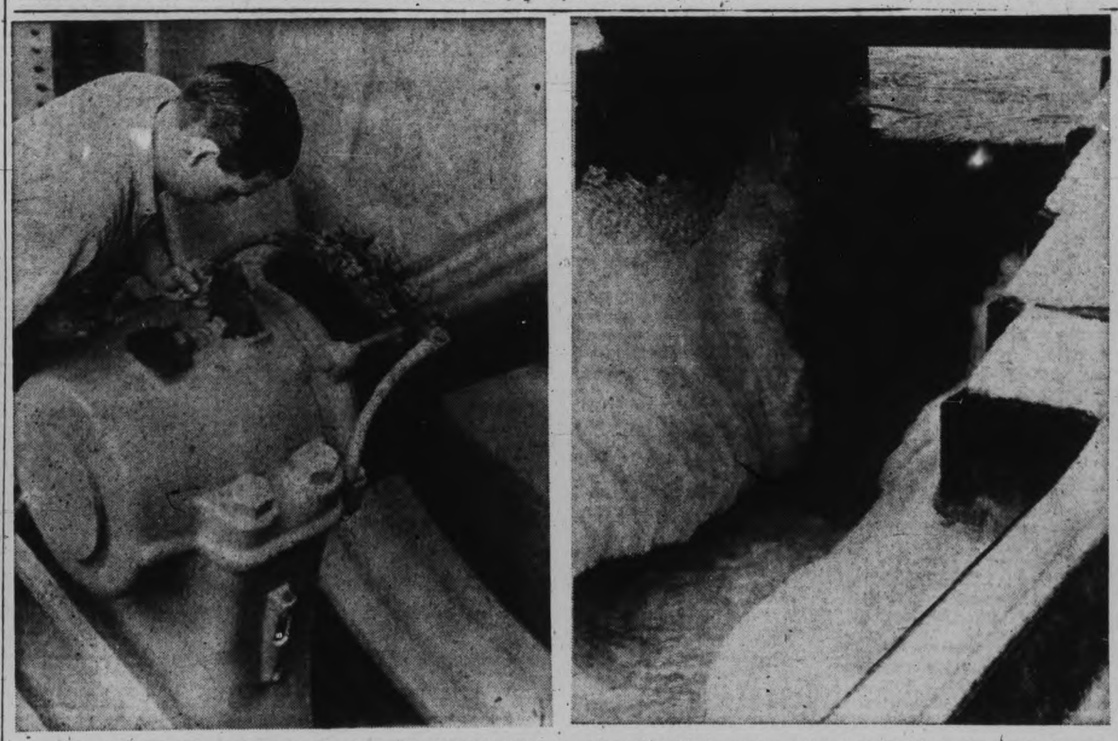
Crown Attorney Bradshaw said that the maximum sentence for forgery is 14 years, but as Immings had no previous record on this type of offence, he felt a reformatory term was sufficient.

Ronald Seabrooke, one of the two chief crown witnesses, said Immings came to his home at 310 Maitland St. in April, 1949. The accused man took a room for a week and gave his name as Hugh F. Douglas—the name that was forged on the cheque.

A searching cross-examination by Immings failed to shake Seabrooke's positive identification, and his wife, Mrs. Isabel Seabrooke, corroborated his evidence.

Seabrooke said that a day or so after Immings no longer roomed at 310 Maitland St., he returned to pick up his mail. Seabrooke testified that he remembered the letter was addressed to Hugh F. Douglas.

John McKone, handwriting expert, analyzed three exhibits of handwriting. Two were the signatures of "Hugh F. Imming" submitted voluntarily to the city police by Immings. And the other was the signature of "Hugh F. Douglas" on the conditional sales contract.



Mr. McKone said that it was his opinion the same person wrote all three. He pointed out there characteristics that were similar in the exhibits.

Denies Forgery

Immings took the stand in his own defence. He denied that he had forged the name "Hugh F. Douglas" on the conditional sales contract. And he said he had never roomed at the Seabrooke home.

Mr. Bradshaw said the Crown did not allege that Immings got a five-cent piece from the transaction. Only his brother Paul could cash cheques. Hugh Immings was on trial for forging a document to the detriment of the Colonial Finance Co.

Members of the petit jury were William H. Mitchell, George St., foreman; Thomas Sarginson, Lafayette St.; Floyd Pullyblank, Romaine St.; David Ahern, Bolivar St.; Arthur Millard, North Monaghan township; Elmer Millburn, Smith township; Arthur Pitchford, Morrow St.; Rollie Stockdale, Harvey township; Thomas Webster, Dummer township; Morley Powell, Rubidge St.; Frederick G. Parsons, McCannan Ave.; and Robert G. Adam, Gilmour St.

JANUARY THAW RUN-OFF OF THE TRENT WATERWAYS is being drained down the Otonabee River these days. The extra flow does not make more power, as might be supposed. High water prevents the water flow through powerhouse generators from getting away and generators are reduced in their power output capacities. Operator Fergus Webb (Left photo) at the CGE Powerhouse at Nassau checks the largest generator, 2,500 hp capacity, which is today putting out only 1,600 hp. Of the several spillways at Nassau dam (as pictured at the Right), eleven stoplogs have been pulled to release the flow.—(Examiner Staff Photos)

Dorothy Maynor Great Singer Heard In City

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

Dorothy Maynor is one of the great singers of our time, and the local Concert Association deserves the thanks and congratulation of its audience for having brought her to Peterborough. Her recital on Monday night packed the PCVS auditorium, and the artist was received with the warmest enthusiasm and the most concentrated attention.

Miss Maynor's superb voice is perfectly controlled, and it serves as the instrument of a fine and strongly individual artistic sense. She did not offer us a program on conventional lines; none of the commonplaces of soprano repertoire appeared there. Two groups particularly—one of Grieg's intimate songs, and another of Dvorak's gypsy songs—were welcome, for it is rarely that a sufficiently large number of songs by either composer is heard in a single recital to give a fair idea of his special genius. It was a happy inspiration, also, which led Miss Maynor to include the Moon Aria from Dvorak's "Rousalka" which was, for this hearer at least, the climax of her recital. Miss Maynor's influence is surely great, and it is to be hoped that other singers will follow her example, and seek out the less familiar treasures of song literature and let the public hear them.

The nobility of Miss Maynor's voice, and it must be repeated that this can only be a reflection of her noble conception of her art, was shown in her two opening songs, both of which were arrangements of religious airs by J. W. Franck, a somewhat neglected seventeenth century composer. Her technical command was at all times apparent, but in the familiar Mozart "Alleluia," sung as an encore, it was especially marked; it would be ungrateful, however, to omit some mention of her fine discretion in a work in the modern idiom by Winter Watts, and two difficult songs by the Canadian composer, Oscar Morawetz. A particular depth of emotion was expected, and fully satisfied, when Miss Maynor sang two spirituals, "Swing Low" and "The Old-Time Religion." And it must be added that she revealed anew the beauty of Grieg's much-abused, remorselessly howled "I Love Thee," which she redeemed from the tom-cat repertoire and restored to the level upon which Grieg conceived it.

Special mention should be given to the group of gypsy songs by Dvorak, in which Miss Maynor was given fine partnership by her accompanist, Mr. Ludwig Bergmann; here voice and instrument met to make music, upon equal ground.

At the close of a memorable evening Miss Maynor sang many encores.

711 Babies Born In 1951 No Mothers Die For 3rd Year

Peterborough's population was increased by 711 births in 1951, but 476 deaths during the year whittled the actual increase in population down to 253, Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, said today. This, of course, does not take into consideration the number of people who moved to the city.

The figures also revealed that the general mortality rate of 8.77 per 1,000 population is the lowest rate on the department of health records. A total of 326 residents died in 1951. The general rate in 1950 was 9.01.

The number of stillbirths for the year decreased to the rate of 10.61, which is also the lowest rate on record. The 1950 rate was 25.74.

A total of 33 children under one year of age died for an infant mortality rate of 31.82 per 1,000 live births, which is a slight increase over the 1950 rate of 30.693.

Again this year there were no maternal deaths. This is the third year that no women have died giving birth to children in Peterborough.

Dr. Kelly explained that these figures are not complete and some revision may be necessary before a final report can be given.

Lions Give $500 Civic Hospital

A $500 cheque was presented to Civic hospital Monday by the Peterborough Lions Club. The money will go to furnish a private room at the hospital.

L. E. Morrison presented the cheque to Civic's superintendent, John Hornal. To date 22 organizations and individuals have donated money to furnish rooms at Civic.

After presentation of the cheque, Mr. Morrison outlined briefly the work done by the Lions during 1951. He spoke of the popularity of the swimming pool at Riverside and of the club's plans this year for a wading pool in the Hamilton-McKellar Sts. area.

During 1951, $500 was given to the Winnipeg flood relief fund, and the usual $100 cheque to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. In addition, club members drove CNIB members to and from their homes on bowling nights.

Dies In Hospital After Operation, To Hold Autopsy

Following a tonsillectomy in a Peterborough hospital on Monday morning, Kenneth Russell Hudson 22, of Manvers township, died in the afternoon about 4:30.

An autopsy will be conducted today by Coroner Dr. H. G. Carleton to determine the cause of death.

Mr. Hudson was the son of Clifford Hudson and the former Ethel Patton. Besides his parents he leaves three sisters, the Misses Doreen, Millicent and Roberta, and one brother, Lawrence. He was an employee of Fittings Ltd., Oshawa, for the past two years and a member of Trinity Anglican Church, (Marsh Church.)

Funeral service will be held on Thursday at the MacPherson funeral home at 2 pm. The Rev. T. S. Gault of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Bethany, will officiate and burial will be at St. Paul's cemetery, Cavan.

Jailed 3 Years For Theft Of Ingots

Jack A. Cockerill Sentenced After Month's Delay

Three years in Kingston penitentiary was the sentence imposed today on Jack A. Cockerill, the 26-year-old truckdriver found guilty of stealing metal ingots from the DeLaval Co. Dec. 30, 1950.

Cockerill, a sturdily-built RCA veteran, lives at 384 Holloway Dr. He has a wife Rosena and four children, six years of age and under.

He was found guilty by a Peterborough county jury on Dec. 4 at the general sessions of the peace. Sentence was delayed because of the death of the late Judge S. L. Smoke.

After reading a transcript of the evidence Judge J. A. McGibbon, Lindsay, gave sentence today.

"It's too bad a man like you doesn't think of his wife and family before committing an offence like this," said Judge McGibbon before giving sentence. "There's far too much of this type of theft going on, not only in Peterborough but all over the country."

Three Convictions

Between 1940 and 1942 Cockerill had three convictions for theft—two in Cobourg and one in St. Catharines.

"One would have thought that with three convictions it was time to mend your ways and start afresh," said Judge McGibbon.

At Cockerill's first trial in June a jury was unable to reach a verdict. But at the second trial in December the jury brought in a verdict of guilty in 45 minutes.

Cockerill was stopped three times in the vicinity of the DeLaval Co., shortly after midnight on Dec. 31. Each time he had a partial truckload of metal ingots, similar to ones that were stored in a shed at the plant.

George Macdonald, plant superintendent, said that when the

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT FARROW were married 50 years ago today in the bride's home near Yelverton. Most of the time since, they have farmed near Pontypool. They retired and moved to Millbrook eight years ago.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Millbrook Couple Married In 1902 South Of Yelverton

MILLBROOK, Jan. 15 (ENS)—The day was cold with snow piled high but the sun was shining, Mr. and Mrs. W. Albert Farrow recall of their wedding day 50 years ago. It was at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Neal, one mile south of Yelverton, that Maria Neal became the bride of Albert Farrow, son of Mr. James Farrow and the former Phoebe Jordan of Manvers township, on January 15, 1902.

The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Ronald Phelan of the Presbyterian Church of Blackstock. The bridesmaid, the bride's sister, Mary Neal, now Mrs. Robert McColl of Toronto, will be present for the golden wedding celebration today. Groomsman was George Farrow, brother of the groom.

It was eight years ago last November that Mr. and Mrs. Farrow came to make their home in Millbrook from the farm near Pontypool where most of their life together was spent.

Although he was born in Manvers township, Albert Farrow moved as a boy with his family north to the Kinmount and Minden district where, after he was grown, he engaged in lumbering. About four or five years before his marriage he returned to Manvers township to farm and to do some carpentering.

Before his retirement Mr. Farrow recalled how, after nearly a year in bed with arthritis, he farmed for 10 years on crutches. There was a time when doctors thought he would not walk again. Now at 74 he walks without even a cane, drives his car anywhere, and does some carpentering.

Mr. and Mrs. Farrow had three children. One son, Norman, died of pneumonia at the age of 14 in 1923. They lost their only daughter, Noreen (Mrs. Ed. Lawson of Yelverton) in 1926. Their remaining son, Lorne Farrow, lives near Pontypool. There are four grandchildren, Bruce Lawson of Yelverton, Mrs. Ray Powell of Millbrook, who shares a double house with her grandparents, Mrs. Mervin Bowins, who lives near Carscadden school and Clifford Farrow. They have seven great-grandchildren, Alan Bowins, Bobby and Donny Powell, Murray, Marlyn, Richard and Edward Farrow. Their son and daughter-in law, grandchildren and great-grandchildren all plan to be with them today.

Mr. and Mrs. Farrow had intended to let the day pass quietly, but when the ladies of the Grace Presbyterian church, where the Farrow's attend, learned of it they decided anything so important as a golden wedding anniversary should not pass without a celebration. The ladies are taking charge of the reception on Tuesday, when Mr. and Mrs. Farrow will be at home to their friends both in the afternoon and evening.

When he was asked, Mr. Farrow said if he had any advice for newlyweds it was "to work hard, to save, and to get something by for a rainy day." The present generation is inclined he thinks "to make big money, but to spend it as fast as it comes in."

Mr. and Mrs. Farrow, both in good health now, are looking forward to more years of useful, happy living.

More UN Women Delegates New Aim Of Every Land

WORKING PEACE depends on the women's attitude, says Mrs. Ulla Lindstrom, of Sweden.

"AT LEAST 50-50" is the way Chile's Ana Figueroa thinks women should rank among UN General Assembly delegates. Here she gets tender congratulations from Norway's Arne Sunde after she became first woman to be elected chairman of a main committee.

ONLY WOMAN to head her delegation is Mrs. Sekaninova Cakrtova, of Czechoslovakia.

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Staff Correspondent

PARIS — (NEA).—The female delegates to the General Assembly of the United Nations, whether you call them madames, senora or miss, have one thing in common. No matter which side of the Iron Curtain they come from, they are all in favor of further advances for womanhood.

Of the more than 300 regular delegates, only 15 are women. That is one big figure the diplomatic damsels would change.

"It should be at least 50-50," said Ana Figueroa of Chile, with an eloquent shrug of her shoulders. "Even today, it is a matter for comment when a woman gets appointed to a key post. This should be taken as a matter of course, just as the question of equal status for women should no longer be a subject of controversy, anywhere."

Woman Chairman

When she talks about the reaction after a woman gets a key UN post, she talks from experience. She is the first woman to be elected chairman of a major committee. She heads the "Third" Committee, which is the social, humanitarian and cultural group.

Long a leading figure in Chile, the 44-year-old Mrs. Figueroa startled her dignified co-delegates by taking time off the first week to visit a Parisian couturier. She dresses in the latest style and thoroughly enjoys Paris. She occasionally plays hookey to row on the lake in the Bois de Boulogne.

Heads A Delegation

The only woman to head her country's delegation is Mrs. Sekaninova Cakrtova of Czechoslovakia. Like the other Communist spokesmen, she talks first about peace. But she manages to bring up the question of women without too much trouble.

"In my country," she says, "everything is geared for peace. It is an integral part of our daily life. But we have not yet achieved economic equality and, seeing that 85 per cent of our women work, that is also very important."

She says the Czechoslovakian women are primarily interested in internal politics and domestic living conditions.

"But," she adds, with an expressive gesture, "it was the women who made the execution of our First Five Year Plan posible and who will assure the success of the second."

From Sweden

Mrs. Ulla Lindstrom of Sweden was one of the first women to hold public office in that country. She, too, links the problem of peace and feminism in her thoughts.

"War may be a man's job," she says, "but a working peace certainly depends on the women's attitude. On the other hand, men cannot be so foolish as to precipitate another conflict, and that is where the usefulness of the UN comes in.

"It is one place where nations can argue, even quarrel, around a table, which is far better than fighting it out on a battlefield."

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Follow Canada Food Rules In Feeding Your Children

An earnest mother worte this appeal to me:

"I am afraid in January and February that my family will get sick. For so many years one or another of the children has been away from school for weeks at a time with colds or flu.

"I have wondered if I was feeding them the right foods. Milk and meat are so expensive now.

"Do you have this trouble in your home . . ." Anne W.

✧ ✧ ✧

To start with my answer to Anne W. will be an outline of Canada's Food Rules.

(Will you take note as you glimpse through them that there is not one mention of pie or cake or cookies—the foods that we spend most of our cooking time concocting?)

Canada's Food Rules

With acknowledgment to and permission from Nutrition Division, Department of Health and Welfare.

Eat these every day for health

1. Milk—Children (up to about 12 years); at least 1 pint. Adolescents: at least 1½ pints. Adults: at least ½ pint.

2. Fruit—One serving of citrus fruit or tomatoes or their juices and one serving of other fruit.

3. Vegetables—At least one serving of potatoes; and at least two servings of other vegetables, preferably leafy, green or yellow and frequently raw.

4. Cereals and Bread — One serving of whole grain cereal and at least four slices of bread (with butter or fortified margarine).

5. Meat and Fish—One serving of meat, fish, poultry or meat alternatives such as dried peas or beans, eggs, cheese.

Use liver frequently.

week and provide at least 400 International Units of Vitamin D for all growing persons and expectant and nursing mothers.

✧ ✧ ✧

Now I want to add my findings—discoverd over 20 years of attempting to nourish my own family perfectly.

Whole wheat bread with added wheat germ contains all of the nutrients found in wheat—not just the refined white flour. If eating for health alone does not appeal enough to you, the fuller and better flavor of whole wheat bread will.

Fresh fruits for dessert instead of pie, cake, pudding or cookies is so much less trouble that cooks will welcome the double advantage of it being "better for you" too. After all of the recommended foods have been worked in to the three-meals-a-day plan, then and only then include any extras such as sweets, but keep sweet foods few and far between. Sweets offer little in the way of food value, and are the ideal medium for tooth decay.

Even with milk prices at an all-time high, dollar for dollar and pound for pound it is still the most economical food you can buy. Milk is the complete food.

The eminent English surgeon, Sir Arbuthnot Lane, said during his lifetime, that the greatest single factor in the widespread digestive ailments of Britons was the consumption of white bread and refined white flour and sugar, since it caused stasis in the lower intestine.

When possible eat foods in their natural state. So endeth the lesson, and stoppeth Mary Moore talking herself out of business.

In Addition: Serve eggs and cheese at least three times per

FUNNY BUSINESS -- By Hershberger

"Gentlemen, we are making America a great place for our descendants by spending a lot of their money doing it!"

Bible Service Well Attended

HAVELOCK, Jan. 15 (ENS)—"Three Imperatives of the Bible" was the subject of a stirring evangelistic sermon delivered by the Rev. James McElroy of Burnbrae who was the guest speaker at a community service in the Havelock United Church on Sunday evening, which brought to a finish a week of special services sponsored by the various denominations of the village.

Mr. McElroy took two of the imperatives for his discourse from the story of the visit of Nicodemus to Jesus, namely, "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness even so must the Son of Man be lifted up" and "Ye must be born again." The third imperative was "We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ."

A large congregation was in attendance which necessitated the placing of chairs down the alsles. The choir of 30 voices, augmented with members of the Knox Church choir, led the service of song and rendered an anthem. The soloist was D. M. Robertson, who sang "The Love of God." A selection was sung by a men's octette comprising Albert Smith, Frank Pollock, Donald Pollock, Harry Agnew, Gordon Bales, D. M. Robertson, Robert Hill, and Paul Newman.

The Rev. R. G. Newman conducted the service and prayer was offered by the Rev. M. Esler. In thanking Mr. Newman, the Official Board and the congregation for placing the United Church at the disposal of the community for these united services, Mr. Esler said he thought the meetings had been a blessing to all who had attended them, and he had noted the increase there had been from night to night in the attendance. He said he had enjoyed every one of them and hoped that they would not be the last of this type of services to be held in the village. God bless you all as we go back to our respective churches, he concluded.

DOROTHY DIX

Former Fiance Annoyed By Married Man's Actions

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of 19 and having no parents to turn to am asking you for help. I am in love with a married man, but I don't want him. I went with him before he was married but refused to marry him because he wouldn't stop drinking. He married his present wife for spite.

Dorothy Dix

I know it is all over with us now; I know his wife must love him just as much as I do and I will not do anything that would break them up. But he will not let me alone! He keeps calling and writing me letters and each time I hear from him it breaks my heart into a million pieces. I don't have much money and have already paid for my course in school so I can't quit. What should I do?

DONNA

ANSWER: You are to be highly commended for your principles. Preserve them together with your high ideals, and one of these fine days you will find the really right man and have a marriage that you can well be proud of. You showed good sense in refusing to marry a confirmed drinker; taking him would have been the surest road to tragedy. Keeping your present feelings for him under cover and avoiding a shoddy love affair is further evidence of your good judgement and fine character.

His Behaviour Contemptible

Your friend, on the other hand, is exhibiting contemptible behavior. Marrying for spite is one of the lowest acts a man can commit; pursuing you in utter disregard for his wife proves conclusively that he is a man without stability, loyalty or honor. Believe me, you're well rid of him and when your heart heals a little, as it surely will, you can regard his wife with pity and be very loath to change places with her.

You'll need a firm hand to eliminate him from your life, but that I'm sure you have. Have one good talk with him; indicate your position clearly and tell him you want nothing whatever to do with him. If he ignores your declaration, threaten to show his wife some of the letters he sent you. (Don't carry out the threat, however. She'll be hurt enough by the conceited wretch she married). If that fails, carry your complaint to the police authorities.

Whatever you do, don't stand for his annoyances any longer. The sooner he is eliminated from your life and you can resume normal living, the better.

DEAR MISS DIX: For the past twenty years I have been very much interested in a certain man whom I shall call Henry. Since my mother passed away fourteen years ago, he has been coming to my apartment each night for an evening meal. I might mention that I am considered good looking, and am a very good cook though I do office work for a living. Occasionally, Henry indicates his thoughtfulness by bringing a bag of popcorn or a box of peanuts, but has never asked me to go out for an evening's entertainment. Could he be interested in someone else—a young lady perhaps—or is it possible that he is anxious to settle down?

ANXIOUS

ANSWER: Henry has settled down to a very nice racket—a free evening meal, very well cooked and attractively served at that. No wonder he's in no hurry to alter the situation. Matrimony is expensive, so is an evening's entertainment. Henry, my dear, is a first class tightwad who won't open his change purse even to change the moths. I suggest you look around for a more eligible man who would show tangible evidence of his appreciation for your culinary talents.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a bride of nine months, with a husband who will only go out with his boy friends. He leaves his friend's wife to keep me company, and they go off for hours at a time. I don't want to be selfish, but he seems to enjoy his friend's company more than mine. He won't let me leave the house at all during the day, even to go to my mother-in-law's. He claims my place is in the house—and that's all!

ANSWER: First of all, stick up for your rights! You certainly are entitled to the same privileges as your husband. If he goes out, you are entitled to time off, too.

Your husband, apparently, is too young to realize that marriage entails certain responsibilities, one of which is to cherish a wife. While it's a fine thing for young couples to keep up their old friendships, they should go out together in foursomes, rather than solo.

Taxi Owners Alarmed By Proposed Bylaw

COBOURG, Jan. 15—(ENS)—Alarmed lest a new proposed taxi bylaw might restrict them out of business, local taxi companies met last night in committee with the town council.

They were represented by legal counsel. Position of the taxi owners was explained as a guidance to council in framing the new bylaw and when the initial reading has been given, regulations in the bylaw will be thrown open for discussion. Taxi companies say they will go broke if they have to take their cars from in front of their King Street places of business and none of them has room to park back of their premises.

The pallbearers were William Doyle, Dermont Bedore, Jack Jones, Jack McCrodan, Herbert English and Norman Hipson.

Club Hunters To Practise Rifle Shooting

Each Wednesday evening of the winter months, starting this week at 7, the Rifle Club section of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association, will shoot at the Armouries butts.

Anly .22-calibre rifles will be used and the program, under the direction of chairman Norman Bradley, is chiefly interested in having the sons of members take an active part. Boys under 16 years of age who join the rifle group will be given free membership.

Future projects on the roster of the association are the annual Sportsmen's Show, which may be held in June. A tree-planting program in May will be carried out and application for two million small sport fish and fry has been made to the Department of Lands and Forests; these will be planted in various district waterways.

Study Pollution

A committee has been formed to study pollution control in the Trent waterways. A survey will be made, also under direction of the department, about the killing of carp in the spring; the club feels that the lower Otonabee River in the Bensfort Bridge section is particularly infested with them.

The thaw to date has stopped the necessity of the club buying fodder for wintering deer. Snow levels in the bush have dropped to enable normal winter browsing huntsmen members say.

Club To Bring Meen To City

Dr. V. B. Meen, director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Geology and Mineralogy and one of the co-discoverer of Chubb Crater in Ungava, Quebec, is coming to Peterborough to give his lecture.

The meeting, which is being held under the auspices of the St. Paul's Church Married Couple Club, will be held in the church auditorium on February 4.

The gigantic crater caused by a meteor was discovered on July 21, 1950 by Dr. Meen and F. W. Chubb, a prospector. Maps taken during the Second World War brought to the attention of Dr. Meen and Mr. Chubb the round shaped lake with very high rim. The lake was shown as 10,000 feet in diamteer and by measurments of the photographs a height of 500 feet was estimated for the rim. The fact that the high rim surrounded the lake ruled out the possibility that the lake occupied a sink-hole caused either by melting of a buried block of ice, after the ice age, or by the dissolving away of limestone rocks in a subterranean cavern, the roof of which had finally collapsed.

This left only two possible causes for the crater. It must be either an extinct volcano or a meteorite crater. Dr. Meen's trip to find this wonder of the world will be told in his lecture and in picture.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL

A parent education program of high calibre and value was presented Monday evening by Queen Alexandra Home and School Association in the Normal School auditorium. Guests in attendance were the Normal School students and parents of Queen Elizabeth School.

President Mrs. Arthur Black gave an outline of the entire program with her words of welcome.

The feature was Nora Sterling's one-act play "Scattered Showers", directed by Mrs. Mae Thompson and presented by Mothers of George St. Church Baby Band. Mrs. George Gatfield, Mrs. S. Gilgour and Mrs. Arthur Long took the parts of three mothers in the play and their portrayal of the characters was highly commendable.

Dr. Robert Bell, prominent child specialist, gave a highly educational commentary on the play, including valuable suggestions regarding child training. His remarks were followed by a short but enthusiastic discussion period.

An introduction of Dr. Bell was given by Mr. W. B. Gordon, chairman of the Board of Education.

Solos were by Mrs. Thomas Williams who sang Malotte's "Lord's Prayer' 'and "Ah, Sweet mystery of life." She was accompanied by Mrs. Ivan Morgan.

Mr. Kenneth McKee of Queen Alexandra staff expressed sincere thanks of all present to those taking part in the program and Mr. Donald Currie voiced thanks to the Association on behalf of the Normal students.

10 Whooping Cranes

AUSTWELL, Tex., Jan. 15 — (AP)—Protectors of the giant whooping crane, world's largest migratory bird, today sadly admitted a major setback in efforts to prevent extinction of the species.

Judian Howard, manager of the Arkansas Wild Life Refuge, made the official winter count in a low-flying plane and found only 20 cranes.

That means a loss of 10 whoopers from the previous winter.

Francis J. Goselin

The funeral for Francis J. Goselin, 513 Romaine St., who died Wednesday, was held Saturday at All Saints' Anglican Church. Requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. G. Gaughan. The Rev. W. C. McCarney and the Rev. G. F. Sullivan were also in the sanctuary.

Pallbearers were Lewis Thompson, Herman LaPlante, William Dolan, Jack Jones, Angus Goselin, Andrew Delpellaro. Graveside prayers at St. Peter's cemetery were said by Father Sullivan.

$300 Bail Set As Two Face Theft Charges

Arthur Raymond McGrath, 580 King George St., and James L. McGrath were charged in court today with stealing a quantity of wire and lead conduit, exceeding $25 in value, from the Peterborough Utilities.

Both men selected to appear before a higher court and the preliminary hearing was set for January 21. Each was remanded on $300 bail.

The charges arose out of a telephone call received by the police station at 12:23 am today from the night watchman at the gas works on Simcoe St. He said that someone was stealing wire in the building.

Constable Douglas Farthing was sent to investigate and picked up Constable Reginald McMillan in the police cruiser at the corner of Brock and Water Sts. They went east on Hunter to Queen St. where Const. McMillan left to circle the gas works from the north.

Const. Farthing parked the police car in front of the old welfare office on Queen St. and proceeded around the corner where he saw a car parked in the centre of Simcoe St.

He saw Arthur McGrath scraping the ice off the windshield and James McGrath sitting in the front seat. In the back seat was a large coil of wire and three pieces of lead conduit.

He placed the men under arrest and took them to the police station.

Const. Farthing returned to the gas works where the night watchman said that he was sitting in the boiler room when he heard the washroom door open. He thought it was another employee but "no one came through."

He became suspicious. He went into the washroom and saw a man he recognized as Arthur McGrath, a former employee who was discharged December 28.

The watchman talked to McGrath for a few minutes during which two trips were made with wire to the car and then the watchman called the police.

Driver Admits Ability Impaired

Charged with driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol, Keith M. Smith, 246 McDonnel St., pleaded guilty in police court Monday.

He was fined $50 and $2.50 costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp. The magistrate also ordered Smith's car impounded for three months.

Smith was charged December 22 after the car he was driving was involved in an accident on Highway 28, just west of the city limits.

OPP Constable Russell Pollard said Smith was driving one of the cars involved in a partial head-on collision on the early morning of December 22.

He said Smith's car was on the wrong side of the road, and that his speech was very thick, his eyes were glassy and there was a "strong aroma" of alcohol about him.

Smith did not question Constable Pollard's evidence.

Dr. Peter Kir Fails To Appear For Alienation

TORONTO, Jan. 15 — (CP) — Dr. Peter Kir, 43-year-old Czech doctor and formerly of Peterborough now residing in Windsor, failed to appear in assize court yesterday before Mr. Justice G. A. Gale in an alienation-of-affection suit brought against him by Josephat Neporany, 43, Czech carpenter working in Toronto.

Dr. Kir last year was found by a jury to have had adulterous relations with the wife of his compatriot. In that trial, Mr. Justice D. C. Wells compared the plump Mrs. Neporany to "an apple on a branch" and instructed the jury to decide whether "she fell off the branch because her husband shook the tree or whether Dr. Kir shook it."

Neporany was awarded judgement for $1,000 on the ground Dr. Kir had been guilty of criminal conversation with the little carpenter's wife. Neporany's claim for alienation of affection was refused. On appeal, a new trial was ordered.

The new trial is based specifically on the accusation of Neporcase but had failed to arrange for his wife's "affection, love and society."

No counsel for the defence was present when the case opened yesterday, and neither was Mrs. Noporany in court when her name was called.

Counsel for Neporany said he was prepared to go on with the case but had failed to arrange with the appearance of Dr. Kir or Mrs. Noporany.

Grant Licence For Plant Sales

Granting of a peddler's licence at $50 to Clifford A. McMaster, McFarlane St., to sell and deliver sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee to small industrial plants and offices where lunch facilities were not otherwise available was recommended by the finance committee of the council Monday.

His application bore the approval of Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, and Sanitary Inspector MacPherson. Mayor Waddell's motion was seconded by Ald. A. B. Burrows.

Ald. H. T. Rehill enquired about the comparison of the $50 charge with the business licences and taxes paid by stores already engaged in this supply of lunches. He said that the store at George and Sherbrooke Sts. had office customers in that district.

company took stock three days later 3,000 pounds, or about 150 ingots, were missing from the storage shed. Total value was $900.

Rented Truck

Cockerill said he rented the truck to move some furniture for an old army pal. He said he met the army pal—and a second man—at a street corner and they went to an address on Maple St.

He swore that by the time the two men (whom he couldn't positively identify) got out of the truck and began to load ingots, from where they had been dumped on the street, he was too intimidated to do anything about it.

Both men were armed, he said. And he feared that if he spoke to police or refused to play along with them they would retaliate against his family.

Crown Attorney John Bradshaw KC, said he was convinced several persons were involved, but Cockerill was the only one apprehended.

Judge McGibbon said that if Cockerill didn't tell of accomplices, when he had an opportunity to do so, then he would have to take full responsibility.

Irrepressible Churchill Applauds His Own French

BY DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, Jan. 15 (CP)—An irrepressible Winston Churchill applauded his own French Monday night and joined in a merry song about two hard-luck lumbermen from New Brunswick. He learned the song from "Maxie"—Lord Beaverbrook.

They were asides in a great occasion, the first speech he has given here in 10 years, a speech which brought members of parliament for hundreds of miles to hear it, which sparkled and soared at times with the old Churchillian rhetoric but suffered just as often because he chained himself to a text.

In the asides, there were no chains. There was only Churchill.

He broke away from the text once to speak French and when the roomful of distinguished guests applauded Mr. Churchill applauded too with a merry gleam in his eye.

Just before he spoke he ordered a glass of brandy and drank from it. When he sat down, he finished it off and went out to another room where the guests, who had filled the tables in the brilliant banquet hall to hear his oratory, now were mingling and chatting.

Gets Souvenir

Mr. Churchill sat down and people were brought up to him to be introduced. Up came Bona Arsenault, Liberal member of the Commons for Bonaventure, with a cigar stub he had picked up from the head table. Mr. Arsenault said he wanted one of Mr. Churchill's cigar stubs for his children but feared that he had obtained instead one left by Canada's Production Minister Howe.

"Hah," chuckled Winnie, "you shall have one of mine" and he pulled out a Churchillian stogie which Mr. Arsenault proceeded to carry about like a torch for all to see.

Then Dan Riley (L—St. John-Albert) was introduced as a member from New Brunswick and Mr. Churchill said: "Then you know Maxie—do you know the New Brunswick lament?"

Chant Ditty

Then, Riley said later, they chanted together a ditty about the Jones boys who built a mill on the side of the hill and they worked all night and they worked all day but couldn't make that sawmill pay.

The prime minister said he learned it from Lord Beaverbrook, an old friend.

When John James (L—Durham) was introduced as the member for Durham, Ontario, Mr. Churchill said, "That probably makes you a Tory."

"No sir," said James. "I'm a Liberal. I displaced a Tory."

"Well," said the irrepressible one, "I've been both."

Which, in his long and flaming career, he has.

RCN SETS STYLE—When Prince Philip visited Canada recently with Princess Elizabeth he admired the smart new uniform of Canadian naval ratings, and on his return to England passed the word along to his uncle, Vice-Admiral Earl Mountbatten, Britain's fourth Sea Lord. Lord Louis inspected the uniforms himself when Leading Seamen Peter Cowper, left, of Howick, Que., and Robert Maddocks of Montreal, visited his office recently. The Canadian uniform, which features zippers, shaped shoulders and disinctive trade badges, may be adopted by the Royal Navy.

Belmont Council Sets Rates Of Pay In Twp.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 15 (ENS). — The members of the Belmont and Methuen Council met at 11 am on Monday to sign their declaration of office. With Reeve Whitney in the chair, they proceeded with the reading and adoption of the minutes and adjourned for the noon hour.

At the afternoon session the rate of wages was set as follows: team and man, $1.25 per hour; man, 75 cents per hour; trucks, three yards, $2 per hour; four yurds, $2.25 per hour and five yards, $2.50 per hour; road superintendent, 80 cents per hour and nine cents per mile for road superintendent's conveyance.

William Smith was appointed sanitary inspector at 75 cents per hour and 13 cents per mile one way.

Charles Barrons, James Toms and Robert McFaul were appointed sheep valuators at 75 cents per hour and 13 cents per mile one way and one dollar for short trips.

The sessional allowance for the council was set at $80.

The salary for Grant Dafoe, clerk and treasurer was set at $610 for 1952.

Everett Toms was appointed a member of the Board of Health.

The clerk was authorized to forward the sum of $5 as membership fee to the Ontario Good Roads Association, and also to order eight subscriptions to the Municipal World and a copy of 1951 Ontario statutes.

Bylaw No. 670 to provide for the total 1952 expenditures on the roads in the townships of Belmont and Methuen was given its several readings and passed.

The council enacts as follows: The sum of $18,000 is appropriated from monies raised by levy, debentures and government subsidy for total expenditures upon the construction and maintenance of the roads under its jurisdiction during the year 1952 as follows:

	Bdgs. & Bridges	Clvts.	Total
Construction	$ 4,400	$500	$ 4,900
Maint.	11,000		11,000
Misc.	2,100		2,100
Total	$17,500	$500	$18,000

The monies shall be expended under the supervision of the duly appointed township road superintendent and the work performed in accordance with the Highways Improvement Act.

A small list of accounts were passed which included direct relief, $140.24; taxi fee for patient to hospital, $10; valuating sheep, $1.95; Municipal World account, $1.99.

3 Aldermen Named To Planning Board

Finance committee of the council last night appointed Ernest C. Braund and Aldermen Rehill, Graham and Longhurst to the city planning board.

James Dutton recently resigned as chairman, but expressed his willingness to continue as a member. Mr. William Tinker requested in December that his resignation be accepted. He remains a member of the board of health.

The other planning board members are James Hamilton, Hubert Sills, James Craig and Mrs. W. H. Morton.

The only actual change is that Ald. Longhurst takes the place of Mr. Tinker. Mr. Braund was a member last year from the council.

Finance committee instructed City Clerk Outram to write the board enquiring whether they had any further recommendations for membership.

"The planning board has done a fine job," Mayor Waddell said. "The zoning bylaw has still to be passed, and if we could strengthen the board it would be a big help. This bylaw is one of the important matters that will have to be taken up this year."

The question of present membership was necessitated by the planning board meeting for Thursday.

NIGHT WORKERS

Night-blooming plants are fertilized by moths and other nocturnal insects.

Township People Object To Smoke

Smoke from the city dump in North Monaghan is raising protest from residents, and it is said that the agreement with the township permits dumping but not burning.

It was heard recently that petitions are on their way to the township council. Some of the signing residents live as far away as No. 28 highway.

Mayor Waddell told the committee last night that a meeting should be arranged with the township council for an early date to discuss some matters affecting both municipalities. His Worship said there was also some complaint that the dump is not kept so tidy as it was before the profitable arrangement was made with Levack for salvage.

'52 Council Pays '50 Light Bill

"What I don't like is that we have no money to pay them with," said Ald. T. D. Miller as the finance committee last night looked at a Hydro bill through the Utilities Commission for $5,149.21 on the 1950 street lighting account.

This amount is a deficit, as the difference between what the city was charged for street lighting and what it actually cost.

Accounting for 1949 paid back a surplus. It was recalled that the council persuaded the Utilities Commission to clip their demand for 1950, and apparently that consession is now rebounding.

"The new subdivision work is bound to swell the Utilities costs," Ald. J. E. Gillespie commented.

There is also a charge by the Commission for water which is used for fire protection, street cleaning and so on. Last year the cheque was for $40,000.

"I think water should be free to the city," Ald. Miller suggested.

Discussion ended on Mayor Waddell's motion, seconded by Ald. H. S. Longhurst, to pay the Utilities out of the 1952 revenues.

Guy Bentley Heads Board For High School

BANCROFT, Jan. 15 — (ENS)—Guy Bentley of Dungannon township was chosen as chairman of North Hastings High School Board when that body held its first meeting for the year in the school board room on Thursday night.

For 1952 the members will be: William Crozier, Mayo; C. E. Thompson, Limerick; C. McMurray, Tudor-Cashel; E. W. Laundry, Bancroft village; J. I. Vance, Bancroft Public School Board; K. Hutchison, Cardiff; T. Buckley, Maynooth Separate School Board; T. Brownson, Hasting county; C. E. Loney, Carlow; H. Burlanyette, Bangor, Wicklow and McClure; H. L. Hook, Faraday; F. M. Price, Monteagle and Herschel and C. H. Gunter, Wollaston.

The board decided to grant the use of the auditorium to the Junior Farmers, as that organiaztion is again becoming active in North Hastings.

E. W. Laundry, T. Brownson and Guy Bentley were appointed as the management committee for the year.

In his financial report for the calendar year secretary-treasurer R. W. Hillis showed that the gross cost of operation, exclusive of debenture payments was $82,728.77. Basing this on an enrolment of 295 this would be a per pupil cost of $280.

DETROIT, Jan. 15 — (CP) — More than 1,000 sweaters made of inflammable brush rayon have been sold in the Detroit area in the last two weeks, Fire Marshal Edward Hall said today.

He said the sweaters had been sold wholesale to peddlers who sold them from push-carts.

The sweaters, made of a cheap rayon brushed to resemble camel's hair, will burn to ashes in less than a minute.

Inspector Present

Mr. Gray, the high school inspector was present and expressed his pleasure in meeting all the members of the board and congratulated them in the new school progress. He explained the new inspectorate set up and hoped to have more time to spend in his territory of Peterboruogh, Hastings and Durham and Northumberland. He dealt with the comparison between the old and new high school districts. He said he was pleased to hear of the appointment of J. H. Caskey as principal of the new school. Mr. Caskey, he advised, should be at liberty to visit other schools where a fund of information could be obtained for the board. Mr. Gray said he had just visited the Norwood school and found the results much better than a year ago.

The following is what the Board did at the meeting:

Authorized the chairman and secretary to borrow money when required; requested the secretary to go to the Department of Education, Toronto, for information respecting the deed of the old Norwood school; granted $37.50 to assist in transporting 26 students to Toronto to see Hart House production, beneficial to students; granted $50 for 12 PT uniforms; requested trustee E. Hamblin to secure information from the Norwood council as to the ownership of Elm Street; purchased $8,300 worth of shop equipment for the new school.

Surplus of $7,308.

The financial report presented by the secretary-treasurer and submitted to the Department for their approval showed receipts in th current account as $62,736.57 which included a bank balance at Jan. 1, 1950 of $7,576.50. The expenditures were $55,427.58, with a balance on hand at the end of 1951 of $7,308.99.

In the capital account, the County of Peterborough has advanced to the Board for the building of the new school the sum of $136,963.41 of which $4,682.25 was used for the site for the school and $132,056.85 was for building purposes, with a balance of $224.-31. This money was advanced by the county until such time as they sell the debentures.

Old Councillors Of N. Monaghan Sworn To Office

Members of the 1952 Council of North Monaghan made their declaration of office at the inaugural meeting Monday afternoon.

Reeve Willard G. Waterman and four councillors, Archibald Patterson, Walter Brown, Lloyd Whittington and Fred Stenson were all returned to office for 1952 by acclamation at a nomination meeting Nov. 26.

The following accounts were passed for payment: Hydro, arrears, 1943-44, $31.04; Underwood Limited, $5.25; relief and welfare, $16.23; Christmas baskets, $51.34.

A resolution was passed that the Council and road superintendent attend the convention of the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities in Toronto Feb. 18-19.

Sell Gravel Pit

A bylaw was passed authorizing the reeve and clerk to sign a deed conveying to Reginald A. Pearson the old gravel pit on the Archie Patterson place, north of the CPR for $300.

This gravel pit was originally owned by the CPR and was used by them when they were building their railway. They eventually sold it to the township. This pit is immediately north of the CPR and between it and the Patterson gravel pit. Mr. Pearson operates a ready-mix concrete plant.

The council is petitioning the Department of Highways for the statutory grant on expenditures on township roads for 1951 amounting to $7,498.09.

MINOR ACTIVITY

Firemen had two calls Monday night. One was to the home of W. Dawson, 658 Bethune St., where they had to use a handpump to snuff out a chimney fire. Shortly before 9 p.m. they had a false alarm sounded from the box at Chamberlian and Brewer Sts.

COUNCIL INVITED

Gordon C. Miller's invitation to the council to be his guests at Paramount Theatre Thursday night at 7.30 was accepted by finance committee, but the date was changed to Friday. Paramount is showing the Royal Journey films of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh's visit to Canada. Thursday looks like a full card for the council.

LABOR DELEGATES

Four new delegates were introduced Monday night to the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL). Two were from Local 509, International Woodworkers of America (CIO-CCL): Vince Lynch, an employee of Timber Structures, and Kinsmen Beeler, Peterborough Lumber Co. The other two were George Miller and James Johnson, employees of Wonder Bread and members of Local 505, Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Workers (CIO-CCL).

GET CITIZENSHIP

Three Chinese residents of Peterborough for many years received their certificates of citizenship from Judge J. A. McGibbon, Lindsay, on Monday. They were Hum Wing Dlick, employed at the DeLuxe Cafe; Henry Hum, Paris Cafe; and Hugh Wong, proprietor of a tourist home at 390 Queen St. The ceremony was at the adjourned general sessions of the peace.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

Finance committee of the council accepted last night the resignation of T. J. Allen from the recreation commission. City Clerk Outram was directed to write him conveying the council's appreciation of his service on the commission. Mr. Allen informed the council by letter that increasing duties and also personal interest in musical affairs prevented him from remaining with the commission on which he had endeavoured to promote its activities in music.

PAC CAMPAIGN

Ed Humphrey, chairman of the political action committee, Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL), has called a meeting for Jan. 28. His object is to rally support for PAC and he asked delegates from each local to see that their local is represented at the meeting. Lack of support of the CCF candidate in the provincial election indicated that delegates were voting on a "personal basis" rather than reflecting the opinion of their membership, said Mr. Humphrey. The labor council voted unanimously to support the CCF candidate in the provincial election but the percentage of industrial union workers who supported the CCF was "disappointing."

SPILL COAL IN DITCH

A dump truck took to the north ditch of Highway 7A early today, to avoid a head-on collision with the oncoming trucks. In doing so it rolled over, spilling its load of seven tons of coal along the ditch, a quarter of a mile west of the city limits. The driver, Alert McConnell, 33, of RR 2, Peterborough, was uninjured, but the truck received about $200 damage. McConnell was going east when, through the thick fog, he noticed two westbound trucks approaching. One was passing the other and he realized he had no room to get by. Rather than risk a collision, he took to the north ditch. OPP Constable Tom Fitzpatrick investigated.

College Sports Overemphasized Writers Believe

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP). — Are college sports in the United States over-emphasized?

Most of the men who write about them and broadcast them think that they are, and they've got almost as many cures for the situation as a dog has fleas.

Some 117 of the writers and broadcasters voting in The Associated Press' annual year-end poll agreed that there's too much emphasis on sports at the college level. Only 33 said there was no over-emphasis.

Suggested cures by those in the majority ranged from such mundane matters as subsidization and scholarships to one man's idea of shooting the spectators. Some of those in the minority, on the other hand, embellished their "no" votes with comments that the only thing being over-emphasized was de-emphasis.

Biggest target of those who would de-emphasize college sports were "rah-rah" alumni who have dollar bills as well as the old school colors. A dozen writers suggested the colleges clamp down on alumni efforts to improve their schools' athletic record by offering cash assistance to athletes.

Rigidly Controlled

Nine writers urged that recruiting and subsidization be outlawed, or at the least, rigidly controlled. One less vote was cast for the suggestion that athletes be required to make formal progress toward a degree—with no favoritism—and also for a plan for some sort of uniform code of rules governing colleges all over the country.

Seven votes each were given to the idea of putting sports "back on the campus" and to the elimination of both the two-platoon system in football and spring practice for the gridders. Strangely enough, almost all of the writers who criticized the two-platoon system, paired it with spring practice as a cause of over-emphasis.

Although the votes were cast before the end of the year, the writers' recommendations on these two points apparently gained an even break at the NCAA convention last week.

Week Of Prayer Ends In Warkworth Church

WARKWORTH, Jan. 15 (ENS) —The closing service of the week of prayer was held Friday evening in Warkworth in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church with a good attendance of the congregations of the Warkworth Protestant churches.

The Rev. A. B. Moffatt of the Free Methodist church, gave the address and was assisted in the service by the Rev. J. M. Ritchie, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian and the Rev. H. G. Lester of St. Paul's United.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Governors of the National Hockey League decided 21 years ago today to impose automatic fines of $25 each on players taking parts in fights they did not originate themselves. The rule was intended to discourage the free-for-all brawls that had broken out in games at New York, Chicago and Montreal in the 1940-41 season.

All Crew Killed

YOKOHAMA, Jan. 15 — (AP) — The United States navy said today that all 12 crew members died when a big partol bomber crashed and burned late Monday in a rice field near Atsugi air base. The big plane, a PB-4-Y2 Privateer, developed engine trouble on the last lap of an 11-hour patrol mission over the Sea of Japan.

OLYMPIC SKATERS — Gordon Audley, 23, left, and Frank Stack, 46, both of Winnipeg, skate 10 miles nightly to prepare for the 1952 Winter Olympics at Oslo, Norway, next month. They work out on the Red River in Winnipeg's suburban West Kildonan where they clean the 440-yard oval themselves.

Speed-Skating Pair Train On Red River For Olympics

By AL VICKERY

WINNIPEG, Jan. 15—(CP)—A 10-by-five foot shack and an oval track of about 440 yards on the Red River is the training camp of two of Canada's four-man Olympic speed-skating team. It is situated behind Kildonan Park in the northern suburbs.

But Frank Stack and Gordon Audley, both of Winnipeg, aren't squawking. They're happy they have a spot to work out at all.

Unable to get a spot for practice at any of the city rinks, Stack and Audley, who compete in the Feb. 14-25 winter Olympics at Oslo, and a handful of other speed-skating enthusiasts cleaned an oval track on the river as soon as it froze over in late November. Earlier in the month, they had been working out on a frozen-over gravel pit at Bird's Hill, 12 miles out of the city.

Other Olympic speed-skating teams already are training in Norway in preparation for the games. But, the Canadian boys apparently will make a last-minute jaunt to the scene after working out on their own hook at home. The two other members of the Canadian squad are Craig McKay, of Saskatoon, and Ralph Olin, of Calgary.

Keep In Trim 6

Any clear night from 7.30 pm to 9.30, Stack and Audley and others are speeding up and down the river. It doesn't matter if it is 10 above or 30 below.

It's a bit of a struggle to get into "Stack's Shack" on the Red River. The structure was moved from the downtown area at the skaters' expense after the original shack was lost in the 1950 spring flood. A worn-out stove provides much-needed heat and a coal-oil lamp supplies a faint light. The skaters generally work out in shifts to make room in their "headquarters."

Stack lives close by and travels in his small car to and from the shack. Audley lives on the far side of the city, suburban St. James on the west end, and takes a street car—an hour's ride each way. And it's about a 1½-mile walk to the river from the car stop.

A Veteran Star

Despite these adverse conditions the veteran Stack—he was 46 on New Year's Day—continues to show the brilliant form which gained him the senior men's crown at the Dominion finals in Winnipeg last February. In capturing his fourth Canadian title, Stack made a clean sweep of the six events. Audley was runner-up.

For Stack the 1952 Olympics will be his third test. He competed in the 1932 games at Lake Placid, NY, and again in 1948 at Switzerland. His best effort in 1948 was a tie for fourth in the 500-metre event.

Stack won his first outside championship at the age of 14 at St. Paul, Minn., and has captured more than 500 trophies and medals in his long career.

Audley, 23, is the youngest member of the speed-skating team. He has been speed skating for about 13 years and came up through the midget, juvenile, junior and intermediate ranks, heading practically every division in his climb to the senior division.

Last winter, Gordon turned in the fastest time for 500 metres in the Olympic trials at Saskatoon. Although placing 17th in the 1948 games at Switzerland, Audley's time in the 500 metres was only two seconds off the winner.

Both Stack and Audley consider the Norwegians the top skaters in the world.

Frank said: "They have the coaching, proper trainers, facilities, and the public's encouragement. We have little of this."

Buy Electric Organ For Bethany Church

BETHANY, Jan. 15 (ENS) — The congregation of the United Church have decided to purchase an electric organ. It will be delivered in February and set up in the parsonage to give the organists an opportunity of learning to use it before it is finally installed in the church. A special dedication service is planned for Easter Sunday.

The purchase of the organ has been made possible through the generosity of Thomas Stinson, Lndsay, executor of the estate of the late Miss Anne Bray, who in her will, left certain funds to be distributed at his discretion. Miss Bray was a lifelong resident of Bethany.

BERLIN, Jan. 15 — (AP) — Deputy Premier Otto Nuschke, who represented the Communist East German government before the United Nations at Paris last month, has left for a long "rest cure" in Russia, the Soviet-licensed ADN news agency disclosed Monday.

Spear Fishing Popular Sport In Australia

By LOUS L. LECK

SYDNEY, Australia—(CP)—Thousands of young—and not so young—Australians are enjoying summer chasing fish with diving mask and spear-gun in this country's newest sport—underwater spear fishing.

The sport has been known in the Mediterranean and off American coasts for years but only lately has it been sweeping Australia. Here they say it is more fun than in the Northern Hemisphere.

Says Ken Knox, secretary of the fast-growing Victorian Underwater Spearfishing Association: "Australians who have fished in the Mediterranean say that because there are no sharks there there are no thrills."

That suggests that grim deep-sea struggles go on daily round Australia's coasts. In fact, no sharks have ever attacked underwater fishermen here, and the few sharks speared have all been non-man-eaters. Those fishermen who have met big sharks below cannot agree which one of them was the more frightened.

The outfits used in Australia are simple: A large single-glass mask covering the eyes and nose; usually a schnorkel tube so that the fisherman can cruise along the top of the water with his face under drawing air through the 18-inch tube; a lead belt of five to 10 pounds; rubber flippers on the feet to give speed; a knife; a darkish sweater to keep warm and help camouflage and a rubber-powered spear-gun.

Simple Masks

Hardly any use diving masks with oxygen or pipes. Most prefer the simplicity of coming up for fresh breaths every half minute or so.

Pioneer of spear fishing in Australia is 43-year-old Frank Cunliffe of Sydney. Eleven years ago he made his own spear gun and was disappointed to find he wasn't the first in the world to do so. Then he tried to patent an underwater type of goggle he had developed but found there was a Japanese patent of 1913 with the same idea.

Cunliffe and others who heard about the new sport kept on fishing but it wasn't until a few years ago that the idea spread. They formed the Underwater Spear Fishermen's Association of New South Wales, signed up 50 members right away and now are signing better than 30 a month.

The Association has strict rules. No one must fish within 50 yards of bathers or line men and no guns may be loaded or fired above water. Members are forbidden to use torches for night fishing.

Cunliffe has speared 80 fish in a day. Kills of fish up to 40 pounds in weight are frequent. Ace spearfishmen have caught up to 140 pounds weight in a day.

Arena Wrecked

LYNN, Mass., Jan. 15 (AP)—Fire and a hot air explosion wrecked the Lynn Sports Arena early today an hour after the one-storey brick building in crowded West Lynn was emptied of 1,000 persons who watched a card of wrestling matches. No one was injured.

Leaves Estate To Widow

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15 (AP)—Sigmund Romberg's will gives most of his estate to his widow. The document, filed here Monday gives six-sevenths of the income of a trust to the widow, Lillian, and the other seventh to a brother Hugo. The composer died Nov. 9 at the age of 64.

HERE'S CANADA'S ALPINE SKIERS, all ready for their take-off to Oslo, Norway, and a shot at Olympic titles. They wound up their training at Beauvallon, Mt. Tremblant, recently. Improvements Interest 4½%

Finance committee of the council last night fixed at 4½% the interest rate on debentures for local improvements. City Engineer Chalmers had asked for specific instruction on this point to enable him to assess costs on that type of construction work.

Appointed Ald. Harold Rehill as representative of the council and city, on the recently organized Central Ontario Spring Fair, to be held at Morrow Park in March.

"Received" a circular letter from the Cleveland Sports and Boat Show quoting display booth costs, thereby leaving that medium of publicity to the Chamber of Commerce. It was surmised that a copy of the letter was probably in the Chamber's Mail.

Authorized Mayor Waddell to appoint a special salaries committee to which the brief from the Fire Fighters' Association is referred. It deals with firemen's working agreement with the city for this year.

Refused refund of restaurant licenses sought by Bluebird Grill 374 George St., and Andrew Haggis of the Ritz Grill which was located at the corner of George and Hunter Streets. Both spots have been transformed into women's wear stores. License is $40 a year. Mr. Haggis had the effective use of his license three months and Bluebird six. A Burrows-Gillespie motion was based on council precedent.

First Father-Son Team On Counties Council

ROSENEATH, Jan. 15 (ENS)—When Reeve Fred Broadworth, of Alnwick township, left to attend counties council at Cobourg today, he was accompanied by his father, George Broadworth, reeve of Percy township.

Fred Broadworth was re-elected reeve of Alnwick for 1952 by acclamation but this is the first year George Broadworth has been reeve of Percy. He also gained his seat by acclamation. It is also the first time in the history of Northumberland and Durham counties council that father and son have been members of the counties council of adjoining townships.

Home Economist Talks To Coldsprings Club

COLDSPRINGS, Jan. 15 (ENS) —Miss Jean Noble, home economist for the Department of Agriculture, was guest speaker at the "Cotton Pickers" girls' club meeting, held Friday night in the township hall.

She explained to the girls how to have good posture, how to prepare material for cutting, pattern alterations, and how to mark patterns.

Millbrook YPU Meets

MILLBROOK, Jan. 15 (ENS)—The inter-church Young People's Union met Sunday after evening service at the home of Helen Fallis. The special speaker was Harry Williams, of the high school staff, who spoke on "Life In the Country." The worship service was conducted by the Rev. A. M. Butler. Paul Sanders, the president, was in the chair. Those who assisted the hostess in serving refreshments were Leona Ball, Carolyn Harkness, Yvonne and Marlene Richards.

City Pays Cost In Some Trials

City council discovered in the $2,680 account from Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, KC, that it was paying part of the costs leviable on offenders convicted in police court.

Ald. T. D. Miller, chairman, suggested at the finance committee meeting last night, that these items of $10 should be included in the costs against the persons found guilty of offences chiefly under the Liquor Control and Highway Traffic Acts.

A motion by Mayor Waddell and Ald. H. S. Longhurst directed that Mr. Bradshaw's bill be paid. It was followed by a Rehill-Black motion to enquire into the possibility of having the costs paid by offenders, and to ask Mr. Bradshaw to present his account quarterly.

City Treasurer Couper replied to a question that the corresponding bill for 1950 was $2,300.

"Apparently we are not getting any better," Ald. Miller commented on the increase.

Army Opens Drive Boost Religion

By RONALD AUTRY

FORT MONMOUTH, NJ, Jan. 15—"Stand Up; Stand Up For Jesus".

The world of the militant Christians' old song rang out from hundreds of soldiers' throats here Monday night and reverberated among the steel girders.

A choir, seated in the bleachers of the big field house, joined in.

And thus began a five-day series of religious services—one of the first moves in a major drive developing throughout the United States to bolster the serviceman's spiritual defence.

It is a campaign—sponsored by the General Commission on Chaplains and the National Council of Churches—to convince him that "Christ Is the Answer", theme of the preaching mission.

Civilian teams of Protestant ministers are carrying the gospel to guardhouse and to hospital, counselling and preaching. Some 120 navy and army installations will be reached in the two-month crusade.

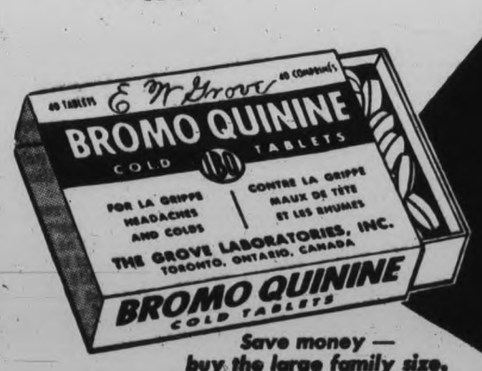
Strong Support

Some of the biggest names in Protestantism are participating. The military and President Truman are backing the program.

"I have been in the army 11 years and I've never seen religion taken like this before," said Lt.-Col. Lisle Bartholomew of Benson, Vt., post chaplain.

"I suppose it's an outgrowth of the Second World War when people touched the realities of life and became aware of the stability that religions could give them."

The first service at this signal corps centre brought some 1,100 soldiers and their families into the post field house, where a makeshift altar was raised in front of a picture of Christ.



They sang, received literature and heard a sermon from the Rev. Samuel Shoemaker, rector of Calvary Episcopal Church, New York.

Ex-British Soldier Finds Germans Bitter Toward US

By BRACK CURRY

BONN, Germany (AP)—A former British soldier living in Germany says there's an amazingly strong anti-American feeling among the Germans.

"As for the British, they just pity us," says former Corp. Douglas T. MacArthur of the Royal Engineers who has lived here with his German wife for three years.

MacArthur says:

"The Germans think the Americans are exploiting them. They do not believe me when I tell them they've been financed by the Americans since 1945. They simply cannot understand a victorious nation trying to help the country it defeated.

"They think the money for the big new American occupation headquarters here in Mehlem (a suburb of Bonn) is coming out of their pockets.

Still Bitter

"The Germans are still bitter about the requisitioning of houses by the Allies. I subscribe to The London Daily Telegraph just so I can counter their criticism. The German people do not get a true picture of what is going on from their newspapers. The press twists things to suit its own purposes."

MacArthur says the Germans "don't study politics the way the British do. But when somebody blows a trumpet, they're there."

The Germans "have no respect whatsoever" for the French, MacArthur says.

"They are sorry to see England in such a sorry plight—and one hundred per cent for Winston Churchill. This country is like a ship without a rudder—the people don't know what to believe. They want some one to inspire them.

Need a King

"I think the Germans need a king like our George. They are fond of British Royalty. They cut out pictures of the Royal Family and paste them in their homes.

"They have no use for the present German leaders. They tell me that Adenauer (the Federal Chancellor) and Schumacher (the Socialist Party leader) are always fighting but do nothing for Germany."

The stocky, moustached MacArthur rolled into battered Bonn in 1945 with an American unit to which he had been attached. The unit settled down for a spell of occupation duty—and MacArthur met the pretty, blonde daughter of the leading coal dealer. Now she is his wife and the mother of pink-faced, blue-eyed Ian, aged two.

To the hundreds of Germans who buy their coal and potatoes from the firm he inherited from his father-in-law, ex-Corporal MacArthur is just plain "Mac."

All Friends German

All of his friends and customers are Germans. He speaks German except on rare occasions and thinks Germany is a "fine land."

"The people as a whole in Germany are top rate but they are easily led and, as Americans would say, there are quite a few real stinkers," says MacArthur. He is a member of the local German Businessmen's Association, and has even been invited to join a German veterans group.

"My closest friend was a German machine-gunner at Dunkerque—and I was at Dunkerque too, on the other side," MacArthur says.

A former biscuit maker at Penarth, Wales, MacArthur says his father's family was of Scottish descent, "but I don't know whether I am related to General MacArthur, and I don't care."

Frankie Parker Authority On Tennis Garb

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15 (AP)—"Tennis, anyone?"

How about a few sets with Frankie Parker, the glamor boy among the tennis champions? Or maybe you'd rather talk about such things as movie tennis players and the brevity of court attire.

Frankie is an expert on both. He has played with most of the movie tennis addicts. Among the better players, he listed Robert Taylor, Peter Lawford and Walter Pidgeon. Van Johnson is so-so, he remarked.

Frankie teaches tournament form to Katharine Hepburn, who is portraying a top-flight athlete in "Pat and Mike."

"She is an excellent student," Frankie remarked.

Authority On Clothes

Frankie is also an authority on tennis wear. Today's aces can thank him for paving the way to more sensble attire. He harks back to an era when all tournament players wore flannel trousers.

"I started out wearing knickers, which was pretty daring at the time," he said. "Then I switched to shorts. When Don Budge and I went to Wimbledon for the Davis cup matches in 1937, the officials said I could not wear shorts. 'Too undignified,' they said.

"I argued that I couldn't play in anything else and it looked as though I wouldn't be allowed to compete. But finally they gave me a specal dispensation, if I wore 'long' shorts.

Frankie also favored the improvements in female tennis garb. The pioneer in that field was "Gorgeous Gussie" Moran.

"I think women's tennis much more exciting now that the grils are more active," he said.

Both Drivers Negligent, Case Dismissed

LINDSAY, Jan. 15 (ENS). — A careless driving charge against Milton Irwin of Mariposa township was dismissed by Magistrate E. A. Gee when he ruled that both drivers were partially negligent.

Irwin was charged as a result of an accident which occurred on county road No. 4 near Little Britain on Dec. 3. The car driven by the accused came in collision with a car driven by Herbrt York of Cameron on a bridge.

All witnesses stated that there had been a dense fog that morning and Irwin testified that he stopped his car to get his bearings and saw two sets of headlights coming towards him. Irwin found himself stopped right on the bridge and the oncoming car struck him. Herbert York stated that he was driving along the road with his brother following him. He saw the Irwin car swerve to his side of the road and could not avoid the accident since it happened right on the bridge.

Damage to the York car was $227.50 and to the Irwin vehicle $125. The point of impact was on York's side of the road, two feet left of the centre line. The magistrate ruled that it was the fault of both drivers and dismissed the charge.

Bookbinders Reject Offer

TORONTO, Jan. 15—(CP)—A membership meeting of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders and Bindery Women (AFL) Monday night rejected a conciliation board recommendation for 22½-cent wage boost and approved an application to the parent international union for strike sanction.

The bookbinders are the second of three Toronto commercial printing unions seeking higher wages to take this step. The Toronto Printing Pressmen's Union has already applied for strike sanction, the Toronto Typographical Union, Local 91, has yet to act.

All three union seek a wage increase of 45 cents an hour over their basic hourly pay of $1.67½. They represent some 3,500 Toronto printers working at commercial printing firms. Newspapers are unaffected by the dispute.

Bert Groves, secretary of the Toronto Printing Trades Co-operative Committee which represents the three unions, said efforts will be made to re-open negotiations with the employers, but if talks fail, a general strike vote will be taken.

Bermuda, Newfoundland Described To Rotary Club

Pearls of the Atlantic was the topic of the address given by Captain Douglas Sharpe, of the Salvation Army at the Rotary luncheon meeting Monday.

Captain Sharp has travelled extensively in Bermuda and Newfoundland and used the knowledge he has obtained from his travels to give an interesting and informative address.

Giving a brief sketch of the history and the present political and economic status of Bermuda, the speaker also told of its beautiful scenery. The truth of his words was borne out by the colored slides which he had taken while he was stationed there.

Semi-Tropical

The island has an area of 19 square miles—24 miles long and two miles wide at its broadest point. The climate is semi-tropical with a minimum temperature of 48 degrees in the winter months (Nov. to May) and a maximum of 85 to 90 degrees in the summer. The average rainfall per annum is 58 inches.

The population is approximately 30,000 with 60 per cent colored and the remainder white. The tourist industry is the greatest source of income for the islanders.

One of the interesting points Capt. Sharpe explained was the source of the islanders' water supply. All water used for drinking and other purposes is rain water. Roofs are made of coral stone cut into slates, coated with cement and whitewashed. The rain is caught in gulleys which are connected with tanks. If there is a scarcity of rain, water must be brought in from another country by boat.

Showed Slides

Captain Sharpe also showed slides of the landscape and coastal fishing villages that he took while he was stationed in Newfoundland.

The speaker was introduced by E. C. Braund and thanked by Frank Paterson.

The Rev. A. A. Mathews of George St. United Church introduced Frank Robinson and Alex Fleming, both of Peterborough and guests at the luncheon.

Cruiser Jinxed? Has 2nd Crash

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 15 — (ENS) — Is OPP cruiser 836 jinxed?

After being involved in an accident in Peterborough Thursday, 836 was clipped on the right rear fender in Campbellford Friday afternoon.

OPP Constable Ralph Tremills was driving the cruiser into Campbellford to obtain an estimate on the damage which resulted from the Peterborough accident.

As he was driving east on Bridge St., into the town, a car driven by Clifford Cassan, Campbellford, pulled out of a side-street and the two cars collided.

The right rear fender of the cruiser was damaged in the Friday accident. In the Peterborough accident, the left door was badly damaged.

With two accidents in less than a week, 836 will be temporarily out of commission for a few days until its dented body is repaired.

Seymour House Raided By OPP

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 15 — (ENS)—After raiding the residence of Clarence Ivey, five miles south of town in Seymour township, provincial police said Ivey will be charged with breaches of the Liquor Control Act.

The raid was carried out Sunday evening by a group of OPP officers under Sergeant Stanley Palmateer, of OPP district headquarters in Peterborough. Constables Donald W. Erskine and George Rose, of Campbellford and Constables Aimey Gaudry and Jim Healey of OPP district headquarters, assisted in the search of the premises.

Constable Erskine said following the raid that district provincial police are determined to stamp out the sale of illicit liquor and will crack down on bootlegging wherever it is found. If necessary a special squad of officers will be assigned to this task, Constable Erskine indicated.

This year the So-Ed program which is held every Wednesday night until February 20, includes four speakers, Mrs. William Tucker, vice-president of National So-Ed, Dr. Donald Atcheson, Toronto, Graham Huson and William White of Toronto.

Highlight of the other program on February 13, will be a musical program which will include the Searles trio, barber shop quartets, Mrs. Gwen Craw and Charles Allen, a duo-piano team, and the CGE Pipe Band.

After the opening periods which will be in George St. church, interest groups will be conducted every night at the YMCA. This year So-Ed has included groups on photography and home developing, bridge, modern dancing, boatmanship, golf, French (conversational) and music appreciation. A seventh interest group, called Bidlip, will be a series of lectures by a banker, investment agent, doctor, lawyer, insurance agent and purchasing agent.

At the close of each So-Ed meeting a recreation and social period will be held in the YMCA. Wednesday night finale will be a fireside hour including sing songs and games. Other programs will include a folk night, Coney Island night, a Texas hoe-down and hard time party, a gypsy trail and on February 20 a Valentine party.

Doesn't Want US Presidency

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—The Wall Street Journal said Monday in a dispatch from Paris that General Eisenhower doesn't want to be President of the United States.

The copyrighted dispatch, written by Edward Hughes, a staff correspondent, gives this account:

Eisenhower "genuinely prefers to stay out of politics, finish his job of building Western Europe's defence and then move to a farm in America where he can live quietly and do a little golfing and hunting now and then."

Eisenhower's statement last week indicating he would accept a nomination by the Republican party's convention was not intended to discourage Eisenhower's political backers, but "neither was it a 'go-ahead' signal to Republican organizers."

"As much of anything, the statement was intended to squelch any thoughts that, in the light of American excitement over his political possibilities, further silence on his part would itself have political meaning."

Man Jailed 2 Months On One Of 4 Charges

LINDSAY, Jan. 15 (ENS). — Action in police court here Monday centered a number of charges against Robert Alton of Haliburton.

Alton pleaded not guilty to four charges of theft, three of which were dismissed by Magistrate E. A. Gee. The first charge, that of stealing grocieries was dismissed as was the third charge of stealing gasoline because of insufficient evidence.

The second charge of stealing a coat worth $50 was upheld by the magistrate and a further charge of stealing goods from his employer was dismissed. Alton was sentenced to two months in the county jail. He told the magistrate that he could neither read nor write and had only two years' schooling and had supported his parents since he was nine years old.

Gave Friends Drink, In Wrong Place, Fined

LINDSAY, Jan. 15 (ENS). — "What were you doing, Mr. Fawcett? Keeping a drink in the garage for your favorite customers?" queried Magistrate E. A. Gee of the proprietor of Fawcett's Garage in Kinmount, in police court Monday.

"I guess so, sir," replied the accused after pleading guilty to a charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence.

"It was in the shop back of the garage."

"You'd better invite them over to the house for a drink after this," said his worship." "It's going to cost you $15 plus costs of $5.00."

Corporal Used Own Still To Make Hooch Army Authorities Try To Frame Charge

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANDIANS IN KOREA, Jan. 15 (CP).—A still has been discovered in them thar Korean hills.

And nothing can be done about it under the Canadian Army Defence Act. The act prescribes no penalty for soldiers producing their own hooch.

The corporal in whose five-gallon water can mash — "scrounged groceries": raisins, oranges, prunes, sugar and water — was found admitted freely that it was his. It was for his buddies and not for sale.

His crew was always sober and were good soldiers.

Brigade authorities, fearful that stills will become the vogue among Canadian troops in Korea, are trying to frame a minor charge under the old "prejudicial conduct" blanket charge.

The corporal's technique apparently was virtually undetectable. A soldier whose sleeping bag was two feet from the mash didn't know it was there. He moaned:

"But I guess I should have known when I heard the can gurgle the odd time."

No Decision Yet In Ontario For Renting Taxes

TORONTO, Jan. 16. (CP)—Premier Frost said today he has "neither accepted nor rejected" the Federal Government's proposal to rent certain tax fields from Ontario for a lump payment of $137,391,000 annually. He said the proposals would be considered "on their merits." Acceptance of the offer would give the Federal Government the sole right to levy personal and corporation income taxes and succession duties in the province. Ontario's estimated revenues from these fields in the current fiscal year, plus the statutory subsidy paid by Ottawa, will be $90,155,000, according to figures presented by Mr. Frost in his budget last March.

The new proposals received a mixed reception in various provincial capitals. Of the first provinces to enact—officially or unofficially—to Finance Minister Abbott's offer to increase payments they would get under the plan, British Columbia indicated satisfaction, Nova Scotia indicated some doubt, Alberta said it had yet to consider it and Ontario's Premier Frost said no decision had been reached.

At Toronto Premier Frost said he did not think the new offer meant "a great deal to Ontario." But he said the door to further discussion with Ottawa would not be closed and added:

Closer to Realities

"The latest proposals constitute some recognition of our positions and bring us closer to realities. But we don't want to tie our hands. We are all aware of the federal government's defence problem, for example and our desire to co-operate in every reasonable way."

In Ottawa Tuesday Mr. Abbott made public a letter to the provinces concerning renewal of the tax rental agreements—held by all provinces except Ontario and Quebec—which expire March 31. He offered them all a major increase in payments they would get for relinquishing the personal income, corporation and inheritance tax fields to the federal government if they would renew agreements.

In addition Mr. Abbott asked the provinces now having agreements not to revive the five-percent tax on corporate profits instituted in 1947 at the request of the federal authority. The legislation providing for this tax expired Dec. 31, but officials said corporations would not know if they will actually benefit until the provincial and federal budgets for the next fiscal year have been brought down.

Empty Lifeboat Sighted, Hold Little Hope

SEATTLE, Jan. 16 — (AP). — A grim blow to the hope that any of the seamen from the missing freighter Pennsylvania survive—an empty, drifting lifeboat—brought a sharp reduction in the scope of air and sea rescue operations today.

The lifeboat, sighted Tuesday afternoon from two Coast Guard airplanes, was approximately 600 miles off the Washington coast. An error in computation of position led to an early report that two of the craft have been seen.

With the life boat was debris believed to be cargo from the hold of the Pennsylvania, which last reported it was "down by the bow" 125 miles to the northwest. The ship's radio sent several SOS appeals, then said its "45 persons aboard" were "leaving".

Minimum Hope

Sighting of the empty lifeboat reduced to a virtual minimum hope that any of the crew survived. The 13th district Coast Guard commander ordered all planes except one—with two to stand by for possible call—to end their search efforts. Two Coast Guard cutters remained in the vicinity to look for the lifeboats and attempt to establish definitely that they came from the Pennsylvania.

It may never be known whether 45 or 46 men went down with the freighter. Officials of the States Lines, operators of the 7,800-ton ship, said there were 46 men in the crew. The ship's radio said there were 45. Whether one man dropped off in Seattle or Vancouver has not been determined.

Those last messages said also that there were four lifeboats on the freighter. It was the faint—but still flickering—hope that one or more of the three not yet seen may contain survivors that led Coast Guard officials to decide they "could not give up at this time."

Thousands of square miles of ocean have been scanned from the decks of nearly a dozen ships and cutters and from a score of airplanes. The only results have been the sighting of drifting wreckage last Friday and Tuesday's grim find.

Five Perish In Night Fire

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 16 (CP) —Pre-dawn flames today roared through a two-storey home in uptown St. John's, taking the lives of all five occupants.

The victims, all trapped in second-floor bedrooms, were:

Lt.-Cmdr. Victor Hampshire of Salt Lake City, Utah; Mrs. Hampshire, their two children aged 5 and 7, and their maid 17-year-old Katherine Grouchey of St. John's.

Policeman Eric Stoyles, the family's next door neighbor, turned in the first alarm at 4:53 am.

Fire fighters located the bodies of the victims when they entered the flaming house in an effort to rescue the occupants.

Acheson Says Soviets SeekPaperProhibition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP) —State Secretary Dean Acheson, blasting new Soviet disarmament proposals, today accused the Russians of seeking only a "paper prohibition" against atomic weapons. He said they offered no assurance of agreeing to a control system which would assure prohibition of such weapons.

Acheson spoke out in a press conference discussion of Soviet propositions placed before the United Nations in Paris.

He said the United States would examine the Russian ideas but that international innspection — which the Russians now are talking about—has never been regarded as an adequate safeguard against "the illegal possession of atomic weapons in defiance of some future control system.

Acheson said that the Russians, even on inspection, would bar interference in the domestic affairs of any state so that the Soviet Union "would appear to give with one hand (in agreeing to inspection) what it takes away with the other."

Blunt Speech Given By Canadian

Must Prove Sincerity Russians Told, Won't Be Satellite

PARIS, Jan. 16. (CP)—Justice Minister Stuart Garson today sharply told Russia that the West hopes its defence preparations are convincing proof that the free world will not submit to the fate of Soviet satellites.

The Canadian minister to the United Nations Political Committee delivered one of the most blunt and free-wheeling speeches ever heard in the UN. He repeatedly slammed Vishinsky, who last week made a personal attack on him.

Garson made it clear he was trying to pin down Vishinsky on Soviet proposals for international atomic control made by the Soviet minister last weekend.

Appealing to Vishinsky to pool his intelligence with western leaders to "banish your fears," Garson said:

"We say to Soviet Russia 'if you have any idea that you are going to do to us, one by one, what already you so recently have done to so many European states, we devoutly hope that these defence preparations will convince you that any attempt to conquer and Sovietize us will be for you an exceedingly unprofitable and unhealthy adventure'."

Insult To Intelligence

Garson said the logic Vishinsky used in trying to tell the committee that the United States is seeking to rule the world was an insult to the intelligence of UN delegates and would not be good enough to get him into a Canadian university.

Wants To Annex Canada To US

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP) —Creation of a special congressional committee to explore the possibility of annexing Canada to the United States was proposed today by Representative Timothy Sheehan (Rep. Ill.).

In a statement accompanying introduction of a bill to create the committee, Sheehan said he proposes the incorporation of Canada into the United States as an additional group of states or as a territory.

Such a merger, he contended, would be advantageous to both countries.

As part of the price that would have to be paid to Great Britain for giving up all rights and interests in Canada, Sheehan said, consideration should be given to money already granted to Britain by the United States.

Pat Conroy Appointed New Labor Attache

OTTAWA, Jan. 16—(CP)—Pat Conroy, former secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, has been appointed labor attache at the Canadian Embassy in Washington, the government announced today.

The 48-year-old Mr. Conroy, who will go to Washington in a few weeks, will be the first Canadian labor attache in the US capital and the second in the Canadian labor-diplomatic service. For the last few years, Canada has had an attache in London.

Mr. Conroy, known as one of Canada's outstanding labor leaders, resigned the CCL secretary-treasureship following an internal policy struggle in the congress at a tempestuous convention session in Vancouver last September. Since then, he has not held any other appointment.

King Farouk Gets Wish

Egyptian Queen Becomes Mother Of Baby Prince

CAIRO, Jan. 16 (AP).—Queen Narriman, teen-age second wife of Egypt's King Farouk, gave birth today to a son—heir to the Nile kingdom's throne.

The boy—born at 8:20 am (1:20 am EST) — was named Prince Ahmed Fouad after his grandfather, King Fouad I. Palace sources who announced the birth said the queen and her baby both were "doing well."

King Farouk has three daughters by his 10-year marriage to former Queen Farida, who he divorced in Nov., 1948. Under an Egyptian constitutional provision, common to all Moslem countries, only males can succeed to the throne.

The king was married last May 6 to Narriman Sadek, commoner daughter of an Egyptian civil servant. The queen celebrated her 18th birthday last Oct. 31. Farouk will be 32 Feb. 11.

Swelling crowds massed in the huge square before Abdin Royal Palace and cheered as a 101-gun salute boomed to herald the birth.

A steady procession of cabinet ministers, Government officials and other dignitaries visited the palace to record their official congratulations. The education ministry ordered all schools closed today and Thursday.

Until the birth of the baby, the heir-presumptive of the throne was King Farouk's first cousin, 76-year-old Prince Mohammed Aly.

Birth of the boy gives the king one of the greatest blessings that can come to a Moslem—a son. Farida's failure to produce a male heir was commonly believed to be the reason for their divorce.

Narriman's romance with Farouk was common knowledge in Cairo as a case of a bride purloined from her fiance almost on her wedding day because her charms had smitten the king.

Egyptian censors heavily pencilled all dispatches mentioning the royal romance and the story of the stolen bride could be told fully only by persons who had left the country.

The 16-year-old girl was engaged to Zaki Hashem, handsome, Harvard-educated economist on Egypt's staff at the United Nations.

Toronto Mayor Arranges New TTC Talks

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP). — Mayor Allan Lamport says he has arranged to bring the principals in the Toronto streetcar and bus strike face to face in a new effort to end the tie-up that started Jan. 4.

He announced late Tuesday that William McBrien, chairman of the Toronto Transportation Commission, and his fellow-commissioners have agreed to meet for the first time — James Robertson, business agent for the Street Railway Employees' Union (AFL-TLC), and the union negotiating committee. At past meetings, the TTC has been represented by officials.

"Our request for such a meeting does not in any way imply that we concur in the 10-cent fare. We are not passing on any instructions other than to stress to the persons concerned that this deadlock must be broken."

The Mayor coupled his announcement with an assertion that more than 1,000,000 citizens in the Toronto metropolitan area, plus thousands of persons elsewhere in Ontario dependent upon the Gray Coach buses, are demanding a quick end to the stalemate.

He said the TTC already has lost more than $1,000,000 in revenue and a prolonged strike might make a 10-cent fare inevitable. Downtown business especially and commerce in general was suffering and firms also were forced to spend additional thousands of dollars to transport employees to and from work.

"And the strikers' story tells itself. It is serious for them. They have lost more than $500,000 in wages. The community has lost this spending."

Reach Agreement On Material Supplies

LONDON, Jan. 16 (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today confirmed that the United States and Britain had reached agreement on certain material supply problems.

Eden told reporters on his return from the US and Canada, that his and Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Washington had been "a satisfactory one from the point of view of both countries."

Details of the new agreement would be announced soon, he said.

(According to authoritative sources in Ottawa, an Anglo-American raw materials pact gives Britain a big new supply of US steel—possibly more than 1,000,000 tons this year.

(Britain in return, will send the US an undisclosed amount of aluminum. The US also is reported to have promised to resume buying Malayan tin which she shunned after a price dispute early last year.)

Eden said he had left Churchill "in good heart." He described his two weeks in North America as "strenuous and, I think, successful."

Rescuers Now Only 2 Miles From Storm-Trapped Train

COLFAX, Calif., Jan. 16. (AP) — Rescuers snowplowing through deep drifts pushed within two miles of a blizzard-trapped train today—but still faced much work to reach and bring out 222 stranded passengers and crew members. The passengers have been snowbound since Sunday aboard the Southern Pacific's luxurious City of San Francisco. They are in Donner Pass.

Here's the complicated situation:

A rescue train still has 1½ miles to go to reach a highway where it will pick up the passengers.

A highway crew still must open 1½ miles of No. 20 to reach its nearest point—½ mile—of the stranded train.

The weather was moderating, and a railroad spokesman said all passengers will walk the half-mile to the highway. From there they will be taken by automobile the 1½ miles to the relief train, which will carry them the 83 miles to Sacramento.

Passengers Recover

The SP spokesman quoted Dr. Lawrence Nelson of Truckee, Calif. who reached the train by dogsled, as reporting all passengers were able to walk to the highway. He said those made ill —variously reported at 27 to 60— by gas fumes two days ago had recovered.

As rescuers worked through the night the marooned passengers huddled in the 20-degree chill of the 7,200-foot Sierra Nevada winter.

They were wrapped in blankets. Fuel oil for heat ran out Monday noon.

Sick From Fumes

Snow drifted against the windows. Drifts buried the engine.

Some aboard the train were sick, victims of carbon monoxide fumes from a gas heater. However, a railroad doctor who went in by dogsled and snow tractor said most of 60 stricken had recovered.

Only four had made it out from the train. They told a story of cold and chill, and of heroic work by a doctor and five nurses aboard

Prairies Shivering In 30 Below Weather

EDMONTON, Jan. 16 (CP). — Sluggish thermometers and nipped noses told prairie residents today that it was still very cold outside. Overnight lows in Alberta and Saskatchewan all bordered on 30 below zero.

But relief is in sight. The weather office here said a flow of "warmer air" was moving south from the Yukon, and that the mercury would rise above zero at Edmonton Thursday.

Temperatures that have been steadily sinking since Sunday reached 31 below at Edmonton overnight, a new low this winter.

In Saskatchewan, Saskatoon was 34 below, and Prince Albert 31 below.

Import Cut Plan Unpopular

LONDON, Jan. 16 (Reuters) — Several Commonwealth countries are reported to have told Britain they are reluctant to make further cuts in their imports to stem the drain of sterling area's gold and dollar reserves.

Finance ministers of the Commonwealth countries and Britain today spent their second day discussing methods to remedy the runway of the reserves which by July—at the present rate—will be as low as $1,400,000,000, the extreme danger point.

Financial circles said India and Pakistan fear that further import cuts would lower standards of living.

Australia was said to be more interested in a long-term policy of strengthening sterling rather than in short-term measures, which Britain considers essential to cure the present crisis.

No statement has been issued by the conference which is keeping its talks highly secret. Countries attending are Britain, Canada, (not a member of the sterling bloc), South Africa, Australia, India, Pakistan, Ceylon and Rhodesia.

To Broadcast Address

TORONTO, Jan. 16 — (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill's address Thursday to the United States Congress will be carried on on a CBC network from 12.30 pm EST to 1.15 pm, CBC said today.

Scarce Medical Supplies To Be Stockpiled In Air Target Sections

Ottawa Prepared To Spend $2,250,000 On Emergency Defence Stores; Many Things To Be Imported To Meet Quota

OTTAWA, Jan. 16. (CP)—The government today announced it is embarking on a $2,250,000 program to stockpile essential and scarce medical supplies in strategic points near potential air-attack target areas in Canada. The emergency stockpiling, part of an expanded seven-pronged Federal civil defence effort, is to start at once. Supplies may include blood products and plasma substitutes and drugs to be used in chemical and biological attacks.

Many of the supplies will have to be imported, Health Minister Martin said in announcing the build-up of medical equipment. Procurement programs will be worked out in consultation with the United States to make sure the best use is made of production facilities in both countries.

The government's sudden move to press ahead with civil defence planning—which may mean total federal expenditures of about $10,000,000 this year—is expected to spark a bigger civil defence drive by provincial and municipal governments to help provide services to deal with civilian casualties in the event of air and atomic attack.

Not Disclosed

Exact location of potential target areas has never been officially disclosed, but they are believed to include the major population centres, such as Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver, and such other points as Ottawa, Halifax, Esquimalt, BC, Winnipeg and Windsor and Sault Ste. Marie.

First aid equipment and supplies to outfit and replenish civil defence first-aid stations rank high on the list of what is being ordered, said Mr. Martin. Essential medical supplies for hospitals and laboratory and mortuary purposes will be included.

Reason for the stockpiling, added the minister who has federal

Call NATO To Meet In Lisbon Feb. 16

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The North Atlantic Council today was called to meet in Lisbon Feb. 16.

Announcement of the new date —the original meeting scheduled for Feb. 2 in Lisbon was postponed—was made by L. B. Pearson, Canadian external affairs minister and chairman of the council.

France had asked postponement to gain time for more discussion of the projected European army, proposed as a nucleus for the 12-country North Atlantic Treaty Organization's military force to defend the west against Soviet expansion.

Meanwhile the French government has fallen and France is still without a cabinet.

The plans for the army—which would include West German air, land and sea units as well as forces from France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—is a major question facing the council members—the foreign, defence and finance ministers of the 12 NATO countries.

Bad News For US Citizens

Truman Asks Tax Boost Of Five Billion In 1952

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP) —President Truman called today for a 1952 tax increase approaching $5,000,000,000 by boosting "some" rates and plugging loopholes.

In seeking new revenue, the President did not specify whether the burden should be added to business, income, or excise rates—or all three.

His annual economic message to Congress forecast the "most difficult" year of the armament build-up, large Federal deficits, some civilian shortages but few hardships, and a "precarious" price problem.

Truman fixed two major goals for this "year of strain": First, a five per cent rise in national output; second, 1,330,000 more men and women at work.

His want-list of legislation was long. It began with a two-year extension of the Defence Production Act; the repeal of "weakening" price-control amendments; improved farm-price supports; stronger curbs on consumer and bank credit; and so on to a total of a dozen laws.

But the shocker, as far as Congress was concerned, was the President's calm demand for the rest of the "$10,000,000,000 or more" tax raise he requested last session—of which he got only about $5,400,000,000.

Tax-writing leaders of both Houses have stated publicly they will not increase rates in 1952, after piling $15,000,000,000 on to the country's tax bill in the last year and a half.

The President may be more specific about his tax proposals in the budget message, due next Monday, or in a special tax message later.

UN Charges Reds Violate Geneva Pact

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 16 (AP) —The United Nations command charged today that Communists in Korea "violate every provision" of the Geneva convention protecting prisoner-of-war camps from the hazards of war.

The charge came from headquarters in Tokyo in comment on a Red report that UN planes bombed a camp at Kangdong Monday night. The statement said the question would be raised with the Communists, "at the earliest opportunity."

There was no hint that it was brought up during today's truce talks at Panmunjom. Negotiators still are deadlocked on how to exchange prisoners and what will be done with Red airfields during an armistice.

The Communists denied two international Red Cross representatives permission to enter North Korea.

Red China's official Peiping radio accused the allies of trying "to keep Korea in a chronic state of war" to "create international tension."

At Panmunjom Chinese Maj.-Gen. Hseih Fang said the Reds' latest counter-proposal for supervising a truce prohibits importa-

Total Casualties Reach 414,949

PARIS, Jan. 16—(AP)—Total casualties of United Nations and South Korean forces in the Korean war have reached 414,949, an Associated Press survey showed today.

UN delegations and governments were sources for the information.

The United States today announced casualties of 104,383. These included 16,057 killed in action, 75,602 wounded and 12,724 missing.

Totals for the armies, navies and air forces of 15 other UN member countries were at least 8,698, representing 1,648 killed, 5,528 wounded and 1,522 missing and captured.

The list lacks Ethiopia, which has announced no figures on her losses.

South Korea, which is not a UN member, reported that her losses to Dec. 22 were 29,494 dead, 101,097 wounded, 65,601 on prisoner-of-war lists, and 105,672 missing. This total of 301,864 does not include civilian casualties.

Canada—(from a new list issued in Ottawa today)—127 dead, 485 wounded, 58 injured, four missing, one prisoner—total 675.

Egypt Sounds Warning To Other Countries

PARIS, Jan. 16 (AP).—Egypt announced today that if the United States, France, the Netherlands or Norway should send warships into Egyptian territorial waters in an effort to keep the Suez Canal open, the Egyptians would consider it an act of aggression.

Britain has appealed to those four countries to join her in helping to keep traffic moving through the strategic waterway.

The arrival of warships from those countries would be considered a violation of the Suez Canal Convention of 1888 and would bring an appeal to the United Nations, said Dr. Mahmoud Azmy Bey, Egyptian delegation spokesman at the general assembly session here.

Japanese Drive For Markets Worries Britain

LONDON, Jan. 16 (CP). — A relentless drive by Japan and West Germany to regain their pre-war grip on world markets is causing grave concern in Britain.

While Britain is bogged down by expanding peace-time rearmament, her erstwhile foes, rapidly recovering from defeat, are being accused of waging an indiscriminate cut-price war for export trade.

Already West Germany has cashed in on the current dispute between Britain and Egypt. Recently German representatives signed contracts worth more than $20,000,000, including construction of a bridge over the Nile and a power station at Cairo.

To meet new orders Germany has not only stepped up her own steel production but has drastically reduced her shipments of ore and scrap, urgently needed by Britain. In 1950 Britain bought about 2,000,000 tons from Germany. This year she may be cut to 250,000 tons.

Aired In Press

Charges of unfair business methods have also been aired in the press. As an example of what is reported to be going on in the Middle East, Lancashire textile manufacturers are concerned over the large-scale increase in the import of Japanese-made cotton fabrics into British possessions in Africa, Singapore, Hong Kong and other centres in the Far East. In some areas the Japanese are reported to be offering deliveries at a price 40 per cent below that of other countries.

Furthermore, Japanese exporters have been accused of attempting to burrow into established markets by offering at drastically-reduced prices, products claimed to be infringements of British trade marks and design.

Without the burdens of heavy arms outlays, British spokesmen explain, taxation in Japan and Western Germany is much lighter, permitting them to sell cheaper and goods can be delivered quickly.

Industrials Rally On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Jan. 16 — (CP).— Slightly firmer early afternoon stock market support today rallied industrial and western oil prices from Tuesday's sharp decline.

Liquors formed industrials' strongest section while papers, and textiles drew firm support. Utilities, steels and banks held gains and losses in balance, but refining oils weakened while the foods dipped sharply.

Western oils made little headway. Scurry, a recent feature, climbed pennies in a turnover of about 70,000 shares. Calgary and Edmonton, Gridoil, Selburn and Trans Empire were also strong.

Base metals posted a majority of small losses. Consolidated Smelters, Hudson May, Noranda, East Sullivan showed losses ranging from pennies to about $1.

Anacon Lead, Fenimore Iron, QQuebec Copper, and Silver Miller, however, pushed upward.

Senior golds dipped sharply. Juniors posted a wide list of penny losses, while prospects and holding companies eased.

Snow Paralyzes Town Ask Emergency Order

PORTOLA, Calif., Jan. 16 (AP) —This little railroad town today sought a declaration of emergency because of a record snowfall that has collapsed buildings, stranded 118 bus passengers and made all emergency equipment useless.

One house blew up this morning, killing a woman and injuring her husband. Cause of the explosion was not learned immediately.

Fire engines only two blocks away were unable to reach the scene for one-half hour behind a bulldozer.

The body of Mrs. Robert English and her injured husband had to be removed by truck. An ambulance was unable to reach the house.

Churchill Leaves With Tears

OTTAWA, Jan. 16. (CP)—Winston Churchill went away with tears in his eyes and dramatic passages on his lips. He was obviously deeply moved. He stood on the platform Tuesday at the rear of his special railway car, camera lights feasting on him, moisture welling in his eyes, people several hundred strong cheering and shouting up at him, the men of associated and subordinate officialdom close around him, the great train waiting to roll him away to Washington. It was the perfect setting for Churchillian drama and there was Churchillian drama. The 77-year-old Prime Minister raised his arm towards the people and, like an aging prophet, exclaimed: "Let Canada go forward into her great future."

He tried to say more. He said "No other country has . . ." and the cheers cut him off. He said something about the Western powers and that was lost too.

He went inside the car then, away from where he had said his personal goodbyes and heard the RCAF Band play "Rule Britannia," and the first four bars of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, the dit-dit-dit-dah bars that have come to spell V-for-Victory.

He sat down inside the car, but the crowds cried out that they wanted him and he came out and said: "I am not going to say goodbye, I am going to say au revoir."

Then he put his cigar back in his mouth and went in again.

He came out once more. They were shouting for him to come out before the train pulled away, but the dramatic in Churchill forbade that. He waited until the wheels were moving and the cheers were soaring out into the cavernous station. Then he came out.

He waved and raised his hand in the V-sign. When the train inched past the RCAF guard of honor, he turned and saluted the guard and then he raised his hand again in the V-sign until he could hardly be seen any more.

When the crowds were thinning out of the station, a woman and her two children were together. The mother said to the children: "I wanted you to see him. He is an old, old man and you may never see him again."

That seemed to have been in Winston Churchill's thoughts as well.

City May Accept Wading Pool

Acceptance of Lions Club wading pool for children at the McKellar playground was recommended to the council by the finance committee Monday in a motion by Aldermen Rehill and Anglesey.

Discussion on this project moved around to the question whether toilet facilities should be provided.

Ald. T. D. Miller, chairman, said: "The same children have been playing ball there, but there have not been toilets for them."

A wading pool, Ald. Rehill remarked, would increase the number of children by three or four times.

Ald. Anglesey, chairman of parks, said that in a routine call at Turner Park on High St. last summer he found a urinal clogged, the floor wet, and it was commented that from a sanitary consideration the youngsters might have been better off using a fence corner.

Ald. Sid Black recalled the number of polio cases last summer, and for the safeguarding of children's health it might be considered advisable to have toilet facilities in each park where they have supervised play.

The McKellar wading pool has been approved by Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH.

"The primary question is whether we are to accept the Lions Club offer," said Ald. Rehill in presenting the motion.

"The question of toilet facilities could be taken up when we are dealing with this year's parks appropriations."

Wrecked Pit Now Sealed Off

STELLARTON, Jan. 16 (CP)— The blast-wrecked section of the McGregor Coal Mine here was sealed tight Tuesday, a silent pit where 19 miners died Monday in the most dreaded of mine accidents—an explosion.

The mine section will be sealed permanently today and likely will remain closed for about six months before a decision is made on whether to continue operations.

One of the big producers of the Acadia Coal Company—a subsidiary of Dominion Steel and Coal Company—the McGregor seam has been running out recently.

John L. Lewis wired Premier Angus L. Macdonald expressing shock and grief over the loss of life involved in the explosion.

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, called on Premier Macdonald to join him with firm resolution in a move to pass laws to "prevent the recurrence of similar disasters in the future."

Plans Revision

Mr. Abbott has already said that he plans to revise the corporation-tax structure in his next budget, due in the spring. He could tack onto the federal tax all or part of the former provincial tax of five per cent to the federal tax on corporations in those provinces signing new agreements. Provinces which won't sign will be allowed the five-per-cent credit.

Under Mr. Abbott's new offer to boost the annual "rental" payments to the provinces, the federal payments would total $423,812,000 this year if agreements were signed with all provinces, compared with $332,827,000 paid in the last fiscal year. Payments to all provinces would be boosted, in most cases several million dollars annually.

Linked with this emergency stockpiling in regional defence department medical stores will be other parts of a comprehensive civil defence program to help Canada defend its population against attack. These include:

1. Establishment of skeleton staffs to organize health services in target areas.

2. Surveys, now under way, of health resources in target, mutual aid and reception areas, and including health personnel, facilities and equipment available.

3. Establishment of first-aid stations around the perimeter of target areas.

4. A special survey to find out what buildings in the target areas can be used as emergency hospitals. These would include schools, community halls and churches.

5. Plans to make use of trucks and vans as improvised ambulances in time of emergency.

In the prisoner sub-committee session the Reds revised the casualty figure from Monday night's reported bombing of Kangdong to 20 prisoners killed, 15 seriously injured and 40 slightly hurt. The original report was more than 10 killed and 90 injured. The Reds have said they held 1,591 South Koreans and one American at Kangdong.

Blunt Speech

He said Vishinsky delivered his speech not for the UN but for the Soviet press.

But Garson added that Canada is not ready to "pour any cold water on what may be a real advance in the Soviet position." He said he would reserve judgment until he receives more facts.

Poses Questions

Then Garson shot a series of questions at Vishinsky on the technical aspect of the problem of atomic controls. He asked:

1. Would a system of international atomic control be all prepared and ready to operate from the time it is agreed that prohibition of atomic weapons would come into effect?

2. Would atomic inspectors be able to go wherever and whenever they wished in the exercise of their functions?

Garson said that Canada believes it is of great importance to "pin down exactly what is meant by Soviet proopsals and because we think that the opportunity of getting an immediate clarification from no less than the Soviet Foreign Minister himself should not be missed."

The Canadian minister said that if the Soviet proposal on atomic control is what it purports to be then it will be "a pearl of great price."

But Garson said Vishinsky must allow the West to look a gift horse in the mouth since the Soviet proposals were made in the context of a speech which blasted the West as war-mongers, exploiters and monopolists.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 16 (AP)— British tanks opened fire against Egyptian snipers today at Tel El Kebir in the Suez Canal Zone, a British spokesman said. At least five Egyptians were killed. Between 120 and 160 Egyptian police were taken into custody.

British forces staged a surprise raid on the villages of Tel El Kebir and El Hammada near Ismailia in what they described as an extensive sniper-clearing operation.

Brig. W. L. Steele said the villages were "thug strongholds." He was "convinced police were implicated in terrorist plans" to make periodic attacks on the big British ordnance depot nearby.

University Gets Palladium Fleck

DETROIT, Jan. 16 (CP)—With much of its powerful radioactivity spent, a tiny fleck of palladium from Canada's Chalk River reactor reached the University of Michigan Tuesday.

Original schedules would have brought it to the university with three-quarters of its radioactivity remaining but fog held up the bit of foil, a thousandth of an inch thick and as big around as a dime, in Ottawa.

The Trans-Canada Air Lines plane carrying the palladium arrived at Windsor airport at 4:25 pm today. With one-quarter of its strength remaining, the metal reached the university at 5:30 pm, EST, slightly more than 24 hours after it was taken from the reactor.

It will be used in connection with high-octane fuel experiments.

Two Groups Ask Outdoor Rink At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 16 — (ENS)—A formal request signed by the Campbellford Citizens Association and the Home and School Association, resulted in a great deal of discussion at the inaugural meeting of the 1952 town council here on Monday afternoon. The request dealt with the establishment of an outdoor skating rink for the children of the town.

Mrs. H. S. Staples, chairman of the Campbellford Citizens' Association and Mrs. A. C. Newman, president of the Home and School Association presented the request. They claimed that insufficient time was allowed at the local community centre for free skating for children. Girls especially were being left out when it came to skating, as there was only one short period on Saturdays when they could skate free. The rest of the time at the arena is devoted to hockey games and hockey practices and only boys take part in these.

Wallace Rurtherford and Mrs. J. H. Smith appeared on behalf of the arena board and said there were now 13 teams comprised of boys ranging in age from 7 to 21 years. All of these receive free practice time at the rink.

Several councillors felt that something should be done to secure more free skating for the children, but were against using the taxpayers' money to establish outdoor rinks especially this late in the season when the weather could not be depended upon. In this respect, Vincent Farrell appeared and said he has established a good outdoor rink at the separate school and that the same could be done at the high school.

Boards and floodlights are already at the high school, and the establishment of a rink would involve only putting these facilities to use. Some discussion arose as to how the rink would be looked after and the arena board said that they would not likely be able to meet their obligations this year, and for that reason they thought council should not contribute to the establishment of another rink or rinks. Although they did not ask council for a grant, they implied that any money for skating should go to the present community arena.

Mayor Wilbert A. Kingston appointed a committee to meet with the arena board to try to arrange for additional time for the younger people of the town to skate free at the arena. The mayor named Councillors Free, Macmillan and Maybee to meet with the board and to report back at a special meeting to be held as soon as the matter can be arranged.

Rotarians Hear Blind Speaker

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 16 — (ENS)—Rotarians and members of both the Campbellford and Seymourt councils heard a remarkable speaker Monday, when Robert W. Beath was guest speaker. Past President A. K. Loucks introduced the guest, saying Mr. Beath was recommended to him by the Toronto Rotary Club.

Mr. Beath was born in Manitoba and lost his sight at the age of 6. He attended school in Winnipeg and secured his BA at the University of Manitoba. He also received his ATCM on the violin. Mr. Beath later went to the US and attended school and taught in Boston. He came back to Canada and went into the auto and piano business in the west. He later became a director of the CNIB in Saskatchewan and went to Toronto where he served as editor of the Braille Magazine and also as librarian of the Braille library and the library of talking books. He still holds this post.

In his talk, Mr. Beath commended the local citizens in their efforts to rehabilitate the needy and mentioned the building of a house in a day for the Ellis family as a shining example to the rest of the country.

The speaker told mainly of the power of a good idea as being more powerful than any atomic weapon and of the influence such an idea exerted. He told of the state of Sparta in Greece and how blind infants there and in many other places were put to death. He said the Golden Rule was probably the first good idea. Another good idea was the one started by Bert Robertson of Markham, Ont. Mr. Robertson was blind and worked with his father, who was a doctor, to make Braille books for other blind folks. This was the start of the Canadian free library for the blind.

Robertson died in 1908, two years after he started the library. The idea caught on and the library was later moved to Toronto. Out of this idea sprang the entire organization known now as the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Canada leads the world in working for the blind. When the UN recently established the United Nations Institute for the Blind, it was a Canadian who was chosen to handle the post.

Sales of blind handicraft across the country now total more than $8,000,000 a year. Blind persons operate plant restaurants in various centres and over 40 of these are in Toronto. More than 500 blind pessons are employed in factories doing repetitive operations and in many cases have established plant records in their work.

Mr. Beath gave a sketch of a day in the life of a blind person, saying the average age of the blind is 58.

Canada is now conducting a program to prevent blindness. He attributed much of the blindness in the country to carelessness. There are 13,000 blind in Canada today, and there is no need for more than about 9,000.

William McCoomb thanked the speaker on behalf of the club and the guests present.

Out of town guests at the Monday meeting included Colin McEachern of Peterborough CNIB.

United Counties Elects Warden Harry Campbell

COBOURG, Jan. 16. (ENS) — Reeve Harry Campbell of South Monaghan Township was elected warden of Northumberland and Durham Counties at the opening of the January session of counties council last night. He defeated Reeve Ralph Locke of Campbellford 23-17 on the fourth ballot, the other contender being Reeve A. B. Billen of Seymour Township, who polled five votes on the deciding ballot.

On the first ballot the standing was Billen, six; Campbell, 20 and Locke, 18; 2nd ballot, Billen, 7; Campbell, 20, and Locke, 18; third ballot, Billen, 3; Campbell, 22 and Locke, 20. The nomination of Reeve Billen was sponsored by Reeve George Galbraith of Cobourg and Reeve W. Roche of Port Hope; Reeve Campbell was sponsored by Reeve D. Olan of Cavan township and Reeve H. Allen of Cramahe township; Reeve Locke by Deputy-Reeve O. Mason of Campbellford and Reeve J. H. Lowery of Clarke Township.

New Clerk

The acting clerk, Claire Erskine, was assisted in the roll call by ex-warden George Walton of Newcastle. At the session this week, a new clerk, to succeed William Barr, who resigned last December, will be appointed. Miss Erskine is the assistant clerk and was appointed acting clerk until a permanent clerk is appointed.

The election of the warden was attended by one of the largest crowds of spectators to take in such an event here. An hour before the session started, the council chamber gallery was jammed with men, many of them former counties councillors and ex-wardens.

In a brief, earnest speech, the new warden thanked the two who has sponsored his nomination and those who had supported him and he declared that he would continue to regard as friends those who had not voted for him. He urged all the members of the counties to work together for the common good of Northumberland and Durham Counties.

The new warden is 56 years of age and was born near Plainville, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell. He moved with his parents to South Monaghan Township when he was three years old and has farmed there all his life. He is fond of sports, particularly baseball. Mr. Campbell as a member of the board of the Presbyterian Church of Centreville. He sat in township council for eight years of which four were in counties council as reeve.

Peace In Her Vineyard

The old phrasemaker has not lost his power. Churchill's Ottawa address was studded with brilliant phrases and the most lustrous of them was this: "Peace does not sit untroubled in her vineyard." It does not, and none knows it better than the greatest living Englishman, the oracle of Allied victory. After hearing the heat of world war for six years and melting her resource to win the victory, Britain has more cause than most nations to regret that peace has come in pieces and that her vineyard is not a quiet valley of summer ease. Red crests of international crises hedge the peace and it is the continuing burden of the West to defend the peace.

* * *

Mr. Churchill knows the need to guard the peace and the tremendous cost of doing it. He has pledged support to a European army but at the same time has rejected the idea of Britain merging herself in a federated Europe. The Britain which Mr. Churchill governs will not be merely a European country. It will continue to act, in concert with the United States, as a world power. So Britain looks to Europe and also across the Atlantic and gives her support and faith to a United Europe (of which Britain will remain on the fringe) and a community of the North Atlantic. "The Treaty (North Atlantic Treaty) is the surest guarantee not only of the prevention of war but of victory, should our hopes be blasted... All can see for themselves the strange clouds that move and gather on our horizon. But this time, at any rate, we are all united from the beginning. We all mean to stand by each other; here, in Canada, in the U.S., in Britain, in Western Europe, all of us, are united to defend the strength, and by that strength to preserve unbroken the peace which is our heart's desire."

* * *

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has new problems to face, problems which undoubtedly were discussed in Ottawa over the week-end, for Canada has a special place in NATO. (Mr. Churchill recognized it in his speech: "The North Atlantic . . . owes much to Canadian statesmanship and to the personal initiative of Mr. St. Laurent.") NATO is in danger of becoming unwieldy. Far off countries like Turkey and Greece—which are neither Atlantic nor northern—are now being included. Its scope is being extended tremendously; if the key nations do not have care NATO could become a new League of Nations, and perhaps as disjointed. Some of the NATO meetings in Rome were attended by about four hundred full-fledged delegates. As Mr. Pearson told Parliament later, intimate discussion of NATO's problems became, in this overcrowded atmosphere, much more difficult. NATO is beginning to have as many hangers-on and as many staffs as a sprawling U.N. organization. The fat must be cut off before it can move lithely and vigorously.

* * *

Mr. Churchill's Ottawa address was the voice of the fighter and man of courage, unflagging but grown old. Britain does not want to live on her friends and relatives . . . The ordeal that lies ahead will be hard and long . . . Britain will not shrink from whatever measures are necessary to restore confidence and maintain solvency. "We shall provide against and thus prevail over the dangers and problems of the future, withholding no sacrifice, grudge no toil, seek no sordid gain, fear no foe. All will be well." All will be well—but how well in Churchill's lifetime, or even in Britain's? Both seem now to be in the twilight and their reward should be to sit with peace, untroubled in her vineyard. But that, as Mr. Churchill's long career has shown, is not the way the world wags.

Must Peterborough Dancers Divide Their Hoofs?

On Friday evening the Air Force Wing is holding a benefit dance. On Friday evening the nurses are holding their annual benefit dance. Both will be large social functions. Many people must feel the obligation to patronize both and the desire to swing to the music of both. Which ball should they attend? Still lacking a scientific invention which would permit them to send one lively leg to the Air Force and the other to the nurses, and perhaps lacking the cash to pay for both, they must make a decision.

We are not here attempting to make the decision for them. We merely point out the predicament. The city and district are becoming so busy that organizations are having difficulty, and individuals still more, in finding free dates. In village life everybody can take part in everything about the place, but in Peterborough now one must decline invitations, forego delightful parties, interesting meetings and instructive lectures. There are not enough days in the week. (This last sentence is a direct quotation from ten thousand sighing Peterborough people.)

Some overlapping can be and is avoided. Our Coming Events column helps to notify organizations and people of the plans of others. A register of meetings is being kept at the Chamber of Commerce. This book is not as useful as it could be because not enough organizations register their future events in it and not enough consult it when fixing dates of dances, fowl suppers, concerts, plays, rummage sales and all the other important off-duty affairs of social Peterborough.

It may be that the register of events kept at the Chamber of Commerce is not used enough because the Chamber is on the second floor and in a congested parking area. We throw out the suggestion that the register might more practically be kept at the reception office in the new City Hall. Everybody knows where the building is; there is ample parking space for those who wish to register in person and not by telephone; the booth is on the main floor, and a telephonist is always at hand.

A fully-used register would help organizations to avoid conflicting parties—but not all. It is not in the Peterborough crowded calendar that even two important dances can suitably be held on different evenings. The final solution to such conflicts is for couples who want to go to both to split; for instance the husband can go to the nurses' ball and have a whale of a time; the wife can have a high old time with the Air Force. To keep the paths of true love smooth among wooing couples perhaps the division had better be the other way around; or some love potion depended on so that they can be present at one in spirit, at the other on the hoof. Or they might even go to a third dance that evening. Some perplexed sprites may even stay at home, a wicked genie whispers.

The Passing of Passer Domesticus

A man who is interested in nature and takes notice of birds told us yesterday that the common sparrow (passer domesticus) is becoming comparatively rare in this part of Ontario. In the eye of history this may not mean very much, for the common sparrow was only introduced into this country in 1851, and a century is not a long time for a bird to flourish. But many of us recall a time when sparrows were the commonest of all birds, and sometimes reached the proportions of a nuisance.

Our naturalist friend said that he thought that the decline in the number of horses accounted for the disappearance of the sparrows. For the sparrow fed from horse manure, and was commonest in towns and near country roads. So far as we know, it was not much of a forest bird. Scores of these dusty little brown birds might be seen perched on telephone wires; even more than pigeons they were masters of the art of clustering on the road until the last possible moment, and then taking flight through a wagon wheel, or from under a motor car. Some people liked them, and said that they were saucy and cheerful; to our eye they were birds of dowdy appearance and unpleasant habits, but perhaps we wronged them.

We should be glad to hear from our readers who are well-informed on such matters as to whether the passing of the sparrow is an illusion or a reality.

NOTES AND COMMENT

An apiarist asserts that bees can talk to one another. In honeyed words?

A manufacturer of brassieres and 'falsies' is in trouble for income tax evasion, but we expect that he will be able to put up a bold, if deceptive, front.

"Eisenhower Will Run If Call Is Clear-Cut," says a headline in a contemporary. "Sunset, and evening star, And one clear call for me"—is that what Ike is waiting for?

"Father Beats Daughter For Reading Star," says a headline in the Toronto Globe. Surely that is too severe; gentle argument will often break a child of a tiresome habit.

The Russians now assert that as early as 1752 they had an automobile which would travel 24 miles an hour. Undoubtedly it was those mean old Czars who kept the contraption secret.

Canada Welcomes Lamb From New Zealand" a headline reads. We would give an even more cordial welcome to a little lamb from Russia—bleats to replace the blats from that quarter.

In Austria a nine-year-old child has been granted a driving license. How unlike our own dear land, where licenses are granted only to adults—including, of course, many who are blind, deaf and silly.

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that police may not use a stomach pump to obtain evidence from drug addicts. Nothing was said about a patrolman's forefinger thrust down the suspect's throat, though.

Lloyd's of London

IN the Loss Book kept at Lloyd's, hub of the international marine insurance market in the City of London, an entry headed "Flying Enterprise" was made on December 27, when news of this casualty first came in through the Lloyd's network of marine information. The Book, as big as a parish Bible, stands open on a lectern, as all its predecessors have done at Lloyd's since 1779, and each entry is handwritten in a large, round style. The facts about the Flying Enterprise are stated with economy and take up little more space than the obscure misfortunes, recorded several pages later, of a small fishing-boat called Elspeth Smith.

Elsewhere in the building, where news of shipping comes in steadily from all the Seven Seas, members crowded round to read each sheet as it was posted up. It seemed obvious that their interest in this forlorn, lopsided battle with the Atlantic was not wholly commercial. When it began to appear that the ship was in a bad way, the marine underwriters who were "on the policy" and stood to pay out on a total loss, took the usual steps to reinsure with other underwriters and so to cut their losses. And they were offered rates which, it is said, went up to 60 gns. per cent., not unduly high in all the sad circumstances and, conceivably, another tribute to Captain Carlsen's gallantry and the sporting spirit of Lloyd's.

THE immense prestige Lloyd's has in the City and throughout the world, and its own conscious superiority, are facts of which visitors cannot remain unaware. The insurance brokers and underwriters who are members do business in a place known traditionally and with superb under-statement as "the Room." It is built of cream-coloured marble and is monumentally lofty. To this setting have been added the simple fittings appropriate to a 17th Century coffee-house—plain wooden tables and benches boxed in by waist-high screens. From such a coffee-house Lloyd's claims direct descent, a claim not less romantic because it could equally well be made by half the commercial undertakings in the City.

The attendants are still called Waiters and distribute pens (or, to a number of sticklers, quills), ink and paper to the customers as did the staff of Edward Lloyd, Coffee-Man. From a rostrum like an attentuated Greek temple, at the ringing of the celebrated bell from the wreck of H.M.S. Lutine, the Caller reads out items of news of particular badness or goodness, just as the coffee-house waiter called for silence in the old days and read aloud some significant letter from a foreign port.

BUT although Lloyd's insists on exposing its roots, the 1,500 men who enliven the Room, making it look like the main hall of a railway station on a busy day, bear only a slight visual relationship to their coffee-house ancestors. Under Edward Lloyd and his successors, merchants, shipowners and sea-captains met over coffee to exchange news of trade prospects in the Levant and of pirates about the Dry Tortugas, and to do with one another business not excluding Policies and Assurance.

Today, the broker is in working hours the underwriter's only human contact with the outside world and its oceans. And by their quiet respectability of dress—in this age of penal taxation only the younger members retain that elegant flamboyance for which Lloyd's was once renowned—the members show plainly that they have come, not from Adventurings at Sea, but from the better suburbs and well-found anchorages in the Surrey hills.

WHAT does endure is the basic, coffee-house way of doing business, heightened by an entirely different notion of what that business should be and of its relation to the public interest. Lloyd's is not now exclusively marine, though it still does great services to shipping by, for example, the publication of Lloyd's List of shipping intelligence, which has been "correct, authentic and official" since 1734. But less than half the dealings in the Room now have to do with marine insurance. Its 3,000 underwriting members accept almost any kind of risk except life assurance; they will insure against rain at the village fete as readily as against hurricanes in the Indies. Yet the real difference between Lloyd's and any big insurance company anywhere in the world is that Lloyd's underwriters still do business as "private and particular persons," just as it was done over the coffee-tables of the 17th and 18th Centuries.

✧ ✧ ✧

EACH underwriter is personally responsible, down to the last shred of his estate, for the share he accepts of any risk. Today, because of the immense sums for which ships, cargoes and other risks are insured, the Lloyd's underwriters operate as syndicates, groups of Names for whom Agents do the actual dealing. The coffee-house owners have been replaced by a Corporation with a staff of many hundreds. A Committee now investigates the fitness and financial standing of those who seek admission and fixes the considerable fees and subscriptions. But the principle of unlimited personal liability remains inviolate. It has simply been transported from the somewhat raffish environment of a public cafe to the exclusive amenities of what someone has called "a well-run club."

LLOYD'S fought for generations against repeated attempts to form marine insurance organizations which could confront the great risks of deep-sea enterprise on a joint-stock basis. Even when the first Act was passed, in 1720, forming two insurance "Alliances," far from crushing the embryonic Lloyd's, the Act was the making of this loosely coherent collection of individual insurers. The Alliances were not successful and all others were expressly forbidden. But individual underwriters were impelled to group themselves under one roof and did so at Lloyd's Coffee-House.

But Lloyd's might still not have survived to reach its present lofty status if there had not been a split at the coffee-house between respectable customers, who at this point began to call themselves Gentlemen Underwriters, and certain speculative insurers who classed the likelihood of execution or death by gin-drinking among acceptable risks. Under moral banners, the new Lloyd's was led out of the 18th and into the 19th Century by such men as John Julius Angerstein, who even then could place £620,000 at Lloyd's on a single ship and who gave us, incidentally, the basis of a National Gallery.

IT must be said that in its progress Lloyd's has gone through some odd passages. In the wars of the 18th Century, the ships and cargoes of both sides were impartially insured; the Spanish treasure fleet, for example, was insured at Lloyd's against capture by the British. This course had the entire approval of the Government, who considered it useful in maintaining a favourable balance of trade. Even today insurance is to some extent supra-national; insurance organizations beyond the Iron Curtain re-insure their maritime policies in London.

According to one Lloyd's man, it would be easier for a spiritualist to define ectoplasm than for anyone to describe the true nature of Lloyd's. Obviously it has an enduring vitality. The formation of marine insurance companies did, in the event, no lasting damage to the private and particular persons; their prestige has advanced unabated. And marine insurance companies are now happily installed as tenants of Lloyd's in Leaden Hall Street, where they enjoyed during the war the cover of an air-raid shelter which Lloyd's had built for them.

TODAY the premium income of Lloyd's, doubled between 1913-36 and trebled again between 1936-47, stands at £160,000,000 a year. Its public services are acknowledged. During the war, when it became vital to save the Norwegian merchant fleet and the ships would not move uninsured, London underwriters accepted this fabulous risk within 24 hours. They showed the same spirit in handling neutral ships on the Atlantic, a boldness which has fostered the big insurance business Lloyd's does in American shipping. But the special character of Lloyd's probably owes less to its wealth or its sense of public duty than to the mutual trust with which brokers and underwriters do business in the extraordinary circumstances of "the Room." Underwriters in direct competition have sat for years separated only by the width of a not very big table. Brokers stand in close queues for a turn to talk business, without a wisp of privacy, at the underwriter's elbow. Yet nobody, it seems, would dream of using these unique opportunities to eavesdrop or to overlook.

Beyond these public-school decencies stand the credit of the underwriters, which is constantly checked, and the carefully fostered prestige of the Lloyd's policy. It is true that spectacular claims have been resisted, as in the cause celebre of 1933-34 when underwriters, including those on the London market, fought a claim by the owners of the wrecked French liner Atlantique for £2,500,000. But in its long history, Lloyd's has probably done more than any insurance organization in the world to establish insurance as "the sheet-anchor of trade and industry" and has done so as a body of free individuals with a corporate spirit of which good faith is the essential attribute.

Chivalry Is Not Dead

Cartier Had An Excuse

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

In 1534, Jacques Cartier became the first white man to set foot on the Island of Montreal. If we are to believe the history-book illustrations, he wore low, buckled shoes, elaborate doublet and hose, with highly ornamented and slashed puffed sleeves and trunks; a short, open cape; a starched ruff and a tricorne hat. Though the costume undoubtedly impressed the natives, it could not have been particularly comfortable for Cartier.

Four hundred and seventeen years have passed since that memorable visit yet most white men have not yet learned—though the Eskimos and the Indians have always offered first-rate examples—how to dress sensibly for this climate.

Canadian women cover their ears and let their legs freeze in nylons designated by Paris or New York fashion experts; Canadian men cover their legs and let their ears freeze under cold felt hats intended for wear in London. Eskimos, both men and women, wear seal-skin mukluks on their feet, fur trousers and loose, comfortable parkas, with hoods to cover the ears. On their hands they wear mitts.

It can be argued that Canadian city-dwellers need not go this far. But the fact is that there is a vast field for the development of truly Canadian styles for both men and women. There is no practical reason why women should not wear slacks on particularly cold days. There is no reason why cap or hat-designers cannot conceive some headgear for men which will cover their ears without looking ridiculous.

Jacques Cartier arrived here in the summer in that fashionable costume of his. The natives were wearing loin-cloths and moccasins and a few feathers in their scalp-locks. He probably envied them their cool comfort. If he had stayed the winter, he would have found his costume even more impractical. But then, it was his first visit. We have no such excuse.

TOUGH LUCK

It was in Mount Street, W., at about 1.30 a.m., that two old school-fellows who had been dining noticed a little dog running about in that bewildered way which lost dogs have.

"Poor li'l feller's lost," commented one. "Pick him up and see if there's a name and address on his collar."

There was. The address was far away, but the noble fellows never hesitated. They decided that the lost pet should at all costs be restored to his sorrowing mistress.

It was a long and dreary drive, but at last the sulky taxi-driver pulled up outside a darkened house. Much knocking and ringing brought the caretaker to the door.

"Mrs. Bronson?" yawned the functionary. "She did live 'ere, but she left and is now living in Mount Street, in the West-end."

How Time Flies

JANUARY 16

1922 Dr. Harold Adams, formerly of Peterborough, opens a dental office in Tisdale, Sask.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

The writing of Hezekiah king of Judah, when he had been sick, and was recovered of his sickness: I said in the cutting off of my days, I shall go to the gates of the grave: I am deprived of the residue of my years. I said, I shall not see the Lord, even the Lord, in the land of the living: I shall behold man no more with the inhabitants of the world...

Like a crane or a swallow, so did I chatter: I did mourn as a dove: mine eyes fail with looking upward: O Lord, I am oppressed; undertake for me. What shall I say? he hath both spoken unto me, and himself hath done it: I shall go softly all my years in the bitterness of my soul.

O Lord, by these things men live, and in all these things is the life of my spirit: so wilt thou recover me, and make me to live. Behold, for peace I had great bitterness: but thou hast in love to my soul delivered it from the pit of corruption: for thou hast cast all my sins behind thy back.

For the grave cannot praise thee, death can not celebrate thee: they that go down into the pit cannot hope for thy truth. The living, the living, he shall praise thee, as I do this day: the father to the children shall make known thy truth. The Lord was ready to save me: therefore we will sing my songs to the stringed instruments all the days of our life in the house of the Lord. (Isa. 38: 9-11, 14-20.)

New World

("Lucio" in The Manchester Guardian)

An expert at Cincinnati University suggests that hydrogen bomb explosions may be used to change the earth's orbit and thus make it possible for man to alter the weather, shorten or lengthen the day, and change the seasons.

If you're waking call me early, call me early, mother dear;
Things are always so unsettled in this hydrogenic year.
If one is not up and doing when the morning daylight breaks
One may miss some new enchantment as the world in wonder wakes.

Yesterday the hours I fancy, numbered fully twenty-four,
But tomorrow, readjusted, may be down to just a score;
As for weather fluctuations, we seem well and truly lost—
Butterflies and bees on Monday, Wednesday with a chilling frost.

Shall we swing to blithe Midsummer with its gracious Longest Day?
Friday last was Christmas Eve but Tuesday brought the First of May.
Hard it is to know what undies should be chosen as a boon
If we reach a Month of Sundays or that fabulous Blue Moon.

These, they hint, are signs and wonders all in time proceeding from Cincinnati thumps and thunders with a hydrogenic bomb.
Very strange these new-found phases could they as they ride the storm,
Bomb all Quarter Days to blaes in their Calendar Reform?

PAID UP

By mistake Macpherson had put half a crown into the collection box. He left the church a broken man.

On the following Sunday, he took his seat, and after a while the box came round.

Glancing swiftly at the sidesman, he muttered with a slight cough, "Season."

History, Aims Of Advertising Outlined To Club

An outline of the history, aims and techniques of advertising was given to Sales and Ad Club members Tuesday night by E. H. Woodley, Montreal advertising executive.

Mr. Woodley traced the methods of advertising, from town crier to television, and discussed the three main divisions of present-day methods — consumer, industrial and institutional advertising.

"Nearly anyone with any wants to satisfy will be reached by one of these three methods," he said. "But the manufacturer must remember that goods must be sold, not merely placed for sale."

Can Help Salesmen

Advertising cannot do the job of a salesman, he said, but it can help the salesman. At the same time, advertising must be subordinated to the public good. Advertisers should guard against exaggeration, lies, and half-truths.

In his address, Mr. Woodley referred to several products popular at the turn of the century. Some of them have lost their popularity and have disappeared from the market; others held their popularity and are still well-known products.

He suggested that the success of the products with continued popularity was due to continuous advertising.

Mr. Woodley was introduced by Russ Baer and thanked by Tom Price.

Insure PMHA If Enough Boys Willing

Al Watkins of this city, on the executive of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, announces a tentative plan to insure minor hockey players for injuries. But the Ontario body wants to know in a week's time of the response of the various city associations, so the PMHA players are asked to report to their coaches during their games at Civic Arena this Thursday night.

These players are asked to check with their parents to see if the latter will pay a premium of $1.50 for the 1952-1953 season (roughly from November 1 next to the following spring) for a maximum benefit of $250 in case of injury received in OMHA or PMHA games or practises, or in transport to or from such, if accompanied by a coach or manager. This information is to be given local coaches on Thursday night.

Need Majority

If the majority of the associations favors such insurance, word will be forwarded to the provincial body where other associations are being checked, too. As there are some 13,000 boys registered with the OMHA, good blanket insurance rates are possible, if enough show interest. Parents unwilling to pay the $1.50 annual premium, but who would go as high as $1.00, are also asked to inform the team coach of this, through their player sons. A good insurance benefit might even result from this lower premium.

"If we can get from 8,000 to 10,000 boys in the province paying this premium," Mr. Watkins said, "we can get this protection against hockey accidents, As it stands now, many player injuries result in a hardship for the boy's family, and many would-be sponsors of clubs shy off for fear of entailing unexpected expense through injuries among players. But we must get an approximate idea right away for next season, so we are asking all PMHA players to advise their coaches this Thursday night whether or not they would pay this premium for protection."

Re-Examining Case Of Louis

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 16 — (AP).—Officials of the United States Professional Golfers' Association re-examined the case of Negro amateur Joe Louis here on Tuesday.

Such statements as were being made in advance of any announcement indicated the former heavyweight champion would play in the San Diego open tournament starting Thursday.

Whether he would win his declared fight for equality for Negroes in US PGA tournaments was another matter.

US PGA president Horton Smith said before his arrival from Pebble Beach, Calif., that he was in favor of a re-examination of the association rule and tradition which he said barred Negroes.

He expressed belief Louis' chance to play in the tournament as an invited amateur was "excellent" but he expressed doubt about Bill Spiller, Los Angeles Negro, who qualified as a locally-invited professional Monday. He said Spiller's professional status lacked USPGA approval.

George Young Won Swim 25 Years Ago

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16 (AP). —Twenty-five years ago Tuesday at 11:23 am, 103 young men and women plunged into the Pacific from the shore of Santa Catalina Island and started swimming.

Twenty-five years ago today, at 3:08 am, a dripping young man staggered out of the ocean at Point Vincente near Los Angeles harbor, winner and sole finisher in what many consider Southern California's most dramatic race of any kind.

The event was the $25,000 winner-take-all William Wrigley Jr. swim from offshore Santa Catalina Island to the mainland—22 miles as the shark swims.

The late owner of the Chicago Cubs baseball club had sponsored the swim to advertise his island as a mid-winter pleasure resort. Although he'd planned it as a race, it turned out a gruelling marathon in which 102 of the starters yielded to bone-chilling cold and fatigue.

Wanted To Help Mother

The $25,000 was won by a 17-year-old who motorcycled and hitchhiked here from Toronto, seeking money to aid his ailing mother.

When George Young and the other 102 entered the water, the 22-mile Catalina Channel seemed far from formidable. It was a sunny day and the sea was fairly calm.

But before they reached Bird Rock, two miles offshore, several quit, blaming numbing cold. The water temperature was 50 degrees.

Young later said he changed course five times to compensate for his drifting in the strong currents. He estimated he swam 30 miles.

An estimated 50,000 people watched the finish. They lit bonfires and flares to guide Young in.

He waded ashore, 15 hours and 45 minutes after he started and five pounds lighter than his prerace 177, to a tumultuous greeting.

Warsaw Winners

WARSAW, Jan. 16 (ENS)—In a lively EPHL game here last night, Warsaw Flyers took a 6-2 victory over the Otonabee Combines from Keene. They took a 3-0 lead in the first frame on goals by L. Lonsberry, Evans and Clements, with Paterson aiding Evans. Two more counted in the second, L. Lonsberry from G. Payne, and McMillan from H. Batten. But the Combines also tore in for two, G. Burns being the marksman each time as H. Burns helped on both. McMillan scored the only one in the close third, B. Batten and M. Batten being in on it. Warsaw drew three of the five penalties in a close game on heavy ice. Teams:

Combines—Mackness, Shearer, Whalen, Close, Brown, G. Burns, Locke, H. Burns, Gooley, Heafield, Kempt, Davidson, Houle.

Local Curlers Capture First Rounds

By HERB. MARTIN.

By the score of 33-17 the Peterborough rinks skipped by F. Stenson and V. Brown defeated the Lindsay rinks of S. Elsden and H. Hardy in the primary round of the Governor-General's Competition, Group No. 3, Ontario Curling Association, at the Peterborough Club on Tuesday. The local boys now go to Oshawa to play in the next round.

As there were only two clubs represented, it was a straight knockout proposition. The game started out at a slow pace and for the first few ends was of the hit and miss variety, with the local boys having the edge. The curlers then began to settle down and some nice curling was witnessed by the critics on No. 8.

Peterborough rinks took the lead right off the bat and were never in danger; in fact, as the game progressed, they lengthened their lead and finished 16 up.

Over at Lindsay the two local rinks came through to win the group honors in the Tankard games. The rinks were skipped by D. Charlton and F. Green. In the final game against Lindsay, Charlton finished four up on W. Langdon and F. Green was one up on P. Skitch. These rinks will now also go to Oshawa to play in the next round.

We join with all members of the club in hoping they have good hunting at Oshawa.

Betty Castle Leads

Betty Castle cleaned up this week in the Girls' City Bowling League at Duffus'. She rolled high single of 341 and top three of 744, the latter score also taking the blind score prize of 789. Her team, Outboard Marines, had high pinnage of 2,972 and leading single game of 1,126.

Marines blanked Sevenaires, and Collis dabbed a coat of whitewash on Dickson's. Bassel's beat Aces 2-1, Togs took a 2-1 victory over Arcos, and Curtin's won by a similar count against Cardinals as some keen trundling was served up in different games by the lasses.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Red Mitchell's junior "B" Kin puckists of Lindsay tackle Johnny Godfrey's local Oddfellows at 8.30 tonight in Civic Arena, an OHA fray. That should be enough to draw out a hefty following of these hustling young squads. They hustle, hustle all the way and don't mind tossing the torsos a bit in the proceedings. The IOOF-ers are in third spot at present, back of Belleville and Lindsay, but ahead of Kingston, and they can improve their position plenty by a win this e'en. But they'll really have to work for it against the scrappy Scugog squad. That's for sure.

* * * * * *

Some of next year's OHA juniors will be seen at eight p.m. tomorrow night when the juvenile Marines tangle with IOOF in the arena as part of the six-game PMHA evening there. Marines lead the Links by but one point, so first place could change an hour later. Snowbirds are promising to hand the Martin-Hewitt midgets their first loss of the season in that clash. But here's the slate, commencing at six: Wolves vs. SPS bantams, Martin-Hewitt midgets vs. Snowbirds, IOOF juves vs. Marines, Lions vs. Trojan bantams, SPS vs. Trojan midgets, and Lakefield vs. Trojan juveniles. The schedule winds up the end of this month, so fans should drop around and see these lively tilts.

* * * * * *

What Is The Answer?

Hockey gates have been poor in Peterborough this winter, apart from a few exceptions. Why is this? Why aren't the OHA teams, and particularly the senior "B" teams drawing better? We used to do as well in the old Brock when we didn't have our present population. The Petes at Omemee and Legion at Lindsay did better as a rule than the Eagles and Petes are doing now here. Except, of course, when these local teams clash—then there's a big crowd. Ditto with playoffs. But scheduled games with Belleville and Kingston aren't getting large turnouts. Anywhere from about 400 to maybe 800 fans. Clubs lose money with that kind of home support.

* * * * * *

At the Petes' game with Belleville here Monday, we asked various chaps what they thought was the trouble. Ned Vitarelli felt it was the cold rink, mainly—that many fans won't come out on a chilly p.m. to see hockey unless it's in a modern, comfortable auditorium. Such as Kingston and Belleville have, and they're outdrawing us considerably. Jim Crombie also thought a better arena would improve things a lot. Jim Conlin wondered if an enlarged grouping wouldn't help. Curly Alberico said the honeymoon is over, meaning folks aren't spending as much as a few years ago. Jim Guiry pointed out that we had no hockey here for six years and many fans got away from the game. Now, the older fans won't sit in a cold rink to see tussles. Jim suggested letting kids in free to a lot of the games and build up future fans. A sound idea, at that.

* * * * * *

Some Of The Reasons

Various others advanced their opinion, but it looks like a combination of circumstances is keep in attendance down. Except, as we said, for Petes-Eagles' frays and playoffs. Some folks thought—and there's a lot to it—that having two senior squads here divides fan loyalty. Many folks go to Eagles' games but won't take in Petes' jousts. And vice versa. All show up, then, when these teams tangle. Money tightening up has something to do with it, and so does a rather cold arena, built strictly as a secondary rink. The grouping may get tiresome, too, and some people don't care for the modern style of play. Others keep asking what is the playoff arrangement. That has not yet been announced. So, there you are—you may take your pick of the reasons. The fact remains that the puck crowds this winter are down.

* * * * * *

Blood and thunder at the Brock again last eve as the pro matmen held forth before a goodly gallery. Layton and Bobo Brazil fought it out to a main event draw, mixing after the gong, with Layton's trainer in on the fuss, too. And hundreds of fans swarming excitedly around the ring. Police led Layton and his pal to safety. It was a lively bout, a case of Bobo's butting vs. Layton's slashing. Ref left his rule book at home. Tough Fred Atkins won the semi-windup o'er Chief Suni War Cloud, and there are few in the game today that the hard-working, rough Aussie can't take when he gets mad enough. A so-so prelim saw Bockwinkle beat Mayslack.

Roth Maintains Scoring Lead

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP). — Mickey Roth, Stratford Indians' forward, added three points to his scoring total last week to maintain his role of leading scorer in the Senior A loop of the Ontario Hockey Association.

OHA statistics that include games up to Monday show Roth in first place among the scoring leaders with 83 points from 36 goals and 47 assists.

Dinny Flanagan, of Stratford, alone in second place last week, now shares that position with Ed Stankiewicz of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen. Both have 65 points, with Flanagan's total coming from 20 goals and 45 assists and Stankiewicz' from 32 goals and 33 assists.

Roth's 36 goals and 47 assists are the highest in both departments.

Bruce Dale, goalie for the first-place Stratford club, leads the netminders with a 3.25 goal average. Boat Hurley of the second-place Kitchener team follows with a 3.54 average. Dale and Keith Woodall of Brantford Redmen share honors for the most shutouts, both have two.

Hornets Beat Barons

CLEVELAND, Jan. 16 (CP) — Pittsburgh's Hornets boosted their lead in the American Hockey League Tuesday night by trimming the second-place Cleveland Barons 4-1.

The Hornets have beaten Cleveland six out of seven times this season.

Pittsburgh gained a two-goal lead on shots by Chuck Blair and George Armstrong in the first period. Gordon Hannigan shot their other point early in the second period. Cleveland's only goal was by Steve Wochy, right wing.

Believe Russia Planning Enter Olympics

By LARS BERGES.

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Russians, who have been hinting that they might like to enter the winter Olympics, were assured today that they still have a couple of days to go before deciding definitely.

"But time is getting short," said Rolf Petersen, secretary-general of the Oslo Winter Olympics Organization committee. "We can give the Russians a couple of days yet, but bear in mind that we will have to get housing accommodations for them."

The strongest hint yet the Russians have given that they might be here when the games start Feb. 14 came Tuesday when Dr. W. G. Hardy, a director of the International Ice Hockey Federation said in Edmonton that they had requested membership in the Federation and with it permission to compete.

However, nothing has been heard here from the Russians, although they have entered the summer games at Helsinki, which is only a couple of hours by air from the Soviet border.

Extend Time

The official deadline for entering the winter games was Dec. 31, 1950, but the policy apparently is to accept whatever entries are received a reasonable time after that. Israel and Chile have been accepted since the first of the year.

Dr. Hardy, who said the Russian request was made to him through a man named Korotcov, said he suggested to the federation president that they be permitted to play if they promise to abide by the rules and decisions of the federation and guarantee there will be no political interference.

"We want world hockey and not world politics at the Olympics," commented Dr. Hardy.

Russia, incidentally, is known to have some good hockey teams as well as some fast skaters.

Brazil and Layton Draw In Main Mat Bout; Atkins Wins Semi-Final

Bobo Brazil and Lord Athol Layton battled it out to a time-limit draw at the Brock last night in an exciting main mat bout. Both were groggy from slashes and butts at the gong as a big crowd swarmed around the ring after the pair had battled out of the ring when Bobo tore out after Athol's trainer, and Layton followed. Lou, the trainer, climbed into the ring at the gong and he and Layton mixed it hard again with the popular colored grappler, who had given Athol a hot go of it throughout the third round. Referee Sammy Gotter let everything go, and there was plenty of illegal stuff. Many fans threatened to mob Layton and his pilot as they left the ring finally, but they were escorted out by police.

Butt vs. Slash

The second and equalizing fall went to Bobo, who weighed 247 to Layton's 260, in 14 minutes. He first tossed Athol through the hemp, butted him as he started back in and then pulled him in with a flying head scissors to pin his stunned adversary. His nibs gave Brazil quite an illegal beating for a time, using his old tactics of roughing him along the ropes and winding up with a judo slash to the jugular. But Bobo fought back furiously and even got in a few licks of judo himself, as well as butting his opponent in a softening-up process which included knees, fists and slams. He was plenty peeved at frequent vocal interference from the trainer.

The big Britisher took the opener in 24 minutes with a coldly brutal session of slashes after roughing up Bobo hard for several minutes to set him up for the fall. He survived some head butts and used the ropes to escape when in trouble, as both mixed in lively manner, and both worked in some good grappling, too, when not engaged in tough tactics. Bobo was fast and tricky, but the other was stronger and used his wicked side-hand slash repeatedly, despite ineffectual referee's warnings. The crowd were all for Brazil.

Fred Too Strong

Rugged Fred Atkins, the Australian heavyweight, at 240, took the semi-final in 23 minutes over 229-pound Chief Suni War Cloud. The fans liked the colorful Indian, and he gave a good account of himself in fast, clean going—nearly ruining his rough rival once by ramming him into the turnbuckles and then doing a war dance. But the solid Aussie knew all the tricks of the trade and didn't go by the book too much. He waved off warnings and went after the loose-jointed Chief with elbows, knees, fists, chokes, and the rest, finally flipping him with a series of headlocks when Suni was softened up sufficiently.

A rather tame prelim saw Warren Bockwinkle, weighing 246, down 243-pound Stan Mayslack in 19 minutes after a series of flips. They dished up a lot of straight mat stuff, with Stan playing it mean all the way to draw boos and warnings. Mayslack used the ropes and yanked hair between sessions on the floor while the other showed some good holds at times. They opened it up more toward the close and Bockwinkle came on fast to flatten his rough opponent and earn the fall and the fans' cheers.

NHL Boss, 8,224 Fans Watch Vainly For Feud Revival

By The Canadian Press

Clarence Campbell had a ringside seat for what had all the makings of a hey-Rube between Toronto Maple Leafs and the Bruins at Boston Tuesday night, but the National Hockey League president might just as well have stayed at home. Leafs won the game 1-0 and there was only one brief battle to enliven the proceedings. The set-up was a natural with Leaf defencemen Jim Thomson and Bruin Ed Kryzanowski apparently ready to resume their battle of a few weeks ago in Toronto when they clashed head-on twice with Kryzanowski getting a 14-stitch mending job. A crowd of 8,224 was on hand for the expected fireworks.

The fans weren't entirely disappointed. Thomson and the Bruin clashed at centre ice in the third period, traded punches for a moment and sat out majors. Otherwise, proceedings were about normal with nine penalties handed out—five to Toronto.

Sloan Scores

Tod Sloan was the Toronto marksman, sending Leafs to within 10 points of the league-leading Detroit Red Wings and three up on the third-place Montreal Canadiens. His game-winning goal was scored in the second period with assists going to Max Bentley and Sid Smith while Boston's Leo Labine sat out a penalty.

The loss left Boston in a fourth-place tie with the idle New York Rangers.

The Leaf-Bruin game was the only one on the schedule.

Tonight, Chicago meets the Rangers at New York and Thursday, all six teams go into action with Toronto at Montreal, New York at Chicago and Boston at Detroit.

In addition, he teamed with Farley to defeat Gray and Hal Butler, Oshawa, in the Hulbert Memorial Scotch Foursomes and defeated Gray 2 up in the Hulbert Memorial singles.

He was second low amateur in the Canadian open and tied with Moe Norman as second low amateur in the Ontario open. In addition, he won the Idylwylde inviation match play tournament at Sudbury and the Kawartha Invitotion championship. He bowed out of the Canadian amateur in the first round.

Farley, ranked fourth in 1950, stepped up a notch. He was defeated 2 and 1 by Walter McElroy of Vancouver in the Canadian amateur final and tied with Kesselring for first amateur with a 215 score in the Ontario open.

Bows To McKellar

He tied for second place in the qualifying medal of the Ontario amateur but was defeated in the quarter-finals by McKellar.

Castator, a newcomer, won the annual OGA district tournament at Peterborough and the Wilkie Park Memorial tournament at the Weston Golf Club. He tied for second medallist in the Ontario amateur and was defeated in the third round.

Turf Expert P. H. Wright Dies

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP). — Palmer Howard Wright, 61, secretary of the Ontario Jockey Club for the last 21 years, died Tuesday night at his Toronto home. He was one of Canada's outstanding turf experts and a leading authority on thoroughbred racing.

He succeeded the late W. P. Fraser as secretary of the Ontario Jockey Club in 1931.

Mr. Wright received his early education at Upper Canada College in Toronto and Bishop's College at Lennoxville, Que. He completed his schooling in England.

Striker's Family Has Tough Time On $15 A Week

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP). — Irene, a striker's wife, is worried about living on $15 a week.

That's the strike pay Irene's husband, Bob, and 4,767 other street-car and bus operators will collect after Friday when their strike against the Toronto Transportation Commission goes into its third week.

"Another week and we'll start asking our friends for meals," said Irene. "I can't even pay for our food on $15."

She's 31, Bob 34. They have been married nine years and have an eight-year-old son, Jackie.

Bob has been on a two-man car with his friend, Jim, for most of the six years he has been with the TTC.

When Bob and Jim went on strike Jan. 4 they were on the "one and five" run—one trip in the morning, five in the afternoon.

"We get in at 7:30 am to start our run at 7:45," said Jim. "You have to be in 15 minutes early to get things ready. . . We make our first trip and get back to the barn at 9:40 am. We're off then until 11:45 am, and we make five more trips and finish off the day at 6:45 pm."

Life Upside Down

". . . They tell you down at personnel when you are hired that your social life is going to be all upside down, but we know that those are the hours they have to have and it's not the company's fault."

Bob makes—or was making—$54 a week. The union seeks a 15-cent-an-hour increase from $1.40 to $1.55.

"You don't get any lunch hour you know," said Jim. "And eating in front of all the people on the car isn't funny—you can feel your face getting red and every time you bite on a sandwich so does everyone else in the car."

Need Understanding

TORONTO, Jan. 16 — (CP) — Health Minister Phillips Tuesday told the 11th annual congress of the Optometrical Association of Ontario that public health administration requires an understanding of "the hopes and human feelings of the people of the province who look to us for guidance and help." He also announced that an act passed at the last session of the Ontario legislature providing for a greater degree of autonomy for the nursing profession will be proclaimed this month.

New Pulp Mill

VANCOUVER, Jan. 16—(CP)—British Columbia is to have another multi-million dollar pulp mill linked with a major hydro-electric development. Plans for a $35,000,000 development in the Quesnel area in north-central BC, 400 miles north of here, now are being drawn up.

Youth Robbed

OWEN SOUND, Jan. 16 (CP)—On his way from Hanover to Durham to buy medicine for his sick mother, Grant Kingston, 16, was robbed of $1.50 Tuesday by three men from whom he tried to hitch a ride. Provincial police failed to capture the culprits.

CUP FOR CAPTAIN CARLSEN.—Boston University co-ed Mona Bloomberg holds a 124-year-old silver chalice which will be awarded to Capt. Henrik Kurt Carlsen, heroic skipper of the lost American freighter Flying Enterprise. The chalice previously awarded to sea Capt. Ingram Chapman in 1828, will be presented by the New England Antique Association for his gallant efforts to save his storm-battered ship. In its million-dollar mixed cargo, the Flying Enterprise carried a small irreplaceable fortune in Europeon art objects and antique furniture destined for U.S. collectors.

Find Novelty Of TTC Strike Beginning To Wear Thin

By KAY REX

TORONTO, Jan. 16 — (CP) — The novelty of the street car strike is wearing thin.

Motorists have begun to ignore the hitch-hiker's thumb, the wistful-eyed pedestrian. Why, it's even becoming tough for a woman to get a ride.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind had to appeal to drivers to pick up sightless men who must get to their jobs daily. The men, most of them elderly, have been holding out their white canes in vain to rush-hour traffic.

Once a feminine hitch-hiker had only to stand on a corner and wait for the first car. Now she's lucky if she can wheedle a lift after 15 minutes.

One cute red-head walked a mile to work Tuesday for the first time since the street car men walked out 13 days ago.

"Well, it was a nice spring day," she said. "And I felt like walking."

Not an easy thing to admit when the old charm fails.

Took Two Rides

Another girl Tuesday reached home via two rides from "a nice man and a nasty man."

The "nasty man" grumbled because he had been caught in traffic and was being forced to go miles out of his way to take home people in his office.

Meanwhile the "people" he was grumbling about were trying to make themselves as inconspicuous as possible in his back seat.

Bored With It All

The same girl admitted that while at the beginning the strike was "sort of exciting," now she finds herself quite "bored" with it all.

She's "too confined." "You gotta stay home nights," she said sadly.

Any souring of the motorists' goodwill may be caused in part by the pedestrians themselves.

One driver paused to pick up a man on a corner; was requested to drive two blocks to the nearest tavern.

A truck-driver has stopped offering rides. He said he has been turned down too frequently by persons evidently too fussy to ride in the cab of a truck.

A west-end couple tried hitch-hiking—just for a lark. A car picked them up. They named a street intersection at the other end of town. They were driven there and had a real job hitch-hiking home.

Escape Drowning

SUTTON, Jan. 16 (CP)—Three men escaped drowning Tuesday night when they jumped from their auto as it plunged through ice a mile from shore on Lake Simcoe. Thomas Taylor, Bud Charpentier and Charles Brooks were driving out to a fishing hut when water on top of the ice stalled the engine. The men scrambled to safety as the ice cracked open and the auto plunged downward into the lake.

Drama Festival Opens In BC

VANCOUVER, Jan. 16—(CP)—The first of Canada's 13 regional drama festivals opens here tonight for a four-night stand.

Two Vancouver companies, one from nearby White Rock and one from Victoria, will each present a play to start off the annual high point for amateur theatrical groups across Canada.

Best plays from the regional festivals will be chosen to compete in the Dominion Drama Festival this spring.

Adjudicator for this festival—and all the others—is 37-year-old British actor Pierre LeFevre, a member of the Old Vic Theatre Company of London.

The Vancouver Little Theatre Association opens the British Columbia festival tonight with Emlyn Williams' "The Corn Is Green."

The White Rock Little Theatre will present "John Ferguson," by St. John Ervine, Thursday night.

The Vancouver players, who won the BC award last year for the best presentation, will stage Vernon Sylvaine's "One Wild Oat" Friday night. Their winner last year was Thomas Job's "Therese."

The Victoria Little Theatre will conclude the festival Saturday night with "The Heiress," by Ruth and Augustus Goetz.

QUIET TORONTO SUNDAY—Only the noise of a traffic policeman's motorcycle disturbs the quiet of normally busy Bay street in the heart of Toronto's downtown financial district Sunday morning. A few pedestrians wait hopefully for a lift as 4,768 Toronto Transportation Commission employees continue street-car strike now in its second week.

Mile 496, Alaskan Highway City Man's Tourist Camp

Mile 496, Alaskan Highway. That's address of Jim Parsons' tourist camp on the Liard River, 40 miles south of the Yukon border. He is the son of former city engineer Roy H. Parsons and Mrs. Parsons, 104 Douro St., home on a month's holiday from the north country. Although he likes living at Mile 496, with excellent fishing and hunting all around him, he declares that "it's a young man's country." Someday, in six or seven years, he and his Vancouver-born wife plan to settle in a warmer part of Canada.

R. J. BOLTON was returned Tuesday night for his fourth term as chairman of the recreation commission. Other officers for the year will be: vice-president, Wilfred Langan; treasurer, R. E. MacDonald; secretary, Alex Sinclair.

"We might come back here, or settle in the Fraser Valley," Mr. Parsons said.

Winters are cold—at Fort Nelson, roughly 100 miles from his camp, the temperature has gone as low as 74 below—and long. At Mile 496, just tack five more weeks on each end of a southern Ontario winter, and you have an idea of the winter's length.

Average winter snowfall in the area around his camp is about three feet. But 30 miles to the north, trappers have told him the snow is sometimes 15 and 16 feet deep.

No Close Neighbors

Neighbors live far away. Closest to the Parsons is a family 33 miles north, and another 37 miles to the south.

Black bear and moose sometimes wander into the back yard and in the fall, hundreds of thousands of sandhill cranes darken the sky on their southward migration. Flights of mallards and some snow geese and Canada geese are seen, but these water birds almost never land near the camp.

In the Liard River, a rushing, turbulent stream, are Dolly Varden trout, and Arctic grayling. The Dolly Vardens — not true trout, but charrs related to the speckled trout — can weigh as much as 14 pounds; the grayling as much as five.

Grizzly bears, not uncommon, "will give you a wide berth," Mr. Parsons said. Woodland caribou are plentiful, and Fannin sheep—a variety of mountain sheep—are often shot in the nearby mountains.

For trappers, who all work on government-designated traplines, there is a variety of fur-bearing animals. Marten and mink, as well as beaver and fox, are common, with the fisher rare. Wolves are less plentiful around the Liard now than in other years.

With Army

Mr. Parsons first went to the Alaska Highway in 1946, and he was joined there shortly afterward by his wife. At that time, he was Captain J. E. Parsons of the RCEME, stationed at Mile 300, in charge of taking over for the government from the American army.

When Capt. Parsons was discharged from the army in May of 1947, he and his wife decided to start a tourist camp. The site they picked was on the north bank of the Liard River, overlooking the 1,200-foot suspension bridge that spans the Liard. To the south they have a view of the extreme northern tip of the Rocky Mountains.

They found that some things cost a lot of money. For instance, the delivery charge on 100 pounds from Dawson Creek, hundreds of miles to the south, is $3.75. Freight charge on a gallon of gasoline is 16 cents from Dawson Creek. First grade gas retails at 67 cents a gallon at Mile 496.

With all the wood they could ever use around them, the Parsons rely on fuel oil for heat. At 41 cents a gallon, it is cheaper than the price they would pay for having wood cut.

Hot Springs

If the Parsons want to start a garden, they have a spot picked out for it. Not far from their camp is an area in which there are hot springs that once promoted the fanciful story of a "tropical valley" in the cold north.

By the hot springs, there is lush growth of local flora. Ferns and bracken grow to heights of six feet. One of the large hot pools is used for swmiming, and Mr. Parsons said it was comfortable swimming there when weather was below freezing.

A trapper keeps a garden by the hot springs and has sweet peas blooming in October. The earth never freezes near these springs and Mr. Parsons spoke of digging potatoes in April.

Meals at the Parsons camp—the Liard River Bungalow Camp—are priced about on a par with Ontario meals. Roast beef dinner sells for $1.40, a T-bone steak for $2 to $3.50 and bacon (or ham) and eggs, $1.25.

If you plan a trip on the Alaska highway from Peterborough, you should plan to spend at least six weeks on the round trip, says Mr. Parsons. And take a gas company's credit card if you have one, they save you carrying a lot of money.

County Bonds Sell At Premium

Councillors Jubilant As $720,000 Issue Brings $4,536 Extra

Peterborough county's $720,000 debentures issues for the building of high schools in Norwood and Lakefield have been purchased by a bonding company at the rate of $100.63 for every $100 bond.

County councillors, attending the inaugural meeting of council, were jubilant when they saw the top bid.

"We've struck the best time on the bond market in months," said Mrs. J. A. Spurway, county clerk and treasurer. "I think we've got the best possible price."

The serial debentures are over a 20-year period and the interest rate is 4½ per cent.

11 Tenders

Opening of tenders was the order of business immediately after Reeve Dick Stewart of Otonabee was elected warden of Peterborough county. Altogether there were 11 tenders, ranging from 99.13 to the accepted bid of 100.63.

The accepted bid was from a syndicate of three—Wood, Gundy and Co., Ltd., Dominion Securities Corp., and the Imperial Bank of Canada. Second highest was from Bell, Gouin, Lock and Co., at 100.60.

The uncertainty of the bond market recently caused some concern to the county councillors.

Early in December they received a bid of 98.25 (lower than any of the 11 bids Tuesday afternoon) but they decided against accepting it. Instead they called for tenders and struck the market when the price for debentures was unusually favorable.

Better Than City Price

A week ago the city of Peterborough sold $811,767 worth of debentures and didn't get as favorable a price as the county. The top bid, accepted by the city, was 100.06.

With Mayor Hugh Waddell in attendance at the inaugural meeting, councillors didn't miss the opportunity of good-humoredly twitting him about the county's financial windfall.

Two Schools

The county's $720,000 debenture issue is for two similar projects: $390,000 for the Norwood District High School; and $330,000 for the Lakefield District High School, covering the cost of purchasing the site, constructing the building and equipping it.

Peterborough county is issuing the debentures under a provision of the High School Act that permits it to do so. The purpose of paying for the two projects in this way is to save money for the ratepayers in the two high school districts.

Because of its greater credit resources the county can borrow money for less than individual municipalities. But while the county as a whole assumes the original obligation only the ratepayers in the two high school districts will be taxed yearly to retire the school debentures.

This brings the county's debenture debt to $841,157—the highest in county history. Offsetting this, however, is the county's equalized assessment of $13,930,459—also the highest in county history.

The rest of the debentures are $100,057 on the Civic Hospital, to be paid off over the next 12 years; and $21,100 on the Chemong Causeway, to be paid off over the next thee years.

Magistrate Gee Praises City Hall

Taking over for Magistrate W. R. Philp on court duty in Bancroft today, Magistrate E. A. Gee of Lindsay praised the facilities in the new city hall courtroom when he viewed it for the first time today.

"The city of Peterborough is certainly to be congratulated on its fine courtroom and Magistrate's chambers," Magistrate Gee said.

"Compared with our antiquated quarters in Lindsay, we appear to be in the stone age up there," he added.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw pointed out to His Worship that "there are still some details to be worked out. The defence lawyers haven't even a desk in the barristers' room.

Following Mr. Bradshaw's remarks, A. L. Elliott, added a reference to the lack of coat racks or a cloak room. "The reporter even has to hang his coat on the floor," commented Mr. Elliott.

A SPONSOR'S INTEREST is shown by Reeve Willard G. Waterman (right) of North Monaghan township as he adjusts the gown for Peterborough county's new warden Reeve Dick Stewart of Otonabee township. Recreation Com. Reports $1,040 Surplus

When all outstanding accounts are paid, the recreation commission will have completed 1951 with a surplus of $1,040, on its general budget and small surpluses on its Nursery School at Dixon House account and the Riverside Park lighting fund.

R. E. MacDonald, treasurer, presented the December expenditures to the commission Tuesday night and with a few accounts not paid there was a balance of $2,008.09.

Last year the commission had a surplus of $190.83. To that were added this year government grants amounting to $3,288.83, the city's annual grant of $15,200 and other smaller receipts for a total of $19,051.95.

The surplus was accounted for in the summer program which due to cool weather and polio scares throughout August cut down on the attendance and the expenses.

The largest surplus was in the account for playground supervisors and lifeguards. Three other summer accounts, playground supplies, supervisors uniforms and the swimming projects, totalled surpluses totalling more than $300.

More To Come

Mr. MacDonald explained when presenting the Nursery school account that it would show a surplus of $80. This account had a surplus from 1950 of $55.80 and received $2,200 from the city, grants and fees from the government were $1,932.99. The government still has to pay grants for November and December $333.65.

The salaries were the largest expenditure, totalling $2,530; other items were $448.25 for fuel, 290.94 for building supplies and $216.20 for playroom equipment. Total expenditures were $3,707.65.

R. J. Bolton, chairman, pointed out that because the nursery school was in Dixon House the cost of operating the house has decreased annually between $1,000 and $2,000. He explained that before the nursery school the annual cost of Dixon house was about $3,600. This year it cost the city $2,200 and the nursery school was operated besides.

Since the nursery school was formed there, the Department of Welfare has been issuing the city grants which help maintain the school. This year the grants, issued on a monthly basis, will be more than $2,200.

Lighting Fund

The Riverside lighting fund, set up when the floodlights were erected for night baseball, had a balance of $321.27, Mr. MacDonald reported.

Total receipts of $2,479.74 included the commission's part of the gate receipts, $1,449.83, and a balance from 1950 season of $1,029.91.

This year the lighting fund gave the city $1,075.92 as its annual payment on the $15,000 borrowed for the lights. The total expenditures for the season were $2,158.47, including payment to the city and $969.84 to the Peterborough Utilities.

"It was a losing proposition this year", said Ald. James Gillespie.

"We were ahead in cash to some degree but far off our hopes for an annual payment of $2,500", replied Mr. Bolton. "The whole season was a flop; something will have to be done this year".

Mr. Bolton explained that the attendance was particularly small when compared to expectations when the lights were erected.

"We're fortunate that we didn't lose money", he added.

Plan Film Festival Q. Mary Auditorium

Peterborough's second annual film festival sponsored by the film council will take place in Queen Mary auditorium Feb. 22 and 23.

This announcement was made Tuesday night at the film council meeting. This year the film council have decided to restrict the festival to night sessions and it is expected that approximately 15 of the best films in the world will be shown.

A preview committee of R. C. Ward, representative of the National Film Board, Lewis Bird and William Graff will be previewing films for the next month to select those to be shown at the festival.

Reeve Dick Stewart Elected New Warden Of County

Reeve Dick Stewart of Otonabee township was elected warden of Peterborough county Tuesday afternoon at the inaugural meeting of the county council. He succeeds Reeve Peter Pearson of Galway-Cavendish township. The nomination was by Reeve Willard G Waterman, North Monaghan township, and Reeve Roland Tedford, Douro township. Nobody else was nominated.

Peter J. Mather was the last warden from Otonabee. He was elected to office in 1943. After dropping out of municipal affairs for several years he returned last year as township councillor. And he was present in the county council chamber Monday afternoon to see Mr. Stewart take his oath of office.

Mr. Stewart, in his speech of acceptance, referred to himself as "somewhat of a junior" among his colleagues. He is beginning his sixth consecutive year in municipal politics.

Second Year As Reeve

He served two years on the township council, two years as deputy reeve, and he is now beginning his second year as reeve. This is his fourth year as a member of the county council.

"I thank you for the honor you have conferred on me," he said, "not only on behalf of myself and my family but also on behalf of the township of Otonabee."

The new warden welcomed the three newcomers to county council—Reeve Norris Whitney, Belmont-Methuen township; Reeve Elwood H. Northey, Lakefield village; and Deputy-Reeve Robert McAdam, Smith township. He congratulated the reeves and deputy reeves who were returned for 1952, and welcomed back Reeve Ernest Leeson, Havelock village, after a year's absence.

Mr. Stewart told council and some 30 visitors in the gallery that we have been living in an era when there has been lots of money.

"But I believe we have almost reached the top of the inflationary period," he said, "and I hope it won't go the other way . . . As councillors we must be careful how we spend the dollars that other generations will have to raise."

Born In Otonabee

Mr. Stewart was born and bred in Otonabee and lives on the farm that has been in the family for five generations.

During the Second World War he rose to the rank of major in the Royal Canadian Artillery.

Among the spectators at the swearing-in ceremony were Peter Mather, former warden and ex-reeve of Otonabee; W. W. Dawson, former reeve of Otonabee, and several other ratepayers from Otonabee; members of the suburban roads commission, and county officials.

Singled out as special visitors were Mayor Hugh Waddell and Alderman James Gillespie.

Mayor Waddell said that the city buildings are now in the next block (directly across from Victoria Park) and, because of the proximity of the new city hall, city councillors are hoping to see more of their opposite numbers in the county.

In fact Mayor Waddell brought not only the good wishes of the 1952 city council but also an invitation to visit the new city hall Friday afternoon. Refreshments were held out as an added inducement. And the offer was snapped up immediately.

90 Safety Men Hear C. Corbett

More than 90 representatives from industry in the Peterborough-Lindsay section of the Central Ontario division of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations attended a meeting Tuesday night at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club.

Guest speaker was Clarence Corbett, production manager of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company. He compared the work of doctors doing everything in their power to preserve lives with the careless, "don't care" attitude of many people.

He pointed out how cheap some people consider life as shown in the recent murder of captives in Korea and other incidents at home and at work.

The representatives were entertained after dinner by the whistling of Miss Mignon Mayneord and by a safety film.

Board To Pay C-O-L Bonus To Teachers

Only Full-Time Staff To Get Bonus Of $5 Per Point

The cost of living bonus, approved by the board of education, will be paid to full-time employees only. That was the policy approved Tuesday night by the board after hearing a recommendation from the appointments committee.

Beginning Jan. 1, the full-time employees (including teachers, staff, maintenance men), will receive $5 every quarter for each point that the cost of living rises over the base rate of 175 (DBS index).

It will be calculated quarterly and it is in addition to existing salary schedules.

Other recommendations of the committee, dealing with salary problems, were also approved.

The minimum salaries of all categories of public and secondary school teachers remain unchanged. But the maximum salaries are increased $200.

Teachers employed September 1952 will receive, at the end of September, a third of the quarter year C-O-L bonus. Thereafter they will receive the bonus similar to the other employees.

Caretakers Unchanged

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Party of 21 Canadian competitors and officials left Montreal by air Tuesday night for Oslo, Norway, and the winter Olympic games there next month.

The group included 11 skiers — seven men and four women—and four speedskaters.

Canada's total representation at the winter games will be around 53, including officials, coaches, managers and trainers.

This country's hockey representatives—the Edmonton Mercurys—are already overseas playing exhibition games. Two skiers — cross-country competitors Claude Richer of Ottawa and Jacques Carbonneau of Quebec — preceded others of the team and are training in Sweden. The figure skating team, whose make-up will not be completed until later this week, will be the last of the competitors to leave.

The party which left by plane Tuesday is expected to continue on to Norway by air after arrival in England today.

Edmonton Mercurys, led by Engelbert Miller who scored four goals, easily defeated the German champion team, Preussen Krefeld, 7-2 Tuesday night in Krefeld, Germany.

It was the Canadians' first match of their German tour and drew a crowd of 6,000. The Mercurys arrived here earlier by plane from London.

George Abel, Bob Meyers and Billy Gibson scored the other Mercury goals.

The York Skeet Club and the St. Catharines Gun Club Tuesday tied for first place, each with 243 points, at the first shoot of the Lower Lakes Skeet League in St. Catharines. The Brantford Gun Club finished next in line with Dofasco and Hamilton Gun Club following in that order.

Manchester United, one of the top soccer teams in the English Football League, will make another tour of the United States and Canada this spring. Erno Schwarcz, business manager of the sponsoring American Soccer League, said Tuesday in New York he had received a cable of acceptance from the Manchester club.

Harry Hopman, captain of the Australian Davis Cup team, said Tuesday that he didn't think any of the world's top 10 tennis players abides strictly by the rules of the International Lawn Tennis Federation. Hopman, tennis writer for The Melbourne Herald, expressed the opinion in his column that a new definition of amateurism "is a pressing world-wide necessity.

"Our top players do not abide by the (amateur) rule because they do gain by their pursuit of the game," Hopman wrote.

The International Ski Federation's committee on professionalism announced Tuesday in Bern, Switzerland, that it had received no evidence to challenge the amateur status of world ski champions Zeno Colo of Italy and Dagmar Rom of Austria. The four-member committee Monday discussed "rumors" that the two skiers were tainted by professionalism.

Veterinarians said Tuesday in Mexico City an operation on Mexico's Olympic champion jumping horse, Arete, appeared to be a success. In an operation lasting 80 minutes, a broken bone in Arete's right foreleg was repaired and covered with a metal plate.

2nd Professional Team Lost In Two Nights

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Washington lost its second professional sports team in two nights when owner Miguel J. Uline Tuesday night disbanded the Washington Lions of the Eastern Hockey League.

The Washington Capitols, an American Basketball League team functioning on a co-operative basis following a previous withdrawal of Uline's sponsorship, disbanded Monday when Uline said he could no longer donate his arena to the players for their home games.

Uline said he was folding the hockey team because of poor attendance. Only 410 spectators attended Tuesday night's match between the Lions and Atlantic City Sea Gulls.

Convict Gunner, Sentenced To 16 Months

By BILL BOSS

SEOUL, Jan. 16 (CP)—Gunner Lawrence Lang, of Toronto, today was convicted on a reduced charge of unlawful wounding and was sentenced to 16 months' imprisonment.

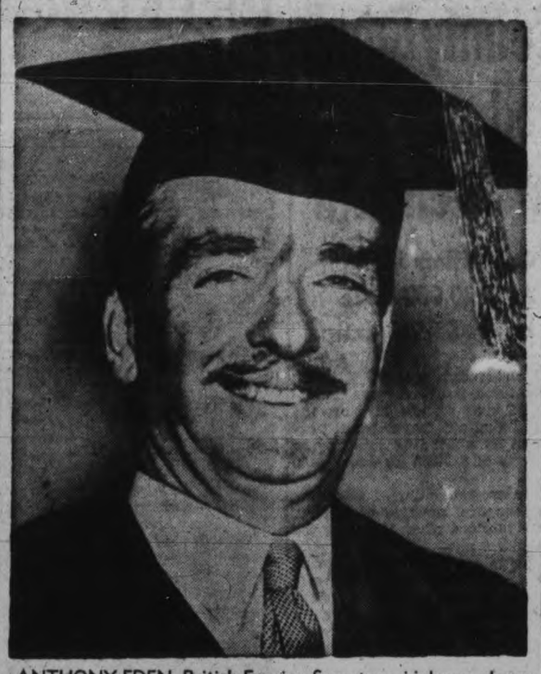
A court martial reduced the charge from one of attempted murder to "unlawfully wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm."

The soldier was charged following an incident in a Korean village last September 30 in which a civilian was wounded. Gunner Robert Stirling, Vancouver, was tried and convicted in December on a charge of attempted murder as a result of the shooting. He was sentenced to seven years.

Maj. Hugh Gillis, of Antigonish, NS, defence counsel, argued that Lang's participation was limited to "being an unwilling witness" and "without Lang's own evidence the prosecution would not have had a case at all."

Had Responsibility

The prosecutor, Capt. Angus Therney, Vancouver, argued that the soldier had moral responsibility. He said "no effort was made by Lang, who was sober, to determine whether the shot man was dead or just slightly injured."



Maj. Jean Loranger, Montreal, advised the court that a man "may be convicted of an offence if he is a party to it although he personally does not perpetrate it."

In a plea for mitigation of sentence once the finding was announced, Gillis said 21-year-old men face enough difficulty maturing at home "let alone in a theatre whose atmosphere is amoral if not immoral."

Technically, Lang was "guilty of the offence but it is doubtful that he did a great deal of wrong."

LOFTY INTERIOR

While coastal areas of the Dominion of Ceylon are flat, it has several peaks of more than 7,000 feet in the southeast.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Tuesday night's 1-0 victory for Toronto Maple Leafs over Boston Bruins didn't change the standings of the leaders in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race, but an assist credited to Sid Smith of Toronto put him one point closer to second place.

Elmer Lach of Montreal continues to lead in points and assists. He has a total of 40 points made up of 10 goals and 30 assists.

Maurice Richard is top man in the goal-getting department with 24 tallies and is tied with Detroit's Gordie Howe with 39 points for second spot. Richard has 15 assists and 24 goals and Howe 23 goals and 16 assists.

Smith has 35 points, made up of 15 goals and 20 assists, closely followed by Don Raleigh of New York and Ted Kennedy of Toronto with 33 points each. Raleigh has 13 goals and 20 assists and Kennedy 12 and 21.

Johnny Peirson follows with 32 points, 12 goals and 20 assists.

Kitchener Rink In Play At Close of 3rd Round

HAMILTON, Jan. 16 (CP). — Mrs. L. Smuck's rink was the lone out-of-town foursome remaining in play at the close of Tuesday's third round of the ladies' Holton Trophy bonspiel.

Mrs. Smuck's quartette meets Mrs. H. F. Gorrie's Hamilton Thistles rink in the opening game of the semi-final round today.

Top features of Tuesday's play was the game put up by Mrs. C. E. Howard's St. Catharines rink before bowing 11-9 to Mrs. G. Gooch of Hamilton Victorias. The Howard foursome faced a seven-shot deficit on the ninth end and scored a seven to even the count.

But Mrs. Gooch scored two coming home and won.

Ray Webster Elected Victoria Warden

LINDSAY, Jan. 16 (ENS). — Two votes were needed here Tuesday by Victoria County Council in the election of their new warden for 1952. Ray Webster, reeve of Mariposa, with six years' municipal experience, won on the second vote over the two other nominees, Edward Murphy, reeve of Cardin, and Vincent Fee, reeve of Emily.

Last year's warden, Jim Butler, who was reeve of Eldon, acted as chairman for the formalities. One of the most interesting men asked to speak by the chairman was A. E. Bottum, oldest citizen of the village of Bobcaygeon.

Mr. Bottum, 92 years of age, statedt hat he had been warden of the county forty years ago. "Looking at that chair that the new warden is sitting in now, I recall that a Bottum was put in it away back in 1893," he said. "In 1913 a new Bottum was put in it—me—and in 1936, we had to put another new Bottum in it when my son Roy became warden. Pretty soon we'll be running out of Bottum material for the Victoria County Council."

A number of ex-wardens were called upon to speak to the large gathering which overflowed into the outer halls.

Teepees Upset Biltmores 8-5 As Indians Subdue Brantford

By The Canadian Press.

St. Catharines Teepees continued their giant-killer role in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop Tuesday night as they upset the second-place Guelph Biltmores 8-5 before a packed Garden City arena.

The victory kept the Teepees a single point behind fifth-place Kitchener Greenshirts who edged Barrie Flyers 2-1.

Galt Black Hawks moved into sole possession of third place over Toronto St. Michael's when they dropped Oshawa Generals 3-1 in the only other junior game.

In Senior OHA play, Stratford Indians added two points to their league lead with a 5-3 win in Brantford. The victory gives the Indians an 11-point lead over second-place Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen who bowed 2-0 to the high-flying Owen Sound Mercurys.

A Northern Hockey Association Senior A game at North Bay saw the Hawks fall 5-3 before the league-leading Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds.

Lots of Scoring

Carl Boone led St. Catharines with a trio of tallies while Brian Cullen came up with two and Gerry Foley, Ken Myles and Bill Young added singletons. A pair by Dean Prentice and lone markers by Ken Laufman, Ron Murphy and Bill Chalmers added up the Biltmore total.

At Kitchener, Joe Ingoldsby and Jim Farelli garnered the Greenshirt goals while John Martan scored for the Flyers.

Jackie Sleaver, Mike Buchanan and Buddy Horner were the Galt marksmen in that 3-1 win over Oshawa. Herve Dejordy potted the lone tally for Generals.

George Aitken's two and singletons by Dinny Flanagan, Lyle Roth and Bill Walsh accounted for Stratford's goals at Brantford while Walt Hnahiuk, Don Oberholtzer and Bob Hewson were the Redmen scorers. Harry Kazarian and Roy Leckie banged in both of Owen Sounds' goals for the Mercs' 2-0 win.

Flynn Declares It's Tough Being A Star

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan 16 — (AP) — Errol Flynn says it's tough being a movie star.

For example, the world seems full of people who want to get their names in the papers because they socked Errol Flynn.

"It's a downright menace," the Tasmanian-born actor declared. "I have virtually given up going out at all. I never frequent the night clubs any more.

"I forgot myself and went out to the Beverly Hills Club on New Year's Eve. Why, I don't know. Because, sure enough, some fellow decided he wanted to punch me.

"He was someone I had never seen before and will never see again. How I could incite him with my back turned, I will never know. But I turned around and saw him swinging at me.

Gets Privacy

"The one thing I miss most is privacy. I have never been able to get used to being constantly stared at wherever I went."

He added that he has developed a gimmick for insuring privacy.

"It's my theory that a person is always recognized by his nose", he remarked. "You can alter your eyes or put on scars, but still your nose gives you away. So I had Perc Westmore fashion me a false nose of plastic material that looks like real skin. It's a large affair, and slightly distorted. I've found that people do not stare at malformations."

This sounds like a fanciful tale, but Flynn asserted he tried the nose out in Paris and found it assured his privacy.

Children's Aid Reports 22 New Cases

Twenty-two new cases came before the Children's Aid Society during December, making a total of 332 cases known to the Society during the month. Of the new cases, 18 were family situations involving 49 children.

Superintendent Miss R. Young reported to the board meeting on Tuesday, held at City Hall, that five of these families had had service from the Society before and "while three of them do not respond to casework service, it would appear as if supervision is necessary for protection of the children."

She explained that these cases involve men who are unemployed a great deal of the time, even when employment is plentiful, and the families are too often near the minimum of acceptable standards.

Supervision of 17 children was discontinued when 10 adoptions were completed, one ward was married, five wards of other Societies living in the county were returned to their parents and one reached his majority, Miss Young reported.

One child placed privately came under supervision, temporary wardship for one ward was continued and one temporary ward became a permanent ward when his mother was unable to plan for him. One child was placed for adoption in the month.

Three unmarried mothers came to the society. Two wish asistance in plannnig for their babies and the other has now returend to her own community. The Society discontinued interest in four unmarried parents when three moved from the community and one plans to continue living in a common-law relationship.

Miss Young reported also attendance at 37 hearings in Family Court of which three were in regard to wardship. Ten were for juveniles. The sum of $862.28 was paid through the office on maintenance orders she said. A total of 398 visits were made during the month and there were 147 office interviews.

One case was investigated for the Director of Family Allowances.

Five children remained in the Children's Home on January 1st. The report showed eight children went out during December and one child was admitted.

An estimated 1952 budget was presented to the Board by chairman of finance committe, Mr. J. McKerchar. The expenses expected are only about $600 over those of 1951.

Miss Young explained to the board with charts exactly how the daily rate of $1.12 is set for this Society. In comparison with rates of other societies in the province it is the fourth lowest, indicating that costs are being kept to the minimum.

The public relations committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. G. Wharry, was given power to arrange for the annual meeting in February.

Sewing at the Children's Home is in charge of St. Luke's WA, Mrs. Paul Irwin reported. Donations were acknowledged from Connel's Store, Mrs. L. Yeotes, Mrs. Keith Lech, Junior Welfare League, Westclox, Mrs. Ivan Butler, St. Paul's Sunday School, CPR Express, Christies' Bread, Mrs. A. M. Johnston, Mrs. A. J. STATE DINNER BROADCAST—Prime Minister Winston Churchill addressed an international audience Monday night when he spoke in Ottawa at the State dinner given in his honor by the Canadian government. This series of action photos shows the veteran British statesman and orator talking into microphones which carried his familiar voice over a CBC coast-to-coast hook-up, three United States networks and the BBC. Canada he termed "the great Dominion" with a "magnificent future if only we can get through the present hideous world muddle."

Britain Refuses Close Consulates

TEHRAN, Jan. 16 (AP)—Britain today bluntly rejected an Iranian demand to close all nine British consulates in Iran.

The Iranians made the demand Saturday in a note accusing Britain of "interference of British government officials in the domestic afafirs of Iran." Premier Mohammed Mossadegh said Sunday that the closure order will stand as long as he heads the government.

Britain's reply invoked an 1857 treaty between the two countries permitting Britain to maintain consulates anywhere in Iran that other powers have consulates.

The British note accused Iran of violating the treaty by ordering closure of the consulate by next Monday and protested "formally and emphatically" against the demand.

Among other reasons Iran had listed in calling for consular withdrawals was that Iran maintains no consulates in Britain and that since India and Pakistan have become independent, Britain no longer needs consulates, which had looked after the welfare of many Indians in Iran.

Lindsay Objects To Conditions At Sewage Plant

LINDSAY, Jan. 16 — Lindsay council is dissatisfied with the conditions of the new sewage disposal plant.

Ald. Vincent Cole reported to the council Monday night that he had visited the plant on Sunday and had found it "bogged down". He said that one of the tanks was completely frozen and the machines had been operating while it was frozen.

Reeve Richard Butler, chairman of the board of works said that he was both disgusted and dissatisfied with the manner in which the engineer, Mr. Redfern had been handling the situation. He said that the council had been advised in August that the plant would be operating in a few days but that it had not been given over to the town yet. He added that if the engineer had been on his toes the plant would be running in full capacity.

He also reported that there had been considerable trouble at the Colborne St. pumping station and the two motors had been out since early in December for repairs.

A motion was passed that a letter of complaint be sent to Mr. Redfern asking him for two new motors to replace the motors at the Colborne pumping station.

Medical Inspection Urged In Small Plants

KITCHENER, Jan. 16 (CP)—A pilot plant program designed to encourage regular medical inspection in small industries in Ontario is scheduled to start here next September.

Ontario department of health and local authorities hope the plan will run for two years—at a cost of about $150,000 a year—but federal funds so far have been granted for one year only. Some 10,000 employees in 50 industries will be checked.

It is hoped that industry will take over the plan when the trial period is ended.

British Critics Approve Film

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP)—British film critics gave a warm welcome today to "Royal Journey," a 55-minute color film produced by Canada's National Film Board during the royal tour of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The film, already being shown in Canada, had its first press showing here Tuesday before a predominantly - Canadian audience. It will go on public view tomorrow.

A Daily Telegraph critic called "Royal Journey" the best film of its kind he had seen. "To those who have never seen Canada," he wrote, "the beauty of scene after scene will come as a revelation."

Other sample comments:

Leonard Mosley, Daily Express: "....very much better than the usual starry-eyed, open-mouthed account....a nice film."

Manchester Guardian: "Brisk, efficient and, it must be admitted, lurid record (in a new color process)."

Jury Convicts Kenyon Of Manslaughter

HAMILTON, Jan. 16 —(CP)—Frank Kenyon, 42, will be sentenced Friday for manslaughter in the water-injection death of his wife Nov. 24. A jury in Ontario Supreme Court Tuesday night acquitted him of murder but convicted him of the lesser charge.

Mr. Justice W. F. Spence told the jury when it brought in the verdict after two hours and 22 minutes: "You have come to a very proper conclusion."

The crown contended during the trial, which started Jan. 8, that Kenyon killed his wife by forcing her body up against a kitchen tap so that water entered her body and ruptured her internal organs.

Offers Solution

Defence counsel G. M. Kennedy said it was more consistent with the facts to believe that Mrs. Kenyon was killed when she fell upon the upturned kitchen tap from which water was gushing.

Testifying in his own defence, Kenyon said that there was no bathtub in the house and his wife bathed in the sink, using the upturned tap as a shower. He said he and his wife were drunk on the night of Nov. 24 and he put her in the sink because she was filthy.

One crown witness testified that the tap was turned down and was so stiff that he needed a wrench to remove it.

In his testimony, Kenyon said that a statement he gave the police shortly after his wife's death was partly true and partly false. Included in the statement were the words: "I filled her up with water."

School Tradition Aids Progress of Indians

MACLEOD, Alta. (CP)—Archdeacon S. H. Middleton is British to the core and a great believer in the virtues of school tradition.

As a youth of 21, drawn to the west by stories of the Indian he came in 1905 from England, where he had been a carriage maker, with the sole intention of working among the Prairie Indians. In 46 years he has found that the old school tie can truly bind a fellowship of man.

Ordained an Anglican clergyman in 1911, he was until retirement last year principal of St. Paul's school on the blood Indian reserve south of Macleod and rector of Anglican parishes at Cardston and Waterton Park in Alberta.

When he came the Indians were poor and suspicious people who went to the ration house whenever they needed supplies, and whose big day each year was treaty time when they collected their $5 a head.

Different Story

But the people he left in 1951—moving only to Macleod so that he would still be near them—are the inhabitants of the biggest (540 square miles) and one of the richest reserves in Canada.

Their riches were gained from agriculture. In 1949, for example, the bloods produced 180,000 bushels of wheat, had cattle sales of $200,000. They have moved from teepees to modern homes with hardwood floors and on their shelves are top-selling books, works on etiquette and even the odd copy of Hansard.

Their sons are farming with equipment worth the price of a small house in the city. Their daughters are nurses and stenographers in Toronto, Victoria, Edmonton and even Bermuda.

Motto Is Perseverance

This is quite a step from a state bordering on the native semi-starvation in which young Middleton found them when he arrived with romantic ideas of boyhood, including the fear he might possibly be scalped.

Archdeacon Middleton doesn't take the credit for all this. The government has had a lot to do with it. The bloods have been served by schools of both the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches.

But he does attribute much of it to what he says is "nothing better than the English public school training," and, of course, the old school tie.

He believes—and, in view of the results, with justification—that the continuity of education in the Anglican school, along with the fact he considers the bloods an intellectual people in the first place, had a lot to do with the success of education on the reserve.

Old School Tie

In his years among the bloods, Arrchdeacon Middleton instituted the old country style annual class reunions, the Old Boys' Association, the school crest and colors—red and green—and even the ties themselves. Naturally, they came from England.

The most-prized possession of the Archdeacon is his appointment as life member of the Head Chiefs and Tribal Council of the blood Indians at Cardston.

It was the way the bloods had of saying "thank you" to the man who introduced them to the old school tie and their school motto Mokokit Ki Aekakimat—Be Wise and Persevere.

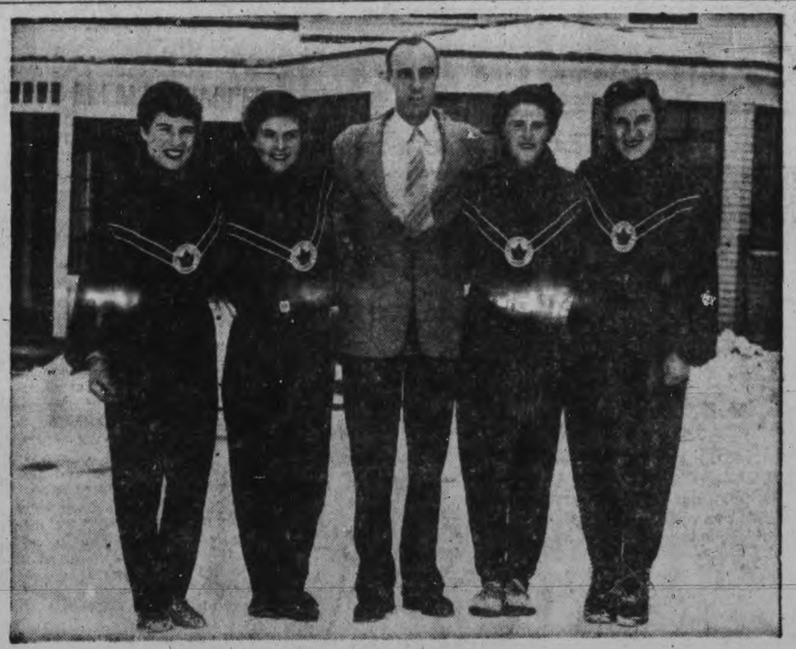
Home and School Association News

MILLBROOK

MILLBROOK, Jan. 16 (ENS)— Millbrook Home and School Association met in the auditorium of the school for the first meeting of 1952 on Monday evening. Mrs. Henry Gray, teacher of the primary room, and Percy Hamilton, principal, had agreed to demonstrate to the parents some of the changes in the new course of study.

Mrs. Gray, who spoke first, explained the mysteries of the rhythmic arithmetic. She told how children are taught first in Grade I to count, using rhymes, and to proceed from there to counting by 2's—the rhythm of 2, the rhythm of 3, and so on. She also showed how children are taught arithmetic by the use of a toy store with one child acting as storekeeper, and another as the customer. For her demonstrations she used parents in the place of pupils.



She believed that most children would find the new system of teaching arithmetic easier than the old, and that it would be likely to develop better mathematicians who would depend more on reasoning and less on memorization of mathematical formula.

Mr. Hamilton spoke on the changes made in the teaching of mathematics in the higher grades, and demonstrated points on the blackboard. He also mentioned the advances in the teaching of health to the students, with committees of the pupils themselves acting as health monitors. He spoke of the combining of history and geography into social studies. This he thought was logical. The history told of the people, and the geography of their locations, climates and so on. He voiced approval of the work being done by the two ministers who give religious instruction in the public school, and the Rev. A. M. Butler, the Rev. W. H. Heustin and the Rev. A. M. Butler. He advised parents to supplement their work by being sure their children attended Sunday school.

Margaret Aiken, who recently won the Durham county junior farmers' public speaking contest, gave her talk on "Epidemics." Yvonne Richards sang "The Little River," and sang a duet with Margaret Aiken "Song of Love." Beverley Patton accompanied both numbers.

Mrs. G. A. Spicer was at the piano for "O Canada" and for a sing-song led by Mr. Hamilton.

The $2 attendance award for having the most parents present went to the pupils of Mrs. Gray's room.

St. Andrew's WMS Annual Meeting

The Rev. H. Cotton, minister of St. Andrew's United church, gave an excellent inspirational address at the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of that church Tuesday afternoon.

He said: "The members of this organization belong to a forward-looking movement for which there is need of unity in the Christian church." He afterward installed the officers for 1952.

Tremaine were appointed delegates to the Presbyterial meeting which is to be held in St. Andrew's on January 22nd.

Reid reported 14 bales weighing over 400 pounds had been sent to headquarters in Toronto and another of toys to Dr. Barclay McKone, Moosonee. Miss E. Preston reported $89 given by associate members.

Mrs. A. A. Munro, treasurer, said the allocation of $1,000 had been exceeded.

Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, retiring president, was presented with a beautiful leather handbag in appreciation of her services, by Miss M. Ferguson and Mrs. H. Tremaine.

A most inspiring meeting was brought to a close by Mrs. Munro, after which the group in charge served refreshments.

The first meeting of the new year of the Trinity W.M.S. was held in the church Tuesday afternoon. This meeting, in charge of the executive, opened with the Call to Worship by president, Mrs. B. McFadden, followed by the hymn, "Standing at the Portal". Mrs. N. E. Elliott read a short item relating to Christ's charge "Go Ye into all the world". "This is an imperative command. The installation service for all Mission groups will be held Sunday evening, January 20.

Delegates to the Presbyterial meeting January 22 will be Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, Mrs. A. B. Cunningham, and Mrs. A. Legon.

A short film entitled "The Hard Core" was shown, dealing with the physically unfit displaced persons in Europe. There will be a film for the February meeting on the book we are studying, "From Lakes to Northern Lights." The corresponding secretary was asked to write to the Evening Auxiliary and the Federated Group inviting them to this meeting.

DOROTHY DIX

Successful Mother-In-Law An Example To All Women

DEAR MISS DIX: To those who believe that all mothers-in-law are either overbearingly possessive, or miserably downtrodden, may I offer my experience?

Dorothy Dix

Mine is a middle-sized family, grown now and married. As each new member was chosen and added, he or she was assured of a welcome. They knew I was proud and happy to have them for my children and that they would be loved like the others. I have been very sure they never had cause to doubt it. When a boy or girl comes into a family not knowing the parents, let alone the countless other relatives that is the time to win their hearts. One of my girls said not long ago, "Isn't it wonderful; there isn't one of the family who is not congenial, who does not fit." Each baby has been just what grandmother wanted.

Sometimes I have had the impulse to interfere, but restrained it. The personal lives of my children are their own affairs. The children love to come to Grandma for a day or two but they're not allowed to wear out their welcome. I love to sew for the youngsters. I show no partiality. I'm accepted as mother to all my brood, am always welcome at their homes and, to us, holidays are wonderful events. 'Mothers' Day is a day of joy and humility —joy because of the remembrances, and humility because I know so many things I might have done differently and better.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Volumes could be written about the mother-in-law problem — and have been—but what can they offer to supplement the gracious charm of this mother and mother-in-law?

Prejudices At Fault

The in-law problem becomes an issue only because the protagonists don't want to solve it. Mother is determined to dislike any girl her son marries; daughter-in-law is sure her husband's mother is going to be a horrid bossy creature and makes no attempt to meet the older woman half-way. Result —the sort of mess that ruins so many marriages.

Nancy has the answer. The heart-warming family picture she shows us is the goal for which every woman should strive. Surely it takes no more effort to achieve than the unhappy in-law situation which is the cause of so much complaint! Of course it takes two to create; but if a boy's mother and fiancee both approach the new relationship with the idea that they are going to share—not absorb — the husband and son, happiness for the whole family is assured.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I are happily married, but there are a few things he does that I would like to correct. First, whenever he does something wrong, he refuses to say he's sorry. He claims that the apology would be an admission that I'm right. Also, he's not very affectionate, especially in public. We've just been maried two years and I feel he should be more demonstrative. M. L.

ANSWER: If these are the only matters that stand between you and a happy married life, they should be easily solved. Your husband is wrong in one point, you are wrong in the other. Now, if you are each willing to give in—presto. All the difficulties solved.

A positive sign of immaturity and weak character is the unwillingness—all to frequently met—to admit wrong; to apologize; to say, "I'm sorry!" Many people seem to feel that such an admission is humiliating. Actually, nothing so proclaims manliness as this simple gesture. A man of courage and dignity is as quick to acknowlege a mistake as he is firm in his purpose to defend himself when he is right.

It is not necessary, as you suppose, for two people, no matter how much in love they are, to make public manifestations of their affection. Their feelings will be made apparent through their congeniality, mutual courtesy and consideration; it isn't necessary to make an exhibition of your feelings.

FUNNY BUSINESS -- By Hershberger

"How about working out a buffer zone for a few minutes?"

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Plan Beef and Kidney Pie On Special-Purpose Menu

Tomato Juice
Beef and Kidney Pie with Melton Mowbray Crust
Brussels Sprouts or Frozen Green Peas
Crisp Green Salad
Orange Ambrosia Date Squares
Coffee

Directions

To make the beef and kidney pie order 1 or 1¼ lbs. flank, skirt or stewing beef and ¾ lb. pork or beef kidneys or 1 lb. beef and 1 lb. kidneys if you are very fond of kidneys as our family is. Trim the veinous part from the kidneys and cut them and the beef into approximately 1-inch pieces. Soak kidneys in cold water ½ hour. Drain kidney pieces and dry them and roll them and the beef pieces in salted and peppered flour. Brown all of the meat in hot drippings. Bacon or chicken drippings are delicious. Keep turning them over until all sides are a golden brown. Shake over them a little additional salt and pepper, and 2½ cups boiling water, cover and simmer until meat is nearly tender, adding extra boiling water as it evaporates. Meanwhile make—

Melton Mowbray Pastry

Two cups plus 2 tablespoons unsifted pastry flour, ½ cup lard or shortening, three-eighths cup hot water, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon baking powder. Add the lard to the boiling water and bring to boiling point. Mix together the flour, baking powder and salt and add them all at once, stirring until smooth. Cool, covered, for 1 to 3 hours or while the meat is cooking for the pie.

Roll Melton Mowbray pastry out ot ¼-inch thickness on floured board. Cut long 2 or 3-inch wide strips to line sides of baking dish. Then pour in beef and kidney filling (see above), and cover with top crust to fit baking dish, which has been gashed at centre to allow steam to escape. Seal edges by moistening crust with a very little water. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes or until crust is puffed and golden and liquid on meat bubbles a little through gashes.

If you would like to serve the Melton Mowbray pie cold, brush top with beaten egg about 5 minutes before removing from oven. If you are English you will know that 1 tablespoon gelatine may be soaked in ¼ cup cold water and dissolved by stirring over hot water, and funnelled into the pie filling through the gashes after pie is taken from oven. Pie is tipped to mix the gelatine with the hot filling. Then the whole thing is chilled, to serve sliced cold. I don't fancy it—but I know plenty of foodfanciers who do.

Orange Ambrosia

One package lemon jelly dessert, 2 cups boiling water, 3 tablespoons sugar, pinch of salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ cup fresh orange juice, 2 tablespoons grated orange rind, 1 cup heavy cream whipped, ½ cup cocoanut, orange sections. Dissolve the package of lemon jelly in the boiling water; add the sugar, salt, fruit juices and rind. Chill it until it just begins to thicken then fold in the whipped cream and cocoanut. Chill until firm—in the stemmed glasses you intend to serve it in if you care to. Garnish with orange sections from which you have carefully removed the membrane.

Durham Tree-Growing Topic At WI Meeting

BETHANY, Jan. 16—(ENS)—Mrs. T. S. Gault entertained the Women's Institute members for their January meeting, with Mrs. H. L. Challice presiding for the business session. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Mansell Finney. Mrs. Harold Sanderson read the minutes of the previous meeting and the correspondence which included letters of thanks from shut-in members for Christmas cards and boxes of fruit. Mrs. M. Finney, Mrs. H. Sanderson, Mrs. T. Jennings and Mrs. R. Carr were appointed as a committee to arrange a public entertainment in the near future.

Mrs. R. W. Price and Mrs. H. Sanderson reported a cordial inception from the Manvers township council at a meeting which they attended that afternoon with a view to some alterations in the township hall basement. In furtherance of this the Institute members were requested to meet in the hall on January 22 to further discuss what could be done towards providing kitchen equipment.

The program was in charge of Mrs. T. Jennings, convener for agriculture and Canadian industries. Mrs. Gault gave a paper on a new industry which has sprung up in Durham county, "The Commercial Growing of Christmas Trees."

Mrs. Jennings gave a humorous poem, "Albert and the Lion".

Mrs. R. W. Price explained the Durham County Co-Operative Hospitalization Plan and gave a synopsis of their financial statement for 1951. This hospitalization plan is meeting with growing approval in the community.

A contest on different types of trees and wood was won by Mrs. F. W. Reynolds; the prize being a bottle of maple syrup.

During the social hour, lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. R. W. Price and Mrs. T. Malcolmson. The radio was turned on and all listened to the broadcast of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's speech from Ottawa.

Mrs. T. J. Jackson moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Gault for her entertainment.

Hunter Fined For Being On Game Preserve

Orland Clarke, Blackwater was convicted in police court Tuesday of carrying a firearm on a crown game preserve.

He was fined $10 and $15 costs by magistrate W. R. Philp.

Evidence in the case was heard some time ago, and Magistrate Philp adjourned the case until Tuesday, to examine judgements cited by defence counsel W. B. Gordon.

Clarke was apprehended November 9, by deputy game Warden Earl Trotter and game Warden Robert H. Trotter, coming out of the game preserve about 9 miles south of Apsley, carrying a rifle.

The charge alleged that Clarke was not a resident of the game preserve and was carrying a rifle on the preserve.

Didn't Know

Mr. Gordon claimed that Clarke was not familiar with that part of the country and did not know he was on the game preserve. Further, Mr. Gordon argued that the crown had failed to prove that Clarke was not a resident of the game preserve and that this was "an essential part of the charge."

Crown attorney John A. Bradshaw replied that the Game and Fisheries Act provides that residents of game preserves obtain special licences to carry firearms, and that the onus was on the defence to prove they had such a licence."

Elect Lee Grills Hastings Warden

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 16. — Lee Grills, reeve of Sidney township, was elected warden of Hastings county council Tuesday at the inaugural meeting here.

Grills, starting his third year on the council, was last year chairman of the building committee for the new county home for the aged in Hastings. In 1950 he was deputy reeve of Sidney and reeve in 1951.

Two other reeves — Tracy Adams of Dungannon township and Vincent Lynch of Marmora—contested the election, but Grills won on the first ballot. Last Sidney township reeve to serve as warden was J. Fred Wilson, former MLA for Hastings, who was warden in 1945.

Parents Unconscious Beside Dead Child

WESTPORT, Conn., Jan. 16 — (AP) — A grief-stricken mother and father were found unconscious Tuesday night by a bed in which lay the body of their only child which they had spirited from a hospital after her death.

Detective Capt. Edward Capasse said Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Steinberg were lying on the floor, one on each side of the bed in which was the body of their seven-year-old daughter, Heide.

Dr. Ruben Solway, the couple's personal physician, said they had taken an overdose of sleeping tablets. Their condition was described as fair.

The discovery of the pair ended a search which began Tuesday morning when Steinberg allegedly threatened to kill a medical examiner who wanted to view the dead child. The couple then disappeared from their home with the body.

Capt. Capasse said police went to the Steinberg home here and forced an entrance through a cellar door after the family's car was found in Westport's business district. A patrolman heard the sound of moaning and found the unconscious couple in a bedroom.

St. Laurent Accepts Sudbury Invitation

SUDBURY, Jan. 16 (CP). — Prime Minister St. Laurent will stop here Sunday at the invitation of City Council on his return from Sault Ste. Marie.

The prime minister, who will open a new $750,000 armory in Sault Ste. Marie Saturday, will be accompanied by Defence Minister Claxton and External Affairs Minister Pearson.

They will speak at a non-political rally in Sudbury's new arena.

It will be the first official visit of a prime minister to Sudbury since Sir Wilfrid Laurier came here in 1911.

GEORGE E. BURNHAM has completed 50 years of service on the board of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, believed a record for the province. In addition, he has served 41 years as church treasurer. On Sunday, elders W. F. Fallis and Walter Coombes presented Mr. Burnham with an honorarium in recognition of his service to the church.

Canada Says Reds Just Want Strategic Goods

OTTAWA, Jan. 16 (CP).—Canadian trade officials said Tuesday that Russia obviously is not so interested in promoting general trade with Canada as she is in obtaining strategic supplies of scarce materials.

They were commenting on a Moscow dispatch quoting the Soviet English-language publication News as advocating, in an editorial, resumption of trade between Canada and the Soviet. Another editorial was devoted to so-called promotion of Soviet-Canadian friendship.

Officials said Canada probably would be willing to sell Russia some non-essential goods if Russia was willing to pay cash.

But they ruled out the question of trade between Canada and Russia involving the supply of any goods which may be scarce, Canada, they said, was just not interested.

Need Supplies

Several attempts have been made in the past, they said, mainly by Soviet satellites, to get supplies of Canadian scarce goods, such as minerals and metals. These have been turned down. Exports of Canadian scarce materials are controlled through a government export-permit system.

Soviet-Canadian trade has never been large, officials said. One reason is that Soviet trade is rigidly controlled by the Soviet Government and is concentrated mostly in Iron Curtain countries.

Trade between Canada and Russia amounts only to several thousand dollars a year, mostly for sundries and books.

The officials said Canada probably would be ready to sell Russia some non-essential manufactured goods, if Russia showed any incentive to buy.

"If Moscow were ready to clothe their secretaries in stockings, we might be able to provide the necessary hosiery for dollars," they said.

Convict Toronto Man Of False Pretences

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP)—Walter Hunt, 71, who said he conducted a "mortgage" business for three years on the principle of "robbing Peter to pay Paul", Tuesday was convicted of false pretences and acting as a real estate agent without a licence.

He said he promised his clients 30 per cent a month interest on short term loans. He said the loans were for builders who needed cash quickly to pay for materials.

"When the interest was due I had to get money from others. I was sort of robbing Peter to pay Paul. I used the story of the estate agent to give more confidence."

Police said Hunt's total "take" between 1948 and July, 1951, amounted to $22,879. Hunt said he had taken in $10,980 and paid out $13,560.

He as remanded in custody for sentence Jan. 22.

Mrs. Bert Manning

The funeral for Mrs. Bert Manning, the former Mary Georgina Mann, 458 Aylmer St., who died Sunday, was held Tuesday at the Comstock funeral home.

The Rev. A. A. Mathews of George St. United and Dr. J. Semple of North Bay and formerly of Peterborough conducted the service.

Pallbearers were Gordon McGregor, John Edmison, Reginald McMullen, Clarence Mann, Harold Lewis, Harry Blewett. Flower-bearers were Douglas Palmer and Earle Weatherilt. Burial was in Ray's Cemetery, Lakefield.

Illuminated Crown To Greet Princess

SYDNEY, Jan. 16 (Reuters)—A 90-foot illuminated crown fastened to the huge harbor bridge here will greet Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh when they arrive aboard the liner Gothic for their spring tour of Australia and New Zealand.

Quadruplets Cause Great Excitement

MURFREESBORO, Ark., Jan. 16 (AP).—The auto roared to a stop at the service station. Tires screeched. Bits of gravel showered through the air.

The driver jumped from the car, tried unsuccessfully to get his key to fit the lock on the car's gas tank cap.

Clifton Altha, owner of the station, offered a hand and got the gas cap off.

The driver then ran to the front of the car and began filling the radiator.

Altha then heard a baby cry. A woman passenger in the car held up a blanket. She had two babies in her lap.

"Oh, twins," said Altha and went on filling the gas tank. He was the father of twins himself.

Another woman in the car told Altha to look in the back seat. There were two more infants. Another woman had them wrapped in a blanket.

That was about 8 pm Monday, a few minutes after 38-year-old Mrs. Haggai Ponder had given birth to quadruplets at a small farm house near here.

Excited As Father

Her husband, Leonard, 41, was taking the infants to a hospital at Nashville, about 20 miles southwest of here and his car needed gas to make the trip.

Altha said that when he saw the four babies he got as excited as the father.

About that time, Ponder ran back from front of the car, jumped under the wheel and yelled "How much do I owe you?"

"Not a penny," said Altha.

The babies, three boys and a girl, were placed in incubators at the hospital. Hospital attendants said the quads were in good shape and predicted they would survive. Each baby weighed about 3½ pounds.

Ponder currently is unemployed. He has eight other children.

Says Religious Comics Develop Anti-Semitism

TORONTO, Jan. 16— Religious comics develop anti-semitism, claimed Mr. W. R. Ledger at the meeting of the Toronto-Centre Presbytery of the United Church of Canada.

Mr. Ledger was discussing a suggestion from one of the Presbyteries that a colored supplement be added to the Observer, the United Church newspaper. The ugly and caricatured drawings of Biblical peoples cannot help but prejudice the young against Jewish people, he said. They were poor art and poor religion, he continued. Sunday school papers should emphasize the beautiful, the courageous, and the kindly, rather than the ugly and tawdry.

NEW TWIN-JET FOR SOVIET.—One of Soviet Russia's newest twin-jet aircraft—a fighter, night fighter or ground attack plane — is depicted in this drawing released by Aviation Age magazine. The publication said the plane, seen in Poland, is powered by two turbojets. Exact designation of the jet is not known.

FBI Arrests One Of Top 10 US Criminals

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Frederick Emerson Peters, 66, whose name is on the Federal Bureau of Investigation's list of 10 most-wanted criminals, was arrested in a Washington hotel Tuesday.

Director J. Edgar Hoover said Peters, whose criminal record dates back 40 years, often has impersonated important persons, including the late Franklin D. Roosevelt. He also posed as a professor, physician and clergyman to pass bad cheques, the FBI said.

Peters, whose name went on the most-wanted list July 2, was encountered in a hotel lobby by an FBI agent. He gave his name as Paul A. Carpenter, said he had just arrived from New York and had an important appointment at the State Department to discuss the production of a music festival in Montevideo.

Eventually, however, he admitted his identity, Hoover said.

Peters is wanted in Chicago, Philadelphia, Birmingham, Ala., and Tampa, Fla.

Former Kinmount Man Dies In Hospital

Requiem mass was celebrated Saturday by the Rev. J. Walsh at St. Patrick's Church, Kinmount, for Leonard Collins, of Toronto. He died in his 53rd year after a lengthy illness in Toronto General Hospital.

Son of the late Michael Collins and Margaret O'Brien, Mr. Collins was born in Galway township. An amateur photographer, he lived for 18 years in Weston, then later in Toronto.

Mr. Collins is survived by two brothers, Lorne of Kinmount, and Jack of Edmonton, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Doherty, of Edmonton.

The funeral was held from the home of his brother, Lorne Collins, Kinmount, to St. Patrick's Church. Burial was at St. Patrick's cemetery in Kinmount.

Pallbearers were all nephews: John, James, Leo, Theodore and Frank Collins, and Lester Hickey.

Television Audience Asked Aid Police

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 16 (AP) — The television audience in the Miami area Tuesday night was asked to help in the search for Mrs. Huguette Lemay, 21-year-old Montreal beauty who has been missing since Jan. 4.

Raymond Daoust, brother of the missing woman, appeared on station WTJV to describe Mrs. Lemay and show pictures of her.

He said he hoped someone in the audience might have seen her and would report it. Several persons have reported seeing a person of her description on the Tamiami Trail west of Miami recently.

Sheriff's deputy James O. Barker of Monroe County, heading the investigation, said there were no new developments in the case.

Mrs. Lemay and her husband, George, 28, were fishing from a bridge on the highway to Key West 12 days ago when she went to their convertible to change clothes. She has not been heard from since.

Mill For Firemen Stalls Lindsay Council

LINDSAY, Jan. 16 (ENS). — This town's fire chief, Alex Wylie, requested three new firemen at Monday night's meeting of the town council.

Chief Wylie stated that with the new regulations in Ontario governing firemen they could only work 56 hours a week instead of 72. They had to have two days a week off and to keep two men on duty at all times, he needed three more firemen.

Finance chairman Ald. Burrows hurriedly pointed out that the hiring of three more men would add another mill to the tax rate. The request was referred to a committee.

Premier To Open Fire School

LINDSAY, Jan. 16 — (ENS) — Plans are now under way for the 8th Regional Fire School under the auspices of the Fire Services Division of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office. The school will be held all next week in the Lindsay Armouries and will be officially opened by the Hon. Leslie Frost and W. J. Scott, the Ontario Fire Marshal. The syllabus of training is to include all phases of fire fighting and a special group of pictures will be shown next Thursdey evening to merchants, interested citizens and to the school members. On Friday, oil fires will be ignited on a street in the south-west section of the town and a practical demonstration will be staged. Almost 50 men from all over this district are expected to attend the school. Invitations have been sent to such centres as Peterborough, Bowmanville, Port Hope, Cobourg, Campbellford, Haliburton, Minden, Fenelon Falls and Cannington.

Europe Needs Armored Units Pearkes' Belief

OTTAWA, Jan. 16 (CP).—Canada should have sent hard-hitting armored units to Europe rather than an infantry brigade, Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, Progressive Conservative military critic, said Tuesday night.

Elaborating on remarks he has made about the makeup of the 27th Brigade in Germany, Gen. Pearkes, member of Parliament for Nanaimo, said:

"Canada's offer of an infantry brigade is a remarkable case of sending coals to Newcastle."

Europe has lots of men available for infantry soldiering, he contended in a speech prepared for delivery over the CBC's free-time political broadcast, entitled "The Nation's Business."

Need Mobile Units

Europe needed "highly-mobile, hard-hitting units."

He said, too, that his recent months in Europe as a delegate to the United Nations General Assembly have led to these conclusions:

1. Danger of war this year has receded, but tension is great in the economic field.

2. Despite the "depressing outward appearances" arising from UN's acid debates, "I am inclined to think that a better understanding (between Russia and the west) has been reached, and that results will eventually accrue. . . . All nations have made it clear that their people dread war and that the armament race is imposing such burdens of taxation that no improvement in living standards can be achieved."

For Quick Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can soothe a bad winter cough, when you try this well known recipe. It gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money and you'll find it very pleasant.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water until dissolved. No cooking needed—no trouble at all. Or use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a 16 oz. bottle. Fill up with your syrup and you have 16 ounces of medicine that will surprise you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This home mixture takes right hold of a severe cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its soothing effect on throat irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Demand Senator Should Account For Refusal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—Senator George Aiken (rep. Vt.) says senator Tom Connally (Dem. Tex.) should be "called to account" for refusing to let the Senate Foreign Relations Committee consider St. Lawrence seaway and power legislation.

Connally, from seaway-hating Texas, is up for re-election this year. He heads the committee through which any seaway bill must pass before reaching the senate floor.

"If the great chairman would let the committee consider the bill," Aiken told a reporter, "I am sure it would be approved. But no, he says it won't be considered."

Aiken said he regarded Connally's attitude as "very unfriendly" toward Canada.

"What's the use of talking about international co-operation," Aiken asked," when we, through failure to approve seaway legislation, continue to hamstring our best neighbor?"

Aiken, like many others in Washington, is convinced that Canada is not bluffing in its determination to build an all-Canadian waterway.

Canada last month authorized construction. But it left open an opportunity for the United States to join the project.

Aiken, along with senator Homer Ferguson (Rep. Mich) and others, hopes Congress will drop its opposition.

"I cannot see," Ferguson told the senate last week, "how a country like the United States can meekly allow a forfeiture of responsibility and control over this vital avenue of commerce into the very heart of our continent.

"We cannot, we must not, let this opportunity slide by default."

There are no announced plans by the House of Representatives public works committee to resume consideration of the legislation. Last October this committee pigeon-holed until 1952 further action on seaway bills.

Talk has been circulating that "something important" may come from the White House soon concerning the St. Lawrence development.

The main speculation is that maybe President Truman will give his blessing to New York's long-standing request to undertake, with Ontario, the 2,200,000-horsepower hydro-electric development in the international rapids section of the river.

RESCUE EFFORTS FAILED — Silent onlookers circled rescue crews on a riding rake as they were about to enter shaft of McGregor coal mine at Stellarton, N.S., where 19 miners died in an explosion and fire deep underground.

CARRY MINE VICTIMS—Saddened fellow-workers had the grim task of carrying bodies of 19 miners who were killed when an underground explosion blasted McGregor coal mine at Stellarton, N.S. It was the worst mine disaster in Canada since 1941.

Charges Ottawa Hampering Food Industry

QUEBEC, Jan. 16 —(CP)—The Federal Government is hindering the expansion of the food processing industry, E. M. Smart of Collingwood, Ont., president of the Canadian Food Processor Association, said today.

In speech prepared for delivery at the association's fifth annual convention here, he said:

"We sometimes think that the attitude of our Federal Government is not conductive to the expansion of the food processing industry. This is difficult to understand, for our climate is such that year-round productivity is impossible. Due to our winters it is necessary to import large quantities of fruits and vegetables.

"If our industry could expand in such a way that a larger crop could be grown and processed we might quite easily effect a saving for our country's dollar revenues."

The $200,000,000 industry was being denied adequate depreciation on new machinery and buildings and other special considerations by the government, he said.

Ask Special Category

Following a petition by the industry, the government recently relaxed its regulation on machinery and buildings purchased or contracted for before April 11. But this wasn't entirely satisfactory and the association proposed once again to petition the government to place the industry in the essential category, thus qualifying it for full depreciation.

He told delegates Canada "is just begining to blossom into full flower of nationhood."

"During the last half-century Canada has ceased to be a provincial outpost of Europe. She has become an important participant in world affairs, and will become even greater if allowed to develop freely. Our industry must not sell Canada short. Surely it is better to have a surplus of processed food than a shortage."

Premier Duplessis is expected to address the closing banquet Friday night.

GRIM VIGIL—Nineteen miners were killed when an underground explosion ripped through McGregor coal mine at Stellarton, N.S., Monday. Relatives and friends gathered at the pithead in late afternoon and through part of the night in the hope some men might have survived. The tragedy was worst mine disaster in Canada since 1941.

Request Justice To Solve Point

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP)—Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel Tuesday was asked to decide if the crown has the right to indict a man for theft after a magistrate has decided at a preliminary hearing that there was not enough evidence to support the charge.

Alfred Ecclestone, 40, well-known softball pitcher, and John Edward Dalton were charged with theft and receiving after 30 to 35 radios were taken from a radio plant. A magistrate discharged them on the theft charge for lack of evidence.

The crown began proceedings to obtain an indictment by a grand jury on the theft charge and defence counsel sought a motion restraining the action. Mr. Justice LeBel said: "I hope I will be able to render my decision before long."

A jury to try Ecclestone and Dalton on the charge of receiving stolen radios is scheduled to be chosen Thursday, with the trial set for Jan. 21.

Doesn't Think Parents Should Do Homework

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP)—Z. S. Phimister, superintendent of Toronto public schools, said Tuesday night that parents should not help their children too much with homework. Teachers were trained to do the job.

Not all children have the same ability, he told a home and school association. "The parents say to the children, 'Why don't you do as well as your cousin?' It's the same as asking me why I don't do as well as Einstein."

Jet Airliner Due In Autumn

AUCKLAND, NZ, Jan. 16 — (Reuters)—The first jet airliner to link New Zealand with North America is due here in mid-September, two executives of the Canadian Pacific Airlines, R. B. Phillips and W. V. Riley, announced today.

Phillips and Riley, who are on their way to Sydney, Australia, are surveying the route of the initial jet airliner.

The jet will cut the present time on the Sydney-Honolulu leg of the journey to 12 hours. It will average 500 miles an hour on the hop between Auckland and Sydney.

Both airline executives predicted that the full route would be flown by an even faster second version of the Comet by 1954 in time for the Empire games in Vancouver.

St. Lawrence Drops Families Return Home

MONTREAL, Jan. 16 (CP) — The St. Lawrence river today dropped back within its banks after spreading over low land near several communities on the north shore east of here. Families who fled to higher ground were returning to their homes.

High temperatures during the last few days were credited with easing the flood, believed to have been caused by soft ice piling up in the river downstream from Montreal Island.

Everybody Out Of Sympathy With London Meter Strikers

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Jan. 16—(CP)—Few domestic disputes in Britain have resulted in greater unanimity of opinion than the strike of London Electricity Meter Readers, now in its second week. Everybody seems to be against the strikers.

The conflict crystallizes a feeling increasingly expressed here—that the post-war pendulum towards the super-welfare state may have swung a little too far. Now that the old days of grim-faced employers are on the way out, it is argued, workers must bear a greater responsibility.

The strike of the meter readers started nine days ago. Union spokesman claimed the employers had hired "snoopers" to check on the meter readers and had failed to notify the unions.

Had To Investigate

Replied the employers, the London Electricty Board: the snoopers" were investigators, hired to check complaints that some of the meter readers, who necessarily work on their own, were knocking off at lunchtime and spending the rest of the day at home or in restaurants.

W. Hall, chairman of the central strike committee, then gave what has become a standard reply in post-war disputes: he said the board was trying to use "one or two cases of alleged malpractice" to try to create redundancy.

British editorial opinion was overwhelmingly against the 3,000 strikers. Although the meter readers earn less than £7 a week, lower than the national average in British industry, it was widely felt some action should be taken if the board's charges were accurate.

The Manchester Guardian said the strike seemed a "symptom of sickness" in the welfare state Britain has built up since the Second World War.

Uneasy Memorial

A. J. Cummings, political correspondent of The Liberal News Chronicle, concluded that present-day disputes are a legacy of old bitterness, an "uneasy memorial" of the past.

A similar view, not relating to any specific labor problem, was expressed by French philosopher Bertrand De Jouvenel in a recent newspaper article. De Jouvenel said Britain's present economic emergency arises largely from a contradiction between internal practices and external necessities —the desire to work less hard at home and the need to pay more for imports.

"The paradox of the British situation," writes De Jouvenel, "is that while John Bull, the nation as a whole, finds he must do more merely to obtain as much, the members of John Bull's family, the individual members of the nation, have grown convinced that they should get more to do the same thing."

Aussie Engineers Turning Lovely Isle Into Airport

By LOUIS L. LECK.

SYDNEY, Australia— (CP). — Australian airmen and engineers have moved into the lonely Cocos Islands, beauty spot in the middle of the Indian Ocean, to make a strategic new air base and stopping place for aircraft flying between Britain and Australia.

Cocos Islands, 1,700 miles northwest of Perth, Western Australia, have the world's most perfect coral atoll and what some people think the world's best climate. And they had no automobiles or newspapers or taxes.

John Clunies Ross and Alexander Hare founded the Cocos settlements in 1827. Clunies Ross wanted to grow cocoanuts in peace and quiet and Hare wanted a place to settle with the many wives he had collected from various parts of the world. But the wives grew tired of the lonely islands and most of them left with visiting seamen.

Clunies Ross brought his one wife to the island, raised a family, brought native labor from Indonesia, and founded a benevolent kingdom. For the first 50 years he didn't even pay the natives wages.

First Naval Victory

It was a cable station which first brought the rude outside world to Cocos. The German raider Emden sent a landing party ashore to wreck the station. The operator sent an SOS first, though and Australia had her first naval victory when in 1914 the cruiser Sydney sank the Emden. Its zwreckage still lies off Cocos Island.

In the Second World War it was the Japanese who shelled the cable station. Later the Allies moved in. Cocos was to become a British bomber base for Admiral Louis Mountbatten's attack on the Japanese in Malaya and Indonesia.

British troops cut down 21,900 cocoanut palms to make airstrips, and paid £4 per palm compensation to the Clunies Ross family. Later more than 10,000 British, Canadian, Australian and Indian servicemen manned the new air base, known as "Tiger Force."

The atom bomb in Japan stopped it all. Only a few bombers ever took off on operations and then the Cocos base folded up. A few civil planes made survey flights and when the last flew there in 1951, they found the one-time air base almost a rotting, overgrown ruin.

Australia still keenly remembers what happened to her outside air routes in the Second World War. When the Japanese moved into Indonesia and Malaya, civil planes had to make a 3,500-mile non-stop trip from Perth to Ceylon on their way to Britain or the Middle East. At her request, therefore, Britain handed over administration of Cocos Island to Australia recently. The Australian government will lease 380 acres from the Clunies Ross family for the air base. Already hundreds of airmen are busy rebuilding, at a huge cost, a new station and air strips.

The natives, who originally came from Indonesia and are mostly Malay types, have been leaving the islands steadily, finding better paid work in Borneo. Under a long-standing Clunies Ross law, none who leaves may ever go back. And although the present John Clunies Ross is doubling their pay and putting in free electric light to their homes, they are still leaving. Even an island paradise does not remain that way these days.

STREETS WERE FLOODED in downtown Vallejo, California, recently to the extent that two sportsmen, Al Trombetta, left, and Lew Steffens, hauled out their boat, set out decoys and put in a little "hunting" until the water receded. Streets were blocked and traffic stalled for hours after the storm.

16 Christian Girls Sold Into Slavery

MANILA, Jan. 16 (AP)—Army troops freed 16 Christians sold into slavery at the harems of Moro tribal chieftains in the interior of Mindaao Island, the Philippines news service said Tuesday.

The slaves were discovered during an army drive to collect illegal firearms. Some were teenage girls forced to become extra wives to tribal chieftains. They were married under Mohammedan law which permits as many as four wives.

The agency said the 16 were kidapped in other areas by fierce Moro tribesmen.

Ground Fire Taking Toll

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 — (AP) —Eighty-seven per cent of United Nations plane losses in combat over Korea have been the result of ground fire, Air Force Secretary Thomas F. Finletter says.

In an interview published in the current issue of Look magazine Finletter said that in the period through last Dec. 18, the United Nations lost 384 aircraft to enemy air and ground fire, a figure which did not include carrier-based planes of the US navy or ordinary operational losses. In the same period, Communist combat losses were 320 planes.

"We have lost a few more aircraft than the Communists," he said, "principally because we have beendoing more fighting than the Communists."

"When it comes to air combat, our planes are away ahead. For example, through Dec. 18, Air Force F-86s destroyed 129 MIG-15s while only 14 F-86s were destroyed by the enemy."

US Just Fails To Trap Frank Costello Once More

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—The US Government failed by an eyelash Tuesday in another attempt to trap Frank Costello, this time for contempt of the Senate.

A tired, deadlocked jury stood 11-1 for conviction when it finally gave up after 23 hours and 20 minutes.

It was so hopelessly split, however, that it couldn't agree on a single one of 11 contempt charges. They were lodged against Costello as a result of last year's Kefauver crime committee hearings.

The charges were based on Costello's refusal to answer questions and for twice walking out on the Senate committee.

US Attorney Myles J. Lane said the government will try Costello again as soon as possible.

Costello, who faced up to 11 years in prison and $11,000 in fines if convicted Tuesday, was asked by newspapermen if he was happy about the hung jury.

"I have never been unhappy," Costello replied, keeping a poker-face.

His defence lawyer, tall, grey George Wolf, said:

"I'll be very happy to retry this case whenever I'm able to."

Wolf won a deadlock without ever putting a single witness on the stand in Costello's behalf. His defence Tuesday took only a very brief time.

It was the fourth time in 25 years that Costello has sidestepped federal government attempts to put him behind bars on one charge or another. He has faced rum-running, stolen jewel and tax charges.

The only time he ever tripped was in 1915, when the State of New York jailed him for 10 months for carrying a gun. In his 20's then, Costello grew into a shadowy middle-aged underworld figure without ever going to prison again. He will be 61 years old Jan. 26.

Guild Elects Former Officers

APSLEY, Jan. 16 (ENS)—The annual meeting of the Women's Guild of St. George's Anglican Church was held at Mrs. W. Everett's with a good attendance.

Rescue Passengers On Stormbound Streamliner In US

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 17. (AP)—Passengers from the snowbound streamliner, City of San Francisco, came down out of their icy high Sierra prison today. Three and a half days of cold and hunger and waiting in mile-high Donner Pass were over for the 222 passengers and 32 members of the train crew. The refugees rode out on a plush Southern Pacific train toward San Francisco. They had made their way a quarter-mile from the trapped streamliner by foot and by weasel and snowcat to a cleared highway. Then they were taken by automobile to a nearby lodge for warm food and treatment.

And finally they boarded the relief train.

Several hundred spectators were at the Sacramento station despite a driving rain to cheer them as they passed at 12:33 am.

Two stretcher cases were taken off at Sacramento.

They are Mrs. Frank Bernitz, 61, of Decorah, Iowa, and Evelyn Arnone, 21, of Chicago. Mrs. Bernitz had an arm injury and Miss Arnone a possible respiratory infection.

Board Relief Train

The passengers, stranded from Sunday noon until late Wednesday, boarded the relief train at Emigrant Gap, about 150 miles northeast of San Francisco.

Broiled steaks and chicken were ready and free, it had been frankfurters and beans for breakfast.

Dr. Walter H. L. Roehll of Middletown, O., was praised by all:

"He saved our lives. Don't let him tell you he didn't."

Roehll and four nurses, all passengers, worked tirelessly treating some 60 persons overcome by fumes from a heating unit which was put into service after regular heating gave out Monday. Most of them brushed off the illness.

Roehll's only comment was:

"All I did was what I had to do."

Sang and Joked

In their imprisonment the passengers had figured out ways of passing time.

Women delegates to the Republican National Committee meeting in San Francisco passed out pins freely.

Nightly the chilled riders gathered in the club and dining cars to sing and joke. Favorite songs: "I've Been Working on the Railroad" and "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas."

Reds Charge Allies Bombed Kaesong Zone

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Communists today charged that an Allied plane dropped a bomb in the neutral zone near Kaesong, and UN investigators were shown a deep hillside crater on the outskirts.

The crater was eight feet deep and about 25 feet wide.

Six Koreans from a nearby village told investigators they heard planes overhead before the bomb fell.

The Reds did not report there had been any damage.

The accusation was made at Thursday's "no-progress" truce talks.

The Reds sharply criticized Allied negotiators for allowing two representatives of the international Red Cross to enter the Panmunjom area Wednesday and Thursday.

Won't Have Red Cross

The Communists said they consider it "unnecessary to receive representatives of the Red Cross."

Both sub-committees working on armistice terms spent the day wranging over issues which have deadlocked the talks for weeks.

An Allied briefing officer said that for the delegates discussing prisoner exchange "it was merely a matter of plowing over the same old ground with the same results—no results."

Rear-Admiral R. E. Libby asked Chinese Col. Tsai Cheng-Wan for whom he was speaking Wednesday when he said that Red China will "fight to the end" if any Chinese soldiers in Allied hands are repatriated to Chinese Nationalist Formosa.

Tsai gave no direct answer.

Libby accused the Communists of violating the Geneva convention by failing to mark their prisoner-of-war camps. He suggested that safeguards be set up to avoid any future attacks on North Korean prison camps.

Allied headquarters said planes were bombing military targets in the Kangdong area Monday night, but it had no way of knowing if the prison camp was accidentally attacked since the Reds never have disclosed the location of their camps.

In the sub-committee discussing supervision of a truce, Maj.-Gen. Claude B. Ferenbaugh, told the Reds construction of airfields near the battle line would give them increased air power even though no additional planes were brought into Korea.

Chinese Maj.-Gen. Hsieh Fang dismissed the argument with a statement that aircraft are the 'basic' component of air power and the Communists have agreed to prohibit the movement of planes into Korea during an armistice.

Walter Briggs Dies In Florida

DETROIT, Jan. 17 (AP). — Walter O. Briggs, 74, industrialist and owner of the Detroit Tigers of the American Baseball League, died at his winter home in Miami, Fla., today.

Briggs was head of the Briggs Manufacturing Company of Detroit, maker of automobile car bodies. It is one of the major firms of the auto industry.

He had been owner of the baseball team for many years.

Briggs was reported to have been stricken Sunday with a kidney infection. Since Monday night he had been confined to bed.

Army Shies Away From Edible Button

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 (CP)—The Canadian Army modestly shied away today from any false fame about inventing an edible button.

A spokesman, referring to reports that Canadian Arctic parkas issued to British troops in Korea are called "button-soup parkas," advised the Tommies that it's all a gag. They may be able to boil the buttons and eat them but they wouldn't like them.

Tokyo reports said the buttons are made of a waxy, plastic substance called polyethylene which can be boiled down and eaten but it won't do the eater any good.

The army did try to invent an edible candle, the spokesman said, but that didn't work out either. As for buttons, the army never did try to find a button anyone could beneficially eat.

Otto Strasser Files Suit For Citizenship

KARLSRUHE, Germany, Jan. 17 (Reuters).—Otto Strasser, former Nazi brownshirt purged by Hitler in 1932 and now in Canada, has filed suit with the West German Constitutional Court to try to regain his German citizenship.

Strasser, 53, has been an exile for 18 years—the last eight in Bridgetown, NS. He has failed six times to get travel documents for Germany.

Officials here said today he also proposed to the court that, pending the hearing of his plea, the West German Consulate-General in Canada be instructed to issue a visa for him to visit Germany.

His plea was based on Article 116 of the constitution under which Germans who lost their citizenship during the Nazi regime on political, racial or religious grounds could have it restored on request.

Truce Talks Failure, Russia Says

UN Unreasonable In Demands Vishinsky Declares

PARIS, Jan. 17. (AP)—Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia today ruled out any possibility of settling the Korean war in the field because of what he termed "unreasonable demands presented by the American command."

He said these demands "can give no hope for a successful conclusion" of the truce negotiations at Panmunjom.

In a slashing speech before the United Nations' political committee, Vishinsky called United States Gen. James Van Fleet a "cannibal" unfitted to conduct the talks.

He also accused Saate Secretary Dean Acheson of not wanting any form of atomic control and doing his best to undermine Russian attempts to get it.

Sent to Commission

Nevertheless, the committee sent Vishinsky's atomic program to the newly-created disarmament commission for intensive study. The vote on a British-French-American resolution suggesting this course was 53 to 5, with two abstentions.

The committee also threw out Vishinsky's peace plan, calling for a big-five pact to include Communist China. It was a paragraph-by-paragraph vote on the Vishinsky omnibus plan advancing Soviet proposals for disarmament and ending world tensions.

The votes followed a two-hour tirade by Vishinsky in which he shouted that "only hypocrites" could want to leave the Korean truce talks in the hands of Van Fleet and UN military leaders.

The Soviet foreign minister quoted the Associated Press as reporting that General Van Fleet was "perfectly satisfied" with war destruction in North Korea and the critical state of the civilian population.

"Those are the statements of a blood-thirsty man — of a cannibal," Vishinsky declared.

"This is what those who insist on military negotiations are covering up."

Stole One Paper May Be Deported

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 17 (AP)—Theft of a three-cent newspaper in Lewiston 22 years ago is making an Auburn man worry about deportation to his native land.

Delphia Rheaume petitioned today for pardon. Rheaume was convicted in 1930 of stealing one copy of The Lewiston Daily Sun, then sold at three cents. He paid costs of $5.50.

The petition said that Rheaume recently visited Canada and was told by United States immigration officials that he can be deported because of his record.

Hearing was set for Feb. 7.

Carlsen Given Ticker-Tape Welcome Home

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP) — Capt. Henrik Kurt Carlsen rode up Broadway today amid waves of cheers for his stubborn courage.

Over and over came the shout: "Well done."

It was New York City's rousing salute to a man whose dauntless love of his ship had made him a hero to the world.

Clouds of confetti and streamers of ticker-tape snowed from skyscraper windows as Carlsen began his journey up the big city's traditional "canyon of heroes."

Thousands roared their tribute to the modest little skipper, who for 16 days defied the storms of the Atlantic in a vain battle to bring his listing and cracked ship, the Flying Enterprise, to shore.

He lost his ship, but won a high place in the annals of seafaring men.

Plans Changed

As the car carried him along the bunting-draped street, he grinned, nodded and waved. He originally intended to walk the route but plans were changed suddenly. There was no explanation.

Behind him, in another car, rode his wife, Agnes, tears in her eyes.

"It seems unreal," Carlsen said. "It doesn't seem like I quite fit into it. You know, I've never seen one of these things before, except in movies."

The procession began at the Battery at Manhattan's southern tip.

The deafening honk and roar of ship whistles filled the air. Fireboats shot plumes of water skyward.

A cutter, escorted by 18 other vessels, had brought Carlsen across the harbor from Brooklyn.

The 37-year-old captain, of Woodbridge, NJ, arrived here before dawn by plane from London.

Father and Son Meet Again After 19-Year Separation

Practically strangers to each other, a Peterborough father and his 19-year-old son, whom the father had not seen since he was a month old, were reunited this week. Sih Sham Mac, manager of the Paris cafe, and his son, Mah Chu-fon of Canton, China, are together again.

Mah Chu-fon arrived in Peterborough on Monday to finish a journey which began more than nine months ago in China, and brought him to Hong Kong and finally Canada.

Sih Sham Mac last saw his son in 1933 during a year's visit back to China to see his wife and daughter. During that time Mah Chu-fon was born and a month later his father returned to Canada and Peterborough.

Sih Sham Mac had to recognize his son by a few pictures when they met in Toronto's Union Station. Out of the large crowd of Chinese boys destined for Canadian cities, the father picked his son out of the group, recognizing him by his almost six-foot height, and his 160 pounds.

Gets To Hong Kong

Last May, Sih Sham Mac applied to the Canadian immigration authorities to bring his only son to Canada. After visiting many Communist departments in China and obtaining good references the boy was allowed to go to Hong Kong in June.

There he waited for six months before permission to come to Canada was granted. The boy's physical build made officials suspicious of his age and after months of writing letters and visiting government departments, they were satisfied with the proof of age.

Along with 140 other Chinese boys, he began the trip to Canada on December 19, and the ship docked in Vancouver on January 6. After the train journey from Vancouver to Toronto, son and father were reunited.

Shortly after Sih Sham Mac applied to bring his son to Canada, he also applied to bring his daughter, Mah Chung Gee from Canton.

The 22-year-old woman has been looking after the Mah home and land in China since their mother died eight years ago. When she comes to Canada, the home and land will probably be confiscated by the Communists.

Mah Chu-fon's future in Peterborough is still undecided, but his father is arranging private English lessons for him as one of the first steps. His elementary and secondary school education was obtained in China.

Now that his son is here, Sih Sham Mac's efforts will be concentrated on bringing his daughter to Canada.

Find Bonfire On Rail Tracks

TORONTO, Jan. 17 (CP).—City and railway police said today they are seeking to establish who set an eight-foot bonfire in the centre of the Canadian National Railways tracks at Woodbine Avenue in Toronto's east end Wednesday night.

The fire was spotted by engineer Ed Weeks of an employees' train. Conductor Ken McDowell ordered an emergency stop at Danforth station, near the city's eastern limits, and railway men signalled an incoming Montreal-Toronto flyer to stop.

McDowell said that when the fire was first noticed a group of men was standing nearby. He said crates and two-by-fours appeared to be burning.

Police Inspector Miller Watson said he believes the fire was set by boyish pranksters.

Find 2 Dead From Fumes

SMITHVILLE, Ont., Jan. 17 — (CP).—The bodies of an elderly brother and sister, victims of coal gas fumes, were found in their home in this Hamilton district community Wednesday.

David Griffin, 79, and Mrs. William Evans, 77, had not been seen by neighbors since Sunday and were believed overcome by fumes Monday.

Mr. Griffin's son Andrew, who lives in Caistor township, was called by neighbors and he discovered his father's body at the kitchen table, his head resting on his arms. Mrs. Evans was found on a bedroom floor.

Police said a natural gas heater was "going full blast" when they entered but that a coal fire in a kitchen stove had been smothered out. Gas fumes were still noticeable.

The victims were born in Houghton township, Norfolk county.

Warns Against Outlawing Atomic Bombs Under Present Conditions

Says Britain Needs Equipment, Steel, Not Asking For Money; Predicts China Will Throw Off Communism

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17. (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today pledged to Congress that Britain will do her part in defending Europe, and will join in a "resolute and effective" response should new Communist aggression break out in the Far East. In a momentous address to a joint Senate-House session, the British leader declared: "We take our stand at your side." Churchill, speaking slowly from notes, told Congress that Britain is "very glad" that "you do not allow the Chinese anti-Communists on Formora to be invaded."

He predicted that in time China will throw off Communism.

By implication at least, these remarks moved British policy in the Far East closer to that of the US.

Britain has recognized Communist China, while the US still recognizes the Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek.

In other highlights, Churchill:

1. Said he believes that "by accumulating deterrents of all kinds against aggression," the free countries and the world will be able to avoid another world war.

2. Admonished that the US should not agree to outlawing atomic bombs under present world conditions. "Be careful, above all things, not to let go of the atomic weapon until you are sure and more than sure that the means of preserving peace are in your hands," he said.

Need International Force

Just before his caution about the A-bomb, Churchill had said that the most "effective deterrent against a third world war" is the "valiant resolution" of a well-armed international force, "rather than the awful secret which has been wrested from nature."

"Supreme determination" against another war would be the most effective guaranty of victory, he said.

Churchill, in black suit and dotted bow tie, delivered his address from what appeared to be notes. No advance text was given to reporters.

Aimed perhaps as much at the American people as at the legislators, the address was carried by all major US television and radio networks.

His words also were relayed to Britain and to Commonwealth countries for re-broadcasts.

The Voice of America—official US overseas radio—said it would broadcast translations in 46 languages to all parts of the world.

For Churchill, the address was a climactic point to his American journey, undertaken to seek

$50,000 Stradivarius Washed Up On Beach

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Jan. 17 (AP).—A Stradivarius violin valued at $50,000 was found on the beach Wednesday less than 24 hours after it was swept from its owner's grasp and carried out to sea by flood waters.

A beach stroller found the case. The instrument inside was water-soaked.

Violinist Sascha Jacobsen, who lost the instrument when he was knocked off his feet in a flood Tuesday night, said he hoped the "Strad" could be repaired.

Strikers Ask New Meeting With TTC Men

TORONTO, Jan. 17 — (CP).—Striking transit workers today requested another meeting with the Toronto Transportation Commission in an attempt to settle the wage dispute, now in its 14th day.

The meeting was scheduled for 2:30 pm on the same "neutral ground" as Wednesday's talks which ended in deadlock. This was the Builders' Exchange on upper Bay Street.

Union officials Wednesday conferred with the three TTC commissioners whose presence, the union said, was not necessary at this afternoon's meeting. The commission's negotiating committee will attend.

A deadlock over wage demands by the striking Street Railway Employees' Union (AFL-TLC) remained unbroken after 4½ hours of discussion between the union and representatives of the Toronto Transportation Commission.

A terse "no comment" was all either side had to say after the meetings broke up. An indication that something new may have entered the talks was given by Mayor Allan Lamport Wednesday night, although no one said whether there would be further negotiations.

The Mayor said the length of the session was "most encouraging."

"What is even more pleasing is the fact that both groups did not

Down 3 Jets Without Shot

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 17 (AP)—American jet pilots were credited with downing three Communist jets today, two of them without firing a shot. They also destroyed three Communist tanks near Kaesong, former site of armistice talks.

Two acrobatic Sabre jet pilots were credited with the gunless air victory. The US Fifth Air Force said they outmanoeuvred two MIG-15s so badly the Red jets apparently went "into a high speed stall from which they were unable to recover."

The Red pilots bailed out and their planes crashed. The third MIG was shot down. Another Red jet was damaged in a series of air battles.

The Communists charged that American planes early today attacked the Kaesong protected zone, headquarters of the Red truce delegation.

Canada Gets In Wrong

Move Win German Friends Embarrassing For Allies

MANCHESTER, England, Jan. 17 (CP)—Canada's frank attempt to win friends and influence people in Germany may prove an embarrassment to British and United States occupation forces, it was indicated today.

In a dispatch from Hannover, Germany, present headquarters of Canada's 27th Brigade, a Manchester Guardian correspondent said Canadian efforts to win the friendship of Western Germans—specifically Canada's insistence on paying her own way—might result in a call for British and Americans to do likewise.

The correspondent noted that Canadians buy German marks at the rate of 12 marks to the pound (four to the dollar) while British and Americans, as occupying powers, pay for goods and services in what are known as "cheap marks"—the special rate of 40 to the pound.

With Germans now clamoring for an end of occupation costs, German officials in the Hannover area "intend to cite the example of the Canadians and to use this as a lever in getting action," the correspondent adds.

The article makes two other points:

1. Canadians did not bring wives and families to Hannover, thus preventing an added strain on housing facilities in a city 60 per cent of which is claimed to have been destroyed in wartime bombing.

2. It will be difficult for British and Americans to criticize Canadian actions in Germany because during the war the first Canadian army "sustained casualties as heavy as those of any other power."

Top Red Officers Fired In Battleship Delays

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 17 — (AP).—The Meunchner Merkur claimed today that failures in the Russian battleship construction program prompted Premier Stalin to fire top officers of the Red fleet.

The West German newspaper, which has sources among Soviet military deserters, said Stalin made an inspection of fleet installations recently.

Admiral Ivan S. Yumashev was relieved last year as Navy Minister because completion of two new 35,000-ton battleships, "Stalin" and "Soviet Union," was overdue, the Merkur said.

Yumashev's successor is Vice-Admiral Nikolai G. Kutzetsov.

The Merkur said other officers dismissed included Vice-Admiral N. I. Vinogradov and Admiral F. S. Oktiabrsgy, commanders of the Baltic and Black Sea fleets, and several leading naval engineers.

British Press Bristles

Annoyed Japan to Recognize Chiang Gov't

LONDON, Jan. 17 (CP)—The British press bristled with quiet indignation today at word that the Japanese government will, in effect, recognize Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists as the government of the Republic of China.

The British argument is that such a policy will cut Japan off from her natural market on the Chinese mainland, force her to seek trade outlets elsewhere and provide a potent point for Communist propaganda.

It is taken for granted by commentators here that Premier Yoshida's decision to make a treaty with the Chinese Nationalists and not with the Chinese Communists resulted from pressure—pressure which finds its origin in such sources as the "China Lobby" of the United States.

News of the Japanese decision came Wednesday with the publication of a letter from the Japanese prime minister. In it Yoshida proclaims the readiness of his government to re-establish normal relations between Japan and the Chinese Nationalist government. The letter is a statement of intentions, since Japan cannot negotiate a treaty with Chiang Kai-shek until the peace treaty signed at San Francisco last September comes into operation.

Basic Conflict

The Japanese letter throws into clear relief a basic conflict in Anglo-American relations. It arises from a variety of historical and other circumstances which enables both sides to make out an apparently unchallengeable case for recognizing either Communist hCina or Nationalist China, as the case may be.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian speaks of the United States applying pressure upon Japan "for a gesture which would appease the China Lobby in the (US) Senate" and in an accompanying editorial cautions Americans that when Japan attains sovereignty her attitude may be little different.

The News Chronicle, also Liberal, says in a front-page story it is felt that Japan's new freedom is "the freedom of a puppet." The Daily Express, a right-wing paper, said the Japanese move has "disappointed British diplomats."

Canada Imports 17 Million Pounds Of Butter

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 — (CP) — The Federal government announced Wednesday a decision to buy another 2,500,000 pounds of butter from New Zealand raising to 17,000,000 the amount Canada is importing during this winter season.

The Agriculture Department said the Agricultural Products Board has been authorized to take up 2,500,000 pounds of the 5,000,000-pound option it holds within the New Zealand Dairy Products Marketing Commission. The butter will be delivered in Canada in late February or early March.

Officials said the price to be paid will be approximately 62 cents a pound laid down in this country. This means the butter will retail for about 70 cents.

The purchase will bring to 12,500,000 pounds the amount the government imported this winter from New Zealand, Australia, Sweden and Denmark to bolster domestic supplies. In addition, the trade has imported 4,500,000 pounds, bringing the grand total to 17,000,000.

Butter Stocks Higher

The department noted that butter stocks at Jan. 1 were more than 6,000,000 pounds higher than the corresponding date a year ago. However, last year some 5,000,000 pounds had to be imported during February and March. The government decided to bring in another 2,500,000 pounds to make sure there is enough butter to go around.

Canadian production and consumption during December followed the pattern of recent months.

Production during the last three months has been 7.1 per cent higher than the corresponding period a year ago while consumption has been 3.8 per cent lower.

"It seems clear," the department said, "that the new importation, together with present stocks and expected production, will provide adequate supplies to meet Canadian demand."

The new butter production season opens in May.

Addresses Congress For Third Time

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Winston Churchill today addresses the United States Congress for the third time as prime minister of Britain.

Both previous speeches were made during the Second World War.

On Dec. 26, 1941—19 days after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor—he pledged Anglo-American solidarity in the Japanese war.

On May 19, 1943, he also discussed before Congress the war in the Far East.

After the war, Churchill visited the US twice as a private citizen. On March 5, 1946, at Fulton, Mo., he coined the "Iron Curtain" expression. His last visit here culminated in a major address at Massachusetts Institute of Technology on March 31, 1949.

Truce Talks

Vishinsky's quotation was a distortion of a remark Van Fleet made in an interview January 13. Van Fleet said the Communists were finding the war a "terrible drain" and needed and wanted the armistice. Then he added:

"I am satisfied the northern part of Korea is so badly destroyed that the Reds lack food, clothing and shelter and the population of North Korea is in very critical condition."

His usage of the word "satisfied" was in the sense of understandwing the situation, not fulfilment of a desire.

Vishinsky was discussing an omnibus Russian peace plan which included as one of its features a demand that the UN vote for the withdrawal of opposing forces in Korea from the 38th Parallel and the evacuation of foreign troops from the peninsula.

Warns Against

closer understanding and ties with the United States now that his country had returned him to the leadership he exercised during the war.

The British Prime Minister has sought that tie in a series of conferences with President Truman. They are to have one more meeting Friday before Churchill leaves Washington on Saturday.

Churchill began his address by saying that all his conferences here were aimed so that "we can do our best for the common cause."

He said, "I have not come here to ask you for money."

But, quickly, he said that Britain must have American help if she is to meet the defence production goals it has set.

"It is for you to judge," he said, how much aid Britain should receive.

Uses Implication

By implication Churchill appealed for bi-partisan support of the foreign policy of the US in this presidential election year.

He said he learned through long experience not to mix in other people's political affairs, but that in Britain the people had developed a "bi-partisan habit of mind" by which they distinguish between the actions necessary to win political position and the issues essential "to the survival of the country."

He then paid tribute to the late Republican Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, an exponent of bi-partisanship in foreign affairs, and declared that "all great Americans should work together for the things that matter most."

Discussing the problems of the Middle East, Churchill proposed international control of the Suez Canal under the four-power sponsorship of Britain, France, Turkey and the US.

With regard to the present situation, in which Egypt and Britain have come to an open clash of arms, Churchill said.

"We do not seek to be the master of Egypt. We are there only as guardians of the commerce of the world."

Token Forces

Britain, he said, would welcome "token forces" in the Suez from the four-power interests as a means of establishing peace and international control of Suez.

Churchill said Britain cannot now bear the "whole burden" of Suez—"that has become an international rather than a national problem."

The Empire's power to influence the Middle East, he observed, was "far less today" than it was before Britain relinquished its hold on India.

Speaking of Britain's policy toard European rearmament, Churchill said:

"We stand together under General (Dwight D.) Eisenhower to defend the common cause against violent aggression.

"What matters most is not the form of fusion — or melding, a word I learned over here"—of a unified European army, "but the number of divisions and the strength of its armor and air force and weapons."

Denude Islands

"We in Britain," he said, "have denuded our islands of our military force to an extent I have never seen before."

He said "I cannot accept" the contention that "we are not doing our full duty."

British Commonwealth force, he said, are spread throughout the world and could not be concentrated in Europe.

He said he has long worked for a united Europe, "even a united states of Europe," and "it is my sincere hope and conviction that European unity will be achieved" and will not be limited to the nations now comprising the western European alliance.

France, he said, should lead Germany back into the family of nations. He added that a European army could never achieve its necessary strength without the inclusion of Germany.

Churchill referred to the Japanese peace treaty signed last year as an "extraordinary" development affecting the Far East and the possibility of world peace. He congratulated those who helped negotiate the pact.

Hopes Aggression Over

Turning to Southeast Asia, the Prime Minister said he feels sure conversations held between Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, and State Secretary Dean Acheson will place the problems of that area "in the proper setting."

Churchill expressed hope that a truce in Korea would not open the way for Communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

Of aid, Churchill said that he had come to the US to ask "not for gold, but for steel; not for favors but for equipment."

This is necessary, he said, not to aid British recovery—in which he expressed confidence—but to assist Britain in building her defences.

He does not ask aid, he emphasized, to "make life more comfortable" for Britons.

Churchill was greeted by thunderous cheers when he came before the legislators. In the packed galleries were diplomats of many countries.

President Truman, leaving the spotlight of the moment entirely to his visitor, was not present. But Mrs. Truman was in the presidential gallery.

He recalled an address he made at Fulton, Mo., and re-quoted in part the words he spoke then:

"Let no one underrate the abiding power of the British Empire."

He added: "I am very glad to say the same to you here today."

Many Changes

Churchill spoke of the many changes in international relationships that have developed since the war.

He noted that some former enemies now are allies and some former allies now are antagonistic.

Speaking of Russia, he said:

"It is not the fault of the Western Powers if a great gulf has opened between us."

Expressing confidence the Western world can meet any threat, he said that if the English-speaking countries combine their industry and science "there will be no quivering balance of power to offer temptation to aggression."

Churchill noted that the US had expected China to be one of the "Big Four" after the last war, and added:

"I was always a bit skeptical."

Thrown Off Yoke

The Prime Minister said that although Communism now controls the Chinese mainland, eventually he expects China to throw off Communism.

His audience laughed heartily when he quoted a Chinese proverb:

"The tail of China is large and will not be wagged."

Churchill said:

"I like that."

Churchill lauded the US for opposing Communism in the Far East and Communist Chinese aggression in Korea.

He said the US is "bearing nine-tenths or more of the burden in Korea which the United Nations has nominally assumed."

Churchill said the Western countries will not allow Formosa, the island stronghold of the Chinese Nationalists, to be taken.

New Storm Faces California State

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 17 — (AP)—The black mass of a new storm front rolled toward northern California today, threatening more rain and snow for areas already flooded and snowbound.

The five-day storm already has isolated towns, stranded the Southern Pacific streamliner City of San Francisco, disrupted transport and communications and sent hundreds of lowland residents from flooded homes.

Portola, Calif., railroad and lumber town of 4,000 high in the Sierra, was isolated and in critical condition until a Western Pacific emergency train bored in with medical supplies Wednesday.

A woman died in a gas explosion there and a nine-foot snowfall collapsed buildings and stranded seven buses carrying 248 persons.

Isolated communities in the Sierra reported food supplies running low and that some houses were buckling under the weight of snow that drifted as high as 40 feet. A torrential rain in Southern California took five lives, drove residents from low-lying homes and blocked highways and the two principal railroad routes to San Francisco.

Carlsen Given

Glowing with joy in the embrace of his wife and two children, the stocky little sea captain waved his gold-braided cap to a crowd of several hundred persons and told them:

"Fellow citizen, I cannot hope to tell you how I feel at this time because of the warm welcome you have given me. Thank you, thank you."

Hopes For Rest

To reporters, the 37-year-old Carlsen said he felt "a little older" and that he planned to "get a little rest and go to sea again."

He and his wife, Agnes, and their two youngsters, Sonia, 11, and Karin, 7, posed willingly for photographers.

Carlsen wore a new brass-buttoned uniform of a merchant marine captain.

Besides official city greeters led by Grover Whalen, he was met by his boss, Hans Isbrandtsen, owner of the ill-fated freighter Flying Enterprise.

The 6,711-ton vessel started to crack up in heavy Atlantic seas last Dec. 26. Three days later Carlsen was alone on the badly listing craft, having ordered the 40 crew members and 10 passengers to leave the ship and directing their rescue. One passenger later died.

Carlsen stayed alone on the nearly-capsized ship until Jan. 5, when he was joined by Mate Kenneth R. Dancy of the British salvage tug Turmoil. The tug towed the freighter for five days when a new gale snapped the towline about 30 miles of the coast of Falmouth, England.

Carlsen's "Atlantic luck" even let him down in his plane flight home. The plane was forced to turn back Tuesday because of engine trouble when about 280 miles off the shores of Ireland. Fog balked the scheduled landing at Newfoundland Wednesday and the plane came down Wednesday night at Moncton, NB.

Library Gets Lights From Old City Hall

The lights from the old city hall will be installed in the reading room of the Public Library in the near future.

The city council offered these lights to the library at a joint meeting of the property committees of the council and library board held in the city hall on Wednesday. The library committee accepted the offer.

Transfer of fluorescent lighting fixtures will be an economy of something less than $2,000.

Grant and Loucks made a survey of fixtures which might be continued in use at the Library at a cost of replacement of $293. Lighting efficiency at the Library will be doubled, it was said.

The new chairman, Ald. H. S. Longhurst, presided in his first session. It was proposed that the Council would pay the cost of substituting the Library lights.

Dairy Industry In Bad Shape Walsh Declares

MONTREAL, Jan. 17 (CP)—F. W. Walsh, deputy minister of agriculture for Nova Scotia, said Wednesday the Canadian dairy industry is sick.

In recent years, said Mr. Walsh addressing a meeting of the Federation of Dairy Farmers of Canada, the industry has shown an over-all loss.

Milk production per capita has been declining since 1941, he said. From a substantial net export position in 1941 it has declined to a point in 1951 where in terms of net equivalent, imports of dairy products are a little greater than exports.

There are fewer cows on the farms than there have been in 20 years, he said. Annual production of butter has decreased more than 38,000,000 pounds, down to the 1935-39 level when Canada's population was less than 80 per cent of what it is today.

Need New Ideas

"Policies which have already been accepted by a few of the most progressive farmers have played an important part in reducing costs of production and often improving the health of the herd.

"Progress on this line would be much greater if some of the 'sacred cows' of farm, crop and herd management, ideas which have been handed from father to son for generations, could be discarded."

So far as manufacturing, processing and marketing are concerned, said Mr. Walsh, many plants are not operating nearly as efficiently as they could.

Research and education in the field of dairy technology in Canada in too many cases had not been too readily accepted by plant operators.

The disputants themselves said nothing of any new proposals. They met in an atmosphere of secrecy—the first face-to-face conference between the men and the three TTC commissioners since last July. The Mayor himself called the meeting.

Previously the commissioners conducted contract negotiations through lesser officials.

The negotiators appeared taken aback when newspapermen, tipped that a conference was imminent, appeared at the scene. But they went into a two-hour joint conference presumably over the firm stands by the union for a 15-cent-an-hour wage increase to $1.55 and by the TTC for a five-cent boost.

Sewage Plant Insured For $365,325

Sewage disposal plant is to be insured by the city at $365,325 for three years from Jan. 27 when the coverage of Hardy Construction Co., the contractors, in the amount of $200,000 expires. This detail of protection was recommended to the council by the finance committee.

A report from Thomas Ephgrave was based on the actual figures of Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers. The blanket rate premium is $1,085. It provides supplementary protection against lightning, explosions and so on.

The amountof insurance will be distributed among local agencies through Ross Thompson, acting by arrangement as broker.

Marani and Morris, Toronto, architects of the city hall, are being asked by the council for drawings and specifications of a heating system for the public library.

"Then we can call for tenders from local plumbers," Ald. J. E. Gillespie said.

Heating Uneven

The Library is being heated from the city hall boilers, but distribution of the heat in that building is uneven. It is satisfactory on the upper floors but not in the basement.

Library board sold their boiler, and intend to make new use of their basement, including the additional space.

"We got everything that was planned," Ald. Gillespie said.

Plans for the city hall heating system carried to the public library, but not into it.

"If we had planned for more, we would have had to pay for more," Ald. Gillespie said. Now it is a question of whether the library's radiating system fits into the city hall plans and circulation.

Ald. Gillespie's motion at the finance committee meeting was seconded by Ald. Black.

Add Practical Nurses To Lindsay Registry

LINDSAY, Jan. 17. (ENS)—To provide better service for chronically ill patients and convalescents the Lindsay Nurses' Registry announced today that practical nurses will be included in the registry.

Directors of the registry, in a public statement to the press, today revealed the demand for special nurses is sometimes too great for the registry to provide properly trained registered nurses. They have taken this step to include practical nurses and increase their supply of help.

Congressman Has Brilliant Idea

Ignorant About Canada, But Wants To Annex It Anyway

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(CP) — An American Congressman Wednesday proposed that the United States study the possible annexation of Canada and later chuckled over the angry reaction his proposal drew in Ottawa.

Representative Timothy Sheehan, a Republican from Chicago, introduced a bill to create a special congressional committee which would explore the possibility of annexing Canada.

"We could offer England cash to bail her out of her serious world predicament in exchange for the forfeiture of the rights and interests she now possesses in Canada," he said in an accompanying statement.

Asked if he was serious about his proposal, Sheehan said "I'm not the type to throw something out like this without really meaning it." But he added that there was a certain amountof timeliness in his proposal because Prime Minister Churchill is to address Congress tomorrow "and he is looking for a handout."

The 42-year-old Sheehan, who delights in his Irish name, is serving his year in Congress. He heads a grocery specialty firm in Chicago called the Swedish Produce Co.

He has paid several vacation visits to Toronto and Northern Ontario.

He told a reporter he thought annexation would be a good thing for both countries because it would result in unity of "hemispheric defense, and the advantage of trade without border barriers." But he has talked it over only with other Americans who first looked at it "quizzically" and later thought there "might be somthing in it."

He laughed when he was told that a member of the Canadian Parliament and a senior External Affairs Department official in Ottawa considered his proposal "fantastic." Sheehan said he is unaware that Canada has been an independent nation for a long time.

"We don't really know what rights Britain does or does not have in Canada," he said. "The proposal is purely exploratory. But whatever interest Britain has in Canada we would want to find out."

Sheehan's proposal was detailed. The projected committee would be composed of five senators and five members of the House of Representatives. The committee would decide whether Canada should be a territory or a group of states.

"In the minal price agreed upon with England," his statement said "there must be taken into consideration the vast amount of money which England borrowed during the First World War, the lend-lease program for and during the Second World War, the Marshall plan monies expended, and the money that England is going to get from the Democrat Administration during the present year, and the sum of money necessary to put England in a sound financial condition. . . .

"From the American taxpayers' angle, it is safe to assume that the present Democrat Administration will give England the money she needs, and by completing the proposed deal at least the taxpayers will be getting something for their money."

There was no indication how Sheehan's proposal would be taken on capitol hill, but the reaction in Ottawa was definitely hostile.

Parliament Hill reacted with amazement and amusement Wednesday to the statements of Congressman Timothy Sheehan (Rep., Ill.), who wants Canada annexed to the United States.

Mr. Sheehan's ideas about 20th century Canada were termed fantastic, both by a member of parliament and a senior official of the External Affairs Department.

In introducing a bill in Congress to explore the possibilities of Canada being annexed to the U.S., Mr. Sheehan said he "does not propose creation of a new nation" and that Britain should be paid "for giving up all rights and interests in Canada."

Parliament Hill's rather scathing retorts were based on these three facts:

1. Canada is and has been an independent nation for a fair amount of time.

2. The day when Britain would have to be paid for giving up any rights or interests in Canada has long since passed away.

3. Fear of annexation by the US was one of the big factors that helped confederate Canada in 1867.

"It is fantastic that any one in his position could be so ignorant of Canada's background and position," said Donald Brown (L., Essex East). "He apparently thinks we can be bought as the US bought Alaska from Russia 85 years ago."

Said the senior External Affairs official:

"Fantastic. This is the high point—or the low point. It's just too darned silly for words."

Break Deadlock On A-Exchange

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—The New York Times says today the United States and Britain "have broken the deadlock over the exchange of information on atomic energy."

They have agreed, The Times says, "to allow a small working party of scientists from both countries to study the specific areas of atomic energy in which the British want to exchange information."

A Washington dispatch by James reports that the two countries "have not agreed to any program for exhanging information."

Who Wants Disarmament?

The West proclaims its devotion to peace and the Communist East refuses to believe in the West's peaceful intentions. The East makes its own proposals for lessening tension and reducing armaments and the West sloughs them off as propaganda. Peace has become offensive. People who talk in more than pious generalities about making peace are called peacemongers. Peace is now as disreputable a term as appeasement was thirteen years ago; indeed, it has taken its place; a peacemonger is an appeaser. The world has come to a dreadful pass when, East and West, it is dangerous and even treacherous to talk peace in any realistic way. Nations are in a sorry state when their leaders refuse to believe anything but warlike intentions lie behind peaceful overtures.

* * *

Two important disarmament proposals were put before the United Nations Assembly in Paris last week-end, one by the West, the other by Russia. Mr. Vishinsky attacked the West's plan (to set up a new twelve-member disarmament commission) as "wishy-washy" and "vague" and took the occasion for another tirade against the American war in Korea and the North Atlantic Treaty. The Russians countered with a plan to ban A-bombs; and the West considers it to be nothing but a propaganda move.

* * *

There is propaganda in both moves, but there is also reasonableness in them. The Western plan has been well publicised in the West (though presumably not in Russia). The Assembly voted 42 to 5, with seven nations abstaining, to set up the disarmament commission; its duty is to begin within thirty days studies on all arms problems, including the control of atomic energy. The five nations which voted against it were, of course, Russia and satellites. There is some truth in the Russian charge that the plan is vague and wishy-washy. The Commission is ordered to prepare proposals to be written into a treaty sometime when possible for

> "the regulation, limitation and balanced reduction of all armed forces and armaments, for the elimination of all major weapons adaptable to mass destruction, and for effective international control of atomic energy to ensure the prohibition of atomic weapons and the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes only."

The statement of the task is general, and the hopes of its subsequent proposals being written into any treaty acceptable to the Russians are slight, considering that the Russian bloc voted against setting up the Commission. There can be no disarmament in which Russia does not take part. Despite her voting against the measure, however, Russia has agreed to take her seat on the new organization. She may use the seat only for its propaganda value; she may, however, be earnest about disarmament.

* * *

The Russian disarmament plan, made after the Western plan, has probably had much publicity in Russia. On this continent it has been played down. In fact, it is difficult to find out what the actual terms of the Russian proposal were. As far as we can learn, the Russian plan is more definite than the Western plan, and also makes concessions to the American point of view on the control of atomic weapons. The Russians have proposed that atomic weapons be banned and that there be continuous international inspection of atomic energy facilities in any country. Previously the Russians had insisted that inspections be periodic, and on notice. (The Americans claimed that this would allow a country to hide what it was doing.) The Russians also conceded, in their proposal, another American point: that the ban be simultaneous with the beginning of the control system. Previously they had demanded an immediate ban. This new plan requires earnest consideration by the new Disarmament Commission and should be given more credence than the Americans have given it so far.

* * *

Significantly, the Russians made no disarmament proposal affecting standing armies, the air force and conventional weapons. Significantly, the Americans are speaking gently now about atomic weapons and, in disarmament proposals are laying stress on all armed forces and weapons. The reasons are these: the United States is putting much of its defence effort and faith into atomic weapons. Russia has huge armies and air forces but is no match for the U.S.A. in atomic energy development. Does either side want peace—or does each want only the kind of disarmament which disarms the other and leaves itself strong?

Movies For Adults

The Ontario Board of Motion Picture Censors is thinking of establishing a new category of movies, which may be shown to adults only. One movie which makes such a category necessary is La Ronde, a French film which has recently been under consideration by the Board. It is a film version of Arthur Schnitzler's play Reigen, which was written in 1900. We know the play well. There is not an indecent line or a coarse suggestion in it, but it deals with love in a somewhat more direct and humorous way than is usual in the movies. Furthermore, it is available to anybody who wants to read it in any first-rate public library in Canada.

In trying to make up its mind, the Board of Censors has enlisted the aid of a number of clergymen. Did it occur to the Board that the opinion of some critics of literature and drama would have been at least equally valuable? The opinions of clergymen on matters relating to the arts, though interesting, are apt to be repressive; if there is any doubt whatever upon such a question as this, their tendency is to say No. And there can be little doubt as to whether La Ronde is fitting entertainment for children, or people of less than average intelligence.

The disgrace and burden of the movie business, however, is that it is condemned to show only what may safely be seen by children; it is small wonder that many movies are childish. But as well as being childish many movies are also vulgar in manner and shoddy in matter. None of these things can be said of La Ronde; it is a little masterpiece of drama.

If such films as La Ronde and Miss Julie (made from Strindberg's great play) are to be seen at all in this country, we need a category of films which is for adults only; not all Canadians are satisfied with what the Censors consider fit for children. We appreciate the problems of the Censors, but this special problem can be solved by the creation of a new category.

It Boils Down To Good Manners

Recently the Ontario Court of Appeal ruled that once a pedestrian has begun to cross the street on a green light he must be allowed to complete his crossing whether the light changes or not. Motorists who honk and rush at pedestrians who are caught by the light in mid-crossing, take heed.

Let the pedestrian take heed too, however. There are far too many pedestrians who abuse what they consider to be their rights, and who loiter irritatingly as they cross streets; far too many pedestrians cross the streets against the light, not realizing that they have only the right to do this if they do not impede traffic and create danger to themselves and others.

We have written thousands of words on the problems which arise between pedestrians and motorists, and we truly believe that all those words are wasted. For these problems arise chiefly from cussedness and stupidity, and we do not flatter ourselves that we can eradicate those common characteristics of the human race. Great numbers of traffic complications arise simply from the reluctance of human beings to behave decently and thoughtfully toward one another. The war between pedestrian and motorist boils down at last to a question of good manners, which are pitiably short on both sides.

The Obligatory Smile

Isn't this business of smiling being overdone? We have just been looking at a photograph of twenty-five men, gathered together to talk about business. Twenty-three of them wear big smiles, and two do not; the two non-smilers look more intelligent and genuinely pleasant than their Cheshire Cat colleagues.

The notion that people must smile as much as possible dates, we believe, from the rise of photography and from the simultaneous rise of that jolly-good-fellow philosophy which has found modern prophets in Elbert Hubbard and Dale Carnegie. Photographers, for some reason known only to themselves, want everybody to smile when they are being photographed; the Hubbards and Carnegies want everybody to smile so that they will seem likeable. If anyone doubts the historical accuracy of our theory, let him examine portraits before photography, and let him read Lord Chesterfield's remarks on the conduct of a well-bred man; he will discover that smiling was not as common a century ago as it is now.

Let it be understood that we have no quarrel with the true and natural smile; if a man has a merry heart, let him show it. We refer only to the feigned smile, assumed for photographic purposes, which is betrayed by the worried, sad or angry eyes which peep through the mask.

Don't smile because somebody has told you that it is the thing to do.

Several eager beavers in the scientific world foresee a life expectancy of 130 years. But with an Old Age Pension at 70, this would mean 60 pensioned years for everybody who made the grade, and a citizen's years of retirement would exceed his years of production by ten. It's going to be a funny world, and we hope it doesn't come too soon.

How To Ignore A War

By RAWLE KNOX
In Rangoon

THE Secretariat in Rangoon, architecturally reminiscent of one of the better English country lunatic asylums, is a place of pleasurable mystery.

Heavily guarded with barbed wire and more casually by armed police who start off at the top dressed like Canadian Mounties but tail off into rather spindly short trousers, it appears to forbid access.

Inside, however, informality has made a graceful conquest. Ministers and lowly clerks alike are protected only by that kind of swinging half-door through which cowboys enter the saloon in American Western films. It is only necessary to look over the top and catch the eye of whoever is sitting behind the desk to make it almost impossible for him to avoid asking you in.

PEONS in bright lungyis idle in the passages and watch you with a gambler's interest as you try to find your way among the jumble of offices. You can best discover the widow of Burma's late assassinated Premier, Mrs. Aung San, who is charmingly directing women and children's welfare, by making inquiries from the nearby Deputy-Secretary of Education; and you know you are right for the Information Department when you pass through the office of a struggling doctor from UNICEF.

No one ever tries to make you feel you don't belong; everyone wants to be helpful; and if you occasionally get the feeling when entering, say, the War Department that the White Knight may barge through one of those doors fumbling a Pending file, you suppress it easily by remembering that any Government that can face up to such troubles as Burma's, and can remain this cheerful, deserves all the sympathy it can get.

IN Rangoon, though the Ministers' houses are still encaged by barbed wire; though poverty is unashamed and one of every four children dies in infancy, there is an overlying jollity in the streets that makes violence seem very far away. Yet Dalla, just across the river from here, was attacked for several hours by insurgents one day last month, and at Christmas road blocks were nervously brought out again in the city itself.

The spectacular Dr. Ba Maw, who seems happiest dressed in a black lungyi, yellow sports shirt, and black beret-like headgear, has his explanation "While the Government keeps its own private army," he says, "opposition parties will naturally keep their private armies. Moreover, the Army will never let the insurgents die; it has a vested interest in disorder." Ba Maw, however, is a sort of latter-day Lloyd George of Burmese politics in so far as he can make shrewd and wounding thrusts from the safety of political semi-retirement.

THE real Government attitude would seem to be that it accepts the present inevitability of armed unrest and that it is doing its best to counter it without any strong belief that its efforts will have any marked results in the near future. Yet there are sometimes affairs here that bring a shock of misgiving. A local paper, the "Nation," reporting the independence celebrations last week, said that the military parade "except for the Air Force was more spectacular than in past years." The editor next day received an astounding letter from no less a person than the Chief of Air Staff, which concluded: "I have also to inform you that the appearance of this news in your paper necessitates my taking precautionary measures against the undesirable use of force by my Air Force boys. I therefore, would like to advise you that insertion of news that is likely to instigate airmen to do certain forceful acts may kindly be avoided in future." Since airmen en masse not long ago beat up the unlucky attendants of the Zoological Gardens for some supposed insult a police guard was put on the "Nation's" office. But "the boys" apparently thought better of it.

✧ ✧ ✧

PREVIOUSLY such hooliganism was almost solely in the province of the monks, but the monks no longer count as a political force. Buddhism is State-subsidized religion, and though the cloud of young shaven-headed pongyis in their bright orange robes issuing from their monastery in the morning with their great shiny brown begging bowls under their arms may look like a swarm of hornets, establishment has, in fact, taken the sting out of them. They cannot quarrel with a protecting Government, and because among them there is still a restless feeling that some change towards egalitarianism is still to come, they cannot quarrel with the Government's greatest enemies, the Communists. Against the Christian Karens they are prepared to fight as bitterly as you please, but since the Government is going out of its way to placate the Karens, both by creating a Karen State and, recently, by releasing army suspects who have been held for two years in detention camps, this is not the happiest moment for militant Buddhist argument.

✧ ✧ ✧

SOME inspiration, whether it is from the golden flanks of the great pagodas or from the chaste white spire of the Pillar of Independence, keeps the Burmese going in conditions which would seem hopeless to the outside world. There has been some heroic perseverance during the years of this sputtering insurgent war. Morning after morning the trains for Mandalay and Prome hopefully leave Rangoon, which the passengers presumably appreciate is better than to arrive, since they frequently do not do so. But the engine-drivers, like the serangs on river steamers, who have also had their share of bombs and bullets, are always there to start again.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE drawn out chaos has done less actual harm to Burmese people than it is possible for an orderly minded Westerner to believe. If peace were to come tomorrow the health and education schemes which the Government is painstakingly preparing could still not be put into operation, because the men are not yet there for the task (there is one doctor, for instance, for every 40,000 Burmans).

There would still not be enough steamers or railway rolling stock to restore communications to perfection. But the people are not hungry and the work of preparation goes on.

Thakin Nu says peace may take five or ten years to come; by that time Burma will be ready for it—provided China has had nothing to say in between. In that cheerful warren of the Secretariat, they talk of China with the kind of scientific unbelief one reserves for discussions about the end of the world.

"WHY CAN'T WE BUILD A BRIDGE?"

Letters To The Editor

THE UNSATISFIED JUDGEMENT FUND

Sir: A news item in last week's daily newspapers reported to the public that the Unsatisfied Judgement Fund had been exhausted and that $750,000 had been contributed to this fund by the Ontario Automobile Operators.

This year again, each driver will pay to this fund 50c to bolster the finances and again $150,000 will likely flow into the coffers of the department, handling this matter, augmenting the fund.

Today I applied for my operator licence and my ownership licence. The fee $1.50 for the drivers licence and $10 for the ownership certificate. The Government decided this year that to "save steel" the owners would keep the old plates and receive a sticker. I received the sticker, but it is just a piece of printed paper (gumpaper) and not even a transfer. The gumpaper will in a short time loosen and fall off the windshield and considerable misery will befall the driver who has lost his sticker from the windshield. This is the state of affairs at present.

Let us now look at the financial side of the matter. Inclusive of the licence fees paid by the car owners is the metal plate which cost much more than a piece of printed paper. The difference will be in round figures approximately $1,250,000.

If the car owners have to pay the same fee for the sticker, they should demand from the Provincial Government that the great difference, which is saved by the Government, be put into the Unsatisfied Judgement Fund and at least guarantees the victims needing the fund, full compensation of their legitimate claims.

I think that every owner who is interested in the welfare of his fellowmen, should help to strengthen the fund, by adding his voice to mine and ask for the transfer from the Provincial Treasury (Highway Department) to the Unsatisfied Judgement Fund, the total profit achieved by substituting stickers for the metal licence plates.

LEONARD VELLEMAN.

TIME FOR ACTION

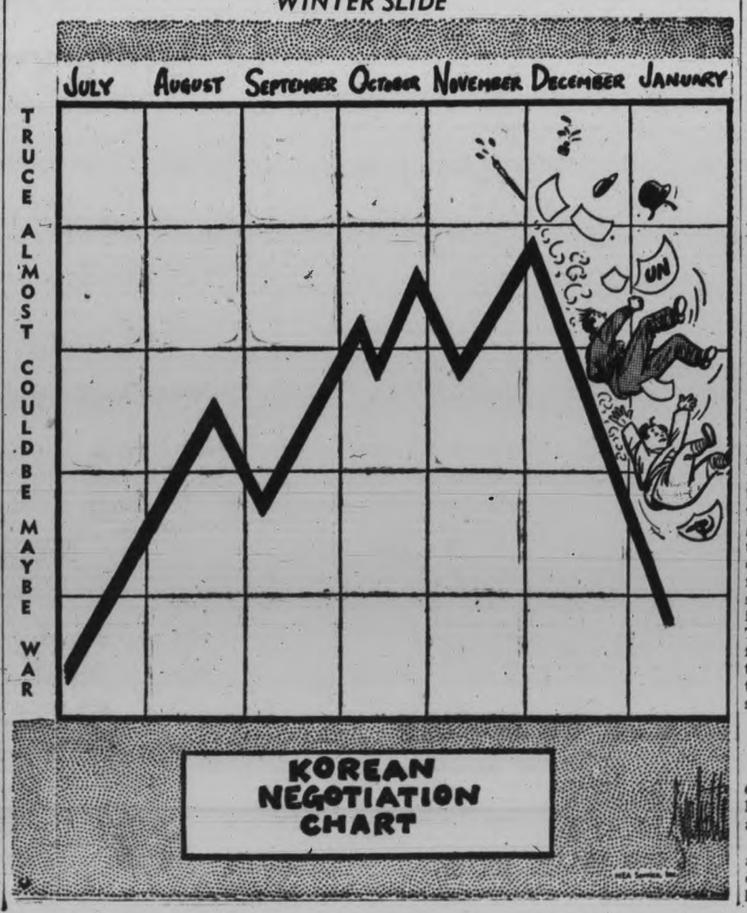
Sir: May I have a small place in your column to express my views regarding a letter which appeared in today's Examiner?

I for another agree with "All For Education". It is surely time that something be done about our present "high" standard of education. It is a disgrace for a community which has gone ahead in so many ways, to neglect the education needs so completely as has been done in our school area, No. 2. Why anyone who has any common sense can honestly believe we are doing our best for our children with the present conditions in our schools today is beyond me.

For one thing the children couldn't possibly progress as they should, when the schools are so over-crowded, and I am certain there isn't a teacher anywhere who could walk into our schools and promise to do any better than our present ones are doing under the circumstances. The children can't even so much as wash their hands or get a drink of water for I understand the pump is frozen up. They should be provided with warm water in the first place, to wash with at least during the winter months.

The toilets are in such a condition that my five-year-old child will not use it; can you imagine a child not having to use a bathroom for an eight hour period? If not maybe you can imagine the results.

To give our children the very least that should be expected for an education, we should have a four room school, no more of these one room schools with one teacher to teach six or eight grades. Rural children should have the same privileges city children have, if they are expected to compete in high school or in life at their work.



What if the mill rate does go up double—at least we would see some results in our taxes; at present we in the V.L.A. projects and other small land owners are paying our taxes for what? To have our roads snow ploughed two or three times a year; as far as I can see that is all we are getting in return. Even this path our children have to walk, (actually they call it road) is a disgrace. It is littered with garbage and junk, flooded every time it rains, and never snow ploughed half of the way. But the Council can't see fixing it up if we are going to build a new school. But I can't see a new school any where in sight.

If all of us in this area could only be broad-minded enough to see what wonderful results could come from better education for our children I am sure the few dollars extra it would cost us would be much better spent than the many ways it is being spent now with no results.

Our children should come ahead of the "almighty dollar" that so many love to hold onto. You can't take it with you, so why not invest in the future, and be able to be proud of our community, instead of degrading one of the most important points in life, for what is in store for a poorly educated child? Certainly not a happy home if they are started out on the wrong foot.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And it came to pass, as Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and sat down with him and his disciples. And when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto his disciples, Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners?

But when Jesus heard that, he said unto them, They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick....While he spake these things unto them, behold, there came a certain ruler, and worshipped him, saying, My daughter is even now dead: but come and lay thy hand upon her, and she shall live.

And Jesus arose, and followed him, and so did his disciples....And when Jesus came into the ruler's house, and saw the minstrels and the people making a noise, he said unto them, Give place: for the maid is not dead, but sleepeth. And they laughed him to scorn.

But when the people were put forth, he went in, and took her by the hand, and the maid arose. And the fame hereof went abroad into all that land. (Matt. 9: 10-12, 18, 19, 23-26.)

Alien Influence

(The Sunday Times, London)

Shocked by expressions like "Kannst du mich uppicken?" (Will you pick me up?) and "Ich habe das Gespraech gecancelled" (I have cancelled the call), which have become popular among young Berliners in the Soviet sector, the East German authorities have started a campaign against "Anglo-American debasement of the language of Goethe and Schiller."

"Creeping anglicization," as one East German Communist weekly calls it, has even crept into the headlines of Soviet zone papers recently, and watchful readers have been quick to point out that the rising sales of the HO (State-owned stores) are no excuse for headlines such as "Grosser Run auf HO-Wurst" (Big Run on HO Sausage).

"Churchill Kriegt Den Job" (Churchill Gets The Job) in an East zone paper has incurred further criticism.

Compulsory Russian in Soviet zone schools (which has caused a similar infiltration of Russian words) has failed to stem "creeping anglicization". Further west, it is becoming a craze among the bright young things of Dusseldorf, Munich and Hamburg. Contact with foreigners and foreign films has started what is almost a new language. It consists of including foreign words in a sentence, while using the normal German construction, as if the foreign word were really German.

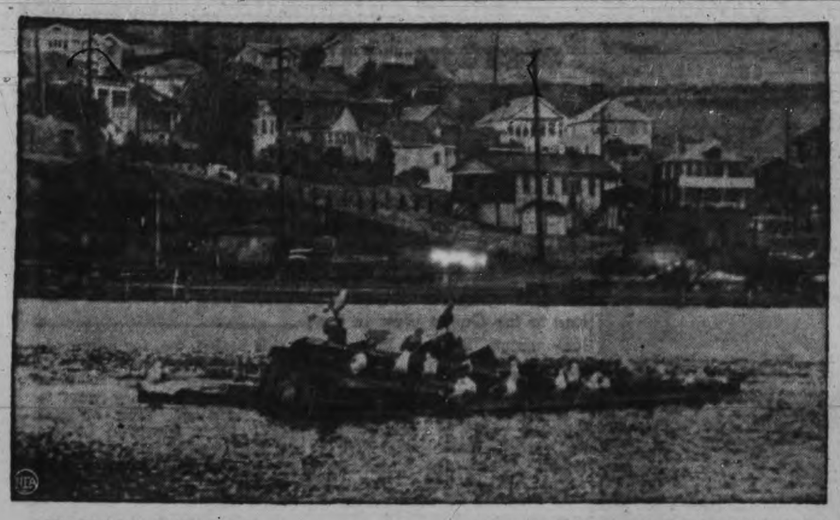
"Ich werde sie offtippen wenn der Chief zurueckkommt" (I'll tip you off when the boss gets back) says the German secretary to the waiting visitor. Boxing writers complain: "Der Fight war schlecht gemanaged" (The fight was badly managed). "Es ist nicht gelistet" (It is not listed), says a telephone operator, looking for a subscriber's number.

"Ich habe em Ami als Boy Friend; du hast nur ein Tommy" (I've got an American boy friend; you've only got an Englishman), boasts one German girl to another, after assessing the relative incomes of the GI and the British soldier.

Some of the words have a topical though sinister meaning. "Von Vopos Gekidnapped" (Kidnapped by Communist People's Police) is a common headline in Berlin newspapers.

Knowledge

(Saturday Night, Toronto)



From a wire story sent out by the Canadian University Press, and therefore presumably reliable, we learn that a special examination was recently held in the University of Toronto to obtain "some indication of what degree of knowledge of English the average undergrad possesses", and that the results were "much worse than expected". Plans had been made to form five instruction groups of 25 students for those who failed to get 50 per cent. After the examination ten groups were arranged for with 35 students in each, and even these looked after only those who scored 35 per cent. or less. Those who scored from 35 to 50 per cent. will have to get along as they are.

This corresponds pretty closely with the experience in other Canadian provinces. There is, we think, only one conclusion to be drawn from it, namely that there is something radically wrong with the high schools which send up these students. There is a prevalent theory in these schools that one learns to use English by using it, without any special instruction. This is a theory which is not applied in the more practical realms of football and basketball, where careful and systematic instruction in the technique of the game is imparted to everybody who is going to represent "the school" in those highly competitive forms of sport. But of course football and basketball are important, and the school which does not have a fairly good team is obviously not a "good" or successful school. There is no such feeling about English, and for that matter no means (except a special test like that just held at U. of T.) by which the public can tell whether a given high school is teaching English well or badly.

HOPE SO

A woman got on a bus and took the only empty seat, next to a harmless-looking reveller. Soon she opened a map of Manchuria and began to study it.

The reveller gazed at the map for a while and finally addressed the woman in an interested tone: "Sure you're on the right bus?" he asked.

SEAGULLS ASHORE—Only the seagulls seem to be enjoying California's four-day downpour, as they park atop the grandstand at the Tiburon, Calif., baseball field. Much of the Pacific Coast was experiencing the worst weather in 15 years, with rain, winds and snow battering the area.

Police Hold 3 Men In Freight Car Thefts

NAPANEE, Jan. 17 — (CP).—Provincial Police said Wednesday night they are holding three men on technical charges after a number of railway box car seals were found in an automobile here. The names of the men were not released. Police said freight cars have been recently broken into and easily-saleable cargoes such as cigarettes and liquor stolen.

Chinese Reds Expel Three Canadian Jesuit Priests

HONG KONG, Jan. 17 (Reuters)—Three Canadian Jesuit priests have been expelled from Communist China after a mob trial and 3½ months in prison on the charge of being "imperialistic" Roman Catholic authorities disclosed here today.

The priests, expelled 10 days ago, are Fathers Maurice Begin, Leon Valois and Philippe Ouimet, all of Montreal.

The "trial" was at Tasukia in Kiangsu province last Sept. 22. The three were paraded before a mass meeting and their "crimes" recited.

They were accused of being "oppressors of the people" because they had preached that the Communist-sponsored reform church movement was schismatic (causing division) from a Roman Catholic standpoint.

Joined In Laughter

The priests have since said they were unable to suppress their amusement at the charges made against them at the trial. Some of the Chinese spectators even joined in their laughter, they said.

Sentence of expulsion was read to them later at a court session from which the public was barred.

When the priests asked permission to return to their mission, the judge replied: "The government is willing but the people have given evidence that they do not want you in China."

The priests said they were not allowed to talk to each other during their imprisonment before being expelled.

All three were stationed in the same Roman Catholic parish in Tasukia.

Charge Murder At Sea Hunt Chinese Boy's Body

VICTORIA, B.C., Jan. 17—(CP).—An RCMP lane and power boat Wednesday searched the waters off the southern Vancouver Island east coast, seeking the body of a Chinese mess boy.

Meanwhile, Alexander Williams, 25, of Gould, Nfld., appeared before a magistrate and was formally charged with the murder of the missing man, Doug Chew Yin, 20, a recent arrival from China.

The Chinese disappeared from the Canadian Pacific steamship Princess Joan during the Vancouver-Victoria overnight trip early Tuesday.

Williams was remanded to Jan. 24. No counsel appeared on his behalf. Williams was an engine room employee on the Joan.

Police have little hope of finding the body of Doug, who is believed to have been thrown overboard following a struggle in the stateroom.

Passengers heard a man cry out and other sounds during the early morning hours of Tuesday.

It has also been learned that Williams, who has been paid off by the company, had rented a stateroom to hold a party for his friends among the crew.

Doug, of slight build, came to Canada from his native China in November. He could not speak a word of English.

Don't Go To School

MONTREAL, Jan. 17—(CP)—Eighteen per cent of the Roman Catholic children in Montreal don't go to school. A report to the Montreal Roman Catholic School Commission made Wednesday by J. F. Vincent, the commission's statistician, said that in 1950 more than 191,000 children came under the commission's jurisdiction. But 77,800 didn't go to school.

Help Farmer

SUTTON, Ont., Jan. 17 (CP)—A hastily-organized citizens committee Wednesday worked on plans to start a re-establishment fund of $3,000 for Maurice de Cheveigne, whose barn and all but 20 of his 1,998 pigs were destroyed in a fire last Thursday. Sutton is 50 miles north of Toronto.

Receives Heart

VANCOUVER, Jan. 17—(CP)—The heart of Montrose, which arrived in Vancouver by airmail late Tuesday, will be returned to Britain after the death of its owner. Mrs. Thomas Hurley, direct descendant of the Scottish Marquis of Montrose who was hanged, drawn and quartered 300 years ago, said Wednesday: "My uncle, David Campbell-Johnstone, has promised to co-operate with me in deciding what to do with it when I die."

Labor On Warpath

VANCOUVER, Jan. 17—(CP)—Labor was on the warpath Wednesday, seeking the head of chairman D. K. Penfold of the Public Utilities Commission. A storm of protests followed reports from Victoria that Mr. Penfold, at an electric rates hearing, had suggested that cities fight British Columbia Electric Company wage increases instead of rate increases. Several union demanded his resignation.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Basketball in abundance here this weekend. Girls' YW games Friday night, starting at 8.10: Normals vs. Nurses, and Lindsay vs. CGE. Port Hope school lasses are here the same p.m. to play PCVS juniors, coached by Mabel Gillen, and the senior PCI-ers, piloted by Audrey Hustwitt. Games at 7.30 and 8.30. Belleville meets Marines at eight Saturday eve in the "Y" with the Eastern Ontario loop leadership at stake. These two males cage crews should serve up a hot number. Three boys' exhibitions Saturday evening at the Collegiate, also. The OABA Orillia midgets take on PCVS junior "B" team, the Orillia senior school squad meets PCVS senior "B" hoopsters, and the OABA Orillia juniors face Bev Goulding's senior "A" team.

Under a heading "Outstanding Winter Sports Areas" the CNR puts out a bulletin on Canada. Dealing mainly with skiing, though sleigh-riding and a turn with the toboggan get a mention in some spots. In Ontario, we notice a write-up for Ottawa, the Collingwood area, Lake of Bays and this para: "Other Ontario points providing good ski and winter sports facilities are Haileybury, Barrie, Midland, North Bay, Hamilton and Cobourg. These points all have ski tows and accommodation can be arranged in the towns. The ski area at Cobourg is easily reached by bus in that town." And not one measly mention of Peterborough and district—ski tow or anything.

Kingston Plays Eagles

A hectic senior "B" hockey game is likely tomorrow night here when Kingston clashes with the Eagles. Tired of being pushed around a bit the past few weeks, the Vitarelli pack are itching for this crack at the K's on local ice, and they won't be sparing themselves nor their opponents Friday eve at Civic. Certainly they didn't last night. They should have won that overtime game 'gainst the league leaders in Belleville last Friday, and Quinte officials agree. There are too many good puckists with Eagles to write that club off yet. They beat the Petes here last start and will take any of 'em when at full strength and with not too many injuries hampering them. This return game should pack in the fans alight.

Lorne Cook of Kingston sent along some scoring figures the other day on this grouping. A few games since have changed things, no doubt, but he showed MacDonald of Belleville atop the heap with 37 scoring points, three more than Vern Goyer. Don Murray of Kingston was next with 33, and then McGregor of K's with 26. He put Curly Mason of Petes next with Arn Dugan, each having 23, as had Freddy Mortimer of the Eagles, and Ken Aitken of Kingston. He listed Bender of the Limestone City and Doug Mortimer of Eagles with 32 minutes each in penalties, closely followed by several more. However, these figures change from game to game in a busy schedule.

Three Local Clubs Win

Our OHA teams made it a clean sweep last night to win all three games. Johnny Godfrey's junior "B" Oddfellows finished strong in fighting fashion to gain a 7-5 win o'er the leading Lindsay Kin for their third win in a row. They're rolling now and a fair midweek crowd saw a swell scrap. Jim Ellis' senior "B" Petes gave the Hawks a 9-2 lesson in Bella Villa before a goodly gallery to amply avenge their last loss to the Doran dudes. Quinte crew were shy a few players but were never in the hunt, anyway. And Ned Vitarelli's scrappy Eagles hit their oldtime form to massacre the K's in Kingston 14-1 and ruin the gates in the Limestone City for the next few weeks. Really played grand hockey in this one. Yeah, a pleasant Peterborough puck evening, eh?

* * * * * *

Ice is holding out in district rinks and there's action aplenty all over the place. Havelock yanked out a 6-5 overtime win in Lakefield last night with R. Hamilton hot, and this team took Norwood 11-3 last Monday. The Norwood crew pulled out a win o'er Hastings last gloaming, so now Havelock and Lakefield are tied for second right back of Norwood in the northern TVL group. No revised schedule has reached us yet. Frankford is at Marmora on Friday. Otonabee games tonight at Keene are: Indian River vs. Downer's, and Westwood vs. Keene. In the EPHL tomorrow after supper, Keene plays host to St. Peter's, while Warsaw travels to Lakefield.

CURLING NOTES

By HERB MARTIN

This announcement is especially for our curlers: The three-day open bonspiel that was set for next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday has been cancelled. In an emergency meeting last evening, the bonspiel committee made that decision. There were many reasons for this decision, but the main one was lack of entries. The committee felt that rather than go ahead with only half an entry, the best thing to do was to cancel it altogether.

However, next Wednesday, all day, we are holding a one-day open bonspiel for the Ostrander Trophy. The first 28 rinks entered will complete the draw. The fee, $10.00 per rink.

Word came through yesterday from our lady curlers in Chicago. The postcard read: "Curling wonderful. Winning the odd game. Hospitality super." Included in the party are Mrs. J. Fanning, Mrs. M. McCartney, Mrs. J. Elliott, and Mrs. R. Miller.

Gar Braund is skipping a rink today in Oshawa's bonspiel.

The Neill Trophy games continue this evening at 7 and 9 o'clock.

Today's little piece: What you don't know won't hurt you, and it amuses a lot of people.

St. Peter's High Wins Two, Drop Senior Hoop Tilt

St. Peter's junior and bantam basketball teams scored decisive wins over PCVS' Garnet and Grey "B" teams Wednesday night at the Collegiate gym, but the Saints' senior team was edged by the Garnet and Grey in the senior "B" game to spoil a perfect night.

Johnny Lynch's bantams started the ball flying for the Saints in the opening game as they outplayed Coach Bev Goulding's green squad for an easy 38-13 drubbing. The Saints rolled up an impressive 17-3 score in the first half and then stayed well ahead again, outscoring PCVS in the second half 21-10.

Killen Scores 16

Terry Killen alone scored enough for the Saints to edge PCVS as he copped the game's scoring honors with 16 points. Grant Simmons with 14 points and Killen controlled the Saints' scoring punch. Others went to Smith, four, and O'Connell and Hynes, two each.

PCVS' top man was Bell with four, other points going to Dubay, Goldie, Long, Morton and Montgomery.

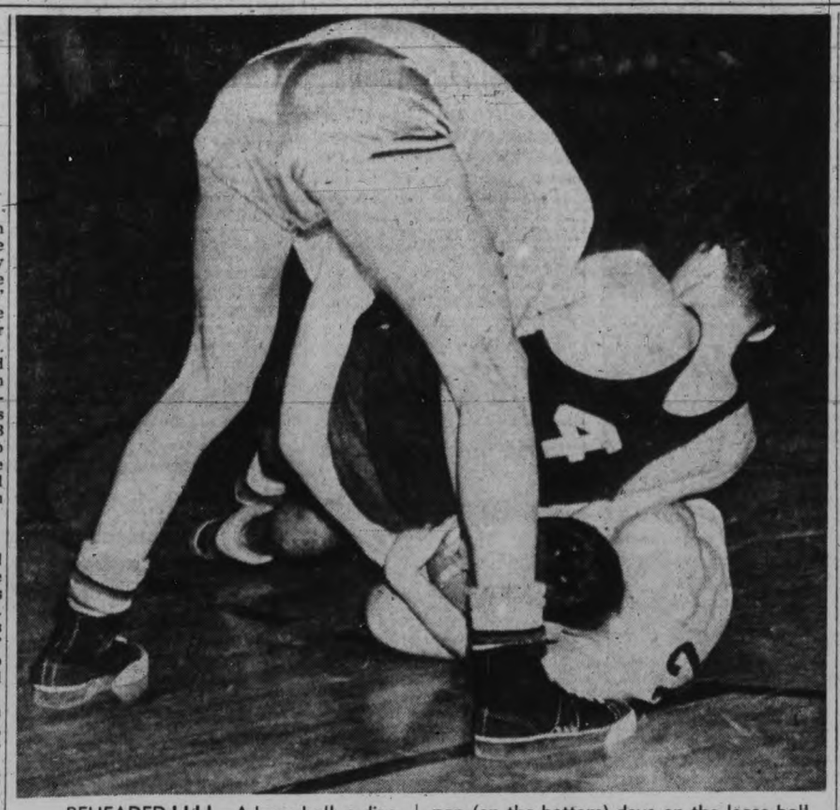
Johnny Lynch's juniors kept the Saints rolling along with victories when they thoroughly outplayed PCVS during the second half for a 28-16 victory.

With accurate shooting, St. Peter's took an early 6-0 lead but held only a one-point edge, 6-5, at the quarter. The tables turned in the second quarter as PCVS carried the play which was scrambly. The Garnet and Grey were ahead 10-9 at the quarter.

From there in the Saints were in command. If their shooting had been better the score would have been higher, but as it was they went ahead 18-15 at the third-quarter-mark and finished off with eight more points in the final session.

Galvin and Legros sparked the offensive play for St. Peter's with their dribbling and shooting. Between the two the Garnet and Grey fell to the Saints in the second half when Galvin dropped in 13 points and Legros six, all of SPS' points during that time. Simmons worked hard throughout the game, both offensively and defensively.

PCVS' best were Keeting, Heffernan and Smythe.



PCVS Wins One

PCVS stopped the Saints' victory string in the senior game, thanks to an 11-point second quarter drive which gave the Garnet and Grey a healthy lead. They stayed ahead for a 35-29 victory.

The teams battled on even terms in the first quarter which ended in an eight-all tie. But then the Garnet and Greys applied the pressure and sank 11 points while the Saints mustered only one point. Although the Saints outscored PCVS 20-16 in the second half, the PCVS cagers preserved part of the second quarter lead for the win.

The scoring for PCVS was well distributed but Fred Ash and Sandy Dewar led the parade with six points each. The game's scoring honors went to St. Peter's for the third time during the night when Jack Richardson racked up 15 points.

St. Peter's lost three regulars in the fourth quarter, two by the personal foul route and the other through an injury. Tom Cavanagh and Frank Farley each had five personal fouls to leave the game while John Armstrong was forced to retire when he had trouble breathing.

73 Trotters Eligible For Race

GOSHEN, NY, Jan. 17 (AP) — A total of 73 three-year-old trotters headed by the speedy Duke of Lullwater were kept eligible Wednesday for the 1952 Hambletonian Stakes at Good Time Park here next August.

Officials of the Hambletonian Society, in announcing the list, said that if 15 horses go to the post for the trotting derby Aug. 6, the race should have a value of $90,000.

Duke of Lullwater, a black son of Volomite-Duchess Hanover, won 14 of 16 starts last year, and earned $59,270—a record high for a two-year-old.

Owned by Walter T. Candler of Decatur, Ga., the colt is the probable top favorite for the 27th edition of the Hambletonian. The Duke is raced and trained by Johnny Simpson, Chester, SC, a veteran of the grand circuit and leading money and heat-winning driver of 1951. Candler has been trying without success to win the Hambletonian since the first one in 1926.

Eagles Massacre the K's By a Score Of 14 To 1 In Best Showing Of Year

KINGSTON, Jan. 17—In the parlance "then the roof fell in" at the Community Memorial Centre last night and trapped the Kingston Sacs in the ruins and debris. With swift Sammy Mulholland making his debut with the locals, hope was entertained that Sacs would repulse the invading Peterborough Eagles but the latter sprang the most devastating surprise of the OHA Senior "B" season when they registered a 14 to 1 victory that left the crowd of 811 fans in a state of bewilderment.

In On Eight

The on-rushing Eagles, paced by Samalenko, who scored one goal and had seven assists, collected 33 points while restricting the Sacs to a lowly two. The Eagles led by 3 to 0 at the first intermission, by 8 to 1 at the next, and then methodically poured six more into the cage behind Don Anderson in the final session.

The Sacs drew seven of the 13 minor penalties inflicted by Referee Jim Crombie in a game that wasn't marred by unduly rough play or small feeling. Myra Bender, Sacs' defenceman, led the penalty parade with three sentences while Keith Montgomery was the Eagles' lone dual offender against the code.

Brabin Good

Chasing Samalanko for point getting honors, Brabin of the Eagles scored three goals and earned as many assists. Only two of the visitors, other than goal keeper Nicholls, failed to get at least one point. The luckless skaters were Jim Munro, a defenceman, and R. Stewart, who started at right wing. George MacGregor, who took a pass from Gerry Wagar, saved the locals from being blanked. The sad story (from a Kingston viewpoint) follows:

The teams:
Eagles — Goal, Nicholls; defence, Munro and D. Mortimer; centre, F. Mortimer; wings, R. Stewart and Greenlaw; alternates, Hill, Crowley, Vitarelli, Samalenko, Wilson, Brabin, Montgomery and Berwick.
Kingston — Goal, Anderson; defence, S. Stewart and Bender; centre, Murray; wings, Ohlke and Aitken; alternates, MacGregor, Mulholland, White, Larmer, Tinkess, Goodfellow, Wagar and Dunn.
Referee—Jim Crombie. Linesman —"Yip" Radley.
The summary:

First Period

Marlene Stewart Pitted Against Big US Names

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 17 (CP). — Marlene Stewart, 17-year-old Canadian open and closed women's golf champion from Fonthill, Ont., is competing against the biggest names in American golf in the Tampa women's open golf tournament which starts today.

Fourteen professionals, led by Babe Didrikson Zaharias are after $3,500 in prize money. Other top pros in the record field of 183 include Betty Jameson, Patty Berg, Marlene and Alice Bauer, Betty Bush and Betsy Rawls.

Top-flight amateurs include Polly Riley and Louise Suggs, five times runner-up.

The 54-hole medal-play tournament ends Sunday.

Oddfellows Beat Lindsay For Third Win In a Row

Sparked by Kevin Heffernan's hat trick performance, Peterborough Oddfellows handed Lindsay's league leading Kinsmen a 7-5 defeat in an OHA Junior B Game at Civic Arena Wednesday night. The win left Lindsay still out in front in the four team loop but strengthened the Godfrey crew's hold on third place.

Heffernan put the locals in the lead for the first time at 19:40 of the first with Twist and Stewart picking up assists, after Red Robinson cancelled Lindsay's one goal lead at 18.41 on a pass from Ab Buckton.

End to end rushes featured the first half of the opening period, with both goalies pulling off some clever saves and Lindsay having a bit the edge on the play.

Lindsay Opens

Ken Shenkel dented the twine to open the scoring for Lindsay at 11.25.

A charging penalty to Bill Williams proved costly to Lindsay. When Williams was sent off at the 18 minute mark, the local lads swarmed to the attack and scored two quick goals.

At 2.20 in the second, Gary Copeland tied the score on a passing play from Smith and Shervington.

Oddfellows were left shorthanded for two minutes at 6.20 when defenceman Don Clapper was benched for holding and Dave Lucas gave Lindsay a one goal edge with Shenkel getting an assist.

When Kin player Hetherington shoved referee Louis Lecompte and vigorously protested an elbowing penalty at 11.54, the ref promptly cooled him out with a ten minute misconduct. Lindsay again had a one-man advantage when Jensen was given the nod for high sticking.

At 17.58, Lindsay took a two goal lead when Deeth beat Red Wasson, with Lucas being credited with the assist.

With 43 seconds to go in the second, Twist fired one past Kin netminder Paul McGuire, and before the visitors could get organized, Heffernan slapped his second counter home to tie the score at 19.32.

Ahead Again

Doug Powell put Red Mitchell's boys ahead at 1.23 of the final frame on a combination play with Shenkel and Williams.

One minute later, Ferguson sank a pass from Red Robinson to even the count and at 10.30, Ab Buckton blinked the light behind McGuire with what proved to be the winning goal, sending Oddfellows ahead 6-5.

The scoring ended at 11.34, when Heffernan added an insurance goal for his third of the evening. Don Bigford got the assist on Heffernan's final tally.

Lindsay failed to recover from the local's final surge of scoring power and though they made several dangerous rushes, they were unable to keep up a sustained attack to beat Red Wasson in the Oddfellow's net. A hooking penalty to Gary Vasey at 19.17 took the starch out of a threatening last minute rally by the Lindsay lads.

There were plenty of hard checks thrown on both sides, but both teams showed a tendency to ease off the attack when they had a slim one goal margin. Only five penalties were called.

The teams:
Lindsay: Maguire, Williams, Marshall, Powell, Shenkel, Dysart, Deeth, Shervington, Copeland, Smith, Vasey, McDonald, Hall, Lucas.
IOOF: Wasson, Clapper, Armstrong, Robinson, Ferguson, Buckton, Twist, Heffernan, Coyle, Jensen, Stewart, Sullivan, Kimball, Bigford.

Petes Shoot Down Hawks With a 9-2 Barrage To Narrow Belleville Lead

Flying from the first faceoff in Belleville last night, the Petes trimmed the Hawks 9-2 before 1300 disappointed fans. The victory for the Ellis' outfit pulled them to within one game of the first-place Hawks in their OHA Central Ontario senior "B" group standing. And it was ample revenge by the Petes for their loss to the Quinte crew in the last senior "B" fray in Peterborough.

The visitors Wednesday were in rare form to come up with a really hot performance and give the homesters a hockey lesson. While the game was rugged in spots, and marked with stiff checking in each inning, it was generally clean. A dozen penalties were handed out by Bill Reason, with each side drawing six. Ray Harding drew a misconduct—served by Wyatt—in the third for swinging his stick at the wire-protected Quinte goal judge, who flashed the light, but the goal was not allowed. Collins and Semark drew majors in the second for flinging fists in a brief exchange after some hard checking.

Backed It Up

It was 6-0 for the Petes in the first frame as they flew right in from the start with the Hawks never having a chance. The home squad did get the only goal of the middle chukker, though Leforte rose to heights to keep out several Peterborough counters. Belleville got one to open the third, but the Petes drove in again to dent the hemp three more times and show the hostile crowd they were much superior on the night's play.

Chum Fryia shone for the winners with three goals and an assist, while Garvey had two markers. Dugan was in on three. Two points each were garnered by Junior West and Ron Horton, with singles going to Gus Leonard, Earl Leonard, Drake Jopling and Ted Collins. Red Doran got both Belleville markers, Bastedo and Jones each rating an assist. Both goalies were good. The Petes not only drove on the attack but checked back in starry style and their defence came up with a first class effort in checking and in starting plays for the forwards.

Started Early

The game was less than a minute old when Fryia scored from Dugan and he got another a bit later from Dugan and Horton on smart finishes. Gus Leonard made it 3-0 on an in-close pass from West, Garvey adding to the count on a play with Collins. Two solos by the Petes, Fryia and Horton, finished the scoring as they kept most of the play in the initial stanza in the Quinte end of the rink. They tore in on passing plays and checked back fast when Hawks tried a dash down the ice. Minor penalties went to Wardhough, Semark, Day and Wade during the chukker.

Doran, who turned in the best effort all evening for the losers, finally put the Hawks on the score sheet at 11:07 of the middle heat, Bastedo aiding on a close-in thrust. Semark and Collins tangled to draw majors, and the former also earned a slashing minor. Dugan and Garvey sat it out briefly in this period, too, for minor offences.

The Petes were kept scoreless in the second but they were in enemy territory often on neat passing plays. However, Leforte was at his best to thwart their efforts in a lively and hard-hitting frame.

After Doman dived in fast to score from Jones in the third, the Petes pepped it up once again and dominated play throughout this session. Jopling finished off a fine play with Fryia and Dugan first, and then Garvey zipped in smartly to net on a solo effort, followed later by a neat goal at close range by West, aided by Earl Leonard. Besides minor penalties to Moher and Horton, Harding drew his misconduct, which Wyatt served. The goal Harding was peeved about—when the light went on—was not allowed. Teams:

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Wade and Horton; centre, Dugan; wings, Fryia and Mason; alternates, G. Leonard, West, Wyatt, Garvey, Collins, Floyd, Jopling and E. Leonard.
Hawks: Goal, Leforte; defence, Bastedo and Semark; centre, Goyer; wings, Moher and MacDonald, alternates, Day, Jones, Wardhaugh, Trumble and Barrett.
Referee, W. Reason; linesman, W. Holway.

Ranger Plans Badly Upset By 6-4 Chicago Drubbing

By The Canadian Press

You can just about count Chicago Black Hawks as a National Hockey League also-ran, but their nuisance value can become annoying at times. For instance, New York Rangers had it in the bag Wednesday night to break a fourth-place tie with Boston Bruins but the Hawks cut off any celebrations with a 6-4 victory. It was their first victory in eight starts. It was the only game on the NHL card and the two points gave the last-place Hawks 27 points —12 triumphs and three draws in 41 games—but left them eight points in arrears of the Rangers and Bruins.

The game, before a crowd of 7,346, had all the earmarks of one of those close-fitting affairs after a 1-1 first period draw, but the cellar dwellers outscored Rangers 2-1 in the second period and 3-2 in the last 20 minutes.

Peters Star

Jim Peters was the big gun of the night with two goals and an assist, his last goal coming in the final minute of play on a breakaway.

George Gee started it off with an unassisted goal midway in the first period while Jack Evans was sitting out a holding penalty.

Defenceman Bill Gadsby and Al Dewsbury netted the second-period Chicago goals and Bep Guidolin added the other in the final period. Paul Ronty, Herb Dickenson, Gaye Stewart and Don (Bones) Raleigh looked after the Ranger scoring.

A full schedule is slated for tonight. The second place Toronto Maple Leafs meet Canadiens at Montreal, the league-leading Detroit Red Wings are hosts to Boston and the Rangers and Hawks complete their double bill at Chicago.

Indians Bow To Brantford 6-3 In Surprise Senior OHA Defeat

By The Canadian Press.

Not many weeks ago the league leading Stratford Indians were considered a shoo-in for the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A crown. Their recent ups and downs in scheduled play have changed the minds of many hockey writers.

The Indians took another plunge Wednesday night and wound up on the wrong end of a 6-3 score against the Brantford Redmen, reposing in fifth spot in the six-team league.

The loss cut the Indians' lead on second-place Kitchener-Waterloo to nine points as the Dutchmen came up with a 6-0 win over Owen Sound Mercurys. In the only other Senior A tussle, Hamilton Tigers dropped fourth-place Sarnia Sailors 5-2.

Up north, Sudbury Wolves unleashed a four-goal third-period splurge to topple the fading Sudbury Miners 7-2 in a scheduled Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A clash. The game was enlivened by a couple of Donnybrooks.

Chalk Up Tie

In Junior OHA play, Windsor Spitfires gained a scarce point against Waterloo Hurricanes by coming up with a 5-5 tie. Toronto Marlboros stretched their league lead with a 7-0 win over Barrie Flyers and Galt Black Hawks crushed Oshawa Generals 8-4.

At Stratford, Bill Schill and Lloyd Ferguson tallied two goals each to lead the Redmen to their 6-3 win. Bill Simpell and Don Oberholtzer added the others. Bill Walsh, Mickey Roth and Billy Flick scored the Stratford markers.

Art Hurst, Mike Dzuira, Bobby Schnurr, Bill Mitchell, Harvey Jacklin, and Scotty Mair scored Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen's six goals while Murray Dunnette, Fred Pankoski, Ab Conick, Johnny Conick and Polly Miocinovich were the Hamilton marksmen in the Tigers' 5-2 win in Sarnia. Harry O'Connor scored both of the Sailors' goals.

Best Scorers

John Lumley and Jack Miller were the best in Windsor's Junior OHA deadlock as they each tallied twice, the other Spitfire goal going to Ron Craven. Roger Maisonneuve, Bob Mader, Don McIntosh, John Ford and Paul Oliver were the Waterloo marksmen.

In Marlboros' 7-0 victory, Chuck Lumsden and Danny Poland paced the Toronto club with two goals each. Louis Bendo, Parker MacDonald and Eric Nesterenko added the others.

Bill MacIntosh led the Galt Black Hawks to their 8-4 victory with a pair of goals while Tom Fyles, Jack Hill, Jack Price, Pete Conacher, Ken Wharram and John Sleaver banged in the others. Bob Holden, who collected three, and Harve Dejordy with one, were the Oshawa scorers.

Havelock Victors 6-5 In Extra Heat

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 17 (ENS)—Havelock edged Lakefield 6-5 in overtime here in a nifty TVL contest last night. Penalties proved costly to the home team which served 18 minutes to only four for Havelock. The break came at the 19.53 mark of the third when Lakefield was leading 5-4. With D. Wasson in the sin bin for kneeing, Havelock pulled their goalie and sent six forwards on the attack. Just two seconds before the gong, Hamilton scored from Eakins to put it into overtime. At 9.15 then Hamilton won the game with Eakins again assisting him. The win ties Havelock and Lakefield for second spot, back of Norwood.

Lakefield got two in the first, Williams from Casey and Eadie for the first and Doris on a solo, as Eakins tallied for the visitors, aided by Hamilton and Caravaggie. Each counted one in the second, Doris for Lakefield from Legrow and Casey, while Anderson hit the mark for Havelock from Willshaw. Legrow and Reeves were Lakefield marksmen in the third, as Williams and Casey drew assists. Havelock scores were by Reid from Willshaw, Eakins from Hamilton and Caravaggie, and Hamilton from Eakins. The latter pair counted the winner in the extra heat. Teams:

Havelock: Bradley, Anderson, Berardi, Eakins, Hamilton, Caravaggie, Reid, Willshaw, Crowder, Pace, Berwick, Richlark, Wilson.

Lakefield: Edgar, Jopling, D. Wasson, Casey, Doris, Legrow, C. Wasson, Reeves, Hunter, Williams, Marshall, Eadie, Millar.

TCS Holds UTS To Tie In Hockey Clash

PORT HOPE Jan. 17.—TCS and UTS played to a 4-4 tie in their third hockey game of the season here Wednesday. Trinity College School rallied in the third period to even a 4-1 deficit.

Trinity College School jumped into an early lead in the first period on a goal by McDerment, but this advantage was soon erased by goals by Cossar and Whyte for UTS. The Toronto School players increased their lead in the second period when Naylor and Riley scored.

TCS came back strongly in the third period and tied the score on goals by Arnold, Depencier and Long. Brilliant goal-keeping by Lefleug in the TCS nets prevented UTS from retaliating.

UTS produced a 29-27 victory over TCS Seniors in a hard-fought basketball game. Leading scorer for UTS was Floyd, with 15 points.

Hornets Blank Cleveland 4-0

By The Canadian Press.

Pittsburgh Hornets Wednesday night won their second victory in two nights over Cleveland, blanking the Barons 4-0.

The win put the Hornets 16 points ahead of the Barons in the American Hockey League's western division. In the eastern division Hershey Bears top the section with 46 points with Providence Reds in second slot with 39.

At Pittsburgh, George Armstrong's first period goal was the game-winning tally, although the Hornets drilled in three goals on shots by John McClellan, Phil Maloney and Gordon Hannigan in the third period.

At Syracuse, the Hershey Bears clustered four goals in the first period and gained a 5-2 victory over the Warriors.

Hear Rumblings Of Holdouts In Major Leagues

By GAYLE TALBOT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP). — Although there are few well-defined holdouts as of today in the major leagues, advance rumblings —especially on the three New York clubs—indicate trouble ahead for the moguls.

An Associated Press survey of the 16 big league baseball teams indicated the Yankees, Giants and Dodgers each has a long way to go before it can field a team and probably face some fairly serious holdout battles before spring training gets underway next month.

The champion Yankees thus far have announced the signing only of pitcher Ed Lopat and their 39-year-old utility first-baseman Johnny Mize.

The Giants also have only two regulars officially within the fold, outfielders Monte Irvin and Don Mueller.

Brooklyn has obtained the signatures only of its highest salaried man, second-baseman Jackie Robinson, catcher Roy Campenella and outfielder Carl Furillo.

Plan Pay Cuts

Rumor has it the Dodgers are asking several regulars, including Andy Pafko, to take pay cuts and that the debate might run far into February.

Ralph Branca has rejected an offer calling for the same salary he earned last year. Ralph wants a small raise.

Shortstop Phil Rizzuto and catcher Yogi Berra of the Yanks already have called upon general manager George Weiss for "feeling out" talks. Yogi, a stubborn young man who knows his worth, does not figure to be signed easily. The club denies indignantly that it has asked Rizzuto to accept a cut.

"That will be the day," said a Yank official.

The Giants are being generous —they doubled Irvin's salary to Soviet Paper Urges Athletes Work Harder

MOSCOW, Jan. 17 (AP).—The lead editorial in Trud today called on Soviet winter athletes to intensify their training and improve their results in view of the coming Olympic games.

This editorial was seen as a possible indication that the Russians intend to enter the winter Olympics in Norway next month.

The editorial said in part:

"The present winter sports organizations must decide important problems. The matter concerns primarily bringing into systematic sports practice new millions of workers, furthering sports mastery.

"The Olympic committee of the USSR gave preliminary agreement for our participation in the Olympic games. It is the patriotic duty of our athletes to prepare in the best way for these competitions."

Hamilton Richardson, Jr., said Wednesday in Adelaide, Australia that he will play in both the Australian junior and senior championships and try to go all the way in the tournaments.

The 19-year-old Baton Rouge La., youngster had been warned by the Australian Lawn Tennis Association his expense money would be withheld unless he remained until the tournaments end.

Richardson announced he must be back in the United States Feb. 1 to enter Tulane University. He has booked passage for either Jan. 27 or Jan. 30.

The finals are scheduled Jan. 28, so, barring some interruption, Richardson should be able to play the full tournament and qualify for the six pounds ($13.38) daily allowed him by the ALTA.

William (Doc) McMillen, 61-year-old harness racing driver, Wednesday was named the high-average driver of 1951 by the universal driver racing system in Saratoga Springs, NY.

He was top man among reinsmen who competed in 200 or more races.

McMillen, whose home is in London, Ohio, compiled an average of .457. He scored 98 wins, 69 seconds and 37 thirds in 325 starts. All of his racing was in Ohio and Kentucky.

Defence Minister Claxton, who noted down complaints of Canadian soldiers during his recent visit to Korea, has ordered shipment of 100 sets of hockey equipment for the troops there, it was announced at defence headquarters in Ottawa Wednesday.

Six track and field achievements by British athletes last summer are to be submitted to the International Amateur Athletic Federation for recognition as world records. If they are accepted one of them will wipe out the world mark of 7:34.6 set by the University of California two-mile relay team on May 24, 1951. The British foursome was clocked in 7:30 on Sept. 26, 1951.

An Ontario girls' hockey tournament involving teams from at least five centres is being planned in Toronto for the first week in March. The tournament, sponsored by East York hockey officials, has already drawn entries from Georgetown, Dixie, Brampton and Sarnia.

Talks aimed at bringing Jimmy Carter, world lightweight champion, to Toronto for a non-title fight with Toronto's Allan McFater next month, were temporarily stalled Wednesday over the money involved. Promoter Frank Tunney who has signed McFater for the fight, offered Carter $4,000 and 25 per cent of the gate. Willie Ketchum, Carter's manager, is asking $6,000 and 32½ per cent of the take.

The government's Salary Stabilization Board in Washington came up Wednesday with a baseball salary policy which would allow across-the-board raises. It provides that any single club may pay salaries to its players totalling the amount paid in any single year from 1946 to 1950, plus 10 per cent. An alternate possibility gives a club the right to pay its players, in any proportion it wants, the total amount of salary paid in 1951.

Entire System Was Rundown After Suffering Very Bad Stomach Disorders, Says This Man, But "Feel Like Different Person Since Taking Syntona."

MR. LEONARD PULLEN, 80 Tisdale street, north, Hamilton, Onntario, is glad to pass his experience along to others, because he knows what it means to get relief from health disorders which had troubled him a long time and made him feel tired, achy and rundown.

MR. LEONARD PULLEN

"I was really in a bad way, couldn't get to sleep at night and would get up every morning feeling tired, achy and dizzy," said Mr. Pullen. "I suffered from acid indigestion, would get awful gas, belched up hot, sour liquids and had a bloated, full heavy feeling in my stomach. My nerves seemed all on edge. I had no appetite and my back was aching all the time.

"I heard a lot of praise for Syntona, so I decided to give it a trial and soon found this medicine did all that was said about it. I never had anything before to give me such quick relief from the acid indigestion and other stomach distress. I now sleep better, feel more rested and refreshed when morning comes and I don't get those dizzy spells that I did before. The aches and pains have gone away. I now enjoy my meals and literally feel a different person."

Syntona is purely herbal, contains no soda, iron, or other minerals. It is safe, pleasant to take and has helped thousands of men and women in this city and vicinity.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. (Advt.)

Nine Holsteins Electrocuted

BLACKSTOCK, Jan. 17.—Nine registered Holstein cows valued at $4,000 were electrocuted on the farm of Wilfrid Bowles, who lives on the Scugog Rd. north of Blackstock.

It is believed that a short somewhere in the pumping system allowed the current to pass into the water system and then to the water bowls in the stalls. The cows were electrocuted when they attempted to drink. Quick action by Harry Vander Heul, a Dutch immigrant employee on the Bowles' farm, who saw the cows fall and shouted to his brother to turn off the power averted a similar death of all 66 remaining animals in the barn.

GUAM, Jan. 17 (AP)—A 20-man patrol failed today to find a group of former Japanese soldiers apparently still roaming northern Guam, unaware that the war is over.

Five Japanese were captured in the same area not long ago.

Vancouver Play 'Patchy' Acting

VANCOUVER, Jan. 17 (AP)—A "sincere but patchy" performance of Emlyn Williams' "The Corn Is Green" by the Vancouver Little Theatre Association Wednesday night led off the four-play British Columbia regional drama festival.

Adjudicator Pierre Lefevre said that it was difficult to set a standard because this was the first of scores of plays he will see across Canada.

He said he intended to "tread warily" at first, perhaps becoming "more cruel and daring" in adjudicating later plays.

Mr. Lefevre drew a laugh from the audience when he said that the English spoken by the actors had been so good he "wasn't conscious of any of the actors being Canadians." The Welsh speech and singing in the play also had been handled well. Costumes were good.

BONN, Germany, Jan. 17 — (Reuters) — Russia has fully equipped her air force day fighter units in East Germany with the deadly MIG-15, the jet fighter in use in Korea, a German military journal said today.

At the end of 1951 Russia had 25,000 front line planes, 18,000 transport planes and 7,000 trainers, it added.

Of frontline planes 10,000 were said to be jets, including 2,000 strategic bombers. Russian production was reported to be running at 25,000 planes a year.

Female Fagin Held By Police

MONTREAL, Jan. 17—(AP)—A 60-year-old woman, described as a female fagin, was arrested by city police Wednesday night with two youths and four juveniles of her "crime school".

Police said they seized "thousands of dollars worth" of stolen goods in the woman's centrally-located home, clearing up at least 25 major thefts committed during the last three months.

Among the six arrested was the woman's 20-yead-old son and his 19-year-old friend. Police said the woman encouraged the youngsters to band together under the leadership of the 19-year-old to steal cameras, linens and other articles, including several cases of beer. The band was sworn to secrecy and threatened with a beating should they divulge any information.

The woman, whose name was withheld, will be charged with encouraging juveniles to commit unlawful acts and receiving stolen goods.

TOKYO, Jan. 17 (AP). — A group of Japanese political and economic leaders today accepted an invitation from Russia to attend a world economic conference in Moscow next April.

Kei Hoashi, Japanese economist and former Conservative member of the House of Councillors (Senate), told Kyodo news service 12 or 13 Japanese would go to Moscow. Only nine are known to have received invitations.

The group decided to accept at a meeting today, Hoashi said. All were described by the Japanese press as non-Communists.

Hoashi said, "The conference is purely economic and not political at all. World business leaders are expected to come."

Longer Army Service

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 17 — (Reuters)—The Danish foreign policy committee agreed Wednesday to boost compulsory military service from 12 to 18 months but limited defence spending increases to less than half the figure asked by Gen. Eisenhower. The committee decided to increase defence spending by about 20 per cent to $370,000,000 during the three years 1951 to 1954. North Atlantic treaty headquarters in Paris had advised an increase to $434,000,000.

Believes US Ahead Russia In Atom Work

AUCKLAND, NZ, Jan. 17 — (Rueters)—P. N. Burbidge, Auckland university professor of physics just back from a tour of atomic research stations in the United States, Britain and Canada, thinks that Russia knows she does not stand a chance in an atomic war against the US.

"America is at least six years ahead of Britain in atomic research machines. Nobody knows where Russia stands but I have a feeling that America has been scared by the Russian bogey," he said.

He told reporters the US may be channelling too much atomic energy research and achievement into military stockpiling and might be beaten in the civil atomic race.

22 More Cities Forbidden To Foreigners

MOSCOW, Jan. 17 (AP)—Russia Wednesday issued an additional list of locations forbidden to visiting foreigners, including 22 cities not on the list circulated in September, 1948.

In the area of Moscow itself, foreigners had been restricted to travel on certain roads within 30 miles of the capital. Now they must stay within 25, with certain exceptions.

Cities added to the "forbidden" list include: Poltava, Kharkov, Kirovgrad, Pskov, Vitebsk, Gomel, Yaroslavl, Shcherboakov, Bryansk, Chkalov, Novosibirsk, Stalinsk, Ufa, Omsk, Tomsk, Igarka (except for foreign shipping), Cheremkhovo, Chirepovets, Saratov, Astrakhan and Magach-Kala.

The region around Ochenskoye reservoir, northeast of Moscow, also was added to the list.

Some cities, such as Tiflis in Georgia, or Odessa on the Black Sea, or Leningrad, still may be visited by foreigners.

Several Reasons

There could be a number of reasons why travel by foreigners would be forbidden in the cities listed. In the case of the Siberian cities, it may have something to do with the Soviet atomic energy program, particularly with regard to Yakutsk, which some believe is near the site of Soviet atom-bomb experimentation.

In other cases, the reasons may be the proximity of war industries.

Some of the cities, particularly along the Volga River, are in the area of important hydro-electric developments.

Make New Wind Tunnel To Test Supersonic Models

OTTAWA — (CP). — The National Research Council is creating a new high-speed wind tunnel to learn more about supersonic aircraft.

The new tunnel, capable of producing speeds equivalent to 2,000 miles an hour at sea level, will be a sister to one developed a year ago at the Council's aerodynamic laboratories on the eastern outskirts of the Capital.

The speed of the dried air flowing through it will not be as great, but it will be larger and designed specifically for supersonic aircraft research.

The new tunnel will have working sections 16 inches wide and 30 inches high and when completely installed will run about 30 or 40 feet. It will be linked with a vacuum sphere 35 feet in diameter and will be capable of producing speeds almost three times that of sound, 760 miles an hour at sea level.

Air can be passed through the older development at the rate of five times the speed of sound, or about 3,500 miles an hour.

Models Tested

Models of a variety of missiles are being tested in the 1951 tunnel, but steel models of high-speed and supersonic aircraft probably will be tested in the new development, expected to be completed in the latter part of this year.

Alongside these high-speed testing facilities is a building which will house a laboratory dealing specifically with gas turbine and its applications in the aeronautical and other fields.

Julius Lukasiewicz, 32-year-old Polish-born aeronautical scientist working on the new project was asked how soon the western world could expect to witness the spectacle of supersonic military jets whizzing overhead.

He replied that it would be a matter of four or five years.

"Truly supersonic flight of piloted aircraft was first achieved in the United States in October, 1947," said the British-trained engineer who left his native Poland about 10 years ago.

He spent eight years in Britain, including the centre of British aeronautical research, Farnborough, before coming to Canada three years ago.

"It may be just another four or five years," he said, "before supersonic military aircraft will be flying operationally."

Trying To Catch Up

Meanwhile, Canada is trying to catch up with other western powers in the search for superior, faster aircraft, piercing the supersonic barrier.

To Canada's advantage is the co-operation existing among Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom, Mr. Lukasiewicz said. Canada, while making her own contribution, benefits from research and development now being energetically pursued both in Britain and the US.

Supersonics is not a new field. German scientists made practical discoveries some 25 years ago that gave the Nazis a head start in guided missiles in the Second World War.

While the western world, up to 1945, was concentrating on winning the war with conventional planes, several advanced jet aircraft and rocket missiles were developed in Germany.

Benefits Others

But since the war, German knowledge and experience has been put to use both by the western countries and Russia. Currently, developments in the west are proceeding on a scale in excess of the German wartime effort.

In Canada, NRC work in the aeronautics field is linked with the work the commercial-aircraft industry is doing. It is co-ordinated under the recently-organized national aeronautical establishment. All these groups work closely and secretly in the job that will turn the 20th century into the supersonic century for the western world.

Whether Canada, however, will ever go into mass production of supersonic aircraft remains to be seen. But, said Mr. Lukasiewicz, if Canada is to continue turning out "prototype" military aircraft, the jet aircraft she is creating may one day have to give way to speedier models.

County Library Has 3,000 Books

LINDSAY, Jan. 17—(ENS)—According to figures released today, every student in 500 rural schools throughout Victoria County has read eight books since the formation of Victoria County library co-operative last March. Mrs. Ethel Dewar, county librarian, said the library now contains over 3,000 books and by the end of this year she hopes to have 10,000 books.

The books are distributed to the schools every three months by the librarian and are also placed in the village libraries. At the end of the three months, exchanges are made so that new books are always on hand. Fifty-six school rooms in the county also have smaller libraries. Victoria is the first county in Eastern Ontario to form a co-operative. There are 12 others in Western Ontario.

Can Use TTC Tickets To Get To Island

TORONTO, Jan. 17 — (CP)—A street car ticket still can be used in tramless Toronto. Go over to the Island.

Since the transit strike began January 4 and street cars, and buses vanished from Toronto streets about 2,300 persons have continued to buy — and use — tickets.

For residents of Toronto Island, about a mile across the harbor, Toronto Transportation Commission three-for-a-quarter street car tickets are good for a tugboat ride to or from work in the city.

During the winter season, the city runs a tugboat service in lieu of the TTC-operated summer ferry service. The tugboat crews have no affiliation with the striking operators and thus are not concerned in the wage dispute.

CANADIAN INDUSTRY UNDERGOES FUNDAMENTAL CHANGES WHILE REACHING RECORD OUTPUT

Highlights of address by B. S. Vanstone, President of The Bank of Toronto at 96th Annual Meeting

Canada's production volume per capita has never been matched by any other country.

Trend of Canadian exports away from Britain and into U.S. involves certain risks.

Canadian agriculture maintains efficiency while production methods become more mechanized.

Abandonment of Foreign Exchange Control should inspire further world confidence in Canadian economy.

Safety of capital and reasonable profit must combine with natural resources to encourage foreign investment.

40% of capital expenditure in 1951 was for modern industrial machinery and equipment, materially increasing our industrialization.

Canadian industry in the past twelve or eighteen months has undergone fundamental changes in emphasis and scope, at the same time producing new standards of production and a volume which it is safe to say has never been matched by any other nation of fourteen million people.

The Changing Economy

There has been a steady and marked change from a predominantly agricultural economy to one of sound diversification. The record shows exceptions, but on the whole 1951 was a year of great economic activity.

Agriculture

Canada's agriculture has kept efficient through an era during which production methods have greatly changed. The subsistence farm, which for generations was the backbone of country life, has largely given place to a type of enterprise which is specialized and mechanized as much as is the average factory. Canadian farmers, of all races and creeds, some backed by generations on our soil and some but newly arrived, are proving their ability in this process of change, while our implement manufacturers constantly study the scope for mechanization and our agricultural departments and colleges do laudable work in research and education.

Minerals

Because of defense programs, minerals attract the greatest development interest today, and in this field Canada, through its great resources and their accessibility, occupies a prominent place. Apart from gold mining, which continues to struggle against rising costs and sluggish prices, there has been substantial progress in the production and development of nearly every mineral ranging from common iron to the newer and much sought uranium and titanium. The iron, copper, zinc and nickel of the Central provinces, the titanium of Quebec, and the uranium of the Western provinces, are adding substantially to our national revenue, also giving to Canada a balance formerly lacking and rounding out our economy in a way which will make us much stronger in the future.

Chemical Industry

The enormous development and expansion, notably in Alberta, British Columbia and the Central provinces, of our chemical industry is one of the high spots of the past year. Chemicals in a sense are the key to a much wider industrial picture, often showing the way to other important economic developments. For this reason the industry's progress and the energy and success of the research that are behind it, are most commendable.

Foreign Trade

Our external trade for the first eleven months of 1951 was $7.4 billion, and for the full year is expected to reach $8 billion. The eleven-month increase was $16. billion or 28% over the corresponding part of 1950, but for a country which has become used to export surpluses, it is at first glance disturbing to see that imports have gone $278 million ahead of exports. In respect to distribution of our trade, the percentage with the United States has increased to 64%, while that with Great Britain is 13%, and the balance with other countries 23%. These figures show a continuation of the trend that has been apparent in recent years—a swing away from the British market to the American market. In view of our dependence on external trade, it is not a trend with which we should be content. Too much concentration involves obvious risks and, whenever time and circumstances permit, we should seek the widest distribution of both our sources of supply and our export outlets.

The heavy deficit in our trading account with the United States was due to a fair extent to our purchases of war materials from them being much in excess of their similar purchases here. It is to be hoped that the recent arrangement for the entry of such materials duty free into the United States from Canada and the placing of larger reciprocal orders here are indicative of a more equitable attitude on their part.

Capital Investment

Rich as Canada is in natural resources, these in themselves are not sufficient to induce capital investment; there must be a reasonable degree of safety and profit. Canada fits all these requirements. She has made marvellous strides during the past half century and there is the greatest confidence in her future. Foreign bankers and business men speak in glowing terms of Canada: our stable Government, good-type and industrious citizens, sound economy, good banking system, balanced budget, and wonderful natural resources—minerals, oil and gas, forests, water power, productive lands—and above all, our freedom.

We welcome this outside capital investment as making possible the development of Canada more quickly than otherwise could be the case, but we would like to see Canadians take a larger share in this progress. Unfortunately present heavy taxation, both corporate and personal, leaves little available for the purpose.

Foreign Exchange Controls

The exchange value of the Canadian dollar has been well maintained and has swung within normally moderate limits. In light of this experience the Government decided on complete abolition of all controls and I believe wisely so. This action should inspire further world confidence in our economy and induce greater foreign investment in Canada, also it should be an impetus to trade to know that all transactions are exempt from permit requirements.

I feel I would be remiss if at this time I did not acknowledge the excellent work of the Foreign Exchange Control Board and its officers during the difficult war and post-war period when exchange controls were so necessary. It must give them considerable satisfaction that Canada has achieved a position where free trading can be permitted, thus joining the United States and Switzerland as the only countries in this happy position.

The Outlook

It is customary, besides reviewing the events of the past year, to attempt to forecast the future to some extent. This is more difficult this year than usual as there are so many varying influences facing us. There is still the threat of inflation and while there has been a lull in its intensity, the forces contributing to it are by no means dissipated. Then there are shortages in some commodities, while in others inventories and production are in excess of consumer demand. With the increased tempo of defense expenditure, there will be a swing in employment, which is always somewhat disturbing during the adjustment period. However, industry as a whole should be very active having in mind higher defense production, the aluminum development in B.C., the oil, gas, chemical and co-related industries of Alberta, and the increased industrialization in the Central provinces.

While soft spots are likely to develop in some lines of business, we can look ahead with confidence. Our economy is strong and virile; our resources are varied and valuable; our soil is fertile and productive; our people are ingenious, industrious and law-abiding. We possess that boon above all others: personal liberty. With these blessings Canada is in a most favoured position and the long-term future is bright.

General Manager, L. G. Gillett Reports Record Year

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

Your Bank has experienced another good year. I feel we should be gratified that we show our assets at $489,000,000, moderately higher than a year ago and a new all-time high, and that our earnings have been well maintained.

Profits

Net earnings after full provision for Bad and Doubtful Debts, the usual contribution to the Pension Fund, but before Government Taxes and Depreciation, were $2,582,406, higher by $22,000 than a year ago. Taxes, Federal and Provincial, at $946,000 were up slightly, but Depreciation $519,000 was $104,000 higher.

Distribution to Shareholders

Our distribution to shareholders was again $960,000, representing dividends of $1.40, plus a bonus of twenty cents a share, or an actual return on the shareholders' equity of a little less than 4½%.

Current Loans and Discounts

$182,000,000 have increased by $22,800,000. The total could well have been materially higher, but the Federal Government's policy of credit restriction, inaugurated last February is well known to all. We have co-operated fully in discouraging all requests for loans of a speculative or non-essential nature, but where expanding business has necessitated increases in the lines of credit extended to our customers, we have not hesitated to take care of them.

Deposits

$462,000,000 are $2,000,000 higher. Deposits from the public, we are pleased to say, are up $10,000,000, but the gain is largely offset by lower balances in Government accounts at date of statement.

Branches and Bank Premises

At the close of the year our investment in bank premises stood at $7,906,000, an increase over last year of $1,900,000. This substantial increase reflects the progress made in carrying out our 1951 program which included several major outlays. There is still a heavy program ahead of us.

Our program of growing with the country continues, and twelve new branches were opened during the year.

With the closing of one office during 1951, our total now stands at 235 branches, an increase of 61 since the end of the war. We established a European office in London, England, at 146 Leadenhall Street.

It is not our intention to conduct a regular banking business there, but rather to give some service to our Canadian friends abroad, maintain closer liaison with our established correspondents and clients in Great Britain and the Continent, and also, of course, assist us in securing new connections.

Staff

Our Staff now numbers 2,534—54% men, and 46% women. We would not try to differentiate between men and women when we consider the contribution made by both to the progress of the Bank. I like to feel that each member of our competent and loyal staff deserved to the full the salary adjustments and cash bonuses awarded in December, as well as the upward revisions in cost-of-living and other allowances made in mid-year, and once again I express on behalf of the Bank sincere thanks for their support and co-operation during 1951.

It may not be peculiar to The Bank of Toronto, but I am sure you will be glad to know that we never lose sight of those on Pension or Retirement Allowance, and in recent years we have supplemented the incomes of many who retired in the days of smaller salaries and lower costs. In short, not only those now active but those still living who contributed directly or indirectly to the prosperity of the Bank in days gone by remain our concern.

The five-day week will soon become a reality in the large centres and perhaps in others later. We feel that it is incumbent on us to institute this change with the least possible discomfort to the public who use our facilities.

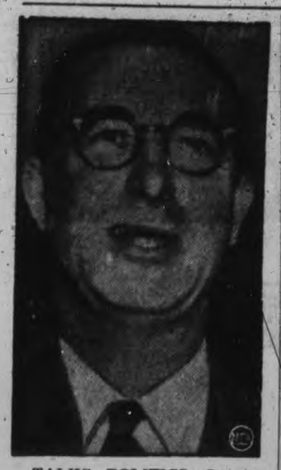
Customers and Shareholders

We express our thanks at this time to our customers and shareholders whose loyal support means so much to us. Our customers now number over half a million, and the rate of increase over each of the past three years has been quite impressive with the present total, of course, an all-time high. The increase in number of our shareholders is equally gratifying. They now total 1892, higher by 170 than a year ago.

Canada is presently experiencing some of the discomforts which accompany growing pains. From the standpoint of material wealth, our country is healthy beyond comparison and her virility is becoming more and more evident. Yet at times—and perhaps more particularly during the past year—there has been some evidence of a sluggishness in our circulatory system. Some of this at least has been admittedly of our own devising, but plenty of it is circumstantial, stemming from a social revolution over which we, barely 14 million pioneers in a relatively new country, have little or no control.

The immediate cloud on the horizon raises the question of what kind of weather is forecast. Is the dizzy economic spiral being straightened out, or is it only being elongated? What do the next few months hold for us?

We speak of inflation as though it were a localized ache—something we could cure with a political or social poultice, but in reality it is a world disease—the aftermath of two wars while now we are paying for the preparation of a third. Wars are not paid for in money, but by the consumption of real wealth—lives, goods, and services—and every class must contribute.



The burden is expected to fall chiefly on the so-called wealthy and so it does, but unfortunately there are not enough of them, and so everyone must contribute not only through direct taxation, but by indirect taxation and higher living costs. No one willingly accepts this, and so the struggle goes on unceasingly—each individual and each segment of the populace trying to pass on the share of the burden that applies to him or them, but strive as they may, any advantage gained can only be temporary. All expedients—higher prices, higher wages, shorter hours—keep reacting one on the other, and all combine to bring higher living costs which all must bear.

How can the spiral be stopped? It could be if everyone realized that no one class can escape paying its share, and that we cannot live better than we used to, or even as well, unless we produce more to be shared by all. We all have to learn the lessons of self-sacrifice and self-control in order that our great task of stabilization may be achieved.

We have had six years of unforseeable expansion within our borders. There will be still more expansion and development, but in the process the threats of world conflict must not be ignored. Every one of us must realize that we have one common and all-important purpose—to maintain our freedom and our right to live as free men. As our pioneer forefathers stumped the forest and sowed their grain with their rifles loaded and close at hand, so this nation too must plan to work with its weapons ready and close at hand. It takes time. It costs money. At times it will be nerve-wracking, but it must be done.

Nehru Party Members Take Early Vote Lead

NEW DELHI, Jan. 17 (Reuters) —Prime Minister Nehru's Congress (government) Party showed up well in the lead as the latest results in India's federal and state elections came in Wednesday.

Nehru's men have piled up 447 victories so far, but the Communists and left-wingers have fought back stubbornly to gain 101 seats. About 740 results of the total 4,000 have been announced.

Voting in the federal race is for 238 seats in the Council of States (upper house) and 500 seats in the lower "House of the People."

Finance Minister Sir Chintaman Deshmukh, with a majority of 42,000 in Kolaba, near Bombay, became the third of Nehru's cabinet minister to be re-elected.

The 175,000,000 electorate is voting for the central parliament and state assemblies in 22 of the 28 states of the union. Jammu State and Kashmir will have separate elections and five states are administered from New Delhi.

Few Final Results

Complete election results have been announced in only two states.

In Himachal Pradesh, in the north, the Congress Party has been returned with an absolute majority of 12 in a State Assembly of 36 seats. In Travancore-Cochin, in the southwest, the Congress Party won only 44 of the 108 seats in the State Assembly, although it emerged the largest party in the House. The Communists gained 32 seats to form the second largest bloc.

In Bombay, the Congress Party so far won 95 seats, with 110 results announced. Bombay State Assembly numbers 315.

But Home Minister M. Desai leading Congress Party member and strong man of the Bombay Government, has been beaten by his Socialist nephew, Dr. Amul Desai, according to authoritative sources. An official announcement of the result was withheld pending a recount.

Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, president, opened the meeting and led in prayer. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Collins read the minutes of the previous meeting.

Treasurer's report was given by Mrs. H. E. Oliver and money sent to Toronto. Christianship reading was given by Mrs. Collins.

Arrangements were made to hold a fee tea for the Mission Band on Feb. 7 in the Sunday school room.

Mrs. Metcalfe took the study book, assisted by Mrs. M. Cole, Mrs. H. Oliver, Mrs. W. Way and Mrs. Cecil Oliver, the subject being French Canadians. Plans were made to pack a bale for missions.

Two Accidents Three Charges Two Dismissed

Details of two accidents, the second happening while the first was being investigated were heard in police court Wednesday when two of the drivers involved appeared on charges of dangerous and careless driving.

The accidents occurred on Highway 7 about 3 miles east of Peterborough the evening of December 23.

After hearing the evidence, Magistrate E. A. Gee of Lindsay, dismissed a charge of dangerous driving against Joseph Hayes, 853 St. Mary's St., and Gordon Jenkins, Bancroft was acquitted of careless driving. A careless driving charge against Hayes was adjourned.

Magistrate Gee presided at the Wednesday session of police court in the absence of Magistrate W. R. Philp who was in Bancroft for the day, where semi-monthly court sessions were being held.

Took To Ditch

Jenkins, driving west pulled out of a line of traffic, when the car ahead appeared to be stopping suddenly. As he did so, he saw an approaching car driven by Albert Budd, Stirling, and headed for the ditch. The two cars collided before Jenkins' car went into the ditch and Budd's car ended up crossways of the highway on the north half of the road.

Before the car was moved, OPP constable Wally Mohns and Budd were inspecting the damage to the car when an approaching car driven by Hayes, sent them both diving for the ditch.

Budd and constable Mohns just made it when Hayes car skidded into the Budd car. Mrs. Budd and the five-year-old were hit by the Hayes car and injured slightly.

Evidence of Budd and constable Mohns revealed that a westbound car had driven around the Budd car a few seconds before Hayes skidded into it.

Cloud Of Snow

Hayes took the stand and said the other car kicked up quite a cloud of snow in passing him and obscured his vision. He said he slowed down and did not see the car blocking the north half of the road until he was about 25 or 30 feet from it. He said he could not go to the south of the car because there were two people on the road. Hayes said the applied his brakes but skidded on the slippery pavement into the car.

Mr. Bradshaw said he would not press for a conviction on the dangerous driving charge.

When Mr. Bradshaw started to suggest that the evidence be applied to a charge of careless driving, Mr. Fair interrupted and asked for an adjournment because he said he would not agree to the same evidence being applied.

Turned Off Road

In the careless driving charge against Jenkins, Budd testified that he was passing a line of westbound traffic. The head car, he said, pulled into a service station. The following cars "snubbed" their brakes when the head car turned off.

Jenkins, last in the line, said the car ahead did not have its stop lights working and he did not know it was going to stop until he was about 35 feet behind it, as it began weaving.

Urging Magistrate Gee to dismiss the charge, Gordon Farquharson said Jenkins had three alternatives, to go into the deep ditch on the right, hit the car ahead, or gamble on the south half of the road being clear. Seeing the oncoming Budd car, Mr. Farquharson said Jenkins did all he could to avoid hitting it by heading for the ditch.

Magistrate Gee dismissed the charge.

North Cavan Splits On High School Issue

MILLBROOK, Jan. 17 (ENS)—A delegation from North Cavan addressed the meeting of Cavan township council, held in the hall in Millbrook on Monday afternoon on the high school issue. Some of the members of the delegation thought it would be wise to withdraw from the Peterborough suburban high school area, others were very much opposed to this move. Each side presented its views to the council.

Both were advised to get together and to decide what they really did want and if they found it necessary to present their case to the Minister of Education. No action was taken.

Tommy Trinder Talked Into Making Canadian Trip

By MURIEL NARRAWAY.

LONDON, Jan. 17 (CP).—London's Tommy Trinder, sometimes called "Britain's Bob Hope," says he was "talked into" his coming Canadian tour.

The explanation is quite simple. Trinder owns the Fulham football team that went to Canada early in 1951. When the players came back they talked so much about Canada Tommy decided to see it for himself.

Now he's Toronto-bound late this month for a coast-to-coast tour.

Trinder will head a "typical" English vaudeville show. In the cast will be two Canadians—Alan and Blanche Lund, well-known dance team from Toronto. The Lunds, now back in Canada, recently appeared with Trinder in an eight-month run of "Fancy Free," a west end vaudeville show.

To Aid Children

The Canadian tour, sponsored by a Toronto club, is designed to aid crippled children and victims of poliomyelitis. This is of special significance to Mrs. Lund, who once was stricken with polio and told she would never walk again.

Trinder's first Canadian appearance, Feb. 11, will be as a master of ceremonies—a part that gives him plenty of opportunity for the repartee he has specialized in through 30 years on the stage.

In a back-stage interview between twice daily appearances as Simple Simon in the London pantomime "Babes in the Wood," Trinder said: "When I've been to Canada there will be only three countries I haven't played—Russia, China and South America.

On his Canadian tour Trinder has just one ambition—to see as much of Canada as possible, visit relatives in Winnipeg.

TRIESTE, because of its strategic location, has been fought over for centuries. Its fine harbor, protected by mountains that dominate the upper Adriatic Sea, has been the gateway for trade with the Danube basin and Eastern Europe. Austria claimed the port city for 500 years, but lost it to Italy in World War I, after 600,000 Italians died fighting in the snow-covered Julian Alps. In World War II, Hitler grabbed Trieste only to lose it to Tito, who tried for a time to bring the city into the then-expanding Soviet Slav empire. After the war, the Western Allies wanted to return it to Italy, but at Paris in 1946 they compromised on a "Free Territory of Trieste," under United Nations supervision and occupied jointly by East and West. Zone A has been occupied by Britain and America, and has enjoyed five times more American Marshall Plan aid per capita than Italy. Zone B has been under Yugoslav occupation. Recent reports from Belgrade say Trieste may soon be divided, despite Russian objections, between Italy and Yugoslavia along the border of the two occupation zones. The port of Trieste would become Italian, but would be open also to Yugoslavia and Austria. With Western Europe rearming, Trieste has enjoyed prosperity in its booming shipyards, oil refineries and with the income brought by 10,000 British and U.S. troops stationed in the northern zone. Trieste's largely Italian population, while working for reunion with Italy, would view with mixed emotions the end of their privileged status as a "free territory" subsidized by Allied funds.

North Cavan Ratepayers Answered On High School Grant Question

At a recent meeting of the ratepayers of north Cavan township at which was discussed the High School question and a move set on foot for the north Cavan area to withdraw from the Peterborough High School area and unite with the south Cavan area to support the Millbrook Continuation school charges were made that the Peterborough Board of Education was witholding grants which should have been applied to the High School area.

This was emphatically denied by members of the Peterborough Board of Education at the time and today K. S. Wightman superintendent of education in Peterborough and secretary of the Peterborough Board described the manner of calculation of fees for non-resident secondary school student as follows.

"Up to recent years all our non-resident pupils at the Collegiate and Vocational school were County pupils and their tuition fees were paid by the County Council. The method of calculating these fees is set out in Section 36 (1) of the High School Act and Section 13 (3) of the Vocational Education Act. These two Sections are identical in terms and direct that from the total costs, both Capital and Operating for the year, are to be deducted all Provincial grants and some minor items, and the net amount is to be divided by the perfect aggregate attendance at the school for the year. The cost per pupil day thus obtained is multiplied by the perfect attendance of the County pupils to obtain the total fees payable by the County. This method is still in use for all pupils who come from a section of the County which is not included in any High School district.

"When students come from a High School district outside the City the fees are calculated in the same way except that Provincial grants are not deducted from the total cost before calculating the cost per pupil day. This method of calculation is provided for by Section 47 (1A) of the High School Act and Section 13 (4D) of the Vocational Education Act. Thus the City Board receives a higher rate per pupil day from High School districts than it does from the County. This is compensated for, however, by a regulation which requires the City to deduct all attendance from outside High School districts and Departmental grants are paid only on the net attendance thus obtained. The City therefore receives no Departmental grant on the attendance of students from other High Schol districts. It does still receive a grant on the attendance of County pupils who are not in any High School district and whose fees are calculated at the County rate.

"This method of calculating fees for students from other High School districts has been in force for several years in the Academic Department but was introduced for the first time in the Vocational Department in 1951 in accordance with an amendment to the Act which was made in 1950. In 1951 changes were also made in the method of calculating Vocational grants, the most important being a change from the school year to the calendar year.

"The City's accounts with other High School Boards for Vocational students in 1951 were the first in which this new method of calcuating Vocational fees was used. The general principle which the Department is following is that it will not pay a grant twice on the cost of the same pupils. When the City is allowed to charge full cost, it cannot collect a grant on these pupils from other High School districts since the grant is paid to their own Board. Grants are, however, based on the expenses of the previous year. Since the Suburban Boards paid full cost of Vocational pupils for the first time in 1951, the effect of this on their grants will not appear until 1952. In the case of the City on the other hand, while the increased fees were received in 1951 the reduction of grant was also made the same year."

Offer Reward In Nurse Search

MONTREAL, Jan. 17 (CP). — A $500 reward was offered Wednesday for information leading to the discovery of Nursing Sister Lieut. Elizabeth Sansom, missing from Kingston, since December 24. The reward was offered by Dr. Arthur S. Douglas of Knowlton, Que., an uncle of the missing nurse.

"This reward offer may result in a flood of calls from people everywhere," an army spokesman said. "Every bit of information will be carefully checked no matter how meaningless it may seem. Such a tipoff may be the break we have been trying to get for weeks."

Lieut. Sansom, 26, niece of Lt.-Gen. E. W. Sansom, retired Second World War corps commander, was last seen in Kingston on December 24 when she boarded a train for Sherbrooke, Que., where she was to spend Christmas.

Shortly after the search was launched, it was discovered she had been in Montreal, where she cashed a cheque December 26.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sansom, live in Stanley, NB.

Daring Bridge Worker Saves Life Of Suicide-Bent Woman

WINDSOR, Jan. 17 — (CP).— The daring efforts of a young Ambassador Bridge employee on a foot-wide I beam 155 feet above the icy waters of the Detroit River Wednesday night resulted in saving the life of a suicide-bent Detroit woman.

Louis Renaud, 23, married with one child, was the hero.

Rescued was Mrs. Doris Lahey, about 38. After her rescue she said, "Let's say I was tired of it."

An American woman crossing the bridge spotted Mrs. Lahey as she climbed over the railing of the bridge.

She gave the alarm at Canadian Customs and Renaud went to the centre of the bridge where he saw a motorist standing by the railing dangling a piece of rope to the woman who was standing on a girder, some 10 to 15 feet below the roadway.

Renaud peeled off his coat and hat and went over the rail.

Renaud, on the bridge maintenance crew, in summer climbs under the bridge on painting and repair assignments.

Kept Talking

Mrs. Lahey started walking under the bridge, 155 feet above the Detroit River, on the slender beam. Renaud talked to her. She said her husband was unfaithful and did not love her any more.

She kept edging across the beam with Renaud trailing by about 10 feet.

Mrs. Lahey stopped on a four-foot-wide catwalk under the centre of the bridge while Renaud talked to her.

As he neared her, Renaud told Mrs. Lahey he was coming after her and if she wanted to jump she had better do it now.

She edged back and finally trapped herself in a steel enclosed triangle of girders, where Renaud made a quick dash and pinned her.

A rope was lowered and fastened under Mrs. Lahey's arms and she was brought to the bridge surface.

Windsor police took the woman into custody.

Look To Canada

MANCHESTER, England, Jan. 17 (Reuters) — It's only from Canadian mills that Britain can look for a great increase in newsprint supplies within the next few years, F. P. Bishop, manager of the Newsprint Supply Company, said here Wednesday. But, he told the Institute of Journalists, two major difficulties stand in the way—Britain's own dollar difficulties and the American demand which absorbs the whole of the Canadian production.

Make Forced Landing

EDMONTON, Jan. 17—(CP)—A United States military transport plane Wednesday made a forced landing in a snow-covered field a mile northwest of Lacombe, Alta., but none of the 14 persons —all Americans—aboard was injured. The craft was en route from Ladd Field, Alaska, to Elgin Field, Fla. Lacombe is about 80 miles south of Edmonton.

LIST LICENCE PLATES

Police Chief John Thompson today passed along a reminder to motorists that the law requires all motor vehicles to have two licence plates. He points out that anyone who loses a marker and is unable to find it, must purchase another set of 1951 plates. Several plates have been found and turned in to the police station and Chief Thompson added that motorists who have lost a licence plate recently are welcome to call at the station to look for them.

THE FRED JOLLIFFES moved to the country to farm in Ennismore but they brought some of the city with them, including the television set they are watching here. Mr. Jolliffe, who still works part of the week in Toronto, was elected to the township council recently. — (Examiner Staff Photo)

County Seeks To Restrict Cutting Of Trees

A bylaw restricting and regulating the cutting of trees in Peterborough county will likely be passed at the present session of county council.

Today, in committee on reforestation, council heard the first draft of the proposed bylaw. But some strong objections—particularly from Reeve Norman Wilson of Burleigh-Anstruther township—caused the bylaw to be referred back to a special committee for further consideration.

The bylaw lays down rules and regulations for cutting trees in the county (except within a watershed for which an authority is set up under the Conservation Authorities Act, 1946).

Limits Proposed

The proposed bylaw does not: (a) Interfere with the right of the occupant of the land to cut trees for his own use on his own land. That is, on his own land, he can cut an unlimited amount of timber for his own use but he cannot sell it.

(b) Interfere with the rights or powers conferred an the municipality by the Municipal Act.

(c) Interfere with the rights or powers of the HEPC of Ontario or any other board or commission operating on behalf of the Ontario government.

(d) Apply to trees growing on any highway or any unopened road allowance.

(e) Interfere with the cutting of dead, broken, stunted, fire-damaged, diseased or insect-infested trees; or other trees that should be removed to improve growing conditions (such as thinnings and improvement cuttings). The advice of a forester will be sought.

(f) Interfere with the cutting of Christmas trees except where officers enforcing the bylaw feel that special circumstances exist which make unrestricted cutting inadvisable. This would apply when trees are growing in a watershed or are preventing soil erosion. Under these special circumstances the officer would probably permit only about 10 per cent to be cut.

(g) Interfere with the cutting of hawthorn, choke cherry, red or pin cherry, poplar, ironwood or Manitoba apple.

Size Debated

The minimum size of trees to be cut is still under debate.

No person shall cut or remove trees so as to unnecessarily injure young trees.

With the permission of enforcement officers, trees of less than minimum size may be cut if the owner wants the land cleared for cultivation.

The penalty set out in the first draft of the bylaw was a minimum of $100 fine for the first offence, and a minimum of $200 for each succeeding offence.

Mr. Wilson took sharp issue on this. He felt the fines were too heavy. A man, not knowing of the bylaw, or by mistake, might cut some trees.

Reeve James Gifford, Ennismore township, also thought this penalty a bit stiff. On the other hand Reeve Elwood H. Northey, Lakefield village, said there was no use having a bylaw if there were no "teeth" in it. Reeve Roland Tedford, Douro township, also said he could see no reason for cutting down on the penalty.

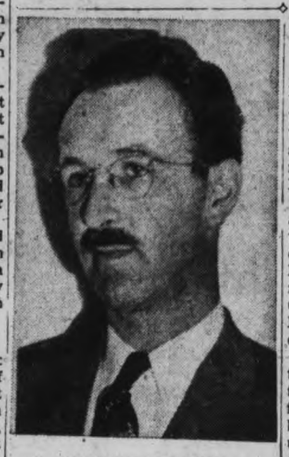
Indications were, however, that this provision would be modified.

Favors Bylaw

Mr. Wilson said he was in favor of a bylaw but he didn't want to see one rushed through hastily that could not be enforced.

"We're not dictators; we must consider the ratepayers and be fair," he said.

Mr. Wilson said the bylaw did nothing to encourage voluntary reforestation. And when it comes to preventing wastage in the bush, he added, the fire protection provided by the Ontario Forestry Branch does more than any other agency.



He estimated that two thirds of the wastage of timber has been caused by fire and the other third by improvident cutting.

The reforestation committee, along with Mr. Wilson, Reeve Peter Pearson, and District Forester John Bell are continuing revising the bylaw.

New Ennismore Councillor Runs Farm, Works In City

By COLLETTE FERGUSON

Ennismore has something new in its township council. Fred Jolliffe, a pleasant-looking Toronto business man who still commutes, moved to the township permanently just six months ago, jumped into local politics the first chance he got and was elected to the council.

GORDON McGAVIN

Gordon McGavin Elected To Head C of C

Gordon McGavin was elected president of the 1952 board of directors of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce Wednesday at the first meeting of the new board this year at the Empress Hotel.

John Madden was elected vice-president, T. E. McKay, treasurer, and James Fraser, secretary.

Two new committees were set up, a membership committee and retail committee. The members of the membership committee are Ken Dalrymple, chairman, George Cheatle and James B. Clarke. Gordon Dobbin is chairman of the retail committee with Bert Austin and James B. Clarke serving as committee members.

The 1952 board of directors was elected by ballot in December.

Like township candidates of 20 years ago Mr. Joliffe toured the township meeting people and talking with them. In the old days that was the only way a man had a chance of being elected. The method apparently is just as popular now as it used to be.

Mr. Jolliffe, his wife and seven and nine-year-old sons have as their new home, a 100 acre farm on the west shore of Buckhorn lake. The farm, four and one half miles northeast of the Ennismore Cross, was formerly owned by Mrs. James Morrissey now of Peterborough.

The Kawarthas first attracted the Jolliffes five years ago when they vacationed at Flood's Landing, Pigeon lake. Since then they bought a cottage there and formulated plans for moving to the district permanently.

Future Plans

"This is our permanent home now," Mr. Jolliffe said as he explained what has already been accomplished and future plans for their lakeside farm.

Five housekeeping cottages are already in the process of erection and the building of five more is planned to take place in the spring on the three-quarters of a mile lakefront. However the Jolliffe family are not content to operate only a tourist site. Four hundred chickens have already been purchased to be the nucleus of a chicken farm.

Perhaps one of the reasons, the Jolliffes have been able to settle so contentedly in their radically new environment is because they have brought a part of their city life with them. The inside of the renovated farm house has all the conveniences of a Toronto home. The living-room with its picture window overlooking the lake suggests a high standard of gracious living with a grand piano, record-radio combination and television set. Pleasing paintings hang on the walls.

Make Own Entertainment

"We don't miss the city entertainments, we make our own entertainment at home," Mr. Jolliffe said.

His wife went on to explain that their two sons were much happier in their new home than in Toronto.

"They like attending a small school and it's wonderful not to have to worry any more about their getting run over on the city streets."

Mrs. Jolliffe also had an enthusiastic word to say about the friendliness of their neighbors. "They've been wonderful."

Before the township council election in Ennismore on Jan. 7, Mr. Jolliffe was approached by a group of district people to run. He agreed and after a few nights driving around to meet the electors he was voted a councillor.

Busy In 1952

This means that Mr. Jolliffe is going to be a busy man in 1952. In addition to attending to his cottages, chicken farm and councillor's duties, he also spends three days a week in Toronto where he is connected with a plumbing supplies establishment.

But Toronto commuting is not a permanent plan and the Jolliffes are looking ahead to a happy life at their new home—Grandview Farm.

Kawartha District To Have Two Booths At Annual Sportsman's Show In Cleveland

The Kawartha lakes district will be represented for a third year and publicized at the Annual American and Canadian Sportsman's Show to be held in Cleveland March 28 to April 6.

But this year the Kawarthas will have two booths instead of one.

This expansion of space at the show is the result of an overall expansion of co-operation among district Chambers of Commerce which has been taking place during the past few months.

Tuesday night a meeting was held in Peterborough with representatives attending from the Peterborough, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon and Lindsay chambers. The decision to set up two booths was a result of this meeting.

Manager of the Peterborough Chamber, James Fraser, said today that it is hoped that all the chambers in the district will take part in the Cleveland Show project.

In 1951 the booth at the show was sponsored by the Peterborough Chamber alone. It is expected that Don Kingdon, assistant to the Peterborough Chamber manager, Bob Garner and representatives from district chambers will be going to Cleveland for the 10-day show.

The booths will contain an enlarged map of the district as well as numerous pictures showing its attractions—scenery, beaches, and summer sports.

Deputation Of 30 Wrangle With Douro School Board Over New Accommodation

Wednesday night was "-ation" night in Douro. Trustees and ratepayers of School Section 2, Douro and Otonabee, heard enough about accommodation and transportation to keep them in headaches for weeks to come. There is no love lost between the school board members and the owners of VLA sites along the Warsaw road. The VLA-ers and other Warsaw road citizens were there, about 30 strong, at Wednesday night's meeting in the Auburn schoolhouse on River Road north.

The board's policy is: "Bring the schools to the children, not the children to the schools". Briefly, they favor a number of one-and two-roomed schools in the school section, and do not favor transportation to a large, central school.

On the other side is the feeling that one school, central and of six rooms, should provide the schooling for the children in the section. Transportation to and from that school should be provided, they feel. Of course, they haven't got the school, or a member on the school board.

Lost Election

Recently, they lost a chance to get a member on the board. Dr. Eldon P. Ray and James Welch stood for the party favoring the six-room school. Both were defeated by clear margins.

But their deputations continue to dog the school board. They want to know what the board plans to do about increased accommodation, and when. They register complaints about toilet and washing facilities in the schools.

Wednesday night's argument was sometimes bitter and marked at times by purely personal remarks. As many as 20 people talked at once, to no point.

One thing was settled definitely—students coming from points more than two miles distant from a school will not get transportation provided by the school board. And it was on this point alone that the board did not agree.

Trustee Clint Hough, seconded by Charles Watkins, moved that transportation be provided for such pupils in mornings only, from December 1 to March 31.

Thin Edge of Wedge

Chairman Howard Quinn, surprised at Mr. Hough's motion, remarked that it was "the thin edge of the wedge," and he was dead set against it.

Originally the motion was designed only to cover students who had to make the chilly two-miles-plus walk along the river from Nassau. After some discussion, Mr. Hough decided to make it cover any pupils who had more than two miles to travel to school. This transportation, Mr. Hough pointed out definitely, was to be for mornings only; the children had to walk home.

Representatives from Nassau felt transportation should be provided both ways. To them, Mr. Hough's motion was better than a poke in the eye with a sharp stick, but not much.

When it came to a vote, there was a tie. And the school act declares that a tied vote is a negative vote. That effectively blunted the thin edge of the wedge.

Later in the meeting, Dr. Ray recalled that once the board had passed a motion to the effect that a committee of three interview the township council with a view to getting tentative approval for $108,000 in debentures for a new six-room school. Dr. Ray wanted to know what had happened to the motion.

Later Rescinded

The motion had been rescinded at a later meeting, Mr. Quinn informed him. At the later meeting, held November 30 (the one before was held November 22), the motion was rescinded on the grounds that the 1951 council would not have time to deal properly with the committee. At that time, the board held an option on a property on which the six-room school could have been built.

Besides, said Mr. Quinn, the board did not favor a six-room, central school. Its policy of 1951 was the same as its declared policy of 1952—bring the schools to the pupils, not the pupils to the schools.

Dr. Ray raised a further point. He asked about the seat left vacant by the moving from the township of the fifth board member, Fred Agnew.

Dr. Ray said he believed the school act said that if a trustee moved from the school section more than a month before an election, the seat was to be declared vacant, and contested in the election. Mr. Quinn read from the school act and confirmed the doctor's opinion.

When Did He Move?

The nub of that issue was whether Mr. Agnew had moved more than a month before the election. It was pointed out that he had not attended the December meeting of the board.

Mr. Quinn said that Mr. Agnew had been on probation on a new job, and the board, on the strength of "legal advice," had not declared the seat vacant, and therefore, it had not been contested in the election.

Normal procedure for the board, in the case of a trustee's seat becoming vacant, is to declare the seat vacant and elect a new trustee at the regular meeting following the occurrence of the vacancy. In such a case, the chairman has the casting vote should the vote be tied.

And that is what the board proposes to do at its next meeting—itself elect a new trustee. The meeting will be held in the county courthouse on February 20 at 8 pm.

Fast-Freezing Rain Turns Streets, Highways Into Icy Traffic Hazards

OPP Report Highways In Fairly Good Shape As Snow Predicted For Night; Dozens Tumble On Slippery City Streets

Freezing rain, expected to end in snowflurries tonight, brought hazard to city streets today. Glare ice forced pedestrians to walk cautiously and drivers to slow their cars, trucks and buses to a funereal pace. Cabs in the city were called off the streets for a little more than an hour, while buses, which kept going, had difficulty keeping close to their schedules. At least one lumber firm called its trucks off the streets.

On downtown sidewalks, an estimated two dozen people slipped and fell, while many more hugged building fronts to walk on non-slippery pavement.

Sand Trucks Out

Sand and salt trucks were sprinkling the streets within half an hour of the start of the rain. By noon, the thin layer of ice on downtown streets was broken into slush and driving was comparatively safe.

Provincial police said highways were in bad condition this morning, but by noon were in fair shape. Unless the weather goes back on them, highway department sanders should have the roads in fairly good condition by tonight.

Skies clouded over during the night and temperatures were down to 10 above, rising to 28 at 9 am. Main streets were clear this morning, barring patches of ice, and it was not until 10 am that rain started to fall and freeze.

One man told of seeing two oil trucks northbound on Water St. which skidded on the ice and turned completely around. There was no other traffic on the street at the time, and the trucks were not damaged.

WALTER HOWELL

Walter Howell Appointed County Solicitor

Walter H. Howell on Wednesday was appointed solicitor for the county of Peterborough. He succeeds Francis D. Kerr, KC, who resigned in December.

The solicitorship thus remains in the legal firm of Kerr, McElderry, Howell, Bradshaw and Fleming. A member of that firm has held the post now for about 50 years.

Warden Dick Stewart said Wednesday that it was important to get a solicitor as soon as possible as questions requiring a legal opinion could arise at the present session.

Mr. Howell is not exactly a newcomer to county business. For a number of years he has assisted Mr. Kerr in legal matters affecting the county.

Born In Peterborough

He was born in Peterborough and educated here. He received his legal training at Osgoode Hall Law School. He joined the firm of Peck, Kerr and McElderry in 1941 after graduation.

At that time E. A. Peck, KC, was the county solicitor. Mr. Peck had more than a legal acquaintance with county affairs; he was county warden in 1904, representing the village of Ashburnham before it amalgamated with the town of Peterborough.

Mr. Howell's wife, the former W. "Bink" Shadgett is also Peterborough born. They have a year-old son, Walter Jr. Mr. Howell is a member of St. John's choir and also a member of the Corinthian Lodge.

"I appreciate your confidence in me," said Mr. Howell thanking the council for their appointment. "I have done some work on county matters and I assure you I will do my best."

Soft-Hearted Big City

TORONTO, Jan. 17. (CP) —Mr. and Mrs. Hector Grant of Lindsay came here to look for work. Caught in Toronto's transit strike, they accepted a lift from a motorist. After she got out of the car, the woman discovered she had left her purse containing $300 on the rear seat. They told police and glumly returned to Lindsay. While they were still on the bus police recovered the money.

VON Raises Fees To $2 And $3, Blame Costs

Peterborough Victorian Order of Nurses have raised their fees per visit to $2.00 for day visits and $3.00 for night, Sunday and holiday visits. Formerly the charge per visit, night or day, was $1.50.

The decision to raise fees was made Wednesday afternoon at the regular monthly meeting of the VON board of directors.

Miss Harriet McGreary, nurse-in-charge, told the board that the cost per visit as based on 1950 records is $2.04. She said that a fee closer to the cost would be wise, and that night visits were much more expensive to the order as they often involved the employing of relief nurses.

The new fees will go into effect today.

Dick Raine, chairman of the publicity committee, announced that the Peterborough branch would follow the celebration of VON for Canada week to take plce Feb. 24 to March 1. The Peterborough branch's annual meeting will be held Feb. 27.

The objective of this VON week will be to bring about a better understanding of the work of the order.

453 Visits

Miss McGreary reported a total of 453 visits during December—10 fewer visits than 1950. She said that 67 new patients had been admitted—four more than had been admitted this same month last year.

The resignation of William Tinker and R. B. Arnold from the board were accepted with regret. Chairman Wilson Gemmell expressed the appreciation of the board for the work these two men had done during their membership term.

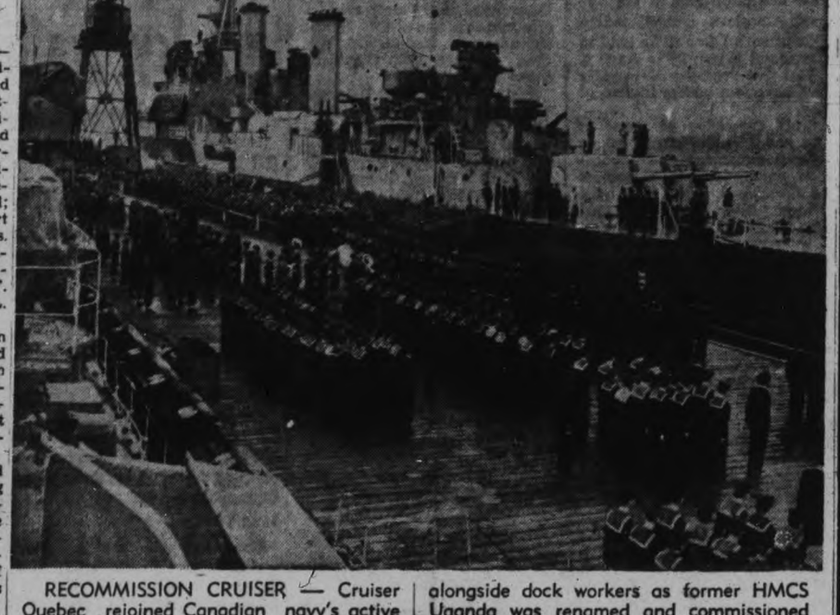
A. Burns Heads Hospital For Second Year

BANCROFT, Jan. 17 (ENS). — A. M. Burns was re-elected president of Bancroft District Red Cross Hospital at the annual meeting of the hospital board on Friday night. Other officers elected were: first vice-president, Clarence Marston; second vice-president, Norman Mitchell; third vice-president, Mrs. Florence Russell; fourth vice-president, Mrs. Robert Stringer; fifth vice-president, Mrs. Whitney Martin; treasurer, T. Mahoney; secretary, Mrs. O. W. Anderson; official board, Mrs. C. F. Hibbard, A. Griggs, J. Hattin, L. Freiburger, Mrs. E. Nador.

In her report for 1951 the matron Miss Ruby Franks, RN, showed that for the year there had been 910 admissions; 229 births, 208 operations, 276 X-rays, 288 out-patients; and patients had spent a total of 3,618 days in the hospital.

The financial report showed total receipts of $1,866.50. During the year the annual campaign realized $785.50 and there were general donations of $216.25. Municipal grants of $400 were received, $200 from the village of Bancroft and $200 from Hastings county.



For the year, operating costs for administration and upkeep were $798.70, leaving a cash balance of $1,067.80 at the time of the annual meeting. It was noted that expenses would be higher in 1952 as the local board was to assume the cost of heating the building for the first time. In previous years the largest single item has been the power bill.

Acknowledge Donations

During the meeting the board acknowledged a number of donations that were received during the past year. De Tassigny Taken To Village For Burial

PARIS, Jan. 17 (Reuters)—The funeral cortege of Marshal of France Jean de Lattre de Tassigny — two motor machine-gun carriages and two cars—left here this morning for the village of Mouilleron-en-Pareds where he was born.

By the time the procession reached Versailles it had grown to about 50 cars.

The body of the former French high commissioner and commander-in-chief in Indo-China, promoted marshal after his death last Friday, was borne in a tricolor-draped coffin on the first gun carriage.

The marshal's body will be laid in his family vault, Friday.

The carriage carrying the coffin accidentally caught fire as it passed through Courville, near Chartres. Soldiers extinguished the flames.

Hastings County Opposes Daylight Saving

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 17 — Five new county councillors were greeted Tuesday by their new warden, Lee Grills of Sidney township.

New to council are: A. G. Wilson of Carlow, Theodore Cooney, deputy reeve for Rawdon, Earl Sager, Madoc, Russell West, Stirling and Bernard Hunt, Hungerford.

Council passed a resolution in favor of standard time, and rejecting daylight saving time, despite strong opposition from village reeves. Reeve Verney Heath of Rawdon remarked that daylight saving time was more hardship to rural municipalities than it was worth.

No action was taken on a Grey county resolution asking that a hail insurance scheme be set up. Warden Grills noted that hail damage was not a local problem.

Welcoming the new councillors, Warden Grills asked that they uphold the council's dignity and stressed the need to do business in an honest manner.

The following committees were set up:

Finance and Public Property Committee—T. C. Graham, chairman, Vincent M. Lynch, T. W. Tryon, Cecil Ketcheson, Geo. N. Spencer, Jas. Sprackett, Lee Grills, Warden.

Hail New Prince Liberation Child

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 17—(AP)—Egypt's press voiced hope today that the birth of Crown Prince Ahmad Fuad would usher in an era of reform government for the Nile kingdom and a successful end to her fight to oust the British.

Le Journal d'Egypt hailed the day-old prince, born to King Farouk and 18-year-old Queen Narriman, as "the child of liberation."

While celebrations continued, further trouble with Britain loomed. Hussein Bey Sobhi, Egypt's director of internal security, told a press conference that British forces were again encircling the canal zone towns of Tel-el-kebir and El Hammanda which they raided with tanks Wednesday.

He said the British also surrounded the police station and hospital at Kassassin in the canal zone.

By British count, 22 Egyptians were killed in the Tel-el-kebir area since Saturday. Between 120 and 160 Egyptian police were seized Wednesday in what the Britons called a raid on a "thug-training school."

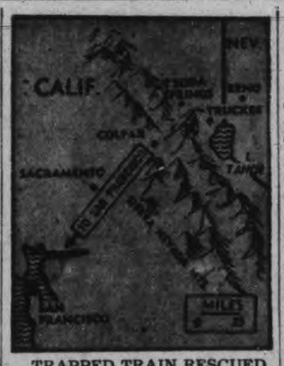
Cameramen With Churchill Charge RCMP Interfered

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 (CP)—Fifteen visiting and Ottawa photographers protested Wednesday to Commissioner L. H. Nicholson, of the RCMP, that they had been "maliciously and quite unnecessarily" interfered with by RCMP constables during the Chruchill visit last weekend.

In a signed letter sent to the commissioner, with a copy going to Justice Minister Garson, they wrote:



"While attempting to cover photographically the visits of important personages, we find ourselves maliciously and quite unnecessarily interfered with in the carrying out of our assignments. This practice reached a climax during the visit of Prime Minister Churchill.

"Most of us have had Mounties deliberately stand in front of us and completely ignore our requests to move a few feet to allow us to get a picture."

The letter said the photographers realized the RCMP have a job of security to do for the visiting dignitaries, but suggested they could work "in harmony without all the pushing and shoving that is typical of the RCMP attitude towards photographers."

It said the photographers signing represented the press, movies, newsreels and television of Canada, Britain and the United States.

Commissioner Nicholson told reporters he has not yet received the letter, but his wish is to cooperate with both the press and its photographers.

Counts On Cruise To Help End Baltimore Strike

BALTIMORE, Jan. 17—(AP)—The city's transit strike went into its second week today but Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin was counting on a peaceful Sunday cruise on Chesapeake Bay to break the deadlock.

The governor announced Wednesday he had invited officials of the Baltimore Transit Company and the AFL Transit Workers' Union to meet with him aboard his yacht.

The press will be excluded, he added, "so the boys can let their hair down and talk."

It appeared both sides would have to let a lot of hair down to reach an area of agreement.

Rate Goes Up

The union's original demand of a 24 cents an hour wage boost was trimmed to 15 cents. When the firm rejected that, the union threatened to increase the figure one cent for every two days the strike drags on.

With that escalator clause thrown in, the rate today jumped to 18 cents. So far the company has offered seven cents an hour but said it will have to get higher rates through an adjusted fare schedule. The Maryland Public Service Commission would have to approve any change in fares.

The 3,200 striking bus and trolley operators and maintenance men earn an average base wage of $1.63, according to the union.

The temperance report given by Mrs. Eric Fallis, new temperance secretary, had as its title "It's Up To You." Prayer was offered for the Circle's special home missionary, Dr. Margaret Savage of Cold Lake, Alberta, by Miss Estella Hetherington.

Miss Stewart, who will be on furlough until April before commencing missionary work in Canada, hopes to visit Millbrook and the Circle in the near future.

The Rev. Margaret Butler, who came to Millbrook six months ago from Quebec, conducted the study period which dealt with the work of the United Church among the French-speaking Protestants of Quebec.

Believe Canada Will Stick To Using British-Type Arms

By DOUGLAS HOW.

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 — (CP). — The major post-war decision to switch the Canadian Army from British to American-type arms has been pretty well written off in the wake of the Churchill visit to North America.

A complexity of causes has killed this plan which caused controversy both inside and outside Parliament because it threatened to divorce the army from the British arms it used in two world wars.

An announcement has yet to be made because, officials say, the key decision has not finally been made. The signs are that the decision will be to keep right on using the British Lee-Enfield rifle and the .303 bullet rather than switching to the .300 American Garand even though some thousands of Garands have already been imported.

The Churchill visit has established that the British and Americans are not going to adopt a common rifle and that the best hope for standardization is the long-range hope that some common rifle of the future can be evolved by all the Atlantic Pact powers. But it would be years before it is in use.

Must Decide

That faces Canada with the need to decide what she'll do now because she suspended imports of Garands some months ago to back up her dramatic call to the two major powers to try once more to reach agreement.

A year ago the plan to use US arms was in full swing here. Shipments started coming Officers studied organizational changes that would become necessary. Others went south to learn how to use the new weapons. Opposition members of parliament protested that vital British traditions would die. The government said they wouldn't.

Now most of that is over. The shipments have consisted mainly of the Garands. The studies have withered away. Canadian brigades are serving with British arms in both Korea and Germany.

The return to British arms has been highlighted by the decision to adopt the British Centurion tank instead of the US Sherman used in the war.

Want Equal Pay

MONTEAL, Jan. 16—(CP) — Why shouldn't Montreal tramway employees get as much as those in Toronto that is, when they are not on strike. That question was put to a provincial arbitration board Wednesday by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, (CCL), seeking a general 25-cent-an-hour increase and a reduction of the work week from 50 to 40 hours without decrease in take-home pay. Why—said the union—one-man car operators in Toronto receive $1.45 an hour and in Montreal they only get $1.28.

So relax with a cup of Nescafé, and you too will say, "The finest cup of coffee I ever tasted."

NESCAFE

*Nescafé (pronounced NES-CAFAY) is the exclusive registered trade mark of Nestlé's Milk Products (Canada) Limited to designate its soluble coffee product which is composed of equal parts of pure soluble coffee and added pure carbohydrates (dextrins, maltose and dextrose) added solely to protect the flavor.

Believe Business Prospects Fairly Good–Vanstone

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Forecasting the future is more difficult this year than usual, because of varying influences, B. S. Vanstone, president of the Bank of Toronto, said at Wednesday's annual meeting, but, on the whole, he found the long-term outlook bright.

"There is still," he noted, "the threat of inflation, and while there has been a lull in its intensity, the forces contributing to it are by no means dissipated.

"Then there are shortages in some commodities, while in others inventories and production are in excess of consumer demand. With the increased tempo of defence expenditure, there will be a swing in employment, which is always somewhat disturbing during the adjustment period.

"However, industry as a whole should be very active, having in mind higher defence production, the aluminum development in British Columbia, the oil, gas, chemical and co-related industries in Alberta, and increased industrialization in the central provinces.

"While soft spots are likely to develop in some lines of business, we can look ahead with confidence."

Retail Outlook

A recent comment on the outlook in the retail field came from Morgan Reid, secretary of the management advisory committee of the Robert Simpson Company. He said:

"Despite the difficulties which certain of the consumer durable goods industries now are experiencing, there is no prospect in my mind of any real recession in Canada, let alone anything more ominous.

"I am confident that personal disposable income this year will be higher than a year ago, although the rate of increase may be somewhat less than we have experienced. Even so, it could support a higher level of retail sales, provided consumers begin to buy again on a normal basis."

The Canadian customer today, said Mr. Reid, is a very different sort of person than he was in 1939. For one thing, there now is far less difference between the wants of the farmer or small-town dweller and those of the large-city dweller. He noted among other developments:

A 50 per cent rise in the per capita standard of living; growth of the five-day week, giving one full day in seven for family shopping; a shortage of vacant land for residential construction within cities, and a consequent trek to the suburbs.

Commenting on the development of suburban shopping, Mr. Reid recalled that his own company many years ago had located its Halifax store on the outskirts of the city in an area which now lends itself to retail development. In Vancouver, the firm is prepared to build a suburban unit in Burnaby once restrictions on the use of structural steel for commercial building are removed.

MONTREAL, January 17th—Have you heard the latest? There's a love affair going on between Jell-O Puddings and me. In fact the whole family is included. It's no wonder we're all so fond of JELL-O PUDDINGS. Those rich, smooth flavors are truly luxurious eating. Not only that! Jell-O Puddings are nourishing . . . and so easy to prepare . . . no double boiler needed. You'd be amazed how quickly and economically they can be dressed up for company meals, too. And don't think I've neglected the Jell-O Tapioca Puddings. I always have on hand at least one package of each of the three flavors—Vanilla, Chocolate and Orange Coconut.

Men Like Soup that's real soup . . . and how they like it when it's good! That's why you'll be your man's favourite cook when you serve HEINZ CONDENSED VEGETABLE SOUP—Heins January "Soup-of-the-Month". It's a real flavour-treat served as a first-course—or—try this:

FISH LOAF

1 cup flaked cooked fish
½ cup dry bread cubes
2 tbsp. finely diced green pepper
½ cup finely diced celery
1 tbsp. finely diced onion
3 eggs, beaten
1 10-oz. can Heinz Condensed Vegetable Soup, undiluted
3 green pepper rings
1 hard-cooked egg, sliced

Combine first seven ingredients. Grease a loaf pan and arrange green pepper rings in bottom. Place a slice of hard-cooked egg in the center of each. Pack loaf mixture in pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 45 to 60 minutes or until firm. Turn out on platter. Serve hot or chill and serve as a cold salad loaf. Serves 10 cold or 6 hot.

When You Taste the tender sponge cake on top, blending with the delicious lemon custard on the bottom, you'll agree that this "Lemon Cake Top Pudding" is a Super puddin'! So easy to make . . . and so flavourful, too—when you use fine, fresh SUNKIST CALIFORNIA LEMONS.

3 tbsp. butter
1 c. sugar
4 egg yolks
1/3 c. fresh lemon juice
2 tsp. grated lemon rind
1/4 tsp. salt
3 tbsp. flour
1 c. milk
4 egg whites
1/3 c. toasted slivered almonds

Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and beat well. Add flour, lemon juice, rind, salt and mix well. Stir in milk. Blend in 1/4 c. almonds. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into lemon mixture. Pour into loaf baking dish, 9 x 5 inches. Set in pan of hot water and bake in slow oven (325 deg. F.) 40 minutes, turn thermostat to 350 deg. and bake until brown, about 10 minutes. Remove from oven and sprinkle with remaining almonds. Serve either warm or chilled. Serves 8.

Bills, Bills, Bills . . . this is certainly the month for paying up! But thanks to Personal Planning, I'm in pretty good financial shape . . . and, thanks to my convenient BANK OF MONTREAL Chequing Account, I can pay my accounts with the minimum of effort. (Imagine the time wasted if I had to run around and pay all my debts in cash!) My B of M Chequing Account is a wonderful convenience the year 'round, but it's at this time of year that it's absolutely invaluable. There's no better way to save than to follow the B of M family-financing system, Personal Planning—and there's no better way to pay your bills than by B of M cheque. Ask about Personal Planning at your neighborhood branch of the B of M. There's an interesting free booklet that will set you off on the right track to successful saving in '52.

Hate To Wake Up to a cold, blowy morning? Then here's a breakfast suggestion that will warm you up in no time . . . a piping hot bowl of smoo-oth "CREAM OF WHEAT". Takes just a jiffy to prepare . . . five minutes of boiling and 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" is ready to eat. M-mmm . . . so good—and so good for you. For 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" gives you Iron for good red blood, and Calcium and Phosphorus for diets deficient in these elements. The "Cream of Wheat" habit is a good family habit—a favourite of your menfolks, too! So change "get-up" gloom to breakfast smiles—with taste-tempting bowlfuls of "Cream of Wheat".

What's More Fun Than A Sleigh-Ride on a sparkling winter evening? So don't let a p-a-i-n-f-u-l chest cold—or even a touch of rheumatism or neuralgia—keep you from the fun! Just rub in BEN-GAY (Baume Bengué) to rub out "Peter Pain". Ben-Gay brings wonderfully quick relief—trying it is believing! Truly! . . . next time "Peter Pain" gets you down . . . rub in Ben-Gay. Feel its comforting warmth—its welcome relief. This rub-in breaks up congestion—feels so good! That's because it contains up to 2½ times more of those two famous pain-relieving agents—methyl salicylate and menthol—than 5 other widely offered rub-ins. Better keep Ben-Gay handy!—just 75c a tube!

Wouldn't Miss It For A Million! . . . that's the way I feel about the CORINNE JORDAN radio programme. Just wait 'til you hear Corinne's delightful fifteen minutes of music and talk. Talk about, for instance, washing feathers (ever tried it?) and fashion—a dash of poetry and philosophy—and with it all, Corinne playing your favourite old melodies on her grand piano. Listen to the Corinne Jordan programme—brought to you by the makers of BEE HIVE GOLDEN CORN SYRUP. This best of corn syrups has a thousand-and-one uses—put it on pancakes or cereal . . . or glaze ham with it. It's good.

Enjoy the Corinne Jordan program every Mon., Wed., and Fri., at 3 p.m. on CKEY and CHEX

Of Course you'll serve instant coffee at your bridge party. It's so easy to make—so economical. But please be sure that your "instant" choice is INSTANT CHASE & SANBORN COFFEE! That's the only "instant" backed by over 85 years coffee experience. The flavour's there—and the body—and the real lift. I'm sure your guests will say—"M-mmm! This is good!" It's as easy to make twelve cups as one . . . takes no longer to make than boiling the water—and there's no waste. You just make it in the cup and serve. Just wait 'til you taste that superb flavour! Your friends will thank you for introducing them to Instant Chase & Sanborn Coffee!

Did You Know Woodbury Powder is the most popular of all face powders? Not only among women, generally, but among Hollywood stars it's favored 6 to 1! The makers of WOODBURY POWDER say it's preferred because of the special blending process and exclusive foundation-cream ingredient. Most women don't know the technical reasons. They just prefer it because it's so fabulously fine, so velvety, clings beautifully for hours—and the shades have an excitement, a vibrance that does something magical for their complexions. Try it yourself . . . 23c, 45c and 75c. And watch your complexion take on a new sparkle when you wear one of Woodbury's harmonizing lipstick shades. Seven high fashion colors—all vivid and velvety . . . 23c and 55c.

Clever Countess Manages Big Dairy Farm

STANBRIDGE EAST, Que.—(CP)—There's a young Italian woman here who is general manager of a model dairy farm. Not only that, she has also organized and operated cotton and coffee plantations in South America and still found time to bring up a family.

She is Mrs. Giannalisa Felitrinelli, a countess in her own right who once opposed Mussolini and spent part of the war years hiding in caves near Tuscany with her two young daughters.

Dynamic, yet chic and gracious might be the way to describe Mrs. Felitrinelli who built and operates "La Gruyere" where 110 prue-bred Holstein cows are looked after in the most scientific way possible.

Scientific? . . . well, the old saying, "never touched by human hands" certainly fits the milk produced by her cows. They are milked in a parlor, no less.

Milked Mechancially

At milking time, her cows are ushered from their barn, down a corridor where they are washed and into the spotlessly white "parlor" where they are milked mechancially. The milk pours down pipes, into glass vases where each cow's production is measured and then into the pasteurization plant and into bottles.

Mrs. Felitrinelli's two daughters, Jane (christened Ludia) and Benedita are in school in New York and look forward to spending holidays with their mother.

"It's wonderful to see them at the farm," Mrs. Felitrinelli says. "They want to do everything—even drive tractors. It's a real thrill for them."

Ask her why she took up such an unusual career as organizing farms and plantations and she replies: "I love country life. I would never want to live in a city. And Canada is just wonderful."

Of Interest to Women

THE FASHIONS THAT CAN, through 1952, go into a traveler's luggage and come out looking crisp and fresh are likely to be in one of the new and highly practical man-made fibres.

Among the newest of the fibers is orlon. Its makers claim that in addition to adapting itself to fashion, it has maximum warmth combined with light weight, wrinkle resistance and easy washability. Daytime dress (left) in an all-orlon pongee. It has the appearance of a fine silk pongee and is, its makers claim, both washable and wrinkle-resistant. A simple but elegant shirtwaist dress, it has natural shoulders, cuffed, bracelet-length sleeves and a tailored collar. Skirt is narrow.

Sports separates (right) are in basket weave orlon-and-wool. This is a wooly-type fabric that is washable and crush-resistant.

Skirt pleats are permanent and remain sharp through laundering and packing.

UNLIKELY AS IT SEEMS in the middle of winter, summer is really on its way. In a season when silhouette is not drastically changed, the emphasis falls on fabric. This year, summer's cottons have a "three-dimensional" look created by the use of dobby dots, shadowed over-plaids, satin stripes woven into gingham, and lots of cording. The textured look (left) in a blue cotton with a raised dobby dot has an organdy insert below the Peter Pan collar and organdy cuffs. Crystal buttons with a raindrop sparkle are used from neckline to the full skirt.

A green chambray that sheds wrinkles (right) is cut into a dress with scalloped, portrait neckline and cap sleeves. Full skirt of unpressed pleats, billowed out by a crinoline, has white embroidered eyelets and scalloped design.

DOROTHY DIX

Reach Perfection In Any Of Household Arts

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a married woman and a mother—just like millions of other women. I am "fairly" young, "fairly" nice looking (in a neat sort of way) and a "fairly" good wife and mother. That is my complaint: I am not really good at anything, just fair! It seems to me that everyone I know has a talent for something. Not so with me, and with my duties to my home I have little time to learn to do something well. It isn't that my lack of talent makes me especially unhappy, but I would like to be able to do something that I could be proud of. Can you suggest something?

Dorothy Dix

"NO TALENT" JOY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Great talents are very sparsely distributed—after all, that's why they command such great respect. If everyone had the ability to write glorious verse, compose majestic music or paint a beautiful picture, their talents would be commonplace. The fact that you were not born with a great gift for creative art does not, by any means, doom you to a nondescript existence. You can, if you really wish, become thoroughly accomplished in the arts within your home. In this field, too, you will find many girls with natural talents who are likely to frighten off less gifted housewives. However, with home arts, almost everyone can acquire impressive skill. With you it will take more time and painstaking effort than if you were born with a gift for cooking or sewing, but attaining perfection is not impossible.

Be Determined

You must, first of all, be absolutely determined to conquer your chosen field, be it cooking, sewing, decorating, knitting or some allied art. Then, if you can spare the time or money, go to school, or take a course in the subject. If that is impossible, buy a book! One of the great blessings of mankind is the availability of books. Books on any subject, books providing instruction in any craft. Detailed in their instruction, helpful with their guidance, enlightening in their scope! Read, practice and repeat! Over and over until you can knit a perfect sweater, make a perfect pair of draperies, bake a perfect pie, grow a perfect flower! Any one of these things you can do with patience. One perfection leads to another, and soon you'll have a most astounding array of talents you never suspected.

Just wishing to be talented will get you nowhere; just reading about other people's achievements will accomplish nothing; you must do! Forget the unsuccessful attempt and begin right away with another try.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Jerry, the boy I like sometimes acts as though he likes me, then suddenly becomes absolutely indifferent. I think he does like me, but the boys he goes with kid him so much he doesn't want to show it.

D. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your Jerry is just a bashful adolescent and you shouldn't worry too much over his attitude. Just be good friends, and as he grows older and more sure of himself, he won't be so reticent in his attentions. Don't try to rush him or he'll be scared off permanently.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 18 years old and have been going with a boy for two years. I love him very much, but here are my problems. He stands me up at least twice a week, his only excuse being that he was drinking or had to have his car fixed. He is always late when he does come. He never dresses up, coming over even on Sunday in jeans. My friends think I should forget about him, but I can't.

DIANE G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You present just about as unattractive picture of a boy as I've ever read. What in the world has he to offer as compensation for all these serious, bad faults? He's untrustworthy, inconsiderate, ill-mannered and intemperate. Does that galaxy of qualities appeal to you as husband-material? You could scarcely do worse, Diane. Better take stock of yourself and realize what a disastrous situation you're headed for.

Extra Term Trains Nurse Aides

NORTHFLEET, Kent, England —(CP)—A secondary school here has started a scheme under which girls can stay for an extra year to receive preliminary nursing training.

The girls are taught the history of medicine and learn how to take temperatures. They also weigh and measure younger pupils and, as many will eventually become children's nurses, must know how to tell a bedtime story.

The girls also visit welfare centres to watch how babies are handled, tour hospitals, milk-bottling plants, food factories and exhibitions.

TV Films Boon To Former Movie Stars

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17 (AP) — Television films have proved a boon to a hardy band of former film stars whom Hollywood seems to have forgotten.

Jack Mulhall is an example. He has appeared in two dozen TV films in the last few months.

"It's wonderful," he enthused. "Any actor likes to stay active, and TV films keep you busy, all right. I've made three half-hour shows in a week and brother, that's a grind. But it's no harder than the two-reelers we used to make in the old days."

Jack Mulhall is just a name to members of the younger generation. But their parents remember him as the happy-go-lucky screen lover of the silent era. He was notably co-starred wth Dorothy Mackaill in a dozen successful films. The breakup of that film team was partly responsible for his fall from stardom.

End of Stardom

Mulhall, who started in the movies with the Edison Company in 1913, was earning $2,250 a week at the time (1930). He went to RKO at $2,750 a week, but that lasted only a year. That was about the end of his starring days.

Since then he has played innumerable small parts in big pictures and big parts in small pictures. He appeared for seven years in Ken Murray's blackouts and did the commercials on Murray's TV show for a year.

Mulhall, still handsome and youthful at 57, figured he has appeared in about 1,000 movies. He said he made movie love to every film queen over a lengthy period, from Mary Pickford to Loretta Young. He declined to say which were the best ones.

"I can't take the chance," he said. "Too many of them are still alive."

Can't Overdo Daily Care Of Your Nails

It's so easy to give yourself a professional manicure at home, if you allow enough time, and follow the important basic steps. To stimulate circulation and make your nails healthier, buffing (upper left) with a nail powder or paste powder is an absolute necessity. Since cuticle has a habit of becoming unruly with little or no provocation, keep it in check by massaging a nail cream around the base of the nails (center left) using the cushion of your finger in a firm rotary motion. When you are ready to apply nail enamel (lower left), give some thought to the shape and general condition of your nails. With a little practice, you can actually reshape the nails, if necessary, and make them appear more beautiful. Don't limit your nail care to weekly manicures, only. Daily touch-ups and creamings will always keep them looking perfect.

If you're not satisfied with the shape your nails are in, there's no better time than right now to do something about it.

Because your hands and nails are in constant contact with objects that might mar their appearance, you simply can't overdo daily care. Pamper your cuticle with cream.

Stubborn hangnails should be snipped off, but never cut the cuticle. Once you start cutting, you create an endless and unattractive task.

Massage your hands and fingers with lotion. This helps to stimulate the circulation, and actually encourages a softer contour.

You might ask yourself, at this point, how you use your hands and nails. Do they double for pliers, screw driver and scissors?

Are you too busy to slip on rubber gloves when you are working around the house, or washing dishes?

All the beauty care in the world will be to no avail, if you make a practice of abusing your nails and hands when you use them.

A manicure, regardless of how well it is applied, will rarely last beyond ten days. To be sure that your nails are never chipped, why not re-polish them once a week?

A home manicure can look professional, with a little patience and know-how.

You will need a good nail enamel remover, cotton, emery boards, powder polish or paste polish, buffer, bowl of warm soapsuds, towel, orangewood stick, nail cream, cuticle remover, and base coat.

Then you'll need your favorite enamel (in whatever shade you prefer), and, finally, the top coat.

Once you have removed the old enamel and filed your nails with an emery board, (keeping them in a rounded oval shape), buff them with the powder or paste polish.

Next, soak the fingers of each hand in warm soapy water for about three minutes. Dry the fingertips and push the cuticle gently back with a towel. This is the moment to massage the nail cream around the base of the nails.

Before you begin to apply the base coat, wipe each nail with cotton moistened in remover to take away any remaining trace of oil or moisture.

Now you are ready to apply the enamel, and to decide on any shaping that may be necessary. Think of nail enamel as you do lipstick. Create illusions of width or narrowness with color.

If your nails, for instance, are too wide, don't extend the enamel to the sides. The short, stubby nail should be enameled from top to bottom, again leaving spaces at the sides.

The long, slender nail can afford a moon at the top, but may be entirely covered otherwise.

As for nails that are a bit "off centre," you can apply your nail enamel in the usual way, but "cheat" a bit on the corner or side that is out of line.

After each coat of enamel is applied, wipe away a hairline edge at the tip, using the ball of the thumb or forefinger. The beveled edge prolongs the life of the nail enamel, and makes it less likely to chip.

As soon as the enamel is slick to a light touch, apply a thin top coat for glassy hardness and a gleaming finish. The time you allow after this coat is crucial.

It will determine whether or not the enamel will last. While you are waiting for the enamel to dry thoroughly, make good use of the time by reading a book, or taking a nap.

Remember that your hands create a definite impression about you. Keep them relaxed and lovely, and you will always be proud of their appearance.

Stingy Husbands Drive Wives To Work

NEWCASTLE, England (CP)—One reason why wives go out to work, said Dr. L. Housden, chairman of a parent and child welfare organization, is "the disgraceful behaviour of husbands."

At a conference here, speaking on "The Young Mother at Work," Housden drew attention to the fact that "wherever one goes one finds husbands who will not hand over sufficient of their wages."

In many cases, he said, the wage may be well above the poverty line but the amount actually handed over puts the wife and children well below this. Under these circumstances many women earned a wage to improve the material structure of their homes, and in doing so "ruined" the children.

Hats Shaped Like Eggs, Melons In Paris Styles

PARIS, Jan. 17 (AP).—Spring hats that literally look good enough to eat—shaped like melons or eggs and trimmed with fruit or peppermint candy ribbon — were shown Wednesday by Maud Et Nano, style-setters of the Paris hat world.

The cloche is back in a big way, but not the 1920-ish model that hugged the head down to the eyebrows. Maud Et Nano makes miniature, medium and immense ones, but they manage to cup the brow rather than hide it. Coral pink seems to be headed for a colorful success this season, and the second most popular color in today's hat show as "Capri Blu," a new shade a little bluer than turquoise.

Maurice Chevalier's straw hat might have inspired the little sailors that are popping up in the new shows.

They are mostly round-crowned, narrow-brimmed and beribboned.

Another Maud Et Nano novelty, tiny caps sitting so far back on the head that only their veils are visible front-view, couldn't be more appropriate for the Easter parade—they have the appearance of delicately - decorative Easter eggs.

Instead of covering brow and eyes, veils this season begin under the eyes and go to the chin, like those worn by Arab women. Some of coarse "Fishermen's Net" are doubled with finer net. Decorations have migraied from the back of the head to the front again, and many models are plastered in front with lilacs or daisies. One hat was trimmed with a single apple. Others sprouted Christmas tree branches. There was a sort of Mexican sombrero in felt, and some hard-to-wear medium sized cloches.

KING EDWARD SCHOOL.

A capacity crowd attended the "Father's" meeting of the King Edward Home and School Association Tuesday evening and enjoyed to the full a comic "fashion parade." The models were Mr. H. Turner, Mr. A. Pitchford, Mr. G. Dunkerley, Mr. N. Hamilton, Mr. C. Blackburn, Mr. H. Bell, Mr. R. Stewart, Mr. J. McLeod, Mr. A. Smith, Mr. G. MacMillan, Mr. V. Reynolds, Mr. R. Kingdon, Mr. F. Willison, Mr. T. Telford, Mr. W. Patterson and Mr. J. Byrne. Mr. Herb Mullins posed as the "demure Miss Slipperbottom," commenator of the review.

A widely varied and gala assortment of colors and period styles was shown. Costumes were made resplendent with flowery spring hats, high-heeled shoes and other accessories. The commentary pointed out the highly amusing details of each ensemble.

Mr. R. Heard and Mr. W. Seabrooke judged the costumes and after much consultation and wielding of tape measures and yardstick chose Mr. Telford and Mr. Stewart as winners.

A sing song was led by Mr. C. A. Corvette, accompanied by Mr. J. Telford at the piano. Two numbers were rendered by a quartette of Messrs. H. Turner, H. Bell, N. Hamilton and A. Pitchford. They were joined in a second selection by 4 ladies picked from the audience.

GROVE SCHOOL.

Citizenship was the theme of Grove Home and School Association meeting this week and the speaker on the subject was Mrs. Paige Powell, member of Peterborough Board of Education.

Junior Red Cross taught in grades 5, 6 and 7 was mentioned as a great help in teachng citizenship to school children. "Growth of Freedom" text used in grade 8 and the right attitude to develop good character is needed for top marks in classes the speaker advised. Normal School students read a text called "Citizenship Training," she added.

"Parents have been doing a much better job, at being good citizens in the past ten years than previously" said Mrs. Rowell. "They are realizing that they have a responsibility to their children in this regard."

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. H. Barker and thanked by Mrs. R. Clements.

The question of a skating rink at the school was brought up by Mrs. F. Sanders and the meeting was advised that Mr. Alex Sinclair, recreation dircetor, has told the school there is not time or facilities to provide the rink. A further letter will be forwarded to him by the association.

PCVS MEETING

Mr. A. Londry was chairman for the PCVS Home and School Association meeting Tuesday evening and introduced Miss K. MacDougall, teacher in charge of the home economics department. Miss MacDougall outlined to the parents and students the four-year course which is designed to make girls better homemakers. Among the opportunities offered without further training for graduates are dressmaking, catering, alterations, furriers, lab assistants and receptionists. Most hospitals will accept graduates of this course as student nurses or X-ray technicians, she added. With further training at Ryerson Institute, Toronto, the girls can become teachers, fashion experts, dress designers and lab technicians.

Second speaker was Mr. J. Sparrow of CGE, who advised that there are 7,000 occupations in industry and GE offers 450 to 475 of them. A few open to PCVS vocational - trained persons are drafting, electricians, tool design, maintenance, armature winding and pattern making. Four years training gives a diploma allowing for post graduate courses such as management training, wage rate, cost accounting, methods, payroll and personnel. It also offers such courses as supervisory training, industrial psychology and public speaking. Mr. Sparrow said industry prefers graduates and advised students to stay in school until they have completed their courses. "They also look for enthusiasm, loyalty and pride in work", he said.

Mr. Harry Baptie of Westclox said that his firm looks for stenographers who will be accurate and loyal, and that PCVS graduates are found to have excellent standing.

Mr. Londry extended an invitation to parents to come to the school at any time.

Tea was served in the library by Mrs. F. Dobson and her committee.

HOME AND SCHOOL COUNCIL

Meeting of the Home and School Council was held Wednesday evening in the Y.W.C.A. Opening Bible reading and prayer was by Mrs. Wood. Mrs. C. G. Collins was in the chair and welcomed the guests and association representatives.

Mrs. B. Boucher, health convener for the council introduced Mr. S. Black representative for the Rotary Club, who in turn introduced two nurses connected with Ontario Crippled Children's Association, Miss M. McEwen who works in this district and Miss Z. Creeden assistant director of nurses who were present to hear the speaker for the evening, Mr. Ray Auld Assistant director for the Ontario Crippled Children's Society.

Mr. Auld's topic was. Present and Future Plans." He outlined origin and progress of the Society and said Mr. R. Hopper its present director, is the leading force that has built it from its small origin to the large expanding organization of today.

Now there are 16 district nurses with more being added the first one having been taken on in 1935. In 1937 the first summer camp was undertaken, now facilities for 500 children are provided in various camps.

The new interest of the organization is cerebal palsy of which there are 22 children in residence receiving treatment.

Mention was made of Variety Village in Toronto which is a vocational training school for boys. This is administered by Ontario Crippled Children's Society and financed solely by Variety Club.

They have at present facilities for 25 boys in residence and five commuters from 16 to 18 years They hope in the near future to add another wing large enough to accommodate 25 more boys. Another project is the same type of school for girls.

Mr. Auld concluded by reminding his listeners that only by faithful purchase of Easter seals can a district carry on the work among local crippled children.

Mrs. E. Chambers thanked the speaker.

Mrs. Collins explained the part that Home and School Association are playing in driving local crippled children back and forth to the Y.W.C.A. for swimming lessons.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Trying Something Light In Place Of Heavy Dessert

My beloved friend Barb is a top rate cook.

She was faced with a poser. One of the guests she had invited for Christmas Day, taking advantage of his octogenarian status, said he could not eat any heavy desserts like plum pudding or mince pie. If she wanted him to be happy she would serve ice cream for dessert.

As far as Barb is concerned ice cream is all right in its place—but is Christmas dinner its place?

When Barb and I were discussing her dessert difficulties I came up with the idea of serving Zabaglione (the Italian egg and sherry froth) or maybe French Marron Creme, and then it came to both of us at the same instant that Nesselrode Pudding was the answer to everybody's wishes.

Barb made a pipperino of a nesselrode. She brought me a sample packed in ice (they live 18 miles out in the country). It was such a tempting and aggravating sample that I had to make up a batch to satisfy myself. We both used Brazil nuts instead of the usual French chestnuts because we like the flavor better. Some of you who are old-familiars with nesselrode pudding may frown on that idea, but you will not frown when you taste the pudding.

This dessert belongs in the file where you keep your company desserts. It is comparable to baked alaska, crepe suzette, party angel dessert, your finest strawberry shortcake or fresh raspberry pie with homemade vanilla ice cream.

Because we are smack in the middle of a cold Canadian winter I have no hesitation in featuring this frozen dessert, for those who do not have freezing compartments in their refrigerators may pack this in a covered container, and bury it in the snow to freeze it.

Nesselrode Pudding (a frozen fruity nutty dessert)

One and one-half cups sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, yolks of 4 or 5 eggs, 3 cups milk, 1 pint thin cream, ¼ cup pineapple juice or syrup, 1½ cups prepared Brazil nuts or chestnuts. In top of double boiler mix first four ingredients in order given and stir over boiling water in bottom of double boiler until thick. Cool. Freeze to a mush. Stir in the cream, pineapple syrup and prepared nuts. To prepare nuts, if Brazils force through finest knife of food chopper. (Some of the brown skin may be scraped off if desired but if not it does not spoil the finished appearance.) If chestnuts are used shell them. This is speeded up if you bake them in hot oven for a few minutes, when skins come off easily. Cook the shelled nuts in boiling water until tender. Force through strainer. Line freezing trays with wax paper. If you are using a mould and are going to freeze this buried in snow it should be lined with wax paper too. Line the moulds with part of the mixture. To the remainder add ½ cup candied fruit cut in pieces such as pineapple, maraschino cherries chopped, and if available candied pear and kumquat chopped, ¼ cup sultana raisins, and 6 or 8 chopped Brazils or chestnuts. The nuts should first be soaked in maraschino juice. Pour this fruited mixture into the cavity in mould, cover and freeze hard.

Serve in slices. This is usually garnished with whipped cream which has been delicately colored pink with maraschino cherry juice, and it is further garnished with halved cherries. Barb used green and red for her Christmas dinner dessert. Orange sections and pineapple crescents and salted almonds or pecans make attracted garnishes too.

If you would like more of these fancy fruited ice creams just let me know.

Stone Pushing Committee Hard To Clean Up UN Budget Work

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

PARIS, Jan. 17—(CP)—T. A. (Tommy) Stone is pushing his "board of directors" towards a first-place finish in the race among United Nations' assembly committees to clean up their work.

Canada's ambassador to Sweden dubbed the 60 delegates in the budgetary committee the "UN directors" soon after his acclamation to the post as committee chairman.

Unlike chairmen of the five other assembly committees, the 52-year-old Stone has had almost no trouble in keeping his committee straight on the debating line. Only twice since the assembly opened Nov. 6 has he had to call speakers to order—once when a Soviet delegate started a propaganda barrage and another time when a South American delegate got off the subject.

Watchdog Of Budget

Stone's committee is the watchdog of the UN budget—which comes to some $48,000,000 this year. They've taken the budget's sections apart piecemeal to see how they tick. They've told the heads of various departments to economize.

The biggest debate in the committee has been over the new scale of "contributions"—what each member of the UN pays yearly for the privilege of being a UN member. Canada took graciously a .05-per-cent boost in her contribution to 3.35 per cent of the total budget, which amounted to $1,404,810 share last year. But Canada called for a readjustment next year which would call on the Soviet countries to give more.

Stone, a native of Chatham, said in an interview he has had little experience in financial matters outside of running his own farm in South Carolina from 1935 to 1939. He described the farm as a big market garden operation which he disposed of after returning to the external affairs department in 1939.

Had Retired

Stone had retired from the Canadian diplomatic service in 1935 after experience in Washington, Paris and at the disarmament conference at Geneva. But with the outbreak of war he returned to Ottawa and the External Affairs department.

Stone figures that he will have finished the budgetary committee's work with a total of about 45 meetings spread over a three-month period. He intends to try to persuade delegates to start night meetings this week.

UN delegates apparently have a preference for Canadians as chairmen of the budgetary committee. In six assembly sessions delegates have chosen Canadians twice. In 1948, L. Dana Wilgress, now Canada's high commissioner in London, was chairman of the budgetary committee.

FLOOD WATERS RISE — Unoccupied summer cottages were flooded when the St. Lawrence river overflowed the north shore just east of Montreal island. Some families in nearby cottages fled to higher ground but damage was not expected to be extensive.

Made Vice-President

TORONTO, Jan. 17 — (CP) — Arthur P. Jewett, formerly general manager of Provincial Paper, Ltd., Toronto, has been appointed vice-president in charge of sales of the parent Abitibi Power Company, Limited, it was announced Wednesday. He succeeds Thomas A. Hendry, who retired.

Lily Lake WA Hear Missionary's Book

LILY LAKE, Jan. 17 (ENS)—Mrs. Clarence Hancock was hostess to the members of the Lily Lake WA for their monthly meeting. Mrs. M. Dunford was co-hostess.

The president, Mrs. Evans McConkey, opened the meeting with a poem. The scripture was read by Mrs. George Middleton and prayer offered by Mrs. William Steinkrauss. Mrs. Clarence Hancock gave the secretary's report while Mrs. M. Dunford presented the financial report.

A chapter of the book on missionary work done by Miss Greta Clark, who was a missionary in China, was read by Mrs. Evans McConkey.

Rescued Off Floe

FAIR HAVEN, Mich., Jan. 17—(CP)—Four Detroit area fishermen were rescued Wednesday from an ice floe which was drifting off this Lake St. Clair resort town. Two Fair Haven men, Clifford Pelkey and Walter Wagner, plucked them, one at a time, from the rapidly-disintegrating mass of ice. The four were fishing about a mile offshore when the ice cracked and a floe carrying them was blown into the lake.

Control Price

TORONTO, Jan. 17 — (CP) — John Reynolds, of Leamington, Wednesday told members of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association how onion men in his area controlled price fluctuations. He said each grower agreed to stick by a set price and deposited a cheque for $300 as evidence of his good faith. About 90 per cent of the onion growers agreed to the deal.

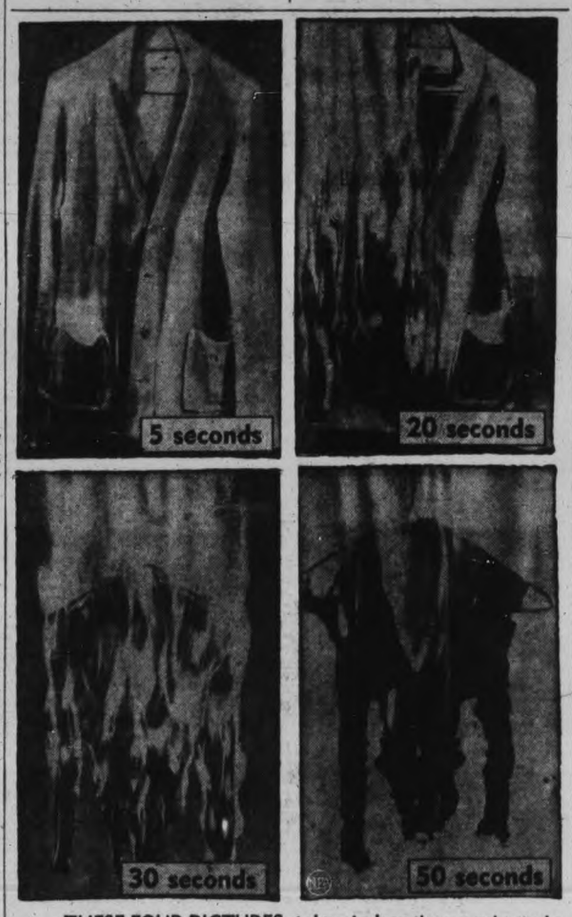
Get New Pep, Vim, Vigor



What a thrill. Bony limbs fill out; ugly hollows fill up; neck no longer scrawny; body loses half-starved, sickly "bean-pole" look. Thousands of girls, women, men, who never could gain before, are now proud of shapely, healthy-looking bodies. They thank the special vigor-building, flesh-building tonic, Ostrex. Its tonics, stimulants, invigorators, iron, vitamin B1, calcium, enrich blood, improve appetite and digestion so food gives you more strength and nourishment; put flesh on bare bones. Don't fear getting too fat. Stop when you've gained the 5, 10, 15 or 20 lbs. you need for normal weight. Costs little. New "get acquainted" size only 60c. Try famous Ostrex Tonic Tablets for new vigor and added pounds, this very day. At all druggists.

Torrential Rains Tie Up California

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17 (AP) —Torrential rain waterlogged Southern California Wednesday.

Two women were drowned in flood waters. Several hundred persons were evacuated from homes in the Los Angeles and Santa Barbara areas. Bridges were washed out. A small flood control dam gave way.

Hundreds of automobiles stalled as water ran fender-deep at low-lying intersections and underpasses. Earthslides blocked highways at several points.

THESE FOUR PICTURES, taken in less than a minute in Memphis, Tenn., show the highly combustible qualities of "bargain" sweaters being sold by itinerant peddlers throughout the U.S. and Canada. At least 20 persons are reported to have been burned while wearing the brushed rayon garments that sell for $1.50 to $15. Many of the sweaters were Christmas presents; most of the accidental burns happened when wearers lighted cigarets.

Warns Citizens To Curb State Control

TORONTO, Jan. 17 — (CP).—B. S. Vanstone, president of the Bank of Toronto, said Wednesday there is a disposition on the part of some people and organizations, even business men, to expect from government paternal security and guidance in their problems, instead of working them out themselves.

This, he said, in addressing the bank's annual meeting, 'is resulting in a steady growth in state control and a decline in personal initiative—not good for man or state."

He hoped that the present surplus in the government's revenue "will not encourage extravagance or the tendency of all political parties to increase spending on various forms of socialism.

"I do not deplore these in their entirety—many are most desirable, indeed an obligation—but there is a limit to the capacity of the public treasury.

"The public should realize that once inaugurated, it is almost impossible politically to discontinue these measures, and the cost can be paid only by taxation, direct and indirect. Taxation plays an important part in the cost of products and the cost-of-living, and there is a limit to taxation beyond which incentive disappears."

Welcomes Capital

Mr. Vanstone welcomed foreign capital which is enabling Canada to develop more quickly than would otherwise be the case, "but we would like to see Canadians take a larger share in this progress.

"Unfortunately present heavy taxation, both corporate and personal, leaves little money available for the purpose."

L. G. Gillett, general manager, said the five-day week will soon become a reality in banks in the large centres and perhaps in others later.

He added that this will enable banks to compete on more equal terms with other employers in maintaining quality of personnel.

Kiss And Make Up Magistrate Gee Suggests

A suggestion by Magistrate E. A. Gee that two parties involved in an assault charge "kiss and make up," could have "unfortunate consequences," said John Corkery, appearing for the defendant.

"One of the parties is a woman," added Mr. Corkery.

"In that case, there shouldn't be any trouble," said Magistrate Gee. "Women are usually forgiving and seldom vindictive."

With two cases still to be heard in police court Magistrate Gee said he had to be in Lindsay for family court at 2 pm.

Crown attorney John A. Bradshaw said he felt a careless driving charge should take precedence over the privately laid assault charge.

He suggested that the complaintant reconsider and withdraw the charge.

Both Mr. Bradshaw's and the Magistrate's peace making attempts were in vain.

"Is he a bad man?" queried the Magistrate."

"He certainly is," answered the woman who laid the charge, "a 16-year-old girl was struck and I will not withdraw the charge."

It was adjourned for one week.

Egypt Plans UN Appeal If Token Forces Sent

May Change Policy In Germany

Paying Own Bills Creates Problem For Canada's Allies

OTTAWA, Jan. 18. (CP) — Canada's policy of paying all her own army bills in Germany —frustrated and unfulfilled for months anyway—may be partly altered when the occupation ends, presumably within the next few months.

No decision has yet been made. Officials say none can be until the major powers thrash out with Germany just what costs she will bear as her share of joint Western defence once she becomes virtually a sovereign power again.

It is not impossible, however, informed quarters feel, that if arrangements are made for ally Germany to foot certain bills for all non-German NATO forces in Germany, Canada would accept those arrangements on her own behalf.

The latest unhappiness over the pitfalls that have befallen the policy, came Thursday. The influential Manchester Guardian published a report from Hannover, Germany, headquarters of the 27th Canadian Brigade, interpreting it as a "frank attempt to win friends and influence people" in Germany and said it "may prove an embarrassment" to the British and American occupation forces.

Creates Problem

It might result, The Guardian said, in a German call for Britain and the US to do as Canada is doing.

The trouble is that the Germans have been doing just this, have been using the Canadian policy both as a lever and a bargaining weapon to an extent which has already caused embarrassment and some indignation here.

The Canadian story may lead to an official statement on the Canadian position.

Canada's stand is that her position in Germany and that of the occupying powers is quite different The 27th Brigade is there as a NATO defence force. It has no connection with the occupation of a defeated country, therefore has no moral right to accept occupation costs as Britain, the US and France have been doing for six years and have a right to continue to do until the occupation ends.

This policy seemed completely sound and simple at first but the snarls it has encountered have built up into one of the most incredible chapters Canadian diplomacy has known. Reams of cables, reports and letters have passed back and forth about it.

The upshot to date is that it hasn't been implemented because it introduces a new principle just when the occupation is ending and it hasn't been possible to work out an arrangement to pay anybody.

A record of the bills is being kept but so far Canada is living on occupation costs whether she wants to or not.

Given Secret Peek

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP) — Prime Minister Churchill was taken deep within the secret recesses of the Pentagon today, for a first hand look at the US Air Force's command post. The command post is the nerve centre of the world operations of the Air Force and into it filters any air alert. The highly-secret operation, with its own communications system is manned 24 hours a day. Churchill's visit could be significant in view of his statement to Congress Thursday that it is "our" agreed course of action to take "prompt, resolute and effective" steps against any violation of the proposed Korean truce.

Name Gloucester To Serve In King's Stead

LONDON, Jan. 18—(Reuters)—A shy, middle-aged, country-loving soldier will become Britain's "caretaker King" when the King goes on his health cruise to South Africa this spring.

He is the Duke of Gloucester, 52, brother of the King. Known as the "forgotten" member of the Royal family, he is due for a concentrated dose of the limelight in the next few months.

Many of the burdens of Royalty will fall upon the soldier-Duke and his slim wife when Buckingham Palace is empty.

No member of the immediate Royal family will be left in the palace when the King leaves on a date yet to be fixed. The Queen and Princess Margaret will go with him. Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will be on a tour of Australia.

The Duke of Gloucester and his sister, the Princess Royal, will be the only members of the family still in England and eligible to serve as councillors of state—the Royal body which takes over the King's duties when he is absent or ill. But to help them, new councillors will be appointed by parliament.

The Duke is the least known of the King's brothers—but not through any fault of the British public. He likes the simple, homely life.

He has a London home, but most times he is to be found at Barnwell Manor, Northamptonshire, with the Duchess and their two sons; Prince William, 10, and Prince Richard, 7.

However, as a member of the present ruling House of Windsor, he is duty-conscious. This in-bred conviction that the public is there to be served took him to Australia between 1945 and 1947 as Governor-General. Likewise it will bring him to London, an unofficial Monarch, next spring.

Say British Cut Off 3 Big Cities

PARIS, Jan. 18. (CP)—A spokesman of Egypt's United Nations delegation said here today that Egypt would appeal to the Security Council if the United States, France or Turkey accepted Winston Churchill's invitation to send token forces to the Suez Canal zone.

The spokesman said Churchill's invitation "constitutes a new attack on the sovereignty of Egypt."

Churchill said in his address to Congress Thursday: "It is no longer for us alone to bear the whole burden of maintaining the freedom of the famous waterway."

He welcomed the conception of the approach to Egypt under which the United States, France and Turkey might share in the protection of world interests and added: "It would enormously aid us in our task if even only token forces of other partners were stationed in the canal zone as a symbol of the resolution of purpose which inspires us."

New Danger

The Egyptian spokesman, Mahmoud Azmi Bey, read out a statement authorized by Foreign Minister Mohommed Salah El Din Pasha, which said:

"The invitation of Mr. Churchill to the United States, France and Turkey to send token forces to the territory of a state other than their own, far from aiding the maintenance of peace and liberty of navigation, constitutes a new attempt on the sovereignty of a state member of the United Nations and is likely to compromise seriously the security of the Middle East."

The statement challenged Churchill's claim that Britain was in the Suez canal zone only to safeguard world commerce. He said Churchill deliberately tried to confuse the question of freedom of passage through the Suez canal with the responsibility of assuring this passage, a responsibility which rested solely with Egypt.

Cut Off Cities

In Cairo the independent newspaper Al Ahram said today British military authorities cut off three major cities in the Suez Canal zone from the rest of Egypt

All Main Highways Cut Off By Storm Near Los Angeles

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18. (CP)—All main highways into populous Los Angeles county were cut off today as the worst storms since the turn of the century gave "sunny California" the full treatment. The California Highway Patrol said that by 3:30 am all main highways into the county, which has a population of nearly 3,000,000, were closed by floods, earth slides or snow. Two thousand families were ordered evacuated today from the flatlands south of Los Angeles.

The sheriff's sub-station at Norwalk said the Coast Guard, moving 10 miles inland from the Pacific, would undertake to move the 6,000 or more persons from the path of rising waters.

The emergency centres in the communities of Norwalk, Artesia and Hawaiian Gardens, southeast of here. The coast guard moved up from its base at Long Beach and San Pedro with boats and amphibious equipment of all types.

Well In Hand

Another critical situation in the San Franando Valley north of Los Angeles proper apparently was well in hand, although some 200 families were taken from their homes in the Reseda area.

As welcome sunshine broke through the clouds shortly after dawn, the picture through the southern part of the state was one of rushing torrents, mud-closed highways and stalled cars.

Southern California was soused by a terrific rainstorm while the northern part of the state, stunned by unparalleled onslaughts of snow and rain, braced itself for another storm roaring down from the Gulf of Mexico.

Nine new deaths were reported Thursday.

The series of disruptive storms —one following another in seemingly endless procession — have closed virtually all the main railroad and highway routes across the Sierra and created general chaos in the state's transportation system.

Heavy snow Thursday night briefly closed the ridge route—United States Highway 99—over the mountains north of Los Angeles.

Rain fell in torrents over the southern part of the state, the new disturbance catching the weatherman by surprise.

Alberta Asks Freight Rate Lowered On Coal

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 (CP)—The Alberta government and the Western Coal Federation today called on the Board of Transport Commissioners to lower the freight rates on coal moving from Alberta and Southeast British Columbia to Ontario.

At the same time, they asked the board to make a study of the cost to the railways of hauling coal. They said freight rates are "unjustly and unreasonably in excess' of the railways' out-of-pocket costs.

The joint application—filed by Alberta counsel J. J. Frawley and Federation secretary W. C. Whittaker—was placed before the board in the face of the railways' intention of adding $2.35 a ton to the current rate of $10.75 from Alberta to major Ontario points. The increase would go into effect April 1.

It would be the second major increase in a year. From 1933 up to 1948, Alberta coal was moved east for $8 under a special depression-reduced rate. The series of post-war general increases brought it up to $8.40.

Ask Rate Disallowed

About a year ago, the railways decided to jack it up another $4.70 splitting it into two increases of $2.35 a year apart. This they can do, because the rate is a special one, unless the board steps in to halt them. The first increase took effect April 1 last.

The government-federation application today asked the board to disallow existing rates and order the railways to substitute others satisfactory to the board.

It called the current charges "unjust and unreasonable' and "discriminatory" against the eastbound coal movement. It said they produce railway earnings per ton-mile and car-mile higher than those for hauling coal within the west and within the east.

Ottawa Explains Residence Pension Law

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 (CP) — The federal government has spelled out in deail the residence requirements for its new old-age security program.

Under the program, pensions of $40 a month are paid to all persons 70 and over, providing they have lived in Canada for at least 20 years.

The health department said today a claim of 20 years' "continuous" residence in Canada will be accepted if temporary absences within that period do not total more than 1,200 days—an average of two months a year.

Special provision is made for five groups of people whose business might require longer absences from the country. They are persons employed on ships or fishing boats; employed on trains running out of Canada, operated by a railway company with its head office in Canada; employed in lumbering or harvesting and not absent from Canada for more than six months at a time; employed by United Nations or any of its specialized agencies; employed as a representative or member of a Canadian firm or corporation.

Not Counted Against Them

Their absences from Canada will not be counted against them for old-age security purposes provided they maintained a home in Canada or had a permanent place of abode to which they planned to return at the end of their employment abroad.

Canadian residents who go abroad as missionaries, as members of the Canadian armed forces or those of any ally of Canada, or as employees of the federal or any provincial or municipal government will not be counted as absent for old-age security purposes provided they return to Canada at the end of their duties abroad. Persons in this group are not required to maintain a home in Canada while they are away.

All the exceptions also apply to a married woman or widow who was absent from Canada because of the employment of her husband outside the country.

German Ship Rides Out Gale Other Boats Badly Crippled

DEA, Eng., Jan. 18. (AP)—The four-masted German bark Pamir, one of the last of the big sea-going windjammers, today rode out a North Sea gale which had sent lifeboats scudding to her rescue. The four-masted vessel with 45 sea cadets—40 Germans, four Britons and one Italian—and 46 crew members aboard had radioed an urgent call for help after heavy seas pounded off one of her anchors. Later she messaged the weather had moderated and she was able to resume her voyage without help.

Lifeboats from two English Channel ports battled through a blizzard to the scene 20 miles offshore. The 5,556-ton British steamer Empire Parkeston had stood by to help if needed.

The lifeboats began their rugged trip after Capt. Paul Grief radioed he thought the young cadets should be taken off his buffeted ship at once. With rescuers standing by, he decided to keep everyone aboard and finally was able to go on his way.

Boys Training

The picturesque, 2,769-ton sailing ship, built at Hamburg, in 1905, left Hamburg for Rio de Janeiro on Jan. 10 with a cargo of 4,000 tons of cement. The boys aboard her are training for the merchant marine.

The Pamir and her sister windjammer, the Passat, carried grain from Australia to Britain under various ownerships from 1905 to 1949.

Three years ago the Passat defeated the Pamir in the last of the traditional sailing races from Australia with the year's first wheat cargo.

Gales raging around and over the British Isles drove shipping to shelter today and a number of vessels sent out SOS calls.

Coast guards fired a breeches buoy from a cliff top to the Liberian ship Liberty after it went aground in a gale Thursday night near Cape Cornwall. All 38 seamen were hauled off safely.

Three seamen were missing from a 400-ton Dutch motor ship, adrift about 25 miles off Lowestoft in the North Sea. The rest of the crew were taken off.

Off Redcar, in the North Sea, lifeboats Thursday night completed removal of 27 men from the 4,221-ton Greek freighter Taxiarchis. She went aground Monday.

Germans Ask Loan For Army

BONN, Germany, Jan. 18 (AP) —The West German government plans to ask the United States for a big loan—probably several hundred million dollars—to help put German troops into the field with the proposed European army, Allied officials said today.

A formal request for the loan will be submitted to Washington when a "peace contract," now under negotiation, is signed with the three Western occupation powers —France, Britain and the United States—next spring, the officials said.

This "peace contract" will start Germans rearming inside the proposed unified European defence force and will return to them almost full control of their own affairs.

The Allied officials gave this picture of the loan request shaping up:

The Germans will contend they alone cannot finance formation of a new armed force from scratch after seven years of Allied demilitarization programs.

End Boycott After 37 Days

PARIS, Jan. 18 —(Reuters)—South Africa returned to the United Nations general assembly today after a boycott lasting 37 days.

Dr. T. E. Donges, leader of the union delegation, entered the chamber with other delegation members.

South Africa's seats were vacant since Dec. 12, when Prime Minister Daniel Malan instructed the delegation to withdraw as a protest against actions of the trusteeship committee during its discussion on south west Africa and the color problem there.

These actions concerned the invitation of tribal chiefs to appear before the committee and the hearings granted to the Rev. Michael Scott, Anglican clergyman and spokesman for the Hereros.

Iran May Denounce UK Friendship Treaty

TEHAN, Jan. 18 (AP) — An indication that Iran may denounce her 1857 peace and friendship treaty with Britain was seen today in a newspaper attack on the pact of Hossein Fatemi, former deputy-premier and a right-hand man of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

Fatemi said in his paper, Emrooz, that the 95-year-old treaty has "no validity in the second half of the 20th century." He termed it "an agreement between wolves and lambs" because it had been "imposed by the strong on the weak."

The British in a note Wednesday rejected Iranian orders to close British consulates in Iran and cited the treaty provision allowing them to maintain consulates wherever other foreign powers have them.

SentenceKenyon To 12 Years

HAMILTON, Jan. 18—(CP)—Frank Kenyon, convicted of manslaughter in the water death of his wife Nov. 24, today was sentenced to 12 years in penitentiary.

Kenyon, 42-year-old painter charged originally with murder, was convicted of the lesser charge Tuesday after a six-day trial, during which doctors testified his wife was killed by water being forced into her body.

Kenyon testified he put his wife in the kitchen sink to wash her after they returned home from a beer-drinking session.

There was a struggle. The next thing he remembered, Kenyon said, his wife was lying motionless in the sink. He ran next door and telephoned a hospital.

Stellarton Holds Week Of Mourning

STELLARTON, NS, Jan. 18 — (CP). — This little mining town has begun to bury its dead — the 19 men who died Monday in the tragic McGregor Coal Mine explosion.

Nine funerals were held Thursday. There will be six more today and the last four dead will be interred Saturday.

The town and surrounding area is observing a four-day mourning period that will continue until Sunday night.

Every flag in town flies at half-staff, all social meetings have been cancelled, and groups of quiet people can be seen going through the streets as they bring their sympathy to the bereaved families, friends that they have known since childhood in this closely-knit little community.

Brief Jet Battle

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 18 (AP)—Jet planes fought over northwest Korea today for the fourth successive day.

United States Sabre jets screening Thunderjet strikes against Red rail lines and supplies fought briefly with elements of a formation of 120 Communist jets.

One flight of four MIG-15s broke through the screening Sabres and made a firing pass at the Thunderjets, then headed for home. No damage was reported.

The air force reported three MIGs downed and seven damaged in the previous three days' fights. Allied losses are reported only weekly.

Seize 30 Suspects In Narcotics Raid

VANCOUVER, Jan. 18 (CP).—Raids aimed at smashing the illicit drug trade in Vancouver scooped up 30 suspected peddlers Thursday, and police said more arrests could be expected.

An RCMP spokesman said the arrests and seizures "will wipe out 80 per cent of the (narcotics) distribution set-up here."

Cpl. Harold Price, heading the 14-man RCMP narcotics squad, disclosed that a member of the Federal force brought here from the East has been mingling with addicts and peddlers for the last 2½ months, gathering evidence.

Six of the 30 persons arrested were already in jail. They are held for offences police said they committed after they sold narcotics to an RCMP agent.

The raids by RCMP and city officers were described as the biggest on record here, and Cpl. Price said additional warrants were out for execution.

Hint Towers May Be Given Sterling Body Chairmanship

LONDON, Jan. 18 — (CP)—The Daily Telegraph today says that the Commonwealth Finance Ministers at present meeting in London are "almost certain to conclude their deliberations with a firm recommendation favoring establishment of a permanent high-level committee to co-ordinate sterling-area economic policy."

The paper suggests the chairmanship of such a body may be offered to Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada.

Others mentioned as possible chairmen are Sir John Anderson, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, who was created a Viscount in the New Year's honors list, and Sir Frederic Leith-Ross, chief economic adviser to the British Government from 1932 to 1946.

Although Canada is not a member of the sterling group, her Finance Minister, Douglas C. Abbott, has been taking an active part in the current private talks on the grave financial plight of the sterling countries. Those more directly concerned are the United Kingdom, South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon, Pakistan and India.

Delegates to the conference declined to comment on the Telegraph's report. But officials closely connected with the meetings doubted if any cut-and-dried plan would emerge from the deliberations.

Proposals ultimately agreed upon, they said, would likely take the form of recommendations. As they would probably involve major modifications in domestic politics of the member countries, decision on how they should be implemented would have to be considered at cabinet level.

One argument for establishment of permanent co-ordinating machinery, the Telegraph says, is its value as a gesture to re-establish confidence in sterling.

"Mere phrases about 'full agreement' in a final communique, the paper adds, might be cynically received in the outside world, where some prophets foresee the breakup of the sterling area."

Street Car Union Calls Meeting

TORONTO, Jan. 18 — (CP) — Toronto's street-car and bus strike today entered its third week with no prospect of any early break.

Mayor Allan Lamport planned another effort to persuade members of the Toronto Transportation Commission and Street Railway Employees' Union (AFL-TLC) to get together to discuss settlement of the wage dispute that has tied up the publicly-owned transit service of Canada's second-largest city.

Such a meeting ended late Thursday without any indication that the disputants had modified their stands. The union seeks a 15-cents-an-hour increase to $1.55 in the basic hourly rate and favors mediation. The TTC offers a five-cent increase to $1.45, contends that a greater raise would force up fares from the present three for 25 cents to a straight 10 cents, and is willing to sumit the dispute to arbitration but not to mediation.

The union has called a meeting of its 4,700 members for 10 am Sunday in downtown Massey Hall. It will be the first general meeting since union members decided to walk out—on three hours' notice—at 5 am Jan. 4.

SOMETHING TO PONDER—Snug in their incubators in Nashville, Ark., are the quadruplets born to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ponder. The three boys and one girl (she's second from right) were born at home and rushed to the hospital by the father, who announced "I've got four babies, and they're all mine.

Suez Token Force Not Popular With Congressmen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. (AP)—Most members of Congress agreed today with Winston Churchill that in the uncertain years ahead Britain and the United States must "tread the same path." But congressmen of both major parties shied away from the Prime Minister's suggestion that "token forces" of the United States and other nations step into the Suez Canal zone dispute. Others saw dangers in Churchill's requests for US steel, or his eloquent but grim forecast of possible troubles in southeast Asia and the Middle East.

After his thunderous reception by the joint session of Congress Thursday, the 77-year-old statesman turned to another conference today with President Truman.

This is believed to involve the touchy question of the Atlantic naval command, under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Churchill was reported opposing a unified command in this area that might dim the traditional British naval control over sea lanes approaching western Europe.

See Opposition

Some Congressional opposition seemed to be piling up against Churchill's statement that "freedom of the famous waterway of the Suez Canal" should shift from present British responsibility to a "four-power approach."

He said the United States, France and Turkey might join England in the Suez to protect world interests "among which Egypt's own interests are paramount."

"It would enormously aid us in our task if even token forces of the other partners in the four power proposal were stationed in the Canal Zone as a symbol of the unity of purpose which inspires us," he told Congress.

Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, Republican leader, speaking as an individual, quickly questioned this, saying:

"I can't see anything there at the present time that would affect US security."

Finds It Disconcerting

Senator Guy Gillette (Dem. Ia.) a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he found it "a bit disconcerting that such problems as the commerce of the Malay peninsula, the protection of the Suez Canal and the various interests in the Middle East were not primarily the United Kingdom's responsibility but one in which the free world must share."

Representative James P. Richards (Dem. SC), chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, applauded the speech "as one of the greatest I ever heard by one of the greatest men of the age."

Unlike some of his colleagues, Richards agreed it may be necessary for the United States "to participate in control of the (Suez) Canal area. Certainly we should do it, if a step in that direction becomes necessary to dam the tide of Communism there, as we did in Korea."

Still Wrangling Over Armistice

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 18 — (AP)—Truce negotiators kept tempers in check today as they wrangled fruitlessly over terms of a Korean armistice. The only outburst came from a Chinese delegate who referred to America's allies as "running dogs."

Maj.-Gen. Claude Ferenbaugh made his daily plea that the Reds promise not to build airfields in North Korea during a truce.

The Communists replied, as usual, that their pledge not to send combat planes across the Yalu during a truce was sufficient guarantee.

In an adjoining tent, Rear-Admiral R. E. Libby tried vainly to get Red negotiators to accept voluntary repatriation of war prisoners.

Festival Play Called "Slow"

VANCOUVER, Jan. 18 (CP)—A "slow and monotonous" performance of St. John Ervine's "John Ferguson" by the White Rock Little Theatre Thursday night formed the second presentation at the four-play British Columbia Regional Drama Festival.

Adjudicator Pierre Lefevre said that though the actors showed "great honesty and sincerity" they lacked the ability and physical and vocal qualities to put across the Irish essence and poetic feeling of the play.

Mr. Lefevre said the performance left him untouched until the very end. "It took them the whole evening to get warmed up," he said.

Report Truman Agrees To A-Bomb Expansion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) —President Truman has decided to recommend an expansion of the US atomic program, Senator Brien McMahon (Dem., Conn.) said Thursday.

McMahon, talking with reporters after a talk with Truman at the White House, did not give details. He is chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee.

"We talked about the expansion program that has been under consideration by the Atomic Energy Commission," the senator said. "The decision has been made by the President — further than that I can't state.

"I am confident that there will be an expansion of the atomic energy program."

Sterling Nations To Clean Up Trade Losses

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP)—Eight British Commonwealth nations pledged Thursday to wipe out all their world trade losses by late 1952.

The move, aimed at saving the British-led sterling area's trade and monetary system from collapse, will spread austerity to most of the Commonwealth's 500,000,000 citizens.

Britons themselves will have to draw in their already tight belts. The man in the street in each nation will have to work harder and buy less to enable his government to sell more.

The alternative is virtual bankruptcy. Then the nation would not be able to buy any essential foodstuffs from other countries. Within nine months or so the average Briton's diet would be milk, fish, potatoes and occasional eggs. He would have no tea, tobacco or coffee.

To avoid all that, Commonwealth finance ministers resolved in secret talks Thursday that each of their governments must quit spending more than it is earning by the second half of this year.

Tremendous Task

The task will be a tremendous one. In the second half of 1951, the gold-dollar reserves of the sterling partners dived by $1,500,000,000—mostly in trade with North America.

Each minister will have to go back to his own government next week and get the green light to lay down a really tough budget for the coming fiscal year, beginning in April.

But there is some evidence that things may get a little better for the British family of nations. Among the signs:

Britain has insured her arms and exports industries against collapse by getting a promise of a million tons of US steel in 1952.

The value of British exports is climbing steadily, hitting an all-time peak of about $80,000,000,000 in 1951.

A lull in the import of sterling area goods and materials by the United States seems to be ending, promising bigger dollar earnings.

Think Plane Crashed Near Haliburton Lake

LINDSAY, Jan. 18 (ENS) — Provincial police constable Gordon Langton spent all Thursday afternoon on snow shoes in a fruitless search for a plane reported to have crashed near Kashagawigamog lake in Haliburton county.

Reports had reached the constable from farmers in the area that they had heard a plane motor coming low across the lake and then the sound abruptly ended. Constable Langton came to the conclusion that the plane had been flying low and had gone behind a hill in the vicinity and the motor had just sounded like it stopped to the farmers.

According to his investigation no planes are in Haliburton county at this time of year that are privately owned. It was thought to have been a twin-engined plane of some kind.

Lindsay Man Fined, Drunk In Police Office

LINDSAY, Jan. 18 (ENS). — "He came into the police office Thursday night and tried to borrow some money from one of the police officers," said Chief Constable A. Webster in court today when giving evidence on an intoxication charge against 48-year-old Ivan Quibell.

"Then, he asked what he had to do to get locked up, throw a brick through a window? He was charged with being intoxicated in a public place, the Lindsay police office."

Quibell pleaded guilty to the charge and Chief Webster stated that he had talked with the accused this morning and Quibell had promised to give up drinking. The chief said he would endeavor to get Quibell a job if he stayed away from the drink. Magistrate Gee fined him a total of $11 or seven days. Quibell did not have the money to pay the fine.

Little Progress

Attempt to clear the Southern Pacific's overland route across the Sierra, where the streamliner City of San Francisco and a trainload of passengers almost met disaster this week, has made little progress. Railroad men said it will take days to open the line.

A relief train engineer caught in a slide near Yuba Pass Monday is still missing. It is feared he lost his life under the drifts after his engine and a rotary snowplow overturned.

Relief supplies were sent by army weasel to 40 persons trapped since last Friday at a construction camp in isolated Bear River Canyon, about 100 miles east of San Francisco.

No word has been received from these people for a week. It is believed they had plenty of food, but might be short of fuel and medical supplies.

Legislature Meets Feb. 21

TORONTO, Jan. 18 — (CP).—First session of the 24th Legislature of Ontario will be convened on February 21, Premier Frost announced Thursday.

The date indicates a comparatively short session—about seven weeks. It is customary for the House to rise before the Easter weekend, which, this year, begins on April 11.

Last year's third session of the 23rd Legislature — there was a brief fourth session in the fall—lasted nine weeks. It went nine days beyond Easter after a short holiday recess. The average length of the sitting is eight weeks.

Seating arrangements for the lop-sided House have not been completed. In addition to the 45 seats on the government side of the chamber, the Conservatives will occupy 34 seats across the floor. At the November 22 general election 79 Conservatives were returned, with only eight Liberals, two CCF, and one Communist.

Western Oils Ease On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Jan. 18 — (CP) — Western oils eased today in early afternoon dealings after strong noon support pushed the exchange's index up more than a point to a record high.

Western oil speculation continued to dominate trading as a wide list of issues climbed in active dealings. A penny gold—Manitoba and Eastern — showed the heaviest turnover, however, as more than 300,000 shares changed hands. Volume for the first three hours was 1,939,000 shares.

Gains outnumbered losses in Western oils about two to one. Calgary and Edmonton, Calmont, Jupiter, Model Oil and Okalta, pushed mederately higher. Canadian Atlantic, Gridoil, United Oil and Triad slipped.

Agricultures, refining oils and constructions led industrials while paper and liquors drew first support. Steels, utilities and banks were mixed while foods dipped.

Base metal leaders were mixed. Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge, Hudson Bay, International Nickel and Waite Amulet strengthened but Golden Manitou, Labrador and United Keno Hill weakened.

Senior golds made little headway. Juniors weakened while prospects and holding companies showed gains and losses in balance.

Use Smoke Bombs To Disperse Crowd

KHARTOUM, Sudan, Jan. 18—(Reuters)—Police with smoke bombs dispersed a crowd of 500 demonstrators and arrested 16 during a visit of Sir Robert Howe, the British governor-general, to Kassala last night. The crowd shouted anti-British slogans.

One of the men arrested, a school principal, was accused of inciting the crowd to violence.

Kassala is a town near the Eritrean border, about 250 miles east of Khartoum.

The Sudan is jointly ruled by Britain and Egypt but Egypt wants to take over full charge. The British have promised the Sudan self-government and are pledged to resist the Egyptian demand.

3 New Members Elected To Fair Board

Three new members were elected directors of the 1952 Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board when the board held its annual meeting and election of officers in the city hall council chambers on Thursday night.

Archie Clysdale, John Stewart and Harold Millen, are the newcomers.

The remainder of the 18 directors elected were members of the 1951 directorate with the exception of Dr. Harry Hamilton who returns to the board after a two-year absence.

Mrs. G. K. Fraser was returned as the only woman representative on the board.

Ending a long association with the board, Col. F. E. Birdsall asked that his name not be submitted for re-election. Col. Birdsall has taken an active interest in the exhibition both as an exhibitor and a director of the board for many years.

Claire Collins, said he would be unable to serve in the coming year, and Haig Kelley resigned from the board some time ago.

In addition to the 18, elected by ballot from 33 names nominated, six additional members are to be nominated by county junior farmers.

Other members of the 1952 board of directors are: Norman McConkey, 1951 president; John Kitney, Clayton Sanderson, Frank Savigney, Burritt Mann, Mansen Cathcart, Clarence Bacon, Don Millburn, Ross Dobbin, Charles Moore, Clarence Mann, Charles Quinlan and Melville Johnston.

Ship In Port After 17 Days

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, Jan. 18 (Reuters).—A 17-day towing adventure in the teeth of the same gale which conquered the Flying Enterprise came to a happy ending here Thursday with the safe arrival of the 7,000-ton freighter Adolf Lonehard and all her crew of 36.

The disabled vessel, commissioned for service only last September, was nursed into port by three tugs after a haul over 1,200, storm-tossed miles of the Atlantic.

The ship left Norfolk, Va., for Bremen Dec. 18. On Boxing Day she lost her rudder at a spot 170 miles east of Capt. Kurt Carlsen's vessel.

The German vessel tossed helplessly in one of the Atlantic's worst gales in years. Waves crashed over the bridge and even into the funnel. Iron doors were wrenched away and cabins flooded.

Capt. J. Wiese radioed for tugs.

When they arrived the freighter was limping for the English Channel, steering with a makeshift rudder and emergency sails.

The heavy tow lines snapped time and time again. But new tow lines were attached each time without casualty.

in an efofrt to control the area.

The newspaper reported that Lt.-Gen. Sir George Erskine, the British Comamnder in Egypt, informed Egyptian authorities of travel restrictions between Suez, Ismailia, and Port Said. There was no confirmation from British sources.

According to Al Ahram, Lt.-Gen. Erskine informed Egyptian authorities that "no political or official persons will be allowed to travel between these cities unless they are in possession of special permits delivered by British authorities."

The dispatch said doctors, Egyptian soldiers, and policemen in uniform and employees—presumably of the Canal Company—are exempted from the restrictions "on special conditions."

Al Ahram said railway traffic between the three cities has been "totally interrupted," while civilian cars, although allowed to pass on roads, are not permitted to stop or slow down, "otherwise they will be subject to shooting."

Deal With Russia

The emergency decree was issued "to preserve public security" aimed at controlling bands of youths who have patrolled streets here recently forcing bars and restaurants to close in sympathy with Egyptian deaths in the Suez area.

As police moved through the streets enforcing the decree, reports circulated that Egypt has taken a new step to boost trade with Russia and other Communist countries.

The reports say Egypt is ready to sell her precious cotton to the Communist nations, reducing her trade with English cotton mills.

The principle of the deal nas been approved and a long list of available trade items has been sent to Moscow, sources said.

Truck Hits Parked Car Driver Stops, Goes On

A brewery transport stopped after hitting a parked car on Charlotte St., Thursday morning, then, after examining the damage, the driver drove off and did not report the accident.

An eye witness reported that the truck hit a car parked in front of the Medical Centre belonging to Dr. Ralph Honey, 466 Weller St. The driver stopped and waited for about five minutes after the accident before driving away.

Dr. Honey's car was damaged on the left rear fender and left side.

Constable Louis Roderique reported that the Brewer's Retail Store said two trucks came into the city Thursday morning belonging to the Toronto brewery firm named by the eye witness. Neither of the drivers reported an accident to city police.

Hospital Names Heads Of Surgical Services

Heads of the medical and surgical services at Civic Hospital for the coming year were announced Thursday night. Board of Governors approved the recommendations of the various services.

No Dissenters

Magistrate W. R. Philp found himself in the unusual position of seconding a motion by Mayor Hugh Waddell, appointing him chairman of the police commission for 1952. Until a new judge is appointed, there are only two members of the commission which constitutes a quorum. When the January meeting convened at the city hall Thursday afternoon, Mayor Waddell moved that Magistrate Philp be chairman. There were no dissenting votes.

Smelling Leads Skating Tourney

OSHAWA, Jan. 18 — (CP) — Charles Smelling, confident 14-year-old entry from Toronto, today skated to 18.2 point lead over Allan Anderson of Oshawa, in the compulsory junior men's figures at the Canadian figure skating championships.

The junior men's title will be decided tonight when the field of nine entries compete in the free style division, which accounts for about one-third of the total score.

The point-scoring system of the compulsory figures saw Paul Tatton of North Bay, take third spot with Doug Court of Ottawa fourth.

Smelling's score was 545.2. There was only 1.5 difference between the 512.9 points obtained by Tatton and the number scored by Court.

Other placements Barnard Youlton, Schumacher, Ian Campbell, Toronto, Fred Yanke, Kitchener, Norman Walker and Brian Power, both of Vancouver, in that order.

For Anderson it was his second bid for the title.

Meet To Discuss Nursing School

A meeting devoted to discussing the school of nursing at Civic hospital, and possible improvements to it will be held some time in the near future.

At the board of governors meeting Thursday night, board members voted in favor of such a meeting, with the superintendent of nurses present.

Insterted into Thursday night's discussion was the suggestion — made by several members — that the province should subsidize schools of nursing. Superintendent John Hornal remarked that the government was considering such subsidization, but so far had done nothing concrete.

"Why should Peterborough have to produce so many nurses to keep up the flow of graduates into the profession?" asked T. T. Rodger. He pointed out that each nurse, without a government subsidy, represented a loss to the hospital of $200 to $300 annually.

E. H. Northey suggested that the hospital could follow the example of Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children and pay nurses in training nothing at all.

Dr. G. S. Cameron remarked that the Hospital for Sick Children and five or six others in the province paid their nurses in training nothing. But, he added, those hospitals have widely respected names as places of training, and as well set higher entrance standards.

Truck Slides Down Hill Hits Parked Car

After sliding down the Hunter St. hill Thursday morning, a loaded soft drink truck turned around at Rogers St., and skidded sideways into a parked car.

The street was glassy with ice when the accident occurred. The parked car owned by Dr. E. Cragg, 230 Geraldine Ave., was damaged on the left side.

The truck, driven by Ronald Reynolds, 497 Cross St., was damaged on the right rear fender and right side.

20 Nationalists Held In Tunis

TUNIS, Jan. 18 —(AP)—French led police arrested some 20 top Tunisian Nationalist and Communist leaders in pre-dawn raids today and hurried them to secret rural detention spots.

An immediate general strike was ordered for all of Tunis by the big labor federation, L'Union Generale Tunisienne du Travail (General Union of Tunisian Workers), to protest the arrest and Thursday's bloodshed.

Three Tunisians were killed and at least 50 seriously injured on Thursday when police fired into mobs at Ferryville and Bizerte.

French authorites who rule this North African dependency as a protectorate, banned the two-day National Congress of the Neo-Destour (New Constitutional) party scheduled for today and tomorrow. They threw police blockades across all roads to Tunis to keep delegates out.

One of those arrested was Habib Bourguiba, president of the Neo-Destour, who in the last six months had made a world tour pleading for Tunisian independence.

Victoria To Put $193,000 Into Road Work

LINDSAY, Jan. 18—(ENS)—"This is a tourist vicinity and I'm personally in favor of keeping county roads in good condition", said Reeve R. Butler of Lindsay at Thursday's meeting of Victoria county council.

"The road superintendent has requested a raise in the mill rate of one and a quarter. I think we should go the whole way and in a few years, we'll have a county road system that we can be proud of at all times".

H. D. Wilford, county road superintendent and county engineer, read an extensive yearly report to Council meeting in committee, stating that maintenance costs for the coming year would probably be $115,000 and the new construction needed throughout all municipalities would be well over $53,000, plus another $25,000 for a new grader machine.

He requested a hike of one and a quarter mills to make the road mill rate total for 1952 five-and-three-quarter mills. The superintendent gave his 19th annual report and the county's 31st report. One of the new bridges to be constructed this year is the one known as Thunder bridge on county road No. 19. It is a CNR bridge on the cutoff from Highway 7 to Highway 35.

Consensus in the Council was that maintenance costs last year were exceptionally high because of the weather—bad spring breakup, wet summer and early winter.

Act of Providence

"It was an act of Providence," said Warden Ray Webster, reeve of Mariposa. "As far as the county road I live on," said Reeve Bob Bradt of Verulam, "it was just heavy traffic, especially trucks, breaking through the gravel surface. One car today does more damage than two wagons did 50 years ago."

Truckers were blamed by a few members of the Council for not co-operating in the spring and keeping off the roads until they dried up. The discussion was brought to a head by Reeve Butler of Lindsay when he moved that the raise be one-and-a-quarter mills. An amendment to the motion was passed to get the rate at one mill, but the amendment lost by a vote of seven to six. New rate for the county's 227 miles of roads is set at five-and-three-quarter mills on the dollar.

Vote For Strike

—Some 3,500 city workers, protesting Mayor Joseph S. Clark's refusal to re-establish a 40-hour week, Thursday night voted a strike call "whenever the union sees fit." Officials of the State, County and Municipal Employees Union (AFL) said the vote could result in a walkout of 7,300 members of 13 locals, most of them in the street-cleaning and garbage-collecting agencies.

Russians Like Jessup; Recall Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP)—Senator Styles Bridges the Republican floor leader, said today he was confident the Senate would vote against Ambassador Philip Jessup as a United Nations delegate if the issue could be brought to the floor.

Bridges launched a new attack on Jessup in a Senate speech late Thursday after Andrei Vishinsky, the Soviet foreign minister, had expressed "sympathy" with Jessup because of Republican denunciations of him.

The New Hampshire Senator said Vishinsky and "his pal, Mr. Jessup," had put on "a footsie-tootsie" exhibition at the UN meeting in Paris, and added:

"If I were president of the United States, I would send a cablegram to Mr. Jessup to board a plane tonight and start for home. His usefulness is over.

"Obviously if Jessup is satisfactory to Vishinsky and Russia, he can't be satisfactory to the United States."

Majority leader Ernest W. McFarland (Dem. Ariz.) retorted that the "Russians are very shrewd in the remarks they make."

"If they want to condemn a man," he said, "they brag about him because they know such action will be taken up and that the American people will say, 'If the Russians agree to it, we ought to get rid of him.'

"So I do not think we should pay too much attention to what they say, one way or another."

A Canadian Governor-General

Apparently a new Governor General is to be named soon, and people who profess to know about such things say that he will be a Canadian. These same knowledgeable people say that he is very likely to be the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey. If their prediction comes true we shall be pleased, for Mr. Massey has served Canada with distinction in several unusual ways, and he deserves any honour that Canada can bestow upon him. There is no reason why a Canadian should not represent the King in this country, though we are sorry that great pains are being taken to deprive His Majesty of even the appearance of a choice in the matter; the office is to become a political gift. This need not, however, be a bad thing. The provincial Lieutenant-Governors are political appointees and many of them have been very able men who have done excellent work in that office; Ontario could not find a more active, interested and capable man for its Lieutenant-Governor than the Hon. Ray Lawson. There is nothing to be said against the principle of political appointment so long as the politicians who make the appointment have a high regard for the office of Governor General and those intangible but important things for which it is a symbol.

* * *

We should like to think, however, that in future the Governor General may be a Canadian, if a suitable man is available for that post, but that it is not obligatory that he must be a Canadian. Particularly we hope that the country will not fall into that typical ding-dong Canadian pattern in which an English-speaking Canadian must be succeeded by a French-speaking Canadian, on and on, as far as the eye can see. We should like to think that men of great abilities from other parts of the Commonwealth might be asked to take the position. For our Governors General have done things for our country which native Canadians have failed to do. Canadian drama was given a forward push by Lord Bessborough; Canadian music was given strong encouragement at a time when it needed it by Lord Willingdon; the influence of Lord Tweedsmuir was beneficently exercised in the encouragement of our literature. Most of our Governors General have in some way left their mark upon this country, because they were men of strong individual taste and character, and because the fact that they came from abroad gave them the clear view, and the uninhibited influence, which only a stranger can have.

* * *

A reliance upon ourselves, in every sphere, can do much for Canada, but we need not pretend that we can exist solely by consuming our own smoke. As a member of the British Commonwealth we are in a position which enables us to absorb influences from other countries under unusually favourable and friendly circumstances. Insofar as the appointment of a Canadian to be Governor General is a recognition of our own worth, it is admirable; but insofar as it is an act of isolationism—intellectual and social isolationism—it is a mistake.

Do We Mind His Saying So? Asks Churchill

The Dominion-demoters at Ottawa must have been biting their collective lips when Mr. Churchill gave his Ottawa address Monday evening. He praised this land, was warmed by the reception its people gave him and held out great hopes for Canada's future: "Upon the whole surface of the globe there is no more spacious and splendid domain open to the activity and genius of free men."

Good; that must have brought the glow of pride to his hearers, even to the governing officials who have been as busy as mice gnawing historic wrappings from the land that is ours. But these gentlemen in seats of government and warming civil service chairs—the fellows so busy tearing royalty from the Dominion—must have been puzzled how to take this statement: "Here in Canada you have had what may be called a wonderful visit. The Princess and her husband have travelled the length and breadth of what you will not mind my styling 'the great Dominion'."

A pretty jab at the ribs of the Dominion-demoters—and Churchill in his good whimsical form. They would very much like his styling Canada great but to link the adjective with that terrible word which they have cast into outer darkness Dominion! Oh, dear; oh dear! In accepting the wine of greatness they would have to drink the vinegar of 'Dominion.' The result was, we must presume, a wry smile. And Churchill could have his secret laugh. We laugh with him—openly. Fie on the mean souls who have so little respect for our traditions, so little gratitude for their history, that they reject all reference to our Royal links and to our fine and free name Dominion. May they be wizened in vinegar.

Annexing Canada To The U.S.A.

The floor of the American House of Representatives takes on the function of a comic opera stage when representatives like Timothy Sheehan of Illinois open their mouths and disclose what is in their minds. But Mr. Sheehan is not as clever as an actor, nor as good as a ham one, judging from the bill he proposed in the House of Representatives in Washington on Wednesday. So we do not find him very funny.

Mr. Sheehan proposed to create a committee to bring about the incorporation of Canada into the United States. Just that, and nothing more. Oh, yes, there is something more. When the United States has annexed Canada it will, according to Mr. Sheehan, have to pay something to Britain for giving up her rights to Canada. Some of the money that the United States has already lent to Britain could be written off as payment for Canada, Mr. Sheehan suggests.

The ignorance of some Americans about Canada's constitutional position astonishes Canadians. Mr. Sheehan, for instance, represents a constituency in Illinois which is really quite close to the Canadian border. Yet he does not seem to know that Canada is self-governing in every way and that Britain does not own Canada.

Somebody ought to instruct Mr. Sheehan that Canadians do not want to be annexed to the United States, and that if they did it would be they, and not Uncle Sam or John Bull who would say so. Perhaps Mr. Sheehan also does not know that Canada is already so much in the clutches of the United States—financially, industrially, culturally and militarily—that many Canadians are quite alarmed and would resist the last phase, political union, to the death. We like the United States as a neighbour, not as an all-wise mother—a role which Uncle Sam is ill-equipped to fill.

A Misfortune For Royalty

Sometimes we think that it is a misfortune for Princess Margaret that she is so attractive. Certainly she is very pretty, and in some of her photographs she appears to be more than that; she seems beautiful. And beauty, in our day, is a misfortune rather than a gift for a woman of the Royal House. For Hollywood, with its publicity techniques drawn half from the bagnio and half from the slave-market, has persuaded the world that every pretty girl is public property, to be commented upon, criticised, and verbally mauled by people of all sorts.

It is not the American press or the Hollywood moguls, however, who are foisting their opinions about Princess Margaret upon the world. It is a section of the British press. And we may repeat here what we have said many times before in these columns: there is a part of the British press—quite a large part—which far outstrips the American press in vulgar sensation-mongering.

It is Princess Margaret's engagement, or the possibility of it, which is exercising this section of Britain's press at the moment. She is thought to be interested in the Earl of Dalkeith, a kinsman of the Queen's. If this is so we see nothing remarkable about it, and if it is to be serious, an announcement will be made at the proper time. But gossip and the cheapest sort of sentimentality run riot in some of the British papers. If the Princess were a plain girl, we are certain that the excitement would not be so great.

And if the Princess were a plain girl, we do not think that the humane societies who mumble discontentedly whenever she goes near a fox-hunt would have so much to say. But great numbers of people feel that they have a right to criticise the doings of a pretty girl; any competent psychologist will explain why.

We wonder if the Princess ever wishes, in secret, that she had a face like the back of a hack?

NOTES AND COMMENT

The Canadian dollar is now reported to be strong on the international money market. A pity it is so feeble at the local meat market.

Will the law which insists that rabbit fur be plainly labelled as rabbit be extended to cover the case of toys which are labelled "unbreakable"?

Barbers are reported to be alarmed at the small number of apprentices in their line. You'd think they were just the men to talk some promising young fellows into it.

A graduate of Vassar has won a $25,000 cooking prize with a cake which has its frosting mixed in with its batter. In our kitchen we call that a mistake and throw it away.

Stressing the importance of grammar, the good, grey Kingston Whig lays special stress on the necessity to observe the rules about adverbial suffixes. It cites as an example the sentence: "He looked at her sternly."

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

DEAR ALPHA: You ask for questions—Here is one: How high do you guess that the Tower in the city of Babel was? It must have been high to alarm God—He pays no attention to the skyscrapers in New York.

ANSWER: The Tower of Babel was a tall story higher than the Empire State Building, New York.

According to the narrative in Genesis, mankind after the flood attempted to build a tower whose top would reach unto heaven. They were prevented in this ambitious design through their speech being confounded (babble, babble, babble—the natives not understanding the foreign tongue—hence the name Babylon). The original of the Tower of Babel has been found in the Temple of E-Sagila at Babylon but local and Jewish tradition associated it with the siege-tower of Borsippa . . . Have I taken the flight out of your question by these flat comments?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR ALPH: Where do all the birds go to die? I hardly ever see a dead bird, and then only one which has been killed by accident.

ANSWER: Now, there's a good question! Like my reader I rarely see a dead bird in town—on the streets, lawns or back gardens. Have they all a physical Valhalla to which they migrate as they feel death approaching? I hope some of my ornithological readers will fly up with an explanation.

✧ ✧ ✧

SIR: Did a Jew lead the anti-Catholic riots in England when Newgate prison in London was burnt? If so, isn't that very strange? Why should a Jew bother about squabbles between Christians?

ANSWER: Stranger still is the man himself who was the focus of the Gordon Riots, Lord George Gordon (1751-1793). Your question is not quite correct in its details. Lord George Gordon adopted the Jewish faith after the riots. He was a queer firebrand. Son of the Third Duke of Gordon, he was a Londoner, joined the Navy as a midshipman and served with the British Fleet in American waters. When he was promoted to lieutenant he resigned, won a seat in Parliament and attacked both sides freely.

In 1779 he became President of the Prostestant Association. A recent Act of Parliament had given Roman Catholics some relief from disabilities. In 1780 the Association passed a resolution of protest, and thousands of people, led by Gordon, marched on the House of Commons and filled the lobbies, while Gordon presented the petition. It was read, but adjourned. The mob grew noisy and menacing and despite Gordon's efforts, could not be dispersed until troops were called. Then they moved off peacefully.

When the petition was to be reconsidered, a large crowd gathered before the House, howling "No Popery". They became out of hand, burnt Newgate and opened other prisons. They did damage estimated at £180,000. The troops were called out and 210 rioters were killed. Lord George was arrested, put into the Tower for eight months and only then was tried on a charge of high treason. He was acquitted.

Later Lord George Gordon was received into the Jewish faith . . . Still later he was involved in a libel suit against Marie Antoinette, and in 1788 was sentenced to five years' imprisonment at Newgate. He lived in the prison comfortably and conforming to the ritual of the Jewish faith. He died in prison of jail fever. He was buried in the ground then known as Church Field, on which Euston Station was later built.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALPHA: Is there any Clergy Reserve land left in Peterborough?

ANSWER: Yes, St. Andrew's Church sold their property about fifteen years ago to pay for their new Sunday School. St. John's Church has held to its land, granted in 1834. In January of that year the Church of England in Peterborough was given four acres (eight lots) north of Hunter Street and east of Water. Thus, today St. John's Church owns all the land around the church, right down to Water Street, including the sites of the shops and office buildings from Hunter to Brock. This land is held in the name of the rector, and rents are collected in his name. Thus, Archdeacon Robertson is one of the larger landowners in Peterborough.

In Toronto, the Church of England (which got most of the clergy reserve grants handed out in Upper Canada) is land-wealthy. From rents and the sale of clergy reserve lands a "Rector's Fund" has been established. I understand that the Bishop of Toronto's stipend is increased by $5,000 a year from this fund and that the rector of St. James Cathedral also takes $5,000 from the fund. I have been told by a Torontonian that one reason Church of England clergymen can put up with Toronto parishes is that every one of them has $2,000 added to his stipend every year from this fund fed by clergy reserve lands.

✧ ✧ ✧

TO KIND READERS: Please restrain your impatience if I do not answer your questions promptly. My cry for questions a month ago brought not only a good immediate response, but a continuing flow. Sometimes I answer a question received only yesterday because it tickles my fancy or I know the answer right away. Sometimes another gets stalled because I have several on the same theme and want to spread them out. The real reason I am slow in answering is that I like to dawdle over answers. For instance, the answer to the question above could have been simply "yes", and there would have been more room left for others. But it gave me a chance to talk about the Toronto rectors' coffers . . . Keep the questions coming, please, and thank you for all the kind remarks and seasonable greetings in your letter.

FOR THE RECORD: I haven't anything to record, so I'll tell an airy little joke which a prominent lawyer is purveying about town this week: What's the colour of a hiccough? Answer: Burple.

CURIOUS

William Merriweather, the nation's newest multimillionaire, was being interviewed by the press.

"Would you say that you are a self-made man, Mr. Merriweather?" one reporter asked.

"Oh, no by means," came the modest reply. "I could never have become a multimillionaire, had it not been for my wife."

"Ah, I see," said the interviewer, "her loyal help—"

Mr. Merriweather smiled.

"Oh, no," he replied. "I was simply curious to know if there was any income she couldn't live beyond!"

"I KNEW HIM WHEN . . ."

Letters To The Editor

EDUCATION IN DOURO

Sir: May I say "Thank you" to "All for Education" for bringing this disgusting School Area into the public eye, but a few things were forgotten. First, up until Christmas, the children ate their lunch in the basement of the school. Some sat on the cellar steps, others stood up with not even a stool to sit on. Some lost their lunch when it was knocked from their hands on to the dirty basement floor. Yes! it sounds like a prison camp, but it's S.S. No. 17, just two miles outside of Peterborough.

Yes! Our children eat, do their lessons, go to the toilet, and if they want to wash their hands, they take a small dish-pan, and go to the pump for some water; that is, if the pump handle isn't frozen up. Is this what two members of the board meant in their "Platform Letter" when they said, "We want to maintain our 'high' standard of public school education?" They should be made to eat those words.

The Home and School Association have tried to make life a little more pleasant for the pupils. Last Spring, they purchased baseball equipment, and at the present time, they are supplying cod liver oil capsules to Grades I and II. The co-operation from the members of this organization has been wonderful.

Two years ago, my child came home saying she didn't understand her work. I told her to ask the teacher to explain it. Next day she told me that the teacher informed her that she was too busy to explain. Looking into the puzzled eyes of my seven-year-old, I was both mad and hurt, but I couldn't blame a teacher with eight grades and almost fifty pupils. I got down to work and started to teach my child in the evening, but it was all in vain. Needless to say, she failed that year.

While we are not afraid of the higher millrate, our penny-pinching board are hanging on to their purse strings, and standing between us and our children's education.

Respectfully yours,
LOVER OF CHILDREN.

IN DEFENCE OF EDUCATION IN DOURO

Sir: The school board of School Area No. 2, Douro, feel that the letter from "All for Education" under the head of "Education in Douro" in Monday's paper Jan. 14, calls for a reply.

We do not intend to carry on any long drawn out discussion on this matter and hope this will be our last reply, but the board does feel that in self-defence, the readers of your valuable paper should know the true facts concerning this present situation in Douro Township.

Some of the Veterans residing on the Warsaw Road ask the question "Can it be that Douro Township only wants their taxes and not their men in the Council".

Allow us to state that the Douro Council consists of a Reeve, Deputy Reeve and three councillors, 5 members in all. This small group of Veterans who are complaining appeared to make a deliberate bid to overthrow the Douro Council, by nominating and voting, in a body, for three of their men for council, who had absolutely no previous experience in municipal affairs.

Can you imagine the dilemma that Douro would be in with a majority of inexperienced and extravagant men managing the Township affairs. The sane thinking Ratepayers of Douro are to be commended for realizing what was going on in time to elect the old Council.

The 1952 election in Douro was caused entirely by this small group of Ratepayers and none of their slate of 3 for Council and 2 for Board of Education were elected, consequently the entire election expense and waste of time was brought about by these people seeking power.

Coming now to the question of education This small group of people, under the leadership of another newcomer to our Township from the City of Peterborough, a man of much learning, but whose common sense is not so evident, are finding all manner of fault with our schools.

These homeowners have built their homes in our Township because of the lower taxes, but they no sooner get established than they try, by every means conceivable, to force the building of a large 6 roomed school, which would raise our taxes, and theirs, higher than the taxes in the City of Peterborough are at the present time.

They tell you all the disadvantages of our schools, but they don't tell you that:—We already have two of the better schools in the township, well located, well lighted, both of brick construction with oil furnaces in each and one school has inside toilets.

They don't tell you that we built a temporary schoolroom this summer to accommodate 30 small children. This room is thoroughly insulated and furnished with splendid new modern furnishings and heating plant. All this was done on the recommendation and under the supervision of our very capable Public School Inspector.

They don't tell you that they would have us abandon these three schools and be obliged to spend upwards of Ten Thousand Dollars each year thereafter solely for transportating children to a central school.

They don't tell you that we do not have city waterworks and that we would have to find a spring or water supply that would provide the school with approximately 15,000 gallons of water a day for flush toilets. This might be an utter impossibility.

They don't tell you that the average assessment of the group advocating the six-roomed school is only about $1,000.00 per home while the farmers' assessments run from $2,500 to $8,900 each.

They don't tell you that the City Board of Education has many industries, stores and small places of business, as well as an untold number of elderly, well to do people, and young business men and women, without families, helping to pay the tax rate in the city. While in the country our costs for education come as a straight levy on our homes and farm lands, with the result that many homes, in the past, have been sold for taxes.

They didn't tell you that we have three of the best Public School Teachers that can be found and that in the past the failures in the Entrance exams in our schools have been almost nil.

They didn't tell you that the two school trustees, that were elected to the school board on Jan. 7 of this year were both War Veterans of World War 2, who have built in our area under the V.L.A. They have small children of their own and are well satisfied with our schools. A great many returned men helped to elect them to office with almost a two-thirds majority over the advocates of a six-roomed school.

They don't tell you that the electors of School Area No. 2, Douro, have spoken in no uncertain terms, at the Election on Jan. 7, 1952, and that the only thing for the agitators to do is to have patience with the School Board until they can arrange for suitable accommodation for the children in the areas where accommodation is most needed.

Respectfully yours,

No Clang! Clang! Clang!

By BON VIVANT

TORONTO—As you may have read in the news columns the largest metropolis in Ontario is in the throes of a street car strike. Just what this means to the average citizen I have no way of knowing. If I listen to what radio newscasters say the effect of the strike is devastating. If I read the papers things aren't too bad. If I may make so bold as to form an opinion on personal observation I would say there is a distinct impression nobody cares much one way or the other. For me the strike has been a disappointment.

When I awoke Friday last and learned the strike was really on, and the call had gone out to motorists to give pedestrians a lift, I was atingle with the spirit of adventure. Donning my working clothes I gave my car a careful bath, and polished the brass work until it gleamed. I then did as much for myself. After anointment with sweet smelling unguents, and a hearty breakfast, to fortify me against what might befall, I cranked up my trusty Gray Dort, closed the side curtains, and headed for Yonge street.

It was my intention to widen my acquaintance among my fellow citizens. I had in mind arriving at the corner of King and Yonge with my car overflowing with feminine pulchritude, and anticipated being the envy of less fortunate mortals such as stockbrokers and business moguls who were involved in car pools. Whether it was my car or myself I really cannot decide, but things did not work out as planned.

✧ ✧ ✧

I DROVE several blocks before I found a suitable subject for my generosity. By the time I had pulled in to the curb, managed to unfasten the side curtains, doffed my hat with a courtly air, and was ready to issue an invitation for a lift, some ill-mannered upstart in one of these new-fangled sedans had snatched my fair passenger from under my very nose. This taught me a lesson, so I permitted the curtains to fly in the breeze, giving my motor vehicle a rather raffish air, but enabling me to be a bit faster off the mark with the next subject.

I had no better luck with my next try. The young lady was waiting for a pool car. The third gladsome lass I accosted simpered engagingly, but was expecting to be picked up by a boy-friend. From my fourth encounter I barely escaped with my life. I was stalking a luscious bit of femininity, and had moved in for the kill, when a monster male was decanted from a nearby store. He seized the fragile creature by the arm, advised her to pick up her feet, and snarled at me to "get goin' bud!" I did.

The spirit of adventure was a bit blue around the edges by this time, but I was determined to heed the request of Mayor Lamport and do my bit for stranded humanity. It was obvious I had neither the vehicle nor the presence to ensare gentle womanhood, but I was going to give somebody a lift or die in the attempt. Pedestrians, of which there weren't too many in the first place, had thinned out noticeably, and I drove several blocks seeking a passenger, and on the alert to be accosted.

When I did meet a person riding his thumb to the marts of trade it was a rather robust, roughly-dressed artisan. He was complete with lunch box and a large canvas bag containing, what I am sure were burglar tools. Pilling his impedimenta in the rear, he caused my car to take a nasty list to starboard when he curled up in the corner of the front seat. Producing an evil-looking pipe he stoked up. This action of his revealed to me why I had stuck to my open sport model all these years despite the jeers of friends and enemies. His was definitely an open air pipe.

IN an effort to engage my customer in conversation I asked after his health, expecting the story of his operation would keep us in play to our destination. However, all I got was a grunt. Not to be put off so easily I rephrased my question, and politely inquired, "quelles nouvelles?" The only comment on this flight into foreign tongues was a gurgle from the pipe like water going down the plug hole. I felt my mettle was being tried and wasn't going to have this chap boasting to his pals at the next meeting of the Royal and Ancient Order of Housebreakers of how he had stopped me in mid-conversation, so gave him the once over lightly with "wie geht es Ihnen?"

As this produced no "Heil Hitler" I felt he might rise to the bait of some less common tongue. As a test of my theory I slipped him "knidas kasi kaib?" I thought for a moment his eyes lighted up, but I was wrong. Not wanting the rumour to get about that Vivant was a spent force I countered with the fast one-two and sprung "kiel vi statas?" Still no reaction, and the same went for "como esta ustes?"

Having tested my uncommunicative passenger in six languages, although the Esperanto was perhaps a trifle unfair, I gave vent to my temper and frustration with a hearty, "oh the hell with it!" At last I struck sparks. His face was wreathed in smiles, and he waved his arms like a windmill. I finally figured this out to mean we had reached the end of the line, and pulled up to discharge cargo.

My passenger got down, restoring the car to even keel, and collected his baggage from the tonneau. I was about to pull away when he reached out a ceremonious hand. As I shook hands with him he bowed with grace and aplomb, and with an accent which defied even my linguistic ability murmured in dulcet tones, "the hell with it."

I can only conclude from all this Toronto never needed street cars anyway, and we had better perfect some system for teaching our new citizens to distinguish the polite phrase of solicitude from the more violent expressions of disgust.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

My son, attend to my words; incline thine ear unto my sayings. Let them not depart from thine eyes; keep them in the midst of thine heart. For they are life unto those that find them, and health to all their flesh. Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life . . . . Let thine eyes look right on, and let thine eyelids look straight before thee.

Ponder the path of thy feet, and let all thy ways be established. Turn not to the right hand nor to the left: remove thy foot from evil. (Prov. 4: 20-23, 25-27.)

Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it. (Matt. 7: 13, 14.)

TRIFLING

It was very wet in the north of Scotland, and a party staying at a small inn they were afraid that their holiday would be spoilt. Day after day the rain fell heavily, and to add to their annoyance the old-fashioned barometer hanging in the hall read "Fair" all the time.

One of the holiday-makers called the attention of the innkeeper to the fact. "Don't you think," he asked, "that there's something the matter with your glass?"

"No, no," replied the Scotsman, "she's a good and powerful glass. But she's no moved by trifles."

Britain Backs US In Far East If Win Middle East Support

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, in reshaping British policy in critical areas of the world, appears to be fully prepared to follow United States leadership in the Far East while seeking American support for British leadership in the Middle East.

Two new policy developments stood out in the 77-year-old statesman's address to Congress Thursday and both bore on this interpretation of his aims.

With respect to the Far East, Churchill endorsed US protection of the Chinese Nationalist island of Formosa in spite of the fact that the previous Labor government in Britain recognized the Communist regime in China and Churchill has continued to do so.

His endorsement was in line with word from his talks with Mr. Truman last week to the effect that Churchill does not intend to permit his government's technical relationship with the Chinese Red administration to interfere with his support of the overall American line of action in the Far East.

While the split between London and Washington over Chinese recognition remains on the books, it has thus been reduced considerably in importance.

Taken By Surprise

For the Middle East, Churchill painted a gloomy picture of Britain's declining power and influence in an area where it once was dominant and made it clear that he would like to be supported by the United States and other countries with Middle Eastern interests.

His proposition apparently took American officials by surprise.

What the response will be remains to be determined.

Generally, Churchill's speech was well-received in diplomatic quarters here.

Particular gratification was expressed by some authorities at the extent to which he spoke enthusiastically of the American policy of restoring Japan to an equal place in the family of nations.

Expect 8 Rinks For Bonspiel

KINGSTON, Jan. 18 —(CP)—Eight rinks of schoolboy curlers will participate in a one-day bonspiel in Kingston Saturday for the Ontario schoolboys curlings championship and the right to represent Ontario in the Dominion Curling Association students spiel in Moncton, NB, Feb. 18, 19 and 20.

Mike Cassels of Hamilton, who skipped his rink to the Ontario championship last year and then competed in the DCA final, will defend his title with his winning rink intact.

Bob Sutherland of Guelph, chairman of the OCA schoolboy committee, says the Cassels rink should be strong favorites to repeat.

Formerly the schoolboys bonspiel was a three-day affair, sponsored jointly by the Guelph and Galt curling clubs. This year, however, eight zones were formed throughout the province. Each zone held its own elimination and the eight winners will fight it out in Kingston.

Sutherland said rinks from Galt, Kincardine, Oshawa and Lindsay will give the Cassels quartet its toughest competition.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 18 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers announced the signing of three more players today to 1952 contracts—pitchers Carl Erskine and Jim Romano, and catcher Steve Lembo. This brings to 10 the number of signed Dodgers. No terms were announced.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

General manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins wants managing director Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens barred from National Hockey League board of governors' meetings because "he has been printing confidential information."

Ross charged Wednesday in Boston that Selke has been publishing in the Canadiens' home game program "information which is private and confidential and which only the president of the league can release."

Selke, added Ross, is not a governor, nor even an alternate governor." Ross did not disclose how Selke had been getting into the meetings nor did he detail what "confidential" information had been revealed in the program, which is edited by Frank Selke, Jr.

"I aim to see that the little broadcaster will be properly muzzled when I have laid my complaint before the board of governors," Ross said.

Two senior members of the Hamilton Tiger-Cat Football Club executive have been fired.

The franchise committee Thursday announced that W. D. (Denny) Whitaker and J. G. (Jack) Langs have been dropped from the Big Four club executive. Rumors of disagreement between the two and coach and general manager Carl Voyles have been circulating for weeks.

Both Whitaker, 1951 vice-president and Langs, said Wednesday they were most surprised at the sudden move that apparently came before either of them were given a chance to resign.

Tottenham Hotspurs, champions of the first division of the English Football League, have accepted an invitation to tour Canada, it was learned Thursday in Toronto. The team will start their trip in May. Manchester United soccer team also will play in Canada. It is being brought to North America by the American Soccer League.

T. P. (Tommy) Gorman, Ottawa sports promoter, returned to Ottawa from New York Thursday night with word that a new effort is being made to maintain an International League baseball team in Ottawa for the coming diamond season. Gorman said president Frank Shaughnessy of the International League has suggested that the Philadelphia Athletics and New York Giants pool their available players to keep triple-A ball in Ottawa.

Lew Hayman Thursday night denied report he had sold his shares in Montreal's Big Four entry Alouettes to Roy Robertson, president of the club. Hayman said in Montreal he still holds his stock, and between Robertson and himself they control 610 of the 670 shares in the organization. The former Als coach—now general manager and managing director—holds 300 shares.

Edmonton Mercurys Canada's entry in the hockey championships at the international Olympics in Oslo next month, defeated Preussen Krefeld 10-5 Thursday night in Cologne, Germany, for their second decisive victory over Germany's champion team. The win was the third in as many games for the Canadians on their German exhibition tour. Bob Watt paced the Mercurys with three goals and Billy Dawe had two. Sully Sullivan, George Abel, Lou Secco, Engelbert Miller and Bruce Dickson scored a goal each.

Henry Made Finals

MILLBROOK, Jan. 18—(ENS)—Grant Henry of Millbrook, a members of the Strathgowan Badminton Club of Toronto, reached the finals in both mixed and men's doubles playing against leading players of the United States and Canada at the Strathgowan 8th annual invitation badminton tournament held in Toronto last week.

In the mixed doubles semi-finals Grant Henry and his partner, Ethel Marshall of Buffalo, winner of the ladies' singles, defeated Marj. Shedd of the Carleton club and Bob Hardison of Niagara Falls in three straight sets.

In the men's doubles semi-finals Henry and Martin Mendez of San Diego, who won the men's singles, defeated Dick Birch and Gord Simpson.

In the finals of the mixed doubles Ethel Marshall and Henry won the first set, but lost the next two to Barbara Ince and Dick Birch of the Carleton Club.

In the finals of the men's doubles, Henry and Mendez won the first set but lost the next two to Don Smythe and Bud Porter.

GarsonQuestions Rouse Vishinsky Ire

PARIS, Jan. 18. (CP)—Russia's Andrei Vishinsky struck hard at Canadian Justice Minister Stuart Garson Thursday over Garson's pointed questions on the Soviet views on atomic controls.

The Soviet foreign minister told the UN Political Committee — which sent his proposals to the disarmament commission for study — that some of Garson's questions were pointless and senseless.

Garson yesterday urged clarification of the Soviet views immediately by Vishinsky in order to give impetus to disarmament commission meetings.

At one point, in referring to Garson's questions, Vishinsky said he did not intend to satisfy the curiosity of the leader of the Canadian delegation. Vishinsky said he was not in school and Garson was not a teacher.

Western delegates saw Vishinsky's rejection of Garson's questions as a weakening in what was considered Russia's slick propaganda move in making apparent concessions to the West on the problem of atomic control.

Garson had asked Vishinsky to clarify previous statements on whether Russia is ready to have international controls set up before there is a ban on atomic weapons, and whether inspectors would be allowed to come and go tions, Vishinsky did speak for a few minutes about Soviet views on the atomic problem. But he appeared to add nothing to what he or other Soviet delegates have said before on the problem.

While deriding Garson's questions as they wished.

Lumping together Garson and the Haitian delegate, who had also aroused his ire, Vishinsky said that they were dealing with questions of which they understand as much as a pig understands of anti-religious controversies.

For two hours before the vote, Vishinsky ranged over a wide field of East-West problems, including Korea, where he said in effect that there is no hope of a truce under present United States demands in the ceasefire talks.

Slows Up Production

BERLIN, Jan. 18 (Reuters)—Communist East Germany lost an estimated total of over 15,000,000 production hours last year through workers' meetings held during working hours, the East Berlin Tribune newspaper said today. The newspaper, mouthpiece of the Communist-run free German trade union movement, suggested that workers meetings be held after working hours to save "precious production hours for the fulfilment of the economic five-year plan."

Pirates Acquire Interest

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18 (AP).—A minority interest in the stock of the Hollywood Stars of the Pacific Coast League has been acquired by the Pittsburgh Pirates. Victor Ford Collins, president of the Stars, said Thursday that George F. Young has sold his stock in the club to Robert H. Cobb, who in turn sold it to Pittsburgh. Collins said he has agreed to sell his stock, also, to the Pirates, but that the major league club would not have control.

Doesn't Approve Cut

TOKYO, Jan. 18 (AP)—Welfare Minister Ryugo Hashimoto resigned today because Japan's proposed budget slashes allowances for war widows and war orphans. Hashimoto said "if Japan now is committed to virtual rearmament by the United States security pact, reasonable compensation should be given to those who suffered from the Second World War."

Can't Feel Pain

LONDON, Jan. 18 (Reuters)—A doctor writing in the British Medical Journal reported today the case of a 10-year-old girl who seems incapable of feeling pain. Dr. Ernest Westlake wrote that the girl has a broken thigh and badly damaged bones in her ankles and feet apparently without suffering any physical distress. He did not name the girl.

Interim Agreement

TOKYO, Jan. 18 (AP)—Japan and Indonesia today signed an interim reparations agreement and simultaneously announced they had agreed to "economic co-operation." It was the first step taken by Japan toward paying for the damage wrought when the imperial army smashed into southeast Asia in 1941.

One-Sided Contests Seen In Bush Loop

Wednesday was a disastrous evening for the Millbrook and Fourth Line entries in the Cavan Bush League when both were snowed under by one-sided scores. The former took a 11-2 pasting from Scott's Corners while Fourth Line absorbed a 12-4 rout at the hands of Mt. Pleasant. The Mt. Pleasant line of Jamieson, Dracup and Armstrong, the hottest combination in the league at present, went a mile-a-minute all evening to amass eight goals. Fourth Line took a two-goal margin in the first period on goals by McDowell and Earl Hutchison, who was assisted by Ed Hutchison in a father and son combination. Mt. Pleasant started their goal-garnering spree at 20 seconds of the second period and from there on it was just a matter of how many. Hubbard kicked plenty of rubber that had the red light label on it aside to keep the score out of boxcar figure. Tempers showed signs of flaring at times with at least one hint of a fistic receipt for a high stick combing.

In the second game play was fairly even for the first 30 minutes but Scott's Corners then ripped in nine goals against a badly disorganized Millbrook team. George Smith picked up both his teams goals while Alberico fattened his point score with four counters. Fair broke into the goal scoring department with a neatly executed play. Hall of Mt. Pleasant and Hall of Millbrook (apparently not relatives) staged a wrestling match but were finally pried apart and sent to the sinners' bench for 10 minutes. Crichton and Edmonds also sat out minor penalties.

On Monday Scott's Corners take on Ballieboro and Bethany and Mt. Pleasant tangle.

King Edward Wins

King Edward pulled out a 4-3 Public School League hockey win over Queen Mary in a fine fray. Both sides hustled in keen competition, Morgan looking especially good for the losers, as Floyd, Stevens and Waldie stood out for the victors. G. Dafoe tore through early to tally for King Edward, and they added two more later. Each side counted in the second and Morgan served up a swell rink-length rush to tally in the third. Reynolds got the other goal for Queen Mary. Floyd counted three for the victors and Stevens one, as assist going to Orr. Teams:

K.E.: Waldie, Hill, Mills, Orr, Floyd, Curtis, Phillips, Stevens, Beggs, Farley, Meredith.

Q.M.: Milne, J. Dafoe, G. Dafoe, Reynolds, Atkinson, Morgan, Lincoln, Dobbin, Perritt, Stinson.

Unknown Player Steals Marlene's Show

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 18 (AP). — Two Ontario amateur women golfers, one a darkhorse and the other a champion, took their first crack at the big-name annual Tampa open tournament Thursday and shot rounds good enough to keep them in the running.

Marjorie Row, unheralded amateur from Riverside, Ont., was five strokes off the pace set by Louise Suggs, the Georgia mite. Miss Row fired a three over par 77 in the first round of the 72-hole tournament which ends on Sunday.

Marlene Stewart, 17-year-old Canadian champion from Fonthill, Ont., was nine strokes behind with an 81. She couldn't get going over the heavily-trapped 6,093-yard Palma Ceia Club course. Two bad holes, one on the first nine and the other on the back nine, cost her dearly.

Miss Row stood 10th in the record field of 183. Mrs. Stewart was tied for 17th place.

One-stroke Lead

Miss Suggs, a professional from Carollton, Ga., shot a neat 36-36—72 on the par 74 course to take a one-stroke lead over two other pros, Betsy Rawls, Austin, Tex., and Marlene Bauer, Sarasota, Fla.

It was her sixth try at the Tampa tourney. She finished in the runner-up spot the last five years.

Defending champion, Babe Zaharias, veteran of 20 years on the fairways and who calls Tampa home, matched par with a 36-38—74. She was tied with Betty Jameson, a former winner from San Antonio, Tex.

Peggy Kirk, another pro from Ponte Vedra, Fla., had a 75, three strokes behind Miss Suggs. Three others were tied with 76s.

Miss Stewart, a high school senior who has been playing tournament golf three years, was tied with five others in the 81 bracket. She probably is the youngest player in the tournament and came here with an amazing record. Last summer she surprised the golfing world by winning the Ontario and the Canadian open and close women's titles.

In Thursday's medal play she had a 40 on her first nine. A six on the 375-yard seventh hole hurt her. On the back nine she also took a six on the short par-four 10th. But late in the round Miss Stewart came up with three fours in a row to chalk up a 41.

OLYMPIC JUDGE —Don Gilchrist, 30, of Toronto, has been named a judge of figure skating at next month's winter Olympics in Oslo, Norway. Employed by the External Affairs Department in Washington, Gilchrist is well known in Canadian figure-skating circles. With Marlene Smith, of Niagara Falls, Ont., he was Canadian pairs champion in 1949 and 1950. In 1948 Miss Smith and Gilchrist placed second in the North American pairs figure-skating contest.

Skaters Compete For Titles At Oshawa Meet

By ROD CURRIE.

OSHAWA, Jan. 18 (CP)—The first two of seven titles will be decided here today as the Canadian skating championships enter their second day.

First on the day's crowded schedule is the junior men's compulsory figures. Eight high-spirited youths will bid for the junior crown. Peter Dunfield, Toronto, who won the event last year at Vancouver, has entered the senior men's division and will not defend his title. Allan Anderson, Oshawa, will make his second attempt this year.

The ladies' junior free style competition promises to be a tight race. Ann Johnstone, 15-year-old brunette from Toronto, gained a slight edge on the basis of point scoring in Thursday's compulsory school figures. At the completion of the five figures she had a score of 577.8, just .8 more than Marie Henderson of Winnipeg.

Even a slight superiority in today's free style on the part of Miss Henderson could give her the title, held last year by Elizabeth Gratton 16, another Toronto miss.

Thursday night's show was taken up with the colorful dance eliminations, which will see the four finalist teams in three divisions skate off for the championships Saturday night.

The same four couples won spots in the finals of the silver dance, waltz and ten-step events. They are Mary Dianne Trimble and David Ross of Winnipeg; Joyce Conacher and Bill de Nance of Toronto; Frances Dafoe and Norris Bowden, also of Toronto, and Pierette Paquin, Ottawa, and Malcolm Wickson, Vancouver.

Last year Miss Paquin teamed with Donald Tobin of Ottawa to take the silver dance title. Besides trying for the other titles, Miss Trimble and Ross will defend their ten-step crown and Miss Dafoe and Bowden their waltz title.

All senior competitions will be held Saturday, final session of the 42nd annual competitions.

The Canadian Figure Skating Association officials will meet late Saturday to decide if any of the newly-crowned champions will go to the Olympic games at Oslo, Norway, next month. Only Canadian yet named is Suzanne Morrow, Toronto, now practicing in Germany.

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (CP).—Ross McKelvey, an outstanding backfielder with Queen's University Seniors for the last four football seasons, was signed Thursday to a 1952 contract with Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union.

McKelvey, a Queen's top scorer in the 1951 intercollegiate grid schedule, was an Ontario Rugby Football Union all-star four years running with Toronto Indians and Balmy Beach before entering Queen's in 1947.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Before plunging into hockey topics, a bit about basketball. A number of games here this weekend. Tonight at 8.10 in the YW, Normals play Nurses, followed by Lindsay vs CGE in girls' games. Also two lassies' jousts this even in the Collegiate gym: Port Hope juniors and seniors tangling with PCVS teams, starting at 7.30 of the clock. At the YM tomorrow evening at eight, Belleville men mix with Marines in Eastern Ontario loop play, and a win for Marines would tie 'em for top spot with the Quinte cagers. Same night at Collegiate sees three Orillia boys' hoop outfits meeting the junior "B," senior "B" and senior "A" PCI-ers. LOBA girls have an open drill Tuesday at eight p.m. at the Collegiate.

* * * * * *

Oh, yes, we note an item where the King and His Court have disbanded. This famous four-man touring softball squad toured the States and Canada the last two summers, but they're finished now. The King (Eddie Feigner) has organized a nine-man team, according to word from Florida, under the American Industrial Corp. banner. Others of the Court are presently attending college in the state of Washington. This four-man outfit played here twice in the past two years and drew a record paid crowd of 4,500 fans, something no other team has done in Peterborough. They really put on a good show, too.

* * * * * *

Those K's And Eagles

Hockey of the senior "B" variety is the attraction tonight in Civic Arena, when Kingston clashes with the Eagles. Stung by that one-sided beating in the Limestone City on Wednesday, the K's (who are adding several former minor pro puckists) will be seeking revenge in this one. Kingston won their last two starts here, edging the Eagles 4-3 and taking the Petes 4-2, so they don't mind this ice at all, at all. Eagles are starting to roll lately and threatening shortly to crawl right up with the leading Belleville and Petes' squads as the schedule grinds along. They've got a flock of fine hockeyists when at full strength and fear no club in the circuit.

* * * * * *

In Kingston, Eagles really hustled in their old fighting form to earn the victory. Coach Ned Vitarelli was right proud of them in this one. He said yesterday: "Kingston had an off night, and their goal-tending was shaky in that game—as well as their playing getting too chippy and forgetting to play hockey—but our boys were certainly hot. Their best showing of the season, by far. We'll give them all a fight for the title yet." We don't doubt that a bit. The men of McGillis have been rebuilding gradually and look pretty well set now. Defence tonight will likely have Berwick and Monty teamed, and Doug Mortimer and Munro. The Crowley line and the Fred Mortimer trio are likely to remain intact, with an Oshawa line of Samalenko, Wilson and Brabin another potent threesome. It's likely to be a fast, rugged tilt and should draw a big Friday night crowd.

* * * * * *

Rhythm On The Defence

Alex Sinclair sent in a clipping from a Moose Jaw paper where a school for hockey coaches and referees was conducted recently. One instructor said that skating ability is highly essential to defencemen, as well as forwards. Said: "The strongest position on a hockey team should be defence but today we find defencemen are scarce because too many players will not practice enough to become agile on their feet. If a defenceman has been properly grounded in the fundamentals, he will be a man of rhythm—he will watch the rhythm of the attack coming toward him and meet it accordingly. A forward's weakness is a defenceman's strength. Also the work of the defenceman and the goalie should be co-ordinated."

* * * * * *

Common sense, and fans will notice the rhythm and skating ability of some OHA defencemen, and the lack of it in others in games up this way. A timely body check often helps, but blocking is usually a safer bet in the speedy, forward-passing type of hockey played today. The refs at that school were advised to hand out penalties promptly and with dignity—then skate away from the protesting player. This often saves useless arguments which may result in a misconduct penalty being aded to the offender for vocal abuse. A ref's job is simply to keep order in a game and make the players play hockey.

Two Shutouts Feature PMHA Frays

Two shutouts marked play in the six PMHA games at Civic Arena last night, with the other games fairly close. Wolves won a 2-1 bantam tilt from St. Peter's with Lonsberry scoring twice, Revoy and Bath getting an assist each. Coombes counted for SPS from Strano. The other bantam battle saw Lions edge Trojans 3-2 on goals by Murphy, Trudeau and O'Connell, as Stewart and Pollard hit the mark for the losers. Dobbin got one assist.

In midget action, the powerful Martin-Hewitt crew blanked Snowbirds 7-0. Heffernan hit the twine twice, with singles going to Chambers, Floyd, Kane, Gardner and Blodgett. The midget Trojans won 6-4 from St. Peter's with Whitnell scoring two and Sutherland, Foote, Rusaw and Brown one each. Ferren got a pair for SPS, and McCarthy and Beaudrou one apiece.

Marines juveniles rolled to a 6-0 triumph over Oddfellows in a rough game, marked with six penalties apiece. Kearns counted two and Spencer, McGrath, Corbett and Dodds got the others. The juvenile Lakefield Lions downed Trojans 6-2. Hunter and Pratt each tallied twice for the winners, Pue and Hockaday notching the others. The juvenile Lakefield Lions downed Trojans 6-2. Sub-Par Golf Buries Racial Issues

By BOB MYERS.

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 18 (AP). — The racial issue took a back seat, at least temporarily, today and most of the leading golfers of the United States renewed their challenge to sub-par golf and a crack at the money in the 72-hole, $10,000 San Diego open.

Leading the field, with a seven-under-par, competitive course record-breaking 65, was 32-year-old Ted Kroll of New Hartford, NY.

Kroll's score, achieved in the last few holes in a driving rain, broke a 25-year-old mark for the par 72 San Diego Country Club set by the present Professional Golfers' Association president and storm centre of the racial question, Horton Smith.

Smith himself shot an incredible 73 Thursday—remarkable in that for days he has been embroiled in the Negro vs. PGA controversy.

His partners were Joe Louis, who had essayed the role of spearhead in the controversy, and Leland Gibson, a member of the PGA tournament committee.

Louis, a two-handicap amateur and the first Negro to compete in an event so sponsored by the PGA turned in a 38-38—76 and Gibson 37-36—73.

Not In Running

Their scores were good, considering, but they hardly compared to the 23 others which were under par.

Kroll, who shot a 290 in the recent Los Angeles open to miss by one stroke, winding up in a tie for first with Tommy Bolt, Jack Burke Jr., and Dutch Harrison, had a good but hardly a safe lead over a none-too-difficult 6,531-yard test of golf.

Three strokes back were Bolt, Dr. Cary Middlecoff and Felice Torza.

Four strokes back, at 69, were six men, including the dangerous Lloyd Mangrum.

Kroll's round was spectacular. Seemingly he couldn't miss on the greens. He rammed home putts from one foot to 25.

Smith told Louis and his secretary, Leonard Reed, that he would attempt a plan that would shortcut the PGA's rigid constitution and permit players now ineligible to compete in PGA-sanctioned events. Another Negro and four white professionals were denied permission to play yesterday because they did not meet PGA eligibility requirements at this time.

Hawks Get Verdict

Black Hawks took a 4-1 peewee puck win over Bruins in a fast tilt at Civic Arena. In a clean game, Haig stood out for the winners with two goals and two assists on nifty stickwork and rushes. Morton and Wood also tallied, and Hendry went well. Anthony went best both ways for the losers and got their lone marker. Teams:

Hawks: Smillie, Patterson, Hendry, Haig, Brown, Morton, Copping, Moffat, Nichols, Olmstead, Wood, Casey, Burns, Kimball, Timlin.

Bruins: Delpellaro, Anthony, Feeley, Reid, Woods, Byrne, Kelly, Driscoll, Bradley.

Referee—R. Batley.

Athletic Commissioner Gives Promise Clean Up Boxing

By TED MEIER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP). — Robert Christenberry intends to drive the "criminal scum" out of boxing or he will resign as chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

"I promise you," he told boxing writers at their annual banquet Thursday night, "if I can't drive the criminal scum out of boxing I will not only resign, but I will do my utmost to tear away the protection of legality from boxing in this State."

"I had a nice speech prepared, but I'm not going to give it because, as you all know, something happened last Friday night."

He referred to the assault by Tommy Ryan on referee Ray Miller and International Boxing Corporation matchmaker Al Weill bout in Madison Square Garden. Rocky Castellani middleweight Ryan is manager of Castellani who was stopped by Durando in the 7th round.

Christenberry will preside at a commission hearing today into the assault. Ryan was suspended Friday by Christenberry who indicated at a preliminary hearing Saturday that Ryan's licence would be revoked.

Rules Okay

"There's nothing wrong with boxing that can't be cured if the rules of the commission are followed," Christenberry said.

His talk highlighted the dinner at which heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott; Col. Eddie Eagan, Christenberry's predecessor as commission chairman; and welterweight Gil Turner received awards.

Walcott received the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque for having done the most for boxing during 1951.

In receiving the award, made in memory of The Associated Press boxing writer killed as a war correspondent during the Spanish Civil War, Walcott declared, "I can say definitely I will defend my title in June, I am unable to say who my opponent will be. This is up to my manager, Felix Bocchicchio. But whether it is Ezzard Charles, Rocky Graziano or Kid Matthews I will do my best."

Eagan was given the James J. Walker Memorial Trophy for long and meritorious service to boxing.

Turner, of Philadelphia, received the "Rookie of the year" trophy. He has won all 27 of his bouts, 22 by knockouts.

Havelock Boys Win

HAVELOCK, Jan. 18—(ENS)—The Havelock juvenile hockey team boosted their standing at the head of the series by trimming Stirling juveniles by a score of 10 to 3 at Havelock Wednesday night.

The Havelock scorers were: James and Bill Laing, two goals each, with singles to Reg Pollock, Scott, Jim Ruttan. Fredericks, McMillan and Chase.

Bruce Anderson was in goal for Havelock. H. Attman was referee and H. Hunter linesman. J. Davidson is coach of the Havelock team and D. D. Kirk the manager.

This victory gives Havelock three wins and no losses.

Brazil To Team With Flanagan

Stemming out of repeated interference by Layton's trainer Lou Pitoscia, a tag team match been lined up for next Tuesday's feature bout at the Brock. Lord Layton and Pitoscia will be opposed by Bobo Brazil and Pat Flanagan.

Brazil and Layton have had two sizzling battles and on both occasions Layton's trainer has horned in on the contest. Two weeks ago Flanagan came to Brazil's assistance.

Bobo asked for this bout and for Flanagan as his partner. He figures with Pat as a running-mate they will give Layton and Pitoscia a real going-over. On the other hand, Layton and his partner just sneered at this suggestion saying Brazil and Flanagan will be pushovers for them.

Team matches produce terrific action and with the feeling between these four at fever pitch, a battle royal should result with plenty of fireworks.

Zorra, the French Tarzan, returns to meet Warren Bockwinkle in the semi-final, while Bill Stack and Stan Mayslack are in the opener.

Sawchuk Gets 8th Shutout As Wings Blank Bruins; Leafs, Habs Score 2-2 Tie

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The way things are going this season, Goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk should be the most decorated modern-day player in professional hockey when the National League schedule winds up in March. Terry scored his eighth shutout of the season Thursday night as the league-leading winds plastered Boston Bruins 5-0 at Detroit while the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs were held to a 2-2 draw at Montreal. The Detroit victory gave the Wings an 11-point lead over the Leafs who hold a three-point edge over Montreal.

New York Rangers broke a fourth-place tie with Boston as they battled the last-place Black Hawks to a 6-6 tie at Chicago. The Hawks' Bill Mosienko, with the club since 1941, scored the 200th goal of his NHL career late in the third period.

It was the second high-scoring game between the clubs in two nights. On Wednesday, Chicago downed the Blue Shirts 6-4 at New York.

Gets Big Lead

The eight goose eggs for the pink-cheeked 21-year-old Sawchuk gave him a big lead in the hunt for the Vezina Trophy as the best net-minder in the six-team circuit. Right now, he's almost a lead-pipe cinch to take over from Toronto's Al Rollins, winner in 1950-51, who has only three shutouts this campaign.

The record books don't show it, but the Winnipeg-born Sawchuk probably is the only player to take the rookie award in three leagues. He won it in 1947-48 while playing with Omaha of the now defunct United States Hockey League, repeated with Indianapolis of the American League the following year and last season scored the third with the Wings.

The 5-0 shutout gave the Wings a goals-for-and-against record of 113 and 74, streets ahead of the second-place Leafs who have a 98-85 posting. Unless Sawchuk muffs some easy ones or is sidelined with injuries, he can start tucking away the $1,000 given by the NHL to the Vezina Trophy winner.

Abel Paces Wings

Captain Sid Abel paced the Wings' scorers with two, his 10th and 11th of the season. Marty Pavelich, Red Kelly and Marcel Pronovost were the other Detroit marksmen.

A crowd of 14,452 at the Montreal Forum watched the Leafs twice come from behind to gain the tie. Bert Olmstead sent Canadiens into a 1-0 first-period lead. Captain Ted Kennedy of the Leafs tied it in the second and Billy Reay made it 2-1 for the third-place Canadiens before the session ended.

Montreal appeared on its way to a victory until the veteran Max Bentley took Danny Lewicki's pass in the Canadien zone and went in all alone to beat goalie Gerry McNeil.

Toss Spectator Out Of Rink

PORT HOPE, Jan. 18. — The Port Hope Redmen moved into second place in the OHA intermediate A Lakeshore League standing Wednesday night, when they edged Bowmanville Barons, 8-6, before 1,200 fans.

A punch on the side of the face to Port Hope rearguard Jimmy Hoy by a rail seat spectator, caused the game's only fight, when Hoy jumped a Bowmanville player, whom he believed the culprit. However, the entire action was noted by referee Pete Nie of Peterborough and the spectator was evicted from the rink.

Sparking the Port Hope attack was Doug Free with two goals and an assist and Darcy Campbell with a single goal and three assists. Other Port Hope scorers were Harvie Gordon, Basil Robinson, Len Ashby, Ken Medhurst and Bill Douglas.

Diminutive Don Gilhooley was the big threat on the Bowmanville club. He scored two goals and worked well with linemate Dave Bird, who scored one and gained two assists. Flintoff, Dean West and Jerry Masters were the other marksmen for the losers.

The turning point in the game came early in the second period, when, with the score tied at 3-all, Bill Gearing, stellar goaltender for the Barons, received a cut over the eye and had to sit out the rest of the game. His place was taken by George Heath.

Canadian Athletes Arrive In Norway

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 18 (CP)—The Canadian Olympic skiing and skating teams, comprising a group of 13 men and five women, arrived by air Thursday to start training for the winter games Feb. 14-25.

Because training conditions near Oslo are far from ideal, 11 Alpine skiers including Canada's Olympic hope, fair-haired Mrs. Rhoda Wurtele Eaves of Montreal, will probably have to go farther north to get into shape for the games.

Last Night's Stars

By The Canadian Press.

Terry Sawchuk, Detroit, who racked up his eighth shutout as the Red Wings blanked Boston Bruins 5-0.

Bill Mosienko, Chicago, who scored twice, including his 200th National Hockey League goal, as the Hawks and New York Rangers tied 6-6.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

Hershey Clips Cleveland 7-1 In AHL Fixture

By The Canadian Press.

Hershey Bears maintained the winning pace which has them atop the eastern division of the American Hockey League by routing Cleveland Barons 7-1 on Thursday night.

In the other game Indianapolis Capitals crushed Providence Reds 10-5. The Caps are still in the eastern division cellar.

At Hershey, Adam Brown, just down from the Boston Bruins, put on a one-man show, scoring four goals and registering an assist to set the pace for the Bears.

Ray Gariepy, Arnie Kullman and Lorne Ferguson scored the winners' other goals. Phil Samis accounted for the only Cleveland score, a freak shot which bounced out of the Bear cage but was allowed by referee Des Smith.

Prison Cage Player Escapes After Game

WAITSBURG, Wash., Jan. 18—(AP).—The fast break of the Prison Orphans basketball team got out of control again Thursday night. It broke a man into the clear—too clear.

Merenus George Norgard, a substitute for the Washington State prison team, which was playing Waitsburg in a Walla Walla City League game, disappeared before the team started home from a 71-65 loss.

Sheriff's officers have spread a zone defence over Walla Walla county featuring running guards. But late Thursday night they had not located the escapee.

The team lost a player the same way last season, but he later returned voluntarily.

Bancroft Triumphs Over Tweed

BANCROFT, Jan. 18 (ENS) — Bancroft Pontiacs came from behind to defeat Tweed by a score of 8 to 5 in a Hastings-Addington Hockey League game in Bancroft on Wednesday night.

For the first two periods it looked like a sure win for Tweed as they led by a score of 5 to 3 at the end of the second and their outfit was clicking smoothly. In their net Cournyea was spearing the puck with the ease of a first sacker taking smooth pegs from the infield and Young was in hot water constantly as the frankfurters in the lunch-room cooker.

However the strategy of coach Don Tanner and manager Bernie Shapiro paid off for the local team. The line of Green, Stuckey and Hogarth suddenly sprang to life and completely changed the game. Their inspired dashes provided an inspiration for the rest and during the third period Bancroft scored five times.

Goals for the Pontiacs were by Delyea 2, E. Brough 3, N. Brough, Stuckey and Green; while Robson, Sherry, Cole, McLaughlin and Meraw each scored for Tweed. Minor penalties went to McAlpine, Hattin, Mitchell, Meraw and Sherry.

Lineups:

Tweed — Goal, Cournyea; defence, Mitchell and Rupert; centre, Sherry; wings, Cole and Murphy; alts., Mumby, Meraw, Rivers, McLaughlin, Barker and Robson.

Bancroft Pontiacs—Goal, Young; defence, McAlpine and Stringer; centre, E. Brough; wings N. Brough and Delyea; alts., Dugald, Hattin, Bruce, D. Maxwell; G. Maxwell, Stuckey, Green, Hogarth and Fox.

Referees—Gray of Lindsay and Goyer of Belleville.

Timers—Moffatt of Tweed and Murray of Bancroft.

Barbara Ann Wins New Honors In Show

By NORMAN MICHIE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(CP) — Canada's little ice queen has added new sequins to her skating togs with the opening performance of her Hollywood ice revue at Madison Square Garden.

Barbara Ann Scott, at 23 already the holder of most of the laurels the skating world can offer, launched a solid hit Thursday night in her first professional big-show appearance here on a full-sized rink.

Eight thousand spectators gave the Ottawa miss all the applause she could ask for.

And the critics unanimously endorsed the show and its star.

The production marked Barbara Ann's debut in a field formerly monopolized by Sonja Henie. The former Olympic champion was brought under contract by Arthur M. Wirz last August after Miss Henie did not confirm the contract that had spotlighted her for 15 years.

Fair Share of Applause

Barbara Ann's supporting stars drew at least a fair share of the plaudits.

Michael Kirby of Toronto, a former Dominion champion, matched her precision and offset her piquant grace in their duos.

Barbara Ann's timing, style and lyrical technique were flawless as usual.

"But what really savors," says The New York Herald Tribune, "is the dance flow which she brings to a sporting art."

The Daily Mirror's John Chapman, who rates the show an "extravaganza" calls Miss Scott "dainty, pretty as a picture and a wonderful technician."

"Her grace and skill completely won the hearts of the first-nighters," he says.

The revue, produced at a cost of $500,000, runs through Jan. 24 and from Jan. 28 through Feb. 6. The New York Times' Lincoln Werder predicts a solid run and suggests that its charm and spontaneity may lead Wirtz "to call it hereafter the Happy Hollywood Revue."

The Times hails the show as a "different" ice spectacle.

Both Sides Suffer

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 18. (AP)—One of the Air Force's mighty B-36 bombers and a squadron of seagulls collided here Saturday, it was disclosed today. Both sides suffered. Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp. estimated damage to the leading edge of the bomber's wing at $500. An estimated 100 dead seagulls were found on Lindberg Field, where the collision occurred as the plane came in for a landing.

MR. AND MRS. PATRICK J. SLATTERY

Otonabee Couple Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

Monday will be a great occasion for Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Slattery at Jackson's Corners down in Otonabee township. It is their 50th wedding anniversary.

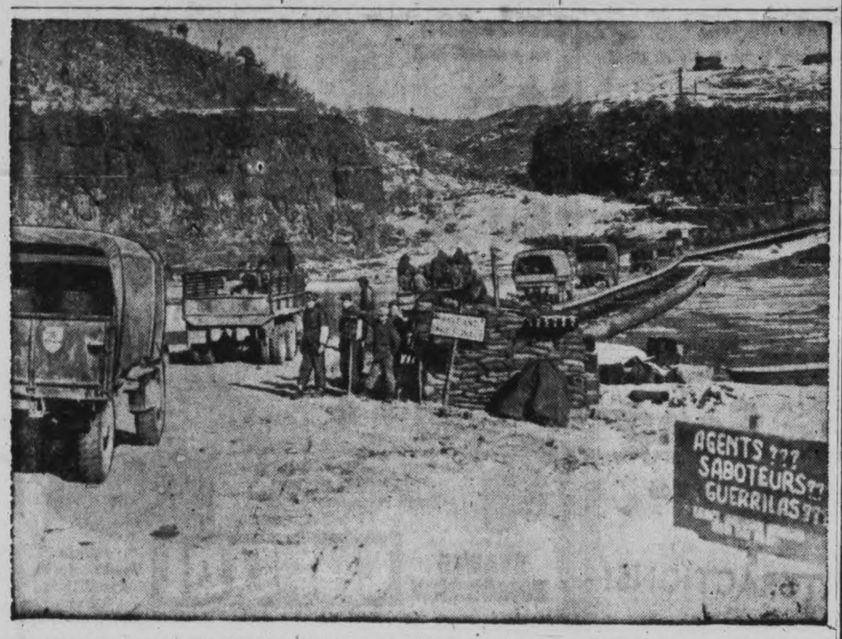
They hope the weather they experienced on their wedding day does not repeat itself on their anniversary. On that important day they came up from Otonabee in a wheel hack and were married at St. Peter's Cathedral by the late Archbishop M. J. O'-Brien. That afternoon when they went back home for the reception it started to snow and snowed so hard, old timers recall, that cutters were filled to the dashboard whipstocks. Many wedding guests had to stay overnight.

Both Mr. Slattery and his wife, the former Mary Ann Crowley, were born and raised within one mile of one another, he across the road from his present home and Mrs. Slattery, a mile to the north.

50 Years A Thresherman

A thresherman for more than 50 years, Patrick Slattery is well-known. He started with horse-powered outfits—three men and two teams for $7 a day—owned portable steam engines and as late as last week, did his own threshing with a modern tractor-powered mill. He is a great believer in progress and has been busy manipulating a television set in his kitchen, a present from the family.

Monday's anniversary will be celebrated with Mass at the Church of the Assumption, Otonabee, at 9:30 am, and following this will be a breakfast at the Empress Hotel for members of the immediate family. Open house—and they feel there is ample room in their ten-room dwelling—will be held in the evening from 7 until 10.



Six Children

The Slatterys have six children, Mrs. G. A. McTague (Helen) of Windsor and Mrs. Michael O'-Brien (Jean) of Toronto and four sons, Joseph of Downer's Corners, Herbert of Rochester, James of Calgary and Jack at home.

Brothers and sisters of Mr. Slattery are Mrs. Michael O'Brien, William and Thomas, all of Peterborough, and James of Otonabee. And on his wife's side, brothers and sisters, there are Mrs. Bridget Driscoll, the Rev. Sister Justine, Mrs. Herbert and Mrs. Fred Kylie, all of Peterborough, Mrs. Joseph Carley of Toronto and Joseph and Frank of Otonabee.

The only comment this bright couple had to make about the current generation was that they didn't seem very fond of farming. And they could see no reason why since there were so many conveniences and labor-saving devices these days.

The Slaterys are the hospitable sort of Irish people that are inviting one and all to their open house anniversary on Monday, even the reporter.

Paper Explodes Over Churchill Suez Canal Statement

LONDON, Jan. 18 — (AP). — Most London morning newspapers today commended Winston Churchill's address to the United States Congress, but Lord Beaverbrook's "Empire-first-and-forever" Daily Express said the Prime Minister should not have asked other nations to station troops in the Suez Canal zone.

That, said the Express, might mean "intolerable" interference in Britain's conduct of operations in the zone.

"Imaginative suggestion" was the description given by the Conservative Daily Telegraph to Churchill's proposal that the United States, France and Turkey—co-sponsors with Britain of the proposed Middle East Pact—send at least token forces to support British troops defying Egypt's order that they leave the canal zone.

"Here, as throughout the Middle East, agreement between America and Britain is vitally necessary if the whole area is not to slide through chaos into Communism," the paper declared.

Different Story

The pro-Labor Daily Herald accused Churchill, in his "we ask no favors, no dole" statement, of saying one thing at home and the opposite abroad. It predicted he would have some explaining to do in the House of Commons.

Said The Daily Herald:

"Churchill proclaims Britain's postwar achievements in Washington saying 'production is widening and exports are up two-thirds. Recovery, while it has been retarded, has been continuous.' This is the same Churchill who accused the Labor government (which has been out of office less than three months) of 'very largely paralyzing' British economic revival and who said that under Labor the British were becoming tired Tims and weary Willies. Politicians often have to eat their words. But what a banquet of baloney confronts Churchill."

Other British newspaper reaction was favorable:

The Liberal News Chronicle—"Churchill's words had an honest John Bullish, four-square ring about them which could only have heartened those who fear we are on the way down and mollified those who think we are looking for a handout."

The Independent Times — "Churchill's speech was the speech of a man who is confident of understanding, sure of his goal and certain of eventual success. If Britain and the United States still are hesitant and in two minds about the proper course to pursue in the Middle East and Far East, at least they have at last begun to give those areas of the world, the concerted study and attention they deserve."

James Mason Names 10 Exciting Stars

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18 (AP)—"Everyone else is picking 10-best lists," remarked James Mason, "so why should I be different?"

The British actor is well known for his outspoken behavior. He once blasted Hollywood without having seen it, but now appears to be a confirmed Californian. He told me he was willing to stick his neck out and name the 10 most exciting actresses.

"First of all I will eliminate all the traditional glamor girls, who usually comprise such lists," he began. "Most of them seem to me bundles of affectation. They leave me cold."

Mason composed his list with his wife, brunette beauty Pamela Kellino, sitting behind him. He declared, however, that there was no pressure concerned with his first choice:

1. Pamela Kellino. "She is a constant stimulant to me in my work and my daily life. She never lets up. She is like a steady supply of benzedrine tablets."

2. Ava Gardner. "Although she is a glamorpuss, she is not the inanimate type of movie queen. She is a natural, exciting, feminine human being. There is nothing at all vicious about her; she is really a shy, innocent girl."

3. Lauren Bacall. "I think she is the most striking looking girl in Hollywood. She is loud, natural, honest and dynamic. She looks powerful, as though she could pack a wallop."

4. Danielle Darrieux. "She has the sophisticated manner that the great actresses had in the old days."

Poised On All Occasions

5. Joan Bennett. "Unlike some of the more recent actresses, she is poised and attractive on all occasions."

6. Faith Domergue. "She seems to have great reserves of temperament and power which seldom show themselves."

7. Lena Horne. "She is perhaps the most beautiful, graceful and talented performer in this town."

8. Peggy Lee. "She has the personality, looks and piquancy to make an exciting individual."

9. Vivian Leigh. "She has the three essentials for a great actress: Outstanding beauty and more intelligence and imagination than the others."

10. Judy Garland. "She has a tremendous, exciting, dynamic talent."

LEAVES JAPAN—Lt.-Col. J. E. Andrew of Toronto (second from right) has been appointed officer-in-charge of surgery at Toronto Military Hospital. Col. Andrew, shown here with other members of the group at the British Commonwealth Hospital at Kure, Japan, was in charge of the first Canadian army medical group to arrive in Japan. Left to right are: Pte. Chris Howe, Saskatoon, a patient at the hospital; Capt. M. M. Doddridge, Sillery, Que.; Lieut. M. L. A. Scott, London, Ont.; Lieut. W. Kilpatrick, Winnipeg; Col. Natural Gas Plan To Be Ready By '53

TORONTO, Jan. 18—(CP)—A plan to deliver natural gas from Texas to nearly every major centre in Western, Central and Eastern Ontario by 1955 was outlined Thursday.

The $153,000,000 project was discussed before Mines Minister Welland Gemmell of Ontario and representatives of four Ontario gas companies—Consumers, Consolidated, Union and Dominion.

An $85,000,000 pipeline from Pincher Creek, Alta., would carry 250,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily to the US Pacific North-West. A $53,000,0000 line from Detroit to Montreal would supply the most populous region of Eastern Canada with the same amount of gas from Texas.

Need Marketing Plan

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (CP)—M. M. Robinson, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association, Thursday told the association's annual convention that, if "ups and downs" in the apple market are to be eliminated, a marketing scheme will be necessary. Such a scheme, he said, could not work unless growers who refused to co-operate could be disciplined.

Session May Be Brief

TORONTO, Jan. 18 —(CP) — Premier Frost's announcement Thursday that the Ontario legislature will open Feb. 21 has touched off speculation that this year's session will be brief—lasting perhaps seven weeks. It is customary for the legislature to rise before the Easter weekend, which this year starts April 11.

CANADIAN SUCCESS — Actress Suzanne Cloutier has been on the move since leaving Ottawa in 1946, climbing the ladder of dramatic success. The 22-year-old daughter of Canada's King's Printer, Edmond Cloutier, has made two French films, two English films and leaves London, England, Jan. 31 for Hollywood to co-star with Alan Ladd in a love triangle that has the Iranian oil crisis as background.

Wants 50 Million People To Migrate From Britain

TORONTO—(CP)—James Meldrum says the British Commonwealth would be stronger if much of the United Kingdom's 50,000,000 population would migrate to other Commonwealth countries. He is in Canada to "sound out the reaction to such a plan."

Mr. Meldrum is assistant vice-chairman of the migration council, a voluntary group established almost two years ago. The council, he said here, is trying to inspire migration which would "lessen the over-crowded condition in Britain, develop the sparsely-populated Commonwealth countries and strengthen the group as a whole."

Mr. Meldrum, who gave up a diplomatic career to join the council, is visiting major centres in Canada, talking with leading bank, university, industrial and government officials.

Too Dangerous

"Intense centralization of Commonwealth industry and population" he said, "is dangerous in both peace and wartime."

A council booklet says the material and agricultural resources and the industrial potential of the Commonwealth family exceed those of either the United States or Russia. However, the booklet adds, "it fails to be the most powerful because while one small part of it is overcrowded and industrialized, the vastness of the rest is thinly peopled and pathetically underdeveloped."

In Formative Stage

The work of the council is still in the talking stage.

The council includes influential men representative of many political and industrial forces in Britain. Air Commodore Sir Frank Whittle, inventor of the jet engine, is chairman. Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian - born newspaper publisher, is an honorary vice-president.

Mr. Meldrum, veteran of diplomatic corps service in South Africa and India, joined the MC because "it expressed what should be done for the Commonwealth better than any political party." He said the council is "all-party".

He noted that the six European-settled Commonwealth countries, with an area of 7,572,000 square miles, are populated by 74,000,000 persons, with about 50,000,000 of them located on the 94,000 square miles of the United Kingdom.

In time of war, the concentration of people and industry in this most vulnerable corner could be "disastrous" for the Commonwealth.

Mr. Meldrum leaves late this month for the western provinces.

Not Contrary To Justice

TORONTO, Jan. 15 — (CP) — Trial of Alfred (Cam) Ecciestone and Jack Dalton on charges of theft, despite their dismissal on the same charges at a preliminary hearing, would not be contrary to justice, Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel, of the Ontario Supreme Court, ruled Thursday. Earlier this week the two men had asked for an order of prohibition which would halt their trial. After their dismissal on theft charges, the Crown has indicted them with the written consent of Judge Robert Forsyth.

Manager Killed

BURKS FALLS, Ont., Jan. 18—(CP)—Percy R. Craven, 67, of New Liskeard, general manager of the Northern Telephone Company, was fatally injured Thursday when hit by a transport truck five miles north of here. While driving one of his three daughters to her home in Belleville, Mr. Craven is reported to have stepped from his car to get some sand from the trunk of the auto. A skidding truck, coming from the opposite direction, crushed him against the car. Burks Falls is about 55 miles south of North Bay.

Heads Fruit Growers

TORONTO, Jan. 18 — (CP) — Irwin Colwill, Newcastle apple grower, Thursday was elected president of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association. He succeeds Harold W. Danforth, of Blenheim, Ont. Harold Wilson, of Leamington, was elected vice-president.

Convicted MPP's Will Not Be Allowed As Candidates

QUEBEC, Jan. 18—(CP)—Premier Duplessis announced Thursday night the government will present legislation primarily intended to forestall any possibility that a former member of parliament, convicted under the Official Secrets Act, could run as a candidate in coming Quebec provincial elections.

The Premier made the announcement when the Legislative Assembly adjourned lengthy and sometimes lively debate of the government's budget estimates.

The Premier referred to "Rose" when he announced the law. Presumably, he was talking of Fred Rose, former federal member of parliament for Montreal-St. Louis who was sentenced to a six-year term for giving information to a Russian spy ring operating in Canada.

The legislation will be effective against any person who:

1—Has been sentenced under a criminal code offence punishable by two years or more although the party may have been sentenced to less or even to a fine.

2—Has not been out of jail at least five years before the date of any provincial election in which he wishes to be a candidate.

Text of the measure was not distributed by the government.

The Premier said it would resemble legislation passed earlier in the Assembly aimed at Harry Binder, a Montreal city councillor and member of the Labor Progressive Party like Rose.

Airlines Invade Peaceful South Sea Isles

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, NZ—(CP)—Once a quiet backwater of the world served only by occasional trading schooners, the South Sea Islands are being rapidly opened up by fast modern air services. Now the idyllic lotus-eating life of the coral atolls is only a few hours' flying time from the big cities of the Pacific.

Some of the islands have been stopping places since before the war for trunk services across the Pacific, but now a network of airlines is spreading out to the most remote island groups.

Latest regions to see the arrival of airlines is Tahiti, French gem of the South Pacific and perhaps the most romantic of all the South Sea Islands. Tahiti is the terminus of the recently-opened coral route from New Zealand. Once it was served by trans-Pacific steamships, but the suspension of many routes to North America owing to the dollar shortages has made it difficult to reach since the war.

Coral Route

Now, however, the tourist can make the trip in large comfortable flying-boats which put him down amid the world of Pierre Loti and Gaugin. The Coral route starts at Auckland, calls at Suva, Fiji, a major trunk air line junction of the Pacific, and at Aitutaki, a beautiful little island in the Cook group. Then it goes on to Papeete, centre of Tahiti's gay life. Most travellers from North America will join the service at Suva, as all the trans-Pacific lines call at Fiji.

Tahiti is probably nearest of all the Pacific islands to the South Seas of romance. Its life is gay and carefree, its atmosphere—French, its time of greatest activity after sundown. Here are to be found Quinn's Beach Hut, most famous nightclub of the South Seas, and other night spots like Le Colonel, Lafayette, and Le Bal Sportif, where, amid the scent of exotic flowers, natives and cosmopolitan visitors dance beneath a sky as brilliant with stars that it must be seen to be believed.

THIS IS BOTHA HOUSE, the country residence of South Africa's Premier, on the coast some 50 miles south of Durban, Natal, which will be the home of King George, Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret for part of their stay in South Africa. The house was a personal gift from the late Sir Frank Reynolds, Natal sugar chief, and an admirer of South Africa's first premier, Gen. Louis Botha. The house is surrounded by 1,500 acres and has a private beach and a golf course.

Seek Double Debate Minimum To Avoid Time-Wasting In UN

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

PARIS, Jan. 18—(CP)—Western delegates are pushing for a minimum of "double debate" in the plenary sessions of the United Nations asssembly which give the final stamp of approval on UN resolutions.

There has been much criticism of the way some delegates voice again the same old arguments in the full-dress sessions of the assembly as they did in long committee meetings. This year the United States and Britain among other delegations have made it clear they would like to see only voting and brief explanations of vote, if necessary, in the final big meetings.

Depends On Russia

Much depends, of course, on what Russia's plans are for the plenary meetings. Soviet delegates could make the plenaries last almost as long as the committee debates if they decide to try to make the same old arguments or perhaps throw in some new twists.

And it is expected the Arab states will not let slip another opportunity to present their case against Israel on the Palestine question which has been argued in every assembly since 1947.

There are two types of open votes in the assembly as there are in committees. Most votes are taken by a show of hands with Andrew Cordier, the UN's assistant secretary-general standing up to count them. Sometimes, a delegate will insist that a roll-call vote be taken and in that case Cordier reads out the name of each country and the "yes", "no" or "abstain" are put down for the record.

Usually the votes in the assembly are exactly the same as the votes taken on the same resolutions in the committee earlier.

Some delegates have been studying for a long time how the UN could get around the trouble of double debate. But the job is tough because many delegations insist on the plenary meetings as a means of having a chance to overthrow a committee vote which might prove dangerous.

Sees Dairymen At Fault In Price Outcry

HAMILTON, Jan. 18 —(CP)—Addressing the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario in convention here Thursday afternoon, Mrs. W. R. Walton, Jr., national president of the Canadian Association of Consumers, told the delegates that the dairymen themselves must bear a major portion of responsibility for the outcry against higher milk prices.

She said that the public had been educated to the idea that milk was a great health giving food. For years it had been the cheapest of such foods, the supply had been plentiful, the market had been developed, with the aid of producers' associations until milk consumption was higher in Canada on a per capita basis than in most other countries. The public had also been taught that it was a food for which there was no substitute.

Natural Result

It was therefore only natural that when the price rose the consumers should be much concerned in the higher costs of an article which they had been taught to believe could not be replaced. She mentioned that a survey in Toronto had shown that the largest single item in the weekly food list of a family of five as fluid milk with just over one quarter of the weekly food budget being spent on it.

"In my opinion," she continued, "our whole country would be better off and we as individuals would have less need for red tape and the host of regulations with which we have surrounded ourselves, if all the interests in every industry would do a little more round table discussion, swapping ideas, viewpoints and information, in a form readily understandable, rather than bleat about their own particular fancied or real grievances (for whom someone else is usually to blame) and then run to governments and ask them to do something to help them."

UK Press Praises Speech

LONDON, Jan. 18 (Reuters)—Britain's press today hailed Prime Minister Winston Churchill's speech before Congress as an exposition of the British viewpoint which will strengthen Anglo-American unity.

The London Times declared that it was the speech of a man who was sure of his goal and certain of eventual success.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian stated that Churchill's speech was a declaration of independence and a token of close alliance.

The Conservative Daily Telegraph said that apart from Churchill's warning against the premature prohibition of atomic warfare the most important point of the adress was the suggestion that the Suez Canal should be internationally controlled and defended.

But another paper, the independent right-wing Daily Express, argued that it would be better for Britain to shoulder this responsibility alone.

Ask Parishioners Sign Declaration

TORONTO, Jan. 18 — (CP) — Members of the United Church of Canada will be asked to sign a declaration of purpose which pledges them not to use liquor or to offer it to their families or friends.

Under the scheme, Sunday, Feb. 24, will be known as Commitment Sunday in the voluntary abstinence campaign.

The decision to inaugurate the pledge signing was reached Thursday at a meeting of 60 conveners of presbytery Christian education committees and groups of Evangelism and social service.

The pledge contains not only several declarations aimed at assisting the temperance cause by personal abstinence but also the promise not to invest money in any company which manufactures alcoholic beverages and to use influence and the ballot to support temperance.

Report Seeing Nurse But 5 Clues False

MONTREAL, Jan. 18 (CP)—Five persons Thursday reported seeing Lieut. Elizabeth Sansom in Montreal, but, police said, none of them turned out to be the missing army nurse.

The tipoffs, three of them to city police and two to army authorities, came on the heels of Wednesday's announcement that a $500 reward had been offered for information leading to the whereabouts of Lieut. Sansom.

The reward was posted on behalf of the family by Dr. Arthur S. Douglas, of Knowlton, Que., an uncle of the attractive 26-year-old, missing since Dec. 24 from Kingston.

Blame US Soldiers

MARBURG, Germany, Jan. 18 (Reuters)—A West German court Thursday held United States soldiers partly responsible for brutalities to Germans in a US prison camp at nearby Kappel in 1945. The court sentenced Hans Fricker, 40, a German employed at the camp, to eight years imprisonment for maltreating inmates at the camp. Former inmates testified that Fricker, on orders of American soldiers had often beaten and kicked them.

Will Study Complaint

ROCHESTER, NY, Jan. 18 (AP)—More than 500 angry property-owners on the south shore of Lake Ontario, threatening to sue the Canadian government for damages due to high water, learned Thursday night that the state department had persuaded Canada to give serious study to their complaint. The residents claim the seasonal rise of the lake's level has caused widespread damage to their property.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 (CP)—The head of a new efficiency branch of the civil service said Thursday it is saving Canadian taxpayers $20 for every dollar of salary it costs.

C. J. Gardiner, chief of the Organization and Methods staff of 16 efficiency experts, said savings in the last few months alone are twice as much as for the whole preceding year.

The experts "only go into departments where we are asked and where the service is appreciated," Mr. Gardiner said in a speech.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance of Belleville has been appointed coordinator and fire marshal for the 11 Hastings and Prince Edward counties fire departments. The appointment was made by the Ontario Fire Marshal's office.

GAVE CHRISTMAS TREES

Superintendent John Hornal reported Thursday night that the union at Civic hospital had given $15 to buy Christmas trees for the hospital and had given toys to all the children in the hospital over Christmas.

MOTION OF THANKS

A letter from governor Ian F. McRae was received Thursday night by the board of governors of Civic hospital. In it, he regretted the necessity to leave the hospital board. Dr. G. S. Cameron moved thanks to Mr. McRae for "the splendid work he has done on the board."

"ROYAL TOUR" CROWDS

Current showing of the National Film Board's technicolor film, "The Royal Tour", has Peterborough citizens lining up in queues at the theatre box office. They waited around the corner of King St., on Thursday evening for more than an hour and school children were already forming lines today at 10 am.

CANCEL OPERETTA

The Canada Packers Operatic Society which has for the past few years annually presented a Gilbert and Sullivan Opera in Peterborough under the auspices of the St. Paul's Married Couples Club has had to cancel its trip to Peterborough this year. Members of the club were advised this week that the scheduled trip of the group to Peterborough would have to be cancelled this year as dates of their Toronto show had been changed.

Canoeist Herb Caldwell To Star In Toronto Show

In the YMCA pool these days you will find a man doing the most unbelievable stunts with a canoe. He is Herbert Cardwell of Wallace Point. In two new canoes delivered to him this week from the factory, Herb is boning up on a long repetoire of water gymnastics, for, in a few weeks time he will star in the tank show of the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show in Toronto. His will be one of the major attractions this year.

Herb has been an athlete all his life. Now, at 47, he is still in first class physical shape—he is sports officer with the rank of major with the 50th HAA Regiment.

Born and raised in Toronto and spending his summers at Wallace Point, he moved down there more than 30 years ago.

Canoeing and swimming were natural sports for him to follow and he was the leading light in the former Wallace Point Canoe Club until it disbanded in 1949 due to the Otonabee River water being condemned for swimming because of pollution.

Many Interests

Besides being a summer resort operator, and farmer, Herb grew about four acres of gladioli for bulbs and cut bloom sales and at present is demonstrator and sales agent for chain saws.

His trick canoeing came to the attention of general manager of the Sportsmen's Show, Loyal Kelly, at Bewdley about two summers ago, and, together with the help of Mrs. Pansy Forbes of the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club, the story of his prowess spread far and wide. Besides starring at the Toronto show this year, he may be worked into the crowded tank event of the Cleveland Show; but if this cannot be arranged he has been asked to sign for the Cleveland event in 1953.

Herb Cardwell spent six years in the Army with the SD & G's and finished with the rank of major. Due to his age, he was sent back from England to train reinforcements and wound up by spending two years in Jamaica training troops for jungle warfare. He had a taste of paddling native dugout canoes and boosted Canadian watersports at small regattas on the island.

Swam At CNE—

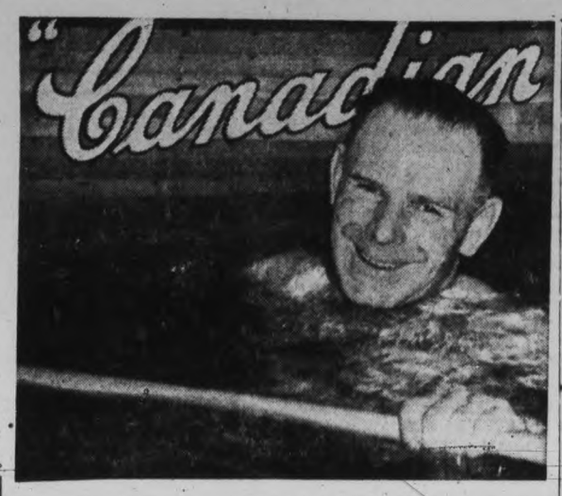
Paddling and swimming for many years has kept him in excellent trim—he came fourth in the 100-yard swimming finals at the CNE at the age of 18 years—and he feels that tank show work will not put any undue strain on his health.

His two sons, Bob, 14, and George, 12, join him in many of his canoe demonstrations. He hopes he can encourage them to carry on the tradition.

"Power boating has killed canoeing," is the way Herb sized up the vanishing sport. But he hopes that his demonstrations will revive some interest in it. He also hopes that the pollution problem in the Otonabee has been brought under control by the new Peterborough Sewage Disposal Plant. There are 130 youngsters, members of the Wallace Point Canoe Club, itching to get at swimming and paddling once again.

From their ranks, Herb hopes, the spark to carry on the Canadian canoeing tradition will be reborn.

Train Strikes Stalled Car



A westbound freight struck a stalled car at the CNR crossing on Armour Rd., at 7 am today.

The driver of the car, Allen Clements, 132 Sophia St., received a bump on the forehead.

When constable Reg McMillan arrived on the scene, Clements had left, but he was told by the train crew that Clements had been driving south on Armour Rd.

As he drove on to the tracks, he saw the approaching freight and stopped. In attempting to back off the tracks, the car stalled, and he was unable to get it going before the train collided with the left front corner of the car, damaging it considerably.

Planning Board Urges Rezoning In Ashburnham To Let In Bread Company

City planning committee unanimously recommended on Thursday night rezoning of an Ashburnham block in which Canada Bread Company is interested as a site for a large, modern food industry. Switch in designation will be from residential to light industry as approved by the committee for ratification by the city council probably at its meeting next Monday night.

As reported some weeks ago, Canada Bread selected Peterborough for their proposed central Ontario manufacturing plant, providing they could acquire from the city a reclaimed lot west of Rogers St., and lying between Hazlitt St. and Stanley St.

The property is in the vicinity of the unopened Tivey St. It is on the east side of the railway siding, parallelling the river, and was reclaimed from discontinued use as a gravel pit by being filled with tin cans and other city refuse.

City Clerk Outram, as secretary, informed the committee that an original petition, responding to the Council's advertised notice, bore the signatures of thirteen objecting property-owners.

Report By Jaycees

An interesting feature of the meeting was the report of an assumed commission by members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, who submitted a favoring petition signed by 25 property-owners in that neighborhood.

Mr. Outram said that when an adverse petition came in with 13 signatures there were 24 other property-owners of the area who did not sign it. "Jaycees" interviewed them and obtained the signatures of twenty-three of them.

"They all signed except the representative of the estate of Florence Adams," Mr. Outram said. "And two of those who signed the original petition also signed this second one in favor of rezoning. That made 25 to 13, including the two on each petition."

"If we don't get it now, you'll find it in Lindsay," said Ald. Norman Graham. "The people I've been talking to about it said they wanted this food plant."

Ernest C. Braund said he would like to see this industry in Peterborough, "but I'm a young mem-

$900,000 Starts Ordnance Depot

COBOURG, Jan. 18 — (ENS)— First contract to start building the multimillion dollar ordnance depot at Cobourg has been awarded.

The announcement was made by Senator W. A. Fraser of Trenton.

The new contract —for a $900,000 expenditure—, was awarded to the H. J. McFarland Construction Co., Picton. It is for sewers, fences, water mains, etc., and is termed a "services" contract.

Further announcement of the awarding of a contract for four or five buildings is expected within the next two weeks, the Senator said. Sen. Fraser was one of the principals in bringing the depot to Cobourg.

First announced in May, 1951, the depot has grown into a multi-million dollar project with the revelation of its size and detail.

The MacFarland Company is expected to start work immediately.

Police Get 2 Cruisers For $1,000, Trade-in

A trade-in offer for the two present police cruisers on 1952 models was accepted by the police commission at its January meeting Thursday.

For an additional $500 on each of the 1951 police cruisers, the dealer agreed to provide two new cars for the police department.

In recent years, the commission has followed the practice of dealing the cruisers in annually for new models since it has been found the most economical method.

Last year's trade-in price was $430 but the dealer cited the rise in car prices as the reason for the increase.

MRS. DAVID HUGGINS died Thursday night in her bed and police are today investigating a report that a man entered her home at breakfast time and attacked her.

Council Searches Counties' Books Back Six Years

COBOURG, Jan. 18.—(ENS)—Counties council Thursday gave authority to the special finance committee to go back as far as 1946, when ex-clerk William Barr first took office, in the auditors' investigation into his accounts.

Routine business of the council only got underway Thursday due to the delay of one day caused by the absence of a new clerk, the new appointment not having been made until late Wednesday.

Reeve Merwin Greer of Hamilton township told council that some of the special finance committee would feel better if they had a little more direction and authority from the council as to how far they were to go in the investigation of the accounts of the former clerk.

"Personally I am in favor of them going all the way," said Reeve Greer, adding that he felt that the audit should go back as far as 1946. Reeve Elmer Scott of Hope township asked how much it cost to do the audit to date. George Walton of Newcastle, warden of last year, who has been helping out the new clerk, said that the auditors would charge $1,800 for the investigation of the accounts of 1950 and 1951 plus the regular audit of the last quarter of 1951.

Someone Talked

"Mr. Chapman (chairman of the special committee) and myself have information to take up with the auditors later. Things are coming to light every day. A few days ago, a $200 shortage was found through someone talking. Mr. Chapman and myself are no longer members of the counties council but we are willing to help finish what has been started," said Mr. Walton.

"An awful lot of chips are going to drop off the tree before this is through," commented Reeve Greer.

Discussing the liability of the bonding company for compensation, Mr. Walton declared as follows:

"Mr. Barr resigned on December 10. I am informed that the bonding company is fully responsible as far back as we want to go. Mr. Barr sent the bond back to the bonding company but we had it returned. He put up $1,400. What he hasn't paid, they will, and he was bonded for $25,000. We have started an investigation. We have had a shake-up in every branch of the counties set-up. Things are not right yet. I don't think we are getting full value for the money spent on our roads. I hope that the 1952 council carries on where I left off," said ex-warden Walton.

Back to 1946

"I think the audit should go back as far as 1946 when Mr. Barr took over" said Warden Campbell. Council then referred back to a resolution of the day before which authorized the committee to continue until they felt they were through, and it was decided that this would authorize the audit to go back to 1946.

"I think our ex-warden is to be congratulated for facing things. I have no right to sit here and say we will not go back to 1946. There is a job to be finished," declared Reeve F. Broadworth of Alnwick Township.

"I agree," said Reeve George Galbraith of Cobourg. "We have a new clerk now. Let us clean up the old mess so that he can start from scratch."

City Woman Dies In Bed, Police Investigate Story Of Attack By Man

Husband Recounts Wife's Story Man Entering Kitchen At Breakfast Time, Nearly Choking Her With Rag In Mouth

Police are today investigating the death of Mrs. David Huggins, 54, of 32 Ware St., Mrs. Huggins is said to have died during the night following an alleged attack by an unknown man on Thursday morning. After a scuffle with the man Mrs. Huggins telephoned police, but Sgt. Gordon Trennum who was sent to investigate, was given only a general description to work on. After Mrs. Huggins' death on Thursday night a post-mortem was ordered by Crown Attorney John Bradshaw into the cause of her death. It is being held today by Coroner Dr. H. G. Carleton.

Vague Description

Police said today that the man was described as "a 25-year-old criminal." Otherwise the description is "very vague."

Her husband, David Huggins, an employee at the Jones Brothers coal yard, said today that his wife was eating her breakfast at 9:30 am when "the fellow walked into the back kitchen."

Mr. Huggins retold Mrs. Huggins' story which was:

"I'm just in time for something to eat," said the man.

"Yes. We have never refused anything to anybody yet," replied Mrs. Huggins.

"Oh, well, I don't want anything to eat," he snapped at her, cutting her short.

Mrs. Huggins, frightened, stood up and started to go to call her son Arthur, 15 years old, who was still sleeping upstairs.

Slapped Her

The man slapped her and put her in a chair, but she got up again and began to walk towards the dining-room. The man grabbed her and shoved a rag into her mouth, nearly choking her.

"If you don't shut up, I'll drill you," the man threatened. ("Whatever he meant by that," said Mr. Huggins.)

Mrs. Huggins escaped his grasp again and ran for the cellarway between the dining-room and the kitchen. She lifted up the trapdoor.

"I'll shove you down the cellar" he threatened again. "There's more ways than one."

Mrs. Huggins placed her foot on the top step and then screamed for help to her son. Arthur ran down, but the man was gone.

Mr. Huggins added that "she said she would know him again—but it's too late."

Her son Arthur said, "When I heard mother screaming, I made for the stairs, but he had disappeared. No, I didn't see him."

Helped Her to Room

"I helped mom, she was in the bedroom, and tried to comfort her until she was quiet enough to telephone the police."

Arthur added that his mother told him, "the man said he'd be back."

Mrs. Huggins, who was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, Gladys Edith Bamford, has resided in Peterborough for 29 years, prior to that in South Monaghan Township. She was educated in England and Oakville, Ontario, and was a member of the Knox United Church.

Besides her husband and son, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. H. Moore (Dorothy) and Mrs. C. Fader (Earleen), both of Peterborough, and a sister, Mrs. D. Ferguson, Hamilton.

The funeral will be held Saturday at 3:30 pm from the Kaye Funeral Home, the Rev. H. G. Douglas officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

Special Police For CGE Traffic

A motion designed to ease traffic congestion and solve parking problems in the city's main industrial area was passed by the police commission Thursday.

The commission went on record as consenting to three CGE employees being appointed special constables to handle traffic near the CGE parking lot on Monaghan Road.

A letter from the council's special traffic committee urging the commission to appoint three CGE constables to police traffic on Monaghan Road, in and out of the CGE parking lot, promoted the resolution.

Residents in the vicinity of the CGE frequently complain about workers' cars being left all day in front of their homes. It is hoped that by having men on duty to speed the flow of traffic on Monaghan Road and in and out of the CGE parking lot at peak periods, more employees will be encouraged to use the parking lot.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Nine Junior Project Clubs Planned For 1952.... Vern Campbell Re-elected President of Holstein Breeeders....Hereford Association to Repeat Consignment Sale....Poultry and Egg Prices Discourage Producers...Federation Dinner Wednesday Jan. 30 at Westwood.

Nine junior clubs is the prospect for the rural young people of Peterborough county as outlined by Robert E. Bell, assistant agricultural representative.

There are two forestry clubs; four livestock; one grain; one tractor maintenance and a grassland group which is contemplated locally outside the established club program of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The hay-pasture project has been devised by Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, and Mr. Bell.

"This grass farming undertaking is open to young men of 18 to 30 years," Mr. Bell informed the Examiner yesterday.

"Each member will be required to set aside a five acre lot of Ototabee loam, the most common type of soil in this area," Mr. Bell explained. "That basic condition is intended to give more uniform comparison when the project is under way.

In addition a uniform hay-pasture mixture will be used, and we shall recommend a light seeding of up to four pecks of oats as a nurse crop.

Members will be required to keep an accurate set of records, including soil test, method of land preparation, date and rate of seeding, uniformity of growth at specified intervals.

Other details will be amount of fertilizer and manure applied up to the time of seeding; fairly accurate record of quality and quantity of hay taken off; if used for pasture area after the hay is taken off, information should be listed showing the number of pasture-days per cow; keep periodic details of growth and condition of the pasture; date and amount of top dressing; also figures of cost."

This project will also include visits to the members' plots at least once a year, and an educational tour to other counties.

"We would like to have the members exhibit at the Peterborough Exhibition and the Central Ontario Spring Fair.

The Livestock Clubs

"We are planning four livestock clubs and possibly a fifth," Mr. Bell said. "There will be two dairy calf clubs, and the third may be east from Indian River if we can get a response of 15 to 20 young people from that part of the county. There will be one beef club, swine club, and winter wheat club.

The tractor maintenance club, which has been operating for the last two years is open to boys from 14 to 20 years. Not only maintenance factors but also the importance of safety in operation will be stressed again."

This week Mr. Bell has Friday meetings at Lakehurst in the evening and Apsley in the afternoon to begin planning for two forestry groups. John Bell, zone forester of Lakefield, is keenly interested in these projects.

The winter wheat club was begun in Sept. 1950 when members were supplied with registered Cornell grown by Robert Armstrong.

Call To Parents

"We are fortunate in having a fine group of club leaders who will be with us again, and we are hoping that parents will encourage their boys and girls as much as they did last year.

With the support of mothers and fathers we can be certain of another successful club season. We solicit their interest in their homes, and with that background we should do even better than in 1951."

A special effort will be directed toward the swine and forestry clubs, and Mr. Bell is seeking the co-operation of the young people of East Peterborough, particularly in a new dairy calf club.

WM. NEWMAN AUCTION

Posters have reached Peterborough from Lorneville where William Newman is selling his livestock and implements Thursday, January 24. The stock includes Holstein cattle and Yorkshire pigs. Mr. Newman is one of the best known farmers in Central Ontario, and was for some time member of the Legislature for Victoria.

✦ ✦ ✦

JUNIORS' BONSPIEL

Ontario Junior Farmers completed arrangements Monday night for a curling bonspiel in Peterborough Tuesday, February 7. Entries are limited to 28 rinks, and the fee is $5. Canada Packers are providing a buffet supper.

Eleanor Saracuse, president of the Ontario Juniors, was chairman of the directors' meeting in Toronto. Most of the details have been planned here by local Juniors, Frank C. Paterson and Robert E. Bell.

The first bonspiel was held in Lindsay a year ago.

✦ ✦ ✦

"WHAT'S WRONG" SUBJECT

Forum subject Monday, "What's wrong with farm organizations?", should bring out one of the most informed discussions of the entire winter series. If there is anything wrong, as inferred, farmers should be able readily to put their fingers on the weak spots.

Apart from flaws, some of them obvious enough, such as the indifference of too many farmers to take active part in community and group affairs, there is a bright side to present day rural enterprises which is becoming more generally recognized. It was mentioned in the presidential address of John C. Broderick at the Ontario Federation convention,—"the number of young, aggressive and intelligent farm leaders now coming into our movement".

Here in Peterborough county some of those Junior Farmers have moved up into the big league of community affairs. They have grown up in the broad school of service to the community, and particularly as club leaders they are engaged in imparting to their juvenile successors the spirit which they have acquired in the very same kindergarten.

And, they are assisting adults, many of whom accepted opportunities of joining and working in farm organizations in their own day.

Briefly, these junior clubs are a great promise of the future.

INVITED BANKERS

Mr. S. R. Henderson, manager of the Royal Bank, Lakefield, and Mrs. Henderson, were guests of Pine Grove Farm Forum Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hamilton. The subject for the evening was :"Is there enough farm credit?" Mr. Henderson discussed the customary basis of credit, especially requirements for obtaining loans. The group felt that there was sufficient credit excepting for young farmers trying to make a start in life without enough capital of their own. The next meeting, Mon. Jan. 21, will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Little.

✦ ✦ ✦

HEREFORD BREEDERS

Some entries have already been listed for the Eastern Ontario Hereford Breeders consignment sale which is to be held again in Peterborough about the first week of June. They are as far apart as Ontario and Renfrew counties, with some in between.

Homer Hawkey of Indian River was elected president of the Hereford Association at the end of last week.

Vice-president is Charles Fisher of Bailieboro, and Archie Clysdale is the new secretary-treasurer, succeeding Ed. V. O'Toole. Directors are William Mood, Mervin Smith of Cavan, Col. F. E. Birdsall and G. Cochrane of Cobourg.

Entries for the June sale close in March.

HOLSTEIN ANNUAL

Vern Campbell was re-elected president of Peterborough Holstein Breeders' Association, with Henry Sharpe and Earl Doris as vice-presidents Tuesday.

Miss Mary Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wood of Douro, was appointed secretary-treasurer, taking her father's place in that office. This is an executive innovation as Miss Wood is the first girl in this area to be named secretary of an organization which has been by custom confined to men. She is in her fifth year at the Collegiate Institute taking special commercial work. She obtained her junior matriculation last year.

Miss Wood has been an active and prominent member of the local dairy calf club for rural young folks during the last six years, and has been successful in its achievement days and associated affairs. She has now graduated to the Junior Farmers group of which she is a director.

The Holstein members decided to hold their county Black and White Day at Keene on September 6.

SURPLUS OF $10,000

Ontario Federation of Agriculture reported total receipts last year of $68,059.16 and expenditures $61,534.55. The surplus was $6,524.61. That sum with a cash balance of $3,555.22 from 1950 amounted to $10,079.83.

Peterborough Federation contributed $886.88; Durham Federation $1,014.38; Hastings $800; Northumberland $850; Victoria $1,400.

The largest contribution to the provincial federation was $2,500 from Middlesex county group; Bruce Federation $2,100; Grey $2,000; and Kent $2,115.

Other larger sums were: $6,000 from United Co-Operative of Ontario; and $3,000 from Ontario Cream Producers: Twenty-one counties and nine commodity groups met their full commitment.

WITH CHEESE PRODUCERS

W. O. Coons of Leeds county was elected president of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association at their annual meeting in Toronto.

Hector Arnold of Campbelford is vice-president, and the other three members of the executive are Douglas Hunt of Middlesex county; Joseph St. Denis, Prescott county; and Robert J. Kelso, Grenville county.

The executive members also comprise the cheese marketing board. All but Mr. Arnold were elected by their respective district groups. The directors, who are the 20 county presidents, chose Mr. Arnold by eleven to eight over W. E. Bateman of Tweed, a member of the 1951 executive.

As a result of the election of the executive, four of the five men on this year's marketing board were not on the 1951 board.

Charles N. Heath, secretary-manager for the association, reported that in the first year of its marketing of cheese the board handled 51,847,151 lbs., of which 25,370,601 lbs. were exported to Britain. Domestic sales totalled 26,847,151 lbs.

Export price was 32 cents, and the domestic ranged from 36 to 40 3-16c.

The board had to assume the responsibility of selling the year's provincial output of cheese as directed at the annual meeting in January 1951. They also had to complete and manage the new warehouse at Belleville.

The convention adopted a resolution aimed at obtaining more stability on the marketing board and some degree of permanence. It appointed Alva Rintoul, Fred Crowe and J. B. Elilott a committee to study ways and means of attaining that end.

But, the following clause was defeated in a division of 65 to 27: "That the marketing board consist of three men, two of whom shall be appointed annually by the directors, who shall name a chairman and vice-chairman. These men may, but not necessarily, be members of the board of directors. The third member of the marketing board shall be the president of the executive committee of the association."

The paradox of this important business of the convention was that although stability of the marketing board was desired, it emerged from the meeting with four new members, and as one report commented "the directors had practically to draft a president."

Mr. Coon accepted that office reluctantly. He said the two jobs of president of the association and chairman of the marketing board were too much to ask of one man on a voluntary basis.

And the Ontario Cheese Producers last year boosted their business into multiple millions of dollars.

CROP IMPROVEMENT ANNUAL

The annual meeting of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association is now regarded as a "must" by many who have attended sessions in past years and this year's event is scheduled for four days Jan. 22-25. It will be held in the Coliseum, Exhibition Park, Toronto, where there will also be a machinery display, a seed display and educational exhibits with plenty of room and light to make the whole atmosphere inviting. There will be plenty of parking space outside, free of charge, and the location is such that much of the regular city traffic is avoided.

Grass will be featured in the program. A panel discussion on "Grass Silage" is scheduled for Wednesday morning, Jan. 23, with other speakers including J. M. Appleton of Wallaceburg on the subject "600 Pounds of Beef per Acre" and Wesley Magwood of Hanover speaking on "Trading Grass for Milk".

Registered seed growers will have a full day's special session and the subject of soil is being given special attention on the general program this year. With regard to seed, many farmers will want to know the latest with regard to treating small seeds for root rot, etc. That question will be answered in a special item. Other important topics will be "The Agriculural Outlook for 1952" by W. P. Watson, Livestock Commissioner, "Report on Legume Research Committee" by Dr. J. R. Weir, OAC, and "Farm Building Construction" by Prof. Henry Giese of Ames, Iowa. At the annual banquet in the King Edward Hotel on January 24, Dr. W. M. Myers of Beltsville, Maryland will be the guest speaker.

PRICES DISAPPOINT

Prices of eggs, chickens and hogs have declined to the level of worry across the province as reflected in the weekly crop review of the Ontario Department of Agriculture

Weanling pigs have been quoted down to $5 in Dufferin, and also less than half the price of last summer in Bruce.

Perth county: "Prices of hogs at the local packing plant dropped from 28 to 27 cents. With the high price of concentrates, farmers are not balancing their rations. Percentage of Grade A's dropped from 40 to 30%. There are 18 to 20% falling in Grades B3, C and heavies. Beef on the hoof is hard to buy. Farmers are carrying a big supply of feed, and prefer to hold their cattle. Eggs on the retail market sold for 40c."

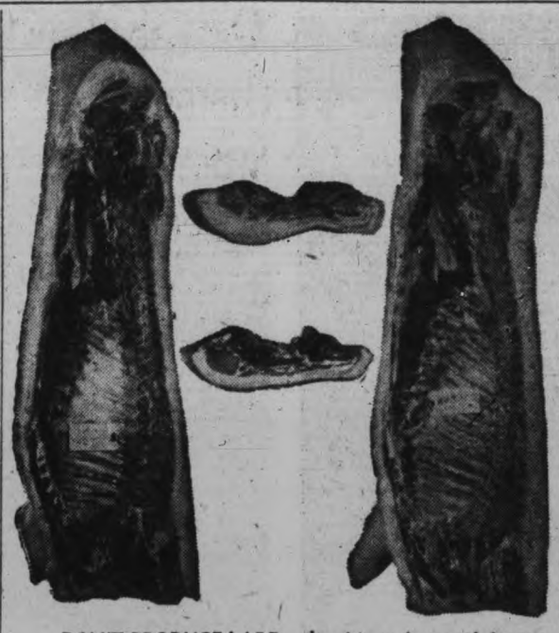
Renfrew: "Poultry producers are dissatisfield with the price of eggs, particularly when the retail price has been showing as much as 17c a dozen spread over the price paid to farmers."

Lambton: "Concentrates to mix with home grown grain are too costly. Many farmers are grinding alfalfa, and buying other protein feeds to make up their own concentrates."

Brant: "Quite a number of fat cattle went to market last week a 35c a pound. Poultrymen are selling off old hens to make room for baby chicks. Feed dealers report heavy sales in spite of the large grain crop last year."

Middlesex: "Cattle prices have dropped about $2 per cwt. from late 1951 prices. Potatoes are being bought at $3 to $3.50 a bag, with quite a lot of US potatoes arriving in south west Ontario cities."

Lincoln: "Reports from chick hatcheries are favorable. Demand is keener than a year ago."



Prince Edward: "Egg prices have reached 34c. Flock owners are dissatisfied. There is a good demand for pullets, but chick starters are $10 a ton higher than a year ago."

Victoria farmers are said to be concerned about the price of beef cattle for the next few months.

Turnips are up in price; some farmers are taking delivery of fertilizers. Haldimand says there appears to be a surplus of farm help. "Efforts to place even single men are proving fruitless."

MISS MARY WOOD made local distaff history in her selection as secretary-treasurer of Peterborough Holstein Breeders' Association at their annual meeting Tuesday. She succeeds her father, Mr. Stanley Wood of Douro township, who has been secretary for some years. Miss Wood is the first representative of Peterborough county women to be appointed to the executive of any of the livestock associations.

DON'T PRODUCE LARD.—Lard is no longer the popular cooking fat it once was, as other fats have taken its place. Much of the excess fat on hogs must be trimmed and rendered into lard. Lard returns less to the producer than bacon. In a recent check of 20,000 tickets of B.1 hogs weighing 140-170 pounds, inspectors of the Canada Department of Agriculture found that 74 per cent were faulted for too much fat only two per cent had too little. The above shows the difference between a good bacon carcass (left) and a poor one. Note excess fat along back of carcass at right and how this is carried throughout the cross section (upper), cut at the last rib from the other side of the same carcass. —Canada Department of Agriculture photo

Removing Fat From Pork Big Job In Packing House

There is plenty of evidence to show that Canadian housewives do not want fat pork. And yet a lot of time, effort and feed is being wasted in the production of excess fat on hogs. Much of this loss can be avoided by producing bacon hogs.

A big job in packing-houses is removing fat from pork cuts and this is done because there is no sale for over-fat pork. Some cuts, such as the shoulder and breakfast bacon, have layers of fat between the muscles or layers of lean, which cannot be cut out. But with cuts such as the back or loin, most of the fat can be removed, and as a rule, pork backs are sold as trimmed loins. The fat is rendered and sold as lard.

Declines In US

Lard was once a very popular cooking fat, and hog raising was closely associated with its by-product, lard. In the United States the demand for lard and the large amount of corn available for feed, led to the development of special breeds of pigs known as the lard breed. These pigs were selected because of their ability to put on a very thick layer of fat quickly. Today, lard is less important. Indeed it has to compete as a cooking fat with vegetable oil preparations which are often preferred by the housewife. Mechanization has also played its part in the reduced demand for lard as a cooking fat. Machines now do much of the heavy physical work previously done by hand, and the need for fats in the diet of those who undertook this heavy work has lessened. Lumbering is a typical example.

These trends, says J. G. Lefebvre of the Federal Department of Agriculture, have gradually reduced the demand for lard as a food fat and the price has declined. As a result, lard sells for less per pound than the price paid for a pound of carcass. The average wholesale price in Toronto for lard in November was 19 cents a pound; for B. 1 grade carcasses 28¾ cents. In addition the lard price must cover the cost and loss of rendering the fat.

Avoid "Over-Finish"

The comparatively low price is the basic reason for raising bacon hogs which have a high proportion of lean, and even these must undergo some trimming before the cuts are acceptable to the consumer. That over-finish is a very common fault is shown by a recent check of hog carcass scale tickets. Of 20,000 tickets of B. 1 hogs weighing 140-170 lbs., 74 per cent had the F-plus symbol indicaitng too much fat. A few of these had other faults as well. Only 2 per cent were faulted for having too little fat.

The pigs' ability to lay on fat or store energy for a day of need is partly due to his very good appetite, but largely because of careful selection for this quality over many years and many generations. As pointed out, fifty years ago lard or pork fat was desirable; today, fatness in pigs is no longer necessary. It represents a serious waste of feed for the farmer and time for the processor and is a cause of complaint by the consumer. The modern streamlined hog which has little fat and maximum lean is the kind which brings the highest return to the farmer.

Mr. Lefbvre points out that much of the excess fat on pigs can be eliminated by careful selection for bacon type and more careful feeding. Good bacon hog carcasses provide the most desirable product and the least waste in the form of fat.

C. A. Milligan, New President Of Ontario Federation Guest Speaker Mon., Jan. 28

Mr. C. A. Milligan of Napanee, the newly-elected president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture will be the main speaker at the annual meeting of Peterborough Federation in the YMCA Monday, January 28.

He was invited by Mr. Harold Lewis, local fieldman, who attended the provincial convention last week.

W. W. Dawson, president of the county Federation for the last four years, has been mentioning his intention of retiring. If that change takes place, it is expected that Henry Sharpe will be nominated as his successor.

The rural directors and members can look back on the last four years as a period of substantial progress.

Under the chairmanship of Mr. Dawson the Federation has promoted the establishment of Kawartha Co-Operative Medical Services, a major accomplishment.

Appointment of Harold Lewis as fieldman was another good investment. Mr. Lewis has given a lot of time to the Medical Services and to Farm Forums. Peterborough can now point to more than ever of these neighborhood groups and to their constructive effects in community affairs. With the sponsorship of the Federation he has sustained the weekly CHEX broadcasts every Saturday at 12:15 pm since the inception of this medium of local communication and address.

It may also be said for the Federation that it has given financial help to the Junior Farmers in some of their projects.

Dinner at Westwood

Mr. Lewis reports that Cecil Belyea, fieldman-economist on the Ontario Federation staff, will be the guest speaker at an East Peterborough Federation dinner Wednesday Jan. 30 in the Westwood community hall. The county executive desired to stimulate interest in that section, and Bruce Graham has been generally in charge of arrangements for this first dinner meeting. Westwood Women's Institute will do the catering.

Similar local meetings are planned for Norwood and Warsaw before winter ends.

These broader activities are evidence of the expanded interests of the Federation in Peterborough county, one of the few sections of the province that responded immediately when the provincial organization was first projected. Reeve James Gifford was the first provincial president.

Peterborough farmers have sustained their loyalty to their organization whose 15th annual convention in Toronto Jan. 8-11 was an incidental indication of increasing maturity. Vivian S. Milburn, secretary-manager, was one of Peterborough's personal contributions to the organized Ontario farmers, and this county is proud of the leadership this son of Smith township has given the provincial and federal associations. Mr. Milburn has been a fine asset in the field of rural-urban public relations.

Village Council Given Painting Of Cottinghams

OMEMEE, Jan. 18 (ENS)—Oil paintings of the founders of Omemee, Mr. and Mrs. William Cottingham, have been presented to the village and were shown for the first time at the inaugural meeting of the council this week. The presentation was made by Miss Olive Harris, Brighton, a granddaughter.

The accompanying plaque reads: William Cottingham, founder of Omemee, born in County Fermanaugh, Ireland, died May 19th, 1875 aged 68 years, also, Mary Hughes, his wife, born Edenderry, King's County, Ireland, died March 1852.

It was Miss Harris' mother, the late Mrs. (Rev.) Richard Harris, formerly Olive Cottingham, who named the village. Her father did not approve of the suggestion to name the village Williamsville after him. He asked his daughter to suggest a name and she offered the name Omemee. Her suggestion was later accepted by the villagers.

Emily cemetery, two miles east of the village, is where Mr. and Mrs. Cottingham are buried.

Says Canadians Overcautious In Business Deals

HAMILTON, Jan. 18 — (CP) — Canadians seem to be traditionally over-cautious, W. H. Durrell, general manager of Iron Ore Company of Canada, said Thursday night in an address to the Hamilton branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

Mr. Durrell, who comes from New Liskeard, said that at one stage in the development of Labrador iron ore, $100,000,000 was needed in addition to the $100,000,000 put up by the companies taking part in the venture.

"Our first step was to try to iriterest Canadian financial institutions in the type of investment best suited to the enterprise. All we could get in Canada was $2,000,000.

"Therefore, we had to appeal to American business men who were willing to risk their capital in the hope of building a long-term, fair-return investment."

Companies taking part in the Labrador development, and which formed an iron ore company to carry it forward, are Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines, Ltd., big Canadian gold producers the M. A. Hanna interests in the United States, and five American steel companies.

Need Railway

Of the $200,000,000 which it is planned to spend, $75,000,000 is for the 360-mile railway from Seven Islands, Que., to the ore bodies, now under construction; $50,000,000 for rolling stock and other requirements; $15,000,000 for harbor facilities and ore docks at Seven Islands; the balance is for power development, town sites, mining equipment and so forth.

Small-scale shipping of ore is expected to start not later than the late summer of 1954, and by the time the 10,000,000-ton rate is reached the Quebec-Labrador ore will be bringing to Canada $90,000,000 a year in American money. "A large proportion of which will come north of the border to stay."

Jailed 9 Months For Cattle Sale

NAPANEE, Jan. 18 (CP)—Mrs. Sarah West, 48, of Toronto, Thursday was sentenced to a nine-month term in reformatory for selling five cows and two calves she did not own.

Mrs. West told the court she had thought her furniture would be sufficient to cover any claim made by officials of the Veterans' Land Act, holders of a lien on the cattle.

After sale of the animals to John McFarland, Oshawa carpenter, for $1,075, the government seized them.

Mrs. West's husband established a VLA farm north of Napanee in 1947. He died in 1950 and his wife attempted to carry on with the farm.

She sold the cattle last August and went to Toronto where she otained employment in a hospital.

UK Purchases Remain High In Canada

OTTAWA—(CP)—Britain's intensified austerity, bringing with it extra belt-tightening and slashes in imports from foreign countries, may last for another three years, says Sir Andrew Jones, Britain's top food expert in Canada.

During that time the food available to the British people will be sufficient for their sustenance, but lacking variety it won't be all they hoped for, the 61-year-old head of the British mission in Canada said in an interview.

That doesn't mean that Canadian food producers should write off the British market, he said. Britain would like to increase purchases from Canada. Even though dollar reserves have declined dangerously, Britain still is purchasing large supplies of Canadian wheat. As far as 1951 was concerned, Canadian cheese producers "had no reason to complain about the British market."

Up To Authorities

What will happen in 1952 still must be decided by British food authorities, but besides the heavy purchases of wheat Britain has already agreed upon, there still is the possibility of a new cheese contract with Canadian cheese producers.

Last year, Britain purchased about 28,000,000 pounds of Canadian cheese—about all the surplus that was available. Sir Andrew did not rule out the possibility that this year new contracts may be developed, but so far no final decision has been made.

In Lap Of Gods

"What will happen this year still rests in the lap of the gods in the form of our government's financial authorities. That we need Canadian cheese is not in question. The ration has now fallen to 1½ ounces. The problem is to find the dollars to pay for it."

Sir Andrew commented on a Canadian Press story from Toronto which, in reporting a speech of his last Thursday, said "Britons had a choice between Canadian cheese and rearmament—and they have chosen rearmament."

The story, reporting his speech before the 19th annual convention of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association in Toronto, also quoted him as saying the rearmament was forcing Britain to seek a balance in her foreign trade and chances of cheese and bacon contracts with Canada this year were "exceedingly dim." The speech was read for him in his absence due to illness.

Not His Line

"Guns versus butter is not my line," said Sir Andrew, who has been head of the food mission here since 1946. "Nothing in the text of my speech suggests that any such choice had to be made."

As for "dim" contracts for Canadian foodstuffs this year, he was referring, he said, to bacon and not cheese.

Although the possibility of a bacon contract with Canada is "exceedingly dim," he said, Britain's purchases in other foodstuffs are increasing. For example, imports of Canadian wheat and flour in 1951 climbed by $2,000,000 over 1950. Purchases of Canadian minerals had increased by $50,000,000.

But Britain was still spending more for food in Canada than for minerals. Wheat and flour purchases last year totalled $211,500,000. Purchases of Canadian minerals, needed in export trade and rearmament program, totalled $129,600,000.

In 1952 Britain's policy on food will be:

1. Hold down the general ration at or even below the 1951 level and prevent restoration of the comparatively affluent rations enjoyed in 1950.

2. Reduce drastically supplies of non-rationed and expensive substitutes for rationed foodstuffs which may be scarce. Examples are canned ham, other canned meats and sugar-fat mixtures.

3. Reduce the supply of non-rationed foodstuffs, such as various canned goods, fresh fruit and vegetable, nuts and biscuits.

No Early Relief

No early relief can be expected from this intensified austerity program, but, said Sir Andrew, Canadians should not join others who may be busily engaged in writing obituary notices of Britain's economic demise.

"History proves the British are a people resolute in adversity: they are in no way dismayed by the prospects of long and arduous struggle to put their country firmly on its feet financially.

"They will endure hardship and privation to achieve that objective. They will give the lie to those who maintain that our country's recovery from its present economic plight will be possible only if external aid is forthcoming."

Omemee Council Assumes Office

OMEMEE, Jan. 18 (ENS) — The inaugural meeting of the Omemee Council was held Monday evening with Reeve Harry Deyell and Councillors George Stephenson, Grant Wallerman, Walter Mitchell and Wilson Ellis present. Before proceeding with the business the Reeve welcomed the two new councillors, Wallerman and Ellis. Memberships were ordered taken in the Ontario Municipal Association and the Ontario Good Roads Association.

On motion of Ellis and Wallerman, L. M. McKenzie was re-appointed rink manager. The firemen's insurance was left the same as it was last year.

Bylaws were passed for appointing the following officers: Dr. G. N. Earle, medical health officer; L. McQuade and J. Glading, board of health (L. McQuade chairman of the board); J. Linton to the school board. Bylaws were also passed to borrow money to the extent of $10,500 until taxes are paid, and to spend on street maintenance and culverts up to $1,200.

Mrs. C. Elliott reported rink receipts to date totalled $413.

The following committees were reported: road and bridge, Stephenson and Ellis; property, Mitchell and Walerman. The secretary was autthorized to pay the accounts due which totalled $851.22.

The meeting adjourned to meet Feb. 4 at 8 pm.

Clerkless Counties Council Muddles Through Session

COBOURG, Jan. 18—(ENS)—Northumberland and Durham Counties Council Wednesday selected Ken Symons of Harwood as counties clerk, following the interview of three other applicants, Lou Griffiths of Cobourg, Harold Bigelow of Port Hope and H. E. Milson of Orono.

Earlier, the special committee entrusted to the job of interviewing applicants, recommended Lou Griffiths for the post but on motion of Reeve Elmer Scott of Hope Township council decided to hear the applications of the four who comprised the list thus narrowed down.

The need of someone to direct the council away from the pitfalls of jumbled motions and amendments was evident after council had wallowed about in uncertainty and confusion but finally the job of getting a new clerk was settled around 6 pm. Meanwhile no attention has been paid to the raft of accumulated communications, minutes have to be written and other routine matters attended to, things which couldn't be done without a clerk.

The assistant clerk, Miss Claire Erskine, was ill Wednesday to complicate matters further. A new clerk, regardless of his accountancy experience still has to learn council procedure and to acquire a working knowledge of the Municipal Act. A hectic time is foreseen for the balance of the session.

Report of the special audit into the books of William E. Barr, who resigned as clerk-and-treasurer last December, was incomplete when given at Wednesday's session and the investigation will continue. The audit covers 1950 and 1951 but some of the check-up of items goes back earlier, it was revealed.

Total $1,453

The report said that there were irregularities which still had not been explained by Mr. Barr. Receipts for livestock sales, indemnities paid to council members and other items, totalling $1,453.68, had been paid back by Mr. Barr but there were other items amounting to $1,279.34 which had not been explained satisfactorily by Mr. Barr. Further items which totalled $453.99, might be possible of explanation and were considered as still under investigation.

"There have been numerous instances in which money turned over to the clerk by Mr. Duncan (superintendent of the Counties Home) for sale of farm produce have not been deposited by the clerk to the credit of the counties at the time of receipt.

"There are also some cheques in payment of farm produce, for hogs shipped, which were payable personally to Mr. Barr and not properly accounted for. Some of these amounts have been repaid by Mr. Barr. Pension cheques for old age pensioners at the Counties Home are received monthly, payable to the treasurer and the course is for the counties to retain all but three dollars a month which goes to the pensioner. The procedure was to prepare a monthly summary of such cheques and cash distributed, and to deposit the cheques, less cash required for distribution. There were several instances in which the amount deposited is less than the total as determined from the list of pensioners and the cash said to have been distributed to them," the report said.

The auditors said that they were proceeding under difficulty due to lack of information in regard to some items. The auditors recommended a system by which everything would be paid by cheque except for minor petty cash items.

Later in the meeting, while discussing the work which the counties clerk-and-treasurer had to do, ex-warden George Walton, who acting as clerk in the absence of Miss Erskine, said that in his opinion one man could do the job without an assistant. He said he was not blaming Miss Erskine but the fact remained that Mr. Barr had not shown her sufficiently what work she would be required to do. Mr. Walton said that Mr. Barr had left things undone and that at the present time "the office is in one heck of a mess."

Council adjourned until Thursday.

Natural Body Cancer-Fighter Sometimes Clears Up Disease

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP)—There is a new angle in cancer—something in our bodies that just naturally fights off this malignant growth.

The records are becoming undeniable that this fight occasionally cures a cancer. It's rare enough to be a medical curiostiy, but the aid of this natural cancer-fighter is beginning to cheer many a cancer patient.

Cancers are different—some fast—some slow. More important, people are different. Some folks are tougher than others for cancer.

In medical records there are more than 300 cases of cancer patients whose malignant growths spontaneously got better. One hundred of these were cured by themselves.

One is from an unpublished case of a cancer expert. A young woman had a cancer in her neck. It could not be removed by surgery, or cured by X-rays or radium. She was given not long to live but for nine years she worked at her profession, without trouble from her cancer. Then she was killed in an auto accident. The doctors opened her neck for a look. There was the cancer. But for nine years it had not grown larger.

The latest evidence adds up to this—cancers grow at different rates. Fast-killing cancers sometimes slow down. Slow-growing cancers sometimes turn into rapid-killers. The reason is something about the way in which your body is able to regulate growth of its tissues.

The body probably has more than one way of doing this, and likely there are many protective variations. They concern nourishment of various tissues and possibly competition between cancerous and healthy tissue for the same nourishment. In the cases before 1918 a number of infections, such as erysipelas, tuberculosis and pneumonia came along about the time the cancer spontaneously started getting better.

IT'S A "MERCY BOMB"—Maj. Robert L. Holsomback, left, of Houston, Tex., and Sgt. Walter C. Minize of Vallejo, Calif., show the make-up of their "mercy bomb," a sort of airborne St. Bernard" that they planned and built at an air base in Korea. The shell is an obsolete napalm tank, painted yellow and red for easier visibility. Contents include heavy clothing, a carbine, water-purifying tablets, a first-aid kit, food for three days, a portable stove, a sleeping bag, radio and various other emergency needs. The tank is designed to be fastened underneath a rescue plane and dropped at very low altitude to downed airmen, stranded or cut-off G.I.'s.

Many In US Felt Churchill Trying To Save Dead Age

(Editor's Note: The following is presented as an American newspaperman's viewpoint on Prime Minister Churchill's address on Thursday.)

By RUSSEL BRINES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—Winston Churchill came before Congress Thursday as a resolute man trying to save an age that is dead.

The tired old warrior gave that impression to many of the Congressmen who will have to decide what further assistance the British receive.

His rolling sentences contained a specific proposal:

That the United States, France and Turkey send "token forces," at least, to the Suez Canal Zone to help guard Egypt and the rest of the Middle East—once Britain's preserve.

The sentence promtped several Congressmen to recall what Churchill said during the Second World War:

"I did not become His Majesty's first minister to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire."

With much of that empire gone and much imperilled, Churchill convinced many of his listeners Thursday that he is still trying to preserve it.

Great Drama

This was the great drama Thursday. Churchill spoke proudly as the leader of a nation whose will once was law throughout much of the world. He was most eloquent, it seems, in speaking of the past.

He addressed the Congress of the nation which succeeded Britain in world leadership.

The American demand for change clashed silently with the British respect for tradition.

Churchill's speech itself was ironic. It was devoted primarily to the world changes occurring between his two periods of service as British Prime Minister.

He quoted a saying: "To improve is to change, to be perfect is to have changed often."

But many Coungressmen saw Churchill as the prepresentative of a nation which, by temperament and circumstances, had not changed enough.

Victoria Too Staid

VICTORIA, BC, Jan. 18 (CP)—Leon Etienne, 73-year-old former Parisian trying to bring a spark of gaiety to staid old Victoria, confessed Thursday to distributing Russian First World War bonds on downtown streets. He said he found the useless bonds in a wastepaper basket in the post office. "Victoria is not a very gay city and for a Parisian, gaiety will never die," he said. "As I am obliged to make my own fun, I thought maybe I would make fun with the bonds. No?"

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP)—Hugh James Graham, 27, of Strathroy, Thursday night was acquitted of a charge of rape arising from an alleged offence against an 18-year-old girl in Caradoc township, Nov. 24. Mr. Justice J. Maurice King termed Graham's conduct "most disgraceful" according to Graham's own evidence during the trial.

Liquor Board Cuts Prices On Slow-Moving Brands

TORONTO, Jan 18.—Without fanfare the Liquor Control Board has been running a January White Sale just like the stores handling other kinds of goods.

The board has marked down the prices on 32 assorted brands to clear them out. These are slow-moving lines in which there are only a few cases left.

One brand of rum, of which there are 50 to 60 cases scattered through the province's 170-odd stores, has been cut from $4.55 to $3.50. Another rum—the slow-moving lines appear to be mostly in rum—has been cut 60 cents. There are 164 cases of this one left, none of them in the warehouse.

The board's reasoning is that it is cheaper to cut the prices and finish off these slow-sellers than to return them to the Toronto warehouse and hold them there, possibly forever.

In addition to the odd lots reduced to clear, the board has altered the prices on 92 other brands. Mostly they have been altered downward.

There are two reasons for these price cuts, most of which are modest: The price charged the board by the distiller or vintner is lower, or the increased value of the Canadian dollar has had its effect.

Recover Fliers' Body

DETROIT, Jan. 18 (CP)—The body of Lieut. R. L. Cusick was recovered Thursday from the wreckage of a United States Navy plane which crashed Sunday in the Detroit river. Using a crane on a barge, a salvage crew managed to bring the wrecked plane to the surface. Earlier attempts by divers to salvage the flier's body had been unsuccessful.

Individual Stamina Stressed In Korea War

MONTREAL, Jan. 18 (CP)—The war in Korea stresses the training and stamina of the individual and the quality of leadership rather than the scientific and technical point, members of the Montreal Kiwanis Club were told Thursday.

Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of the Canadian Defence Research Board, said:

"On the ground there is little opportunity to use the gadgetry of modern warfare, partly because of the difficult terrain and climate and partly because the enemy is using only the simplest of weapons and equipment."

Dr. Solandt said Canadians have again demonstrated their ability to excel in this kind of warfare.

Drop Murder Charge To Manslaughter

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—A murder charge against Capt. Franklin B. Weaver, accused of shooting a cook on the high seas, Thursday was reduced to manslaughter.

A federal grand jury acted to lessen the charge, which alleges that Weaver, master of the Isbrandtsen Company's freighter Flying Trader, shot and killed William Harvey, 24-year-old negro, aboard the ship last October.

Federal prosecutors say the captain purportedly shot Harvey in a scuffle which came when the cook went berserk.

Proud Civic Record

OSLO — (CP). — Not a single murder was committed in Oslo in 1951, but reported crimes were nine per cent higher than in 1950. Arrests for drunkenness declined by more than 2,000 and there were more thefts, but sex crimes, assaults and embezzlements were fewer.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Suggests Changing Water When Cooking Turnips.

THANK YOU TO GREETING READERS: Thank you for all of your kind and thoughtful Christmas and New Year's messages. One arrived from North West Territories two weeks after New Years, but was dated December 9th. I have posted notes to many of you acknowledging your greetings and gifts. I am the one who should and do thank you for your friendship and loyalty.

✧ ✧ ✧

LETTER: Many times I have been tempted to write you a few lines commenting on some of your down to earth recipes in your column but one issue decided me to comment on the turnip recipes. As an amateur cook I have used the turnip and potato, 50-50 mixture, many years. When very young, and that was more than 60 years ago, on visits to a favorite aunt, she invariably served this mixture smothered in rich brown gravy. M-m-m. I have found that the turnips grown in this country in the average year are inclined to be strong flavored and bitter and the water they are boiled in is unsuitable for gravies or soups, in fact (in our community) it is best to change the water while cooking.

Carrots cooked and mashed with the potatoes are an equally good dish, and by watching, the water they are boiled in (if only a little is used for boiling) can be left in the pot while mashing adding cream and butter to taste and give flexibility.

Turnips are good added to stews if stronger flavored meats such as young mutton (butchers call it lamb in this country) or wild game meats—the quantity not to be out of proportion to the other vegetables. More power to your pen. L. M. A.

ANSWER: Your letter was a treat. It must be our English blood that makes us like mashed turnips with brown gravy. If we have any brown gravy left after a roast of beef is a thing of the past you may be sure mashed turnips will turn up under it.

Thanks for the mashed carrot and potato idea. Let me help you sometime.

LETTER: My husband joins me in wishing you and your family the happiest of holidays. We are so very grateful to you for the information you sent us in reference to buying skim milk powder in large quantities. It has been a blessing to be able to buy it so cheaply, and now I can use so much more of it in my cooking. Lucy Z.

ANSWER: Skim milk powder is certainly proving to be a blessing to those who are determined to get milk into the diets of their families in spite of the high cost of fluid milk. Thank you.

QUESTION: My husband is crazy about spareribs. I like them too but I think you pay too high prices for anything containing so much bone. However I like to make things nice for him—he is a wonderful provider and husband. Would you print a recipe for spareribs with sauerkraut. It would be very popular with us and many of your readers. Anna.

ANSWER: It's popular with me too, Anna.

Spareribs With Sauerkraut

Cut the spareribs into 2 or 3-rib pieces. Brown them in a little butter in a hot frying pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Drain a 28-oz. tin of sauerkraut or use 4 cups of your own or as much as you think your family will eat. Put in pot, cover with spareribs, add 2 cups water, cover and simmer until spareribs are tender enough to nearly fall off bones—about 1 hour. Serve spareribs in a radiating circle on top of the sauerkraut on a deep round chop platter.

NOTE: Amount of water may be reduced to 1 cup and this may by baked covered in oven of 350 deg. Fahr. for about 1¼ hours.

STEPPIN' UP—To the shoe conscious gal these offerings should bring Spring consolation. (Left top) Proof that a medium shoe can be slick and sophisticated. Its color combination is brand new: mushroom tan calf with overlay and string bow of black calf. (Centre) Another medium heeled pump, this time of tan with white perforations in scroll pattern. Notice too, the square throat of the pump. (Right) A pump as bare as a sandal with "guard" at sides to cover part of the toes, made in black patent, it is called "Lyric." (Left bottom) An oblique banded sandal in white. The bands are pleated to give the added feminine touch. "X" marks the spot where the new anklestraps begin.

Woman Lawyer Outlines Women's Responsibilities

A stimulating address by a woman who appears to have so far exemplified her topic in her own life was heard at the luncheon meeting of Local Council of Women Thursday, attended by executive members and conveners, representatives of most of the 35 affiliated societies and members of the City Council and their wives.

This woman was Mrs. F. E. Underhill of London, Ontario, and her quotation topic was "Life is too short for us not to make it great"—Disraeli.

The "meaty" part of the address was Mrs. Underhill's statement to the women: "High prices are at your own doorstep."

She explained it under three headings of four she named as women's responsibilities: To God; To Family; To Community; To Self. "My responsibility to God is my own business, but after I have decided on it, I must be tolerant of anything which lives up to Christian standards," she said.

Mother's Influence

Being a mother is the greatest honor in the world, the speaker agreeed, but do mothers realize they have influence on at least 20 people of following generations? She laid the responsibility on the mothers for today's generation with the laissez-faire attitude—"get all we can for as little as possible." Insistence on eight-hour days with rest periods, five-day working weeks, and lack of dependability among workers has brought about the high prices, she pointed out.

Another characteristic of this generation, for which mothers have the responsibility this speaker said, is that "everyone cheats — is, in fact, expected to do so." Income tax returns are falsified, mileages are turned back on used cars, cheaper dresses are poorly made, — but, if children had been brought up with integrity these wouldn't be the accepted happenings."

Might Have Boycotted

Women have the purchasing power of the nation, it is said, and if they had boycotted rising prices, written to their members of Parliament and otherwise protested, the answer could have been different now, said Mrs. Underhill. Women failed in their responsibility to the community and themselves, because, instead they talked over the back fence with horror about the new prices.

Not Democratic

The speaker referred to the current "strike" of TTC employees in Toronto and to the past strike of railway employees. "I believe in unions," she declared, "but never be deluded — they are not democratic." She expressed her opinion that people working for public utilities should not be allowed to strike. "As democratic people we can pick and choose where we will work, so that those desiring freedom to strike need not work where strikes are forbidden."

"Women represent 53 per cent of the population," the speaker quoted from statistical report and remarked on the faot they are not taking their portion of responsibility in official positions. "People take you at your own face value," she warned the women. Further statistics were about the more than a million working women in Canada of whom 60 per cent are married. The speaker said it has been shown that if the married women were withdrawn from industry, it would create a depression immediately and one-third of the hospitals would be closed. A further break-down on working women showed that out of 100, 84 work to support themselves and dependents, eight to pay for special projects, and eight to add to income.

Come a Long Way

Women have come a long way since the Married Women's Property Act of 1882 gave them economic power. They have gained the vote, experience in industry and professions, power and esteem, the speaker summed up. During the First World War they worked to hold positions for men, but in the Second they went to war, as well as going into factories to do a job.

Mrs. Underhill concluded by stating the challenge to today's women—not to have a "responsible government" but to realize they are responsible for the government to the next generation. "The future of Canada is in the hands of the women and I pray that we can live up to it."

Mrs. Underhill, who is a successful lawyer, in partnership with her husband, is the mother of four children—the eldest 10 years, the youngest one. She was married before she entered law school in Toronto and completed her education 12 years ago. She was introduced by a member of her profession now resident in Peterborough — Mrs. Louis Zachs. An expression of thanks from the Council was tendered her by Mrs. Frank Merrett, chairman of the laws committee. Mrs. Underhill is chairman of legislation for the National Council of Women.

At the afternoon session of the annual meeting, Mrs. Underhill gave Council members the benefit of her legal knowledge when she explained the law regarding wills, beneficiaries and succession duties.

History St. Joseph's Hospital Outlined To Ladies' Aux.

After dinner speaker for the sixth annual meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital Thursday evening was Mr. F. J. Overend, member of the hospital board.

This meeting also marked the official opening of the new cafeteria, in which it was held, so it was fitting that the speaker should outline the progress of the hospital. In the past five years a three-point building program has been carried on by the Sisters and the finishing of the cafeteria marks completion of the new hospital wing.

Mr. Overend began with the purchase in 1885 by Bishop Dowling of the property then known as St. Leonard's Park and on which was a brick residence and a stable, used to house aged, infirm and orphans for a time. The next five years the Catholic people strove and raised the sum of $16,000, and in 1890 saw the erection of the first St. Joseph's Hospital with 25 beds and provision for two wards for contagious cases.

This building served for 14 years, he said, but in 1904 further plans resulted in the northern addition containing more bedrooms, an operating room and elevator. In 1922 the south wing was added with 60 more beds and equipped with every hospital device that could be obtained at the time.

First Training School

The first training school for nurses was organized under the late Sister St. Michael in 1906. With the assistance of Miss Winterholt, a capable teacher, the first graduation of nurses took place on April 12, 1909, the speaker recounted.

Before the recent bold and daring building program, the property and building was sold for one dollar to the Sisters so that responsibility for sucess of this venture has been on their shoulders alone. With foresight they provided a place for the staff that would be needed for a larger hospital first, and the nurses' residence, costing $250,000, was opened in December, 1948. Next stage was to have a boiler house and laundry large enough for the bigger hospital, and the final stage the fine new west wing costing a half million dollars, bringing the total accommodation to 187 beds.

The speaker referred to the assistance given on this project by Bishop Berry and to the encouragement given the Sisters by people of all religious persuasions. The Ladies' Auxiliary was organized by Mrs. F. J. Lynch in time to give assistance in furnishing the reception room of the residence, the library, and to set up a tuck shoppe for convenience of patients and visitors to the hospital. New and vital hospital equipment has been provided also, relieving the Sisters of this financial burden.

New Equipment

Particular reference was then made to the new, modern kitchen, ensuring greater efficiency, and the cafeteria, costing $22,000. Also to the new nursery with 22 beds, costing $18,000, which is of the most advanced design, having separate cubicles for the children, and ultra violet rays to kill any germs. Mr. Overend said the modern X-ray equipment in this hospital now is not duplicated anywhere in this part of Ontario.

With the all-important services rendered by the Sisters, working in harmony with the medical profession, the public is assured of the very best care for the sick in St. Joseph's Hospital, Mr. Overend concluded.

In introducing the speaker, Miss Agnes Grant remarked on the happy custom of dining together to celebrate an anniversary.

Bishop Berry also spoke of the pleasure in such a meeting, to which Father McEachern, chaplain of the hospital, was also a guest, as he congrautlated the auxiliary on its work at the hospital and the assistance in supplying good pieces of equipment. Nurses are also relieved by the auxiliary's efforts in providing the tuck shop and travelling library to keep the patients happy.

He expressed a hope for still greater efforts, larger suport and greater diffusion of activities of the auxiliary.

Mrs. B. Monahan Elected Head St. Joseph's Aux.

The occasion was unique in that it was held in the new cafeteria of the hospital and marked the opening of service there to nurses and patrons.

O'Toole, were violet day, netting $834 and the booth at the Peterborough Exhibition, netting $506. Balance was from membership fees and Mrs. B. Monahan reported a total of 932 members and two new life members, making this number 143.

Hayes of Douro, Mrs. Coveney of Hastings who said payment of $300 for a room at the hospital had been completed; Mrs. Walsh of Norwood who reported raising $200 as the share promised toward furnishings of a hospital room, Mrs. Driscoll of Assumption. Lakefield ladies did not attend the meeting and telephoned their report to Mrs. Anglesey.

Twelve hundred articles completed was reported by sewing convener Mrs. J. Paquette. Mrs. G. Poole reported on entertainment of the nurses-in-training and Miss Louise Flynn reported on the tuck shop, specially thanking all the helpers who give their time free of charge.

Money and articles donated to St. Joseph's cupboard was acknowledged in the report by Mrs. E. O'Brien. She said 108 pairs of bootees had been knit this year, adding to the store on hand which will be distributed to new mothers when there is sufficient supply. Mrs. W. Hickey said that 244 patients had been contacted by the library committee and more than 1,500 books or magazines distributed.

Sister Superior addressed the meeting briefly to tell the Auxiliary members of the comfort their work and presence gives the Sisters in their work and extended thanks on behalf of the Reverend Mother and the community of St. Joseph's.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Pass Along Tips On Ways To Save Food And Power

BY KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Chief aim of the thrift campaign launched by the National Council of Women is to impress on manufacturers that when prices are too steep, women won't buy.

But women themselves may learn a few tricks about methods of saving. In its January newsletter the council offered some tips sent in by its members. If there are any other ideas, either in the way of household hints or inexpensive recipes, this column would be glad to pass them along.

The council's New Year's resolution says: "I will not waste food, fuel or lighting or any other article or service used in my home. I will buy nothing that I do not need nor more than I require."

(Therefore that pointing finger means that you had best think twice before stocking up with half a dozen new dresses at the January sales). Remember—buy only what you need.

Thrifty With Power

The council urges everyone to be thrifty with power. Lights should be kept burning only in the room or rooms actually occupied. Fill a kettle—don't turn on the hot-water heater—when a small amount of water is needed.

When using the oven of the electric-stove, plan to bake as much as possible and avoid using to top burners as well.

If the house is heated by coal, furnace and pipes should be cleaned once a month by throwing half a cup of powdered zinc on the fire when it is red hot. Be sure to open all drafts before doing this.

In cooking vegetables don't forget advice from the nutrition division of the health department—cooking water should be saved for soups and gravies because it contains valuable vitamins and minerals.

Serve vegetables immediately they are cooked, as they lose much of their vitamin content if left standing.

Inexpensive Soup

Beef shank soup is easy to make and doesn't cut too deeply into the food budget.

Ingredients: Three pounds beef shank; 2½ quarts water; two teaspoons salt.

Let bone soak 30 minutes before cooking. A bone with marrow makes good soup. Cover with more water and let simmer three hours. Remove the scum. Never boil. Add onions, carrots, celery. Tomatoes also may be added.

Helpful Hint

Did you know that if you first heat a knife in boiling water you will be able to slice bread or angel food cake as thinly as you wish.

Planning Special VON Week

OTTAWA—(CP)—Canada will tip its hat next month to Victorian Order Nurses, the more than 500 girls in blue who help guard the nation's health in towns and cities from coast to coast.

The week of Feb. 24 has been set aside in their honor. "Its purpose," VON president, Mr. Justice C. H. Locke, said in a statement "is to bring about a better public understanding of the work of the VON."

He explained that many persons are not fully aware of the services which the order offers citizens in all walks of life.

"We hope that through the information provided during VON week everyone will come to realize what an asset this nursing service is in the community and how we all can use it."

Organized more than half a century ago, the VON was established and has been maintained for the chief purpose of providing nursing care with health teaching on a visit basis to patients in their own homes.

The service is for everyone regardless of race, religion or the ability to pay. Each nurse is a graduate registered nurse with additional training or experience in public health nursing.

Well-Rounded Service

A VON nurse gives needed care and treatment in the homes. She teaches young homemakers how to buy and use nutritious foods. She counsels all members of the family pertaining to health and is a sympathetic friend.

Patients who are able will pay a moderate fee to cover cost. Some pay part of the cost, and care is never refused because of a patient's inability to pay.

In a year the VON nurse serves something like 140,000 patients and makes 1,000,000 visits. In 10 years the order's patients have increased by more than 50 per cent.

Dramatic Story

"The history of the VON is a dramatic story of Canadian development," said Mr. Justice Locke. "And the services it is rendering today are of enormous value to the whole country."

Christine Livingston, VON superintendent, said in one of her recent annual reports: "New discoveries in medical science, changes in medical techniques and the increased use of hospitals have created a necessity for new methods and patterns in nursing service . . . the need for visiting nursing service in Canada is steadily increasing."

Mr. Justice Locke emphasized that VON week is not a money-raising project. "It is simply a week during which we would like Canadians to take a look at the VON and what it is doing."

Girl Finds College Dates Not Ready To Settle Down

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm so confused. It seems all the boys I date are playboys. Their lives are just one big party. They date a girl a few times, then never get in touch with her again. Some people say most college boys are like that. Are they? I'm rather an attractive girl with a good personality, dress well and am a good dancer. Boys seem to enjoy my company—but don't come back. They don't seem to want to settle down.

CATHARINE D.

ANSWER: The fact that a young man, especially a college boy, doesn't act in too much of a rush to marry and settle down, doesn't prove he's a "playboy" in the uncomplimentary sense of the word. All it indicates is that he's a normal teen-ager seeking normal fun.

Dorothy Dix

The trouble is in your own attitude. If you try to pin a young man down to a discussion of marriage when he'd much rather enjoy a dance or a set of tennis, he'll turn and run like mad. Also, perhaps you're too absorbed in your own charms to acknowledge those of your male companions. Boys like to be admired and looked up to, remember. They resent the constant demands of a vain female.

✧ ✧ ✧

Independent Mother

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a widow in my early 70's, independent of my six children. I have a house with a small flat upstairs. I occupy the flat, my youngest son lives downstairs. He pays the rent, but feels that I should make a will leaving him the house because he has paid the rent. I think his five sisters should have a share in the property as they are all good to me. Am I right? My children all means the same to me.—W. R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Bless you for your independent spirit, and fairmindedness. I'm sure no in-law trouble has ever marred the peace of your family; if so it certainly hasn't come through you. You are absolutely right in your contention that any property you have should be divided equally among your children. Since your son would have to pay rent wherever he lived, he is certainly doing you no favor by paying it to you. In fact, renting to an out-sider would probably yield a larger income in these days of high rents.

Don't let him sway your opinion; make a will (that's a legal formality everyone with even a small piece of property should observe), but provide for equal distribution of whatever you leave.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have been married only six weeks. My husband and I are very happy Monday to Friday. On Friday he begins drinking and keeps it up for the weekend. I hate to see people get drunk, and his condition is causing me considerable distress.

M. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Life holds few problems more hopeless than that of a drinker who is perfectly satisfied with his condition. If a man wants to throw off the shackles of alcoholism, there are agencies to render every assistance, but the sot who wallows in his degradation is beyond help.

Appeal to your husband's better nature (which asserts itself during the week); seek the assistance of an older friend, clergyman or doctor; if possible, try phychiatric aid. One of these might work a miracle in your case, but at best it is a remote possibility.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: After raising a big family, I'm old and tired. My children are all married, with homes of their own, except one boy. He and his wife live with us though they are both working and can afford a home of their own. I do most all the work for them with no appreciation at all. When my husband and I ask them to find a place, they just laugh at us.

M. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: After raising a large family you're entitled to a rest. Your simplest recourse is to inform your son and his wife that you are too tired to continue working at the present pace, and just stop doing their work. If you need more drastic measures, why don't you and your husband take a vacation this winter? Leave the house and all its responsibilities to your son for a while; he'll get mighty tired of running it.

What's Right?

High school or college students are inviting faculty members to a luncheon or dinner.

WRONG: They invite the faculty members but not their wives, in the cases of married men.

RIGHT: They invite the wives of the married men.

Omemee WA Reviews Work Year

OMEMEE, Jan. 18 (ENS). — At the January meeting of Trinity United church WA held at the home of Mrs. S. D. Vaughan, the past year's work was reviewed

The secretary reported 10 meetings held last year with an average attendance of 20 out of a membership of 32. Twenty-five remembrances were sent to the sick, 14 sympathy cards to bereaved and 35 Christmas greetings to shut-ins. When the treasurer reported $554 in the bank with all expenses paid, it was decided to invest in another $500 bond for the building fund.

Two new committees were formed, Christian citizenship and Christian fellowship. Mrs. Graham was appointed convener for citizenship. Fellowship work was to be covered by each group in turn, for the same period of time for which they are responsible for arranging the monthly programs.

Mrs. Deyell was appointed to represent the WA on the local committee to canvass for the United Church Training School project. Mrs. Brooks and Mrs. V. Lang were named an apron committee for the bazaar and spring tea. $3.50 was voted for Presbytery fees.

Group leader Mrs. R. Brooks led the worship service on the theme "Christian Living." She was assisted by Mrs. A. Weir and Mrs. T. A. McConnell. The topic "What God Expects of Christians" was presented by Mrs. McConnell. "For many people," she said, "our lives are their only Bible. What sort of reading do we provide?"

Orland Brown, faith and evangelism convener, took charge of the devotional period. Orville Williamson and Keith Jones read the scripture lesson. Orland Brown led in prayer. Gordon Williamson read a poem, "Hard Work", and Leona McMillan, accompanied by Dorothy McMillan on the piano played a violin solo.

Guest speaker was Herbert Caskey, whose topic was "The Necessity of Having a Margin in Life". A piano solo was given by Margaret Clark.

COLDSPRINGS, Jan. 18 (ENS)—The annual congregational meeting of St. Paul's United church was held in the Sunday school room. The Rev. P. C. Brown presided with Arthur Jamieson, secretary.

The session report was read by John Bowman, clerk of the session. One hundred and seventy are on the church roll, with 20 non-resident. Three new members were added during the year and two discontinued by death.

The auditor's report was given by Percy Davidson, showing the books had been audited and found correct. The treasurer's report by David Buttars showed a balance on hand of $896.44. Mr. Buttars, who has been treasurer for the past 25 years, retired and is being succeeded by Edwin Morrison. A vote of thanks was moved to Mr. Buttars for his faithful service by Mr. Brown.

On motion, the auditors, ushers, and stewards were re-elected, as well as all other officers. Group reports showed all organizations had a successful year.

It was moved that Miss Hoskin, Mrs. D. Buttars, Mrs. H. Davidson and Mrs. A. Jamieson be a nominating committee to form a WA of St. Paul's church.

Planning Committee

ber of this committee. I'd rather see it seconded by a member who has studied these questions longer than I have."

"That's the way I feel," said Ald. Longhurst.

"I can't see that the bread plant would do any particular harm over there; I'll second it," said James Hamilton.

First Meeting

This was the first meeting of the 1952 city planning committee. All the members were present: James Dutton, Mr. Hamilton, Hubert Sills, City Engineer E. A. Chalmers, and the new members, Aldermen Rehill, Graham, Longhurst and ex-Ald. Ernest C. Braund.

Mr. Braund was appointed in the place of William Tinker whose health required him to resign. Mr. Dutton had asked to be relieved of the chairmanship, but was willing to carry on as a member.

"For this meeting at least," Mr. Hamilton suggested at the opening, "I'd like to see Mr. Dutton act as chairman, and we could later consider an appointment for the year."

Mr. Dutton agreed, and welcomed the two young members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Les Groombridge and Bruce Edwards. They presented the supporting petition, after explaining their interest in trying to bring this Canada Bread industry to the city.

The petition declared that the 25 property-owners in the vicinity of the proposed lot were in favor of its rezoning from third density-residential to light industrial.

No Good For Houses

"We believe this lot, being filled land, could not be used as a site for houses, and therefore will remain a piece of waste land for many years to come; and that erection on it of a well planned, modern light industry building would be preferable. The employees of such a plant can be expected to buy or build homes in the neighborhood of this plant which will help the property of all of us in this part of the city."

Among the names attached were: Leonard Agnew, R. L. Prescott, P. A. Lowes, Kent Throop, Ken Beavis, Mr. and Mrs. W. Starr, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Howley, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Crowe, J. O. Connelly, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Fisher, and others.

Jaycees' Enterprise

Mr. Groombridge previously presented to the committee a review of their interest in this industrial project.

"The Junior Chamber of Commerce has become concerned over the number of industries which have failed to build in Peterborough though they looked on our city's location and services with favor.

One case came to our attention last month, this being the offer of Canada Bread Co. Ltd. to buy the city property on the west side of Rogers St., immediately north of Tivey St.

"Upon investigation, we found this to be a desirable type of industry for this zone, and would benefit the city as a whole in many ways.

"We feel that the Faludi plan should not be taken lightly. However, due to existing installations in the area concerned, and the nature of the property which this company wishes to purchase, in this case an exception should be made, and the rezoning of this lot effected.

"It was evidenced that some residents in the adjacent area were not in favor of this change. To get a complete consensus, we made a survey of owners around this location.

"After giving the owners a brief of the facts in this case, their opinion was requested as to the desirability of the proposed industry. We find that the majority of the owners are in favor of this industry locating on that property. This is substantiated by their signatures on the attached petition."

A concluding clause asked the committee to recommend rezoning of the lot.

Mr. Dutton congratulated the two young men on their presentation. "We are very happy to see the members of the Junior Chamber taking such an interest in civic matters."

"We hope you'll come back again some time," Mr. Hamilton added.

Magistrate To Decide True Story, Dismisses Case

Charges of careless driving against two men were dismissed by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court Thursday after the evidence was heard.

"The evidence is so balanced that I cannot find which one is deliberately falsifying the evidence of what took place," said Magistrate Philp in dismissing the careless driving charge against Benjamin Caldwell, Bridgenorth.

Caldwell was one of three drivers involved in a three car crash on the Chemong Road the evening of December 1. Four people were injured in the accident, three being hospitalized.

The Magistrate said he was dismissing the charge, because Caldwell, and Gerald Willis, 400 Wolsley St., told "two entirely different stories which could scarcely be reconciled. Possibly one story should be accepted, but I cannot find evidence to dismiss entirely the evidence of either."

Broadside On Road

Caldwell said he was driving south on the Chemong Road about 35 miles an hour. When he was about three car lengths from Wolsley St., Caldwell said he saw a car "broadside on the highway. The car took a sweeping turn to the right," he said and stopped facing south on the Chemong Road.

Applying his brakes, Caldwell said he pulled to the right. Then as the cars were just about touching, he said the car ahead (driven by Willis) started up, continued slowly, then stopped again. At this point, he said he hit the Willis car a glancing blow on the rear. After hitting the Willis car, Caldwell's car went across the road, into the path of a northbound car driven by Wallace Shearer, 246½ Antrim St. The two cars collided head on.

Saw Nothing

Willis testified he came east on Wolsley St., and stopped at the Chemong Road. After waiting for one southbound car to pass, he said he saw nothing coming and turned south on the Chemong Road. He said he had just shifted from low into second gear when he was struck from behind. Willis denied that he had stopped but said he may have been "coasting" for a few seconds as he was shifting gears. Willis said he did not change gears twice and was still in second when the accident occurred.

Caldwell was defended by Robert Carley.

Conditions Bad

In dismissing a careless driving charge against Carl Maloney, RR 9 Peterborough, Magistrate Philp said: "The accused has given an explanation which appears reasonable. He was on the wrong side of the road but driving conditions were bad, and in my opinion there is not sufficient to warrant a conviction.

Maloney was driving north on Water St., the night of December 14, when he was involved in a collision with a southbound car driven by Harold T. Sanders, 297 Louis St.

The streets were icy, and Maloney said he had just pulled around a parked car, when he was blinded by the headlights of the oncoming car and at the same time he said the wind stirred up a cloud of snow, blocking his view. Maloney said he applied his brakes and slid into the Sanders' car.

Gordon H. T. Farquharson defended Maloney.

Planning Board Turns Down Building Request

Herb Payne's plan of enlarging his truck garage accommodation on Romaine St. ran full tilt into this clause of the zoning bylaw of city planning last night:

"...a building which, at the date of enactment of this bylaw is used for a purpose not permissible within the district in which it is located, shall not be enlarged, extended..."

Mr. Hubert Sills read the clause to the city planning committee last night, and said that, confronted with that restriction, he could not vote for Mr. Payne's request.

W. B. Gordon appeared in behalf of Mr. Payne, and John C. N. Currelly submitted a petition from the neighborhood entirely against Mr. Payne's garage project.

James Dutton presided for this meeting. For about fifteen years Mr. Payne has been carrying on his transport truck business from the Romaine St. yard, near Park St. In recent months he has been extending his property holding.

Mr. Gordon explained that Mr. Payne several years ago bought a parcel of land from Mrs. Delpelarro, at the rear of houses on Park St. (Her son is one of the opponents of the Payne plan). Instead of leaving some trucks and trailer vans in the centre of the marshalling yard, he wished to put them all under cover, and to build an extension to the present garage and at right angles to it for that purpose.

Concrete Block

Mr. Gordon said construction was to be of concrete block in harmony with the original building, heated with hot water, oil furnace. The only noise about the premises would be in the opening and closing of garage doors. The hauling trucks and their trailers would be run into the garage for the night, and the deisel engines would be started under cover instead of out in the yard. In cold weather they have to be let run for a considerable time to heat up for road operation.

Mr. Gordon presented other phases of the project, but his main argument was Mr. Payne's proposed building would be an advantage to the adjoining properties.

Mr. Payne replied to Ald. Rehill that his fleet takes off usually between 5 and 7 a.m. and were back by 7 p.m., although some would be later, even to midnight.

Mr. Currelly argued that the unanimous petition was ample proof that Mr. Payne's project was distasteful to the property owners.

"Not one resident in that neighborhood desires the Board to grant a license of any kind to Mr. Payne so that he can extend his business there," Mr. Currelly said.

Opposition was more or less based on the possibility that with restriction imposed on him now, Mr. Payne might decide to move off elsewhere.

The Faludi plan set that side of Romaine Street down as residential, and if there was any rezoning for Mr. Payne as light industry it would "be a go-ahead sign" to establish the area as commercial, Mr. Currelly said.

If effectual permission were obtained to build there, it was altogether unlikely that control on Mr. Payne's work could be exercised thereafter. Objections to the enlargement of the business, plus noise, smells, fear of fire, depreciation of property values in the vicinity, were stressed in turn by Mr. Currelly.

Read Bylaw

Mr. Sills opened up the bylaw and read the first clause in Section 19.

The original Payne garage had been long in use, and was now to be "extended," as planned, and that clause plainly said that such extensions could not be granted.

E. C. Braund commented that evidently Mr. Payne would continue to carry on the same volume of business from his Romaine St. depot whether he could enlarge the garage or not.

"I think we would be setting a dangerous precedent to grant Mr. Payne permission to make an extension of his building," Mr. Sills said. "It would be bound to apply elsewhere in the city."

Mr. Braund seconded the Sills motion rejecting the request of Mr. Payne. It carried with only Ald. Norman Graham dissenting in favor of Mr. Payne.

NEW LABOR ATTACHE — Pat Conroy, 48, former secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, has been appointed labor attache at the Canadian embassy in Washington. Mr. Conroy, who will go to Washington in a few weeks, will be the second labor attache in the Canadian diplomatic service. For the last few years Canada also has had a labor attache in London.

Icy Slopes Stall Skiing

Skiing for the weekend in the Peterborough district was washed out by Thursday's light rain which changed the snow on the hills into icy sheets.

The weekend's activities at Kemp's hill, including the ski school Saturday morning, and at the Bethany playground have been cancelled.

A Peterborough Ski Club official said today "I don't even want to see the hill. I can imagine what it's like".

At Kemp's hill the snow conditions there definitely forced cancellation of the junior ski school for the first time this year. The slope there is bare in places and icy in other spots.

"Although we would rather ski, this poor weekend will give us a chance to work at both grounds," added the official.

Across central Ontario ski enthusiasts have been hard-hit by the week's mild and rainy weather. There's no skiing at Barrie, Cobourg, Midland, Sundridge, Collingwood, Flesherton and Bolton.

The tows are still operating at Dagmar, but only good skiing is reported in the bush. Similar reports originate in Huntsville, Haileybury and Toronto summit.

These are the new members: Dr. R. S. Chenoweth, Ald. T. Douglas Miller, Reeve Norman Wilson, Reeve E. H. Northey, Mrs. W. E. Fanning, and Max J. Swanston.

Dr. Chenoweth represents the medical and surgical staff of Civic, Ald. Miller the city council, Mr. Wilson and Mr. Northey, the county council, and Mrs. Fanning the Civic Hospital Women's Auxiliary.

Tunisia Becomes New Problem As Tension Spot

By The Associated Press.

Rioting and bloodshed focused attention today on another tension spot in the sizzling Middle East, where the fires of Arab Nationalism grows hotter all the time.

This time it is Tunisia, a French protectorate in North Africa with about 3,500,000 population. Of this number about 300,000 are Europeans, half of them French. Italians rank next with around 85,000. Algeria lies on the west and Libya to the East. Tunisia's 750 miles of jagged Mediterranean cost line gives it strategic value.

The case of Tunisia was brought to the attention of the United Nations Security Council in Paris four days ago by Premier Mohammed Chenik, who made a formal demand that the council consider a plea for autonomy and divorce from French rule.

Pakistan agreed to support the move as a sympathetic Moslem country. The decision by the Arab Nationalists to seek UN aid came after months of negotiations with the French.

Makes World Tour.

Today the French put Habib Bourguiba, Tunisian Nationalist leader, in jail. Bourguiba, head of the Neo-Destour (New Constitutional) party, has been making a world tour pleading the case of his country for independence.

The Tunisians hit back with a general strike called by the L'Union Generale Tunisienne Du Travail (General Union of Tunisian Workers).

It all adds up to an ideal situation for the Communists. The French said Communist leaders were among those placed under arrest in Tunis today. There is no doubt that the Communists will exploit to the utmost the situation in Tunisia.

French rule over the protectorate dates back to June, 1883. It was interrupted during the Second World War but restored with the defeat of the Axis Forces in May, 1943.

Last Dec. 15 the French dismissed Louis Perillier as resident general of Tunisia. He had been known to favor more freedom for Tunisians.

David Albert Finley

The funeral for David Albert Finley, Emily township, who died at his residence Tuesday, was held Thursday from the Comstock funeral home. The Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Omemee United Church conducted the service.

Pallbearers were Merritt McGill, Edward Lowes, Oswald Ruth, Jack Finley, Arthur Finley, Ira Lowe. A special graveside service was conducted by members of the LOL at Emily cemetery.

12 Organizations Plan Brotherhood Week

Representatives from 12 city groups and organizations met at the Public Library Thursday night to plan activities for Brotherhood Week in Peterborough, Feb. 17 to 24.

A special effort is going to be made in the schools through the Board of Education, the Separate School Board, the Home and School associations and the Parent Teacher associations.

Pamphlet material from the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews headquarters is being distributed to all city organizations during the week.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce are supplying speakers to give addresses on brotherhood for organizations.

Bill White, Toronto, and a leader in the Canadian Negro community, will be the speaker at So-Ed on Feb. 20, and Dr. Donald Graham, of Forest Hill, Toronto, will be preaching at George St. United Church Feb. 24 and will speak at Rotary Club Feb. 25. He will also be speaking at the Normal School during Brotherhood Week.

Plane With 43 Soldiers Crashes Off BC Coast

LITTLE PROGRESS has been made in clearing the line and releasing the flyer "City of San Francisco" which is shown trapped by deep snow on the main line through a mountain pass near Emigrant Gap, California. The path in the foreground is the escape route taken by the 222 passengers and 32 crew members when they were evacuated to Nyack Lodge, six miles away, two days ago. They later made their way to a relief train and continued home.

New Storm Threatens Los Angeles

Say Worst Deluge In 19 Years; Waters Dropping

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19. — (AP)—Flooded Southern California began digging out today from its worst deluge in 14 years. The continuing storm which dumped 7.37 inches of rain on Los Angeles in three days, left 19 known dead and sent damage estimates soaring into the millions.

It was the worst downpour since the disastrous flood of March, 1938, when 11.06 inches of rain fell in five days and caused 95 deaths.

More rain is forecast for the weekend.

Hardest hit were the lowlands districts in Los Angeles and Orange counties and in the San Fernando Valley. Nearly 1,200 families evacuated from their homes as flood waters reached depths of three to four feet, returned to survey and repair the damage.

Water Receding

The water was receding today. Crews were clearing debris-ridden streets. Main traffic arteries were re-opening. In Los Angeles alone, 1,400 men and 300 machines were at work cleaning up.

Federal forecaster A. K. Showalter said a new storm from Alaska should leave only an additional three-quarters of an inch of rain here at the most.

Houses were washed from their foundations. Others were buried by earthslides or flooded with up to a foot of water at the peak of the storm. Streets were blocked by silt and rocks, and railroad traffic was halted late Friday.

City health officer George Uhl warned that a disease hazard still exists in the San Fernando Valley where torrential rains caved in cess-pools and sent sewage flowing into the streets.

The Red Cross sheltered 500 flood victims at 13 emergency centres throughout southern California. In San Diego, where one storm death was reported, 100 persons were forced to flee their homes.

Snow clogged many mountain roads and completely isolated the resort town of Big Bear in the San Bernardino Mountains.

Crop harvests, notably navel oranges, were interrupted by the storm, and the California Fruit Growers' Exchange said shipments would probably be only half of normal.

Sent To Commission

PARIS, Jan. 19. (AP)—The United Nations Assembly today voted to send Russia's new atomic proposals to the UN disarmament commission for study. The vote was 40 in favor to five against (the Soviet bloc), with three abstentions. The plenary session took the action by accepting the report of its political committee, which recommended the action two days ago.

US Commander Accepted By Great Britain

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill leaves Washington today after a series of conferences believed to have brought closer understanding between Britain and the United States on the part each will play in their partnership against Communist aggression.

The aging apostle of British naval prestige withdrew his objections to appointment of an American commander of Western sea power in the Atlantic as his final official act here. It was a major concession, even though he reserved the right to propose "modifications" later.

But Churchill apparently gained as much or more than he yielded in his two-week visit. He had the pledge of 1,000,000 tons of United States steel in exchange for British tin and aluminum. And even in the matter of the Atlantic command he won concessions from the United States.

The 77-year-old British statesman was to leave the capital by train (1 pm EST) for New York and a long weekend visit with his old friend Bernard Baruch. Churchill sails for Britain on the Queen Mary Tuesday night.

Britain will pay a still undetermined sum of American dollars for the steel Churchill asked to speed British defence production.

Churchill told Congress in a speech Wednesday he was asking for no gold from the US, but Britain will get $53,000,000 for 20,000 long tons of tin from British Malaya.

And the US will buy 55,100,000 pounds of aluminum from the Canadian supply originally earmarked for England.

The appointment of an American admiral to command the North Atlantic fleet was blocked by Churchill before and since he returned to power. US Navy quarters said the logical choice for the ocean going counterpart of Gen. Eisenhower is Admiral Lynde D. McCormick, commander of the Atlantic fleet with headquarters in Norfolk, Va.

Churchill, in surrendering on the ocean command issue, got US agreement to support an extension of British naval authority to the 100-fathom (600 feet) depth line. This extends from 30 miles to more than 200 miles into the seas around the British Isles.

Say 7 Men Picked Up By Rowboat

Aircraft Searching For Other Far East Veterans

SEATTLE, Jan. 19. (AP) — United States-bound Korean airlift plane with 43 Americans aboard crashed into the sea three-quarters of a mile from Sandspit Airport in the Queen Charlotte Islands early today and hours later only seven persons were rescued.

"It looks doubtful whether there are any more survivors," said an RCAF officer in Vancouver.

The big plane, en route from the Far East to McChord, Wash., air force base, carried 40 military passengers and a crew of three.

It splashed into theicy North Pacific at 1.38 a.m. PST trying for an emergency landing at an airport on the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Small boats sped to the scene and one reported it picked up seven persons.

The tugboat Labouchere joined the search as planes circled and dropped flares.

Hold Little Hope

The Canadian officer, declining use of his name, gave his grim comment after rescuers searched five hours without finding additional persons.

The coast guard in Seattle reported the plane floated for a time; then went down in shallow water leaving only one wing and the tail section in sight.

Planes rushed to the isolated airport from Canadian, Alaskan and United States bases.

There were no direct telephone connections with the small RCAF station, 480 miles north of Seattle, and all information on the crash was coming from radio reports to Seattle officials.

Send Two Planes

Two planes were dispatched to the scene, one a coast guard plane from Anne Island 110 miles to the north, the other an RCAF Lan-

School Girl Stabbed Over Broken School Romance

TORONTO, Jan. 19. (CP)—A 14-year-old girl was stabbed in the back with a hunting knife Friday in what police said was the sequel to a broken teen-age romance. Doctors said that the girl, Carol Haddock, will recover. Police arrested Ivor Hickman, 16, on a charge of attempted murder. Classmates said the two broke off seeing each other following objections by the girl's mother. The knifing occurred at 3:10 pm, just as classes ended for the day. The three-inch blade narrowly missed the girl's spinal column.

Fellow students at west-central Bloor Collegiate said the two had been going together for almost two years before breaking up. Hickman, elected secretary of his class at the collegiate, was voted the most popular student and the best athlete last year in his final year in public school.

Stabbed At School

The stabbing occurred just outside the side entrance to the High School. Witnesses said the girl ran around to the other side of the building with the blade sticking out between her shoulder blades. She collapsed in the doorway leading to the gymnasium. They said the boy stood still for a moment and then ran away.

Betty Nicholl, 15, one of Carol's friends, said Hickman called to the Haddock girl as they were leaving.

"Carol told me to walk over with her," she said. "I did, but Ivor told me to beat it. He said it wasn't any of my business. So I turned to go and the next thing I knew he was throwing books at me. One hit me in the head and another fell at my feet.

"I turned around and Carol was running away. I didn't know until I went back into the school that she had been stabbed."

British Shell Rail Station After Skirmish

ISMAILIA, Egypt, Jan. 19 — (Reuters)—British troops pummelled the Port Said station with mortars and big guns overnight after a bitter skirmish with Egyptian guerrillas.

The battle raged with a heavy exchange of fire for almost three hours.

British forces used 17-pounder anti-tank guns and heavy three-inch mortars against the Egyptians firing from cover in the station.

The clash began with an Egyptian attack on a British army encampment on a nearby golf course.

British headquarters here said the guerrillas opened up on the camp with machine-gun and rifle bursts.

The Egyptians fell back to the station and the fight settled down to trading shots.

Police Help

British authorities got in touch with Egyptian police who, a British spokesman said, "appeared anxious to help". The British garrison commander ordered his troops to stop firing and Egyptian police began clearing out the station area.

British military authorities today strongly denied Egyptian reports that the British cruiser Liverpool (9,400 tons) "indiscriminately bombarded" Port Said during the struggle.

The Liverpool, which is lying at the canal entrance, did not open fire. The Egyptians apparently mistook the ground fire for fire from the warship.

Attache Kidnaps Son In US, Flees To Belgium

BRUSSELS, Jan. 19 (AP)—Belgium's titled military and air attache to Washington flew home today with his infant son after racing over the United States-Canadian border and across the Atlantic to keep the baby from its American asbestos-heiress mother.

The father, 38-year-old Count Yvan du Monceau de Bergendal, arrived this morning, bringing his 14-month-old son, Tommy Manville du Monceau.

His 23-year-old estranged wife, Lorraine—an heiress to Manville asbestos millions and niece of much-married Tommy Manville, pursued him to Montreal Friday but arrived four hours after he boarded a plane and fled to Europe.

The count's mother accompanied him from Washington.

In tears and only a few days out of hospital bed, the countess returned to New York Friday night.

"He's a trickster," she sobbed.

Faces Legal Fight

The count won the first lap but still faced a legal fight for custody of the child. The mother claimed the baby was whisked out of her husband's hotel suite last Monday when she wasn't looking.

A "friend of the family" who flew with the countess to Canada said "the child is born of an American mother in the United States. And since he was taken out of the US and Canada under a Belgian passport, we feel we have cause for some action."

Countess Lorraine filed an injunction action in Washington Thursday asking the state department to see that her husband did not take the boy out of the country.

However, the nobleman's New York lawyer, J. Arthur Leve, said the count, as a member of the Belgian embassy staff, has diplomatic immunity from legal action.

Washington diplomatic circles speculated that high-level efforts to settle the case may be made between the US state department and Belgian ambassador Baron Silvercruys.

Greek, Turkish Forces Under Eisenhower

LONDON, Jan. 19—(AP)—Diplomatic sources said Friday night that Britain and the United States have agreed that Greek and Turkish forces should serve under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Turkish troops also would sha in the proposed middle-east defence system.

Greece and Turkey are expected to enter NATO as full members next month. Now their forces should be assigned has been a source of disagreement among member powers. Britain wanted the Turkish Army to be used solely in the Middle East but Turkey rejected the British proposal.

Britain To Switch Ambassador In Iran

LONDON, Jan. 19—(Reuters)—Britain is switching her Ambassador in Iran soon, the Foreign Office said today.

The present Ambassador, Sir Francis Shepherd, will be withdrawn and a new man, as yet unnamed, sent to replace him.

The Foreign Office said the switch was routine.

Shepherd has been at the Tehran post for two years, through the troubled oil negotiations.

Coalition Gov't Collapses But No Immediate Election

VICTORIA, BC, Jan. 19. (CP)—With coalition doomed and an immediate general election unfeasible, British Columbia Liberals were expected to move today toward rebuilding the shattered provincial Cabinet.

The Liberal-Progressive Conservative coalition formed in 1941 collapsed Friday after premier Byron Johnson, a Liberal, demanded—and received—the resignation of Hon. Herbert Anscomb from his post as finance minister.

The three other Progressive Conservatives in the Cabinet resigned with Mr. Anscomb, provincial leader of their party.

Final death of the alliance was sounded when Mr. Anscomb said all Conservative members would cross the floor of the house, replacing the CCF as the official opposition.

Premier Johnson was expected to seek approval today of four Cabinet appointments, retaining for himself the key job of Finance Minister.

Possible Choice

While his choices have not been divulged, speculation here was that one of them is Hon. Nancy Hodges, speaker of the House.

Quitting the Cabinet with Mr. Anscomb were Mines Minister R. C. MacDonald, Works Minister E. C. Carson and Trade Minister L. H. Eyres.

Mr. Johnston will hand the resignations to Chief Justice Gordon Sloan, administrator of the Province in the absence of the Lieutenant-Governor, and ask him to approve the new appointments.

The new ministers will function until a new legislature is elected, possibly during the summer but more likely in September or October.

Mr. Anscomb demanded an immediate general election. But the Premier said Friday night that the Feb. 19 session of the legislature will open as scheduled. However, the session is expected to be brief.

"Any further observations in connection with the future of goverment in this province will have to await a fuller discussion with all the cabinet two of whom, at present, are absent but are expected to return to the city shortly," the Premier added.

An election cannot be called until the present legislature has been dissolved. Observers say that revision of the voters' lists and the statutory time-lags required in election procedure mean that the earliest possible date would be in the middle of summer.

Loses $36,000 In US Subway

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP)—A woman Friday reported to police that she had lost $36,000 in New York's Eighth Ave. subway. She said the money was in $50 and $100 bills.

Mrs. Quintina Rizio of the Bronx said she had withdrawn the money at 1 pm from a Bronx bank branch. The money was in a brown paper bag, wrapped in a newspaper. She lost the money, she said, while on her way to the office of a lawyer. The lawyer, Aaron Cohen, said Mrs. Rizzio was scheduled to bring at least $30,000 to his office to be held in escrow. He declined further details.

The police said Mrs. Rizzio was accompanied on the subway train by her maid, Mrs. Anna Swens, 55. They said the maid told them she did not know what was in the package until Mrs. Rizio told her of the loss.

Mrs. Rizzio told police she boarded the subway train at the Fordham Rd. station. She said she became ill and left the train at 125th St. to go to a rest room. She boarded another train but became ill again and left the second train at 110th St.

In the restroom of this station, she said, she noticed she no longer had the bundle of money.

UN Loses 10 Planes Last Week In Korea

US FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Jan. 19 — (AP)—The United Nations lost 10 planes in Korea last week, the Fifth Air Force announced today.

Eight were shot down by Communist ground force and two US F-86 Sabre jets were lost in aerial combat between Jan. 12 and 18.

During the same period the UN planes shot down three Communist MIG-15 Jets.

In the preceding week the Allies lost 13 planes to ground fire and three in aerial combat. The Communist toll was 12 MIGs destroyed and 14 damaged.

Russian Press Teams Up To Sell Canada To US

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (CP)—The Russian press teamed up with an American congressman today to sell Canada to the United States.

As far as Soviet newspaper readers are concerned, the deal is likely to go through anytime—possibly soon enough for Canadians to have a vote in the November presidential elections.

Izvestia, Trud and other best-sellers on Moscow news stands solemnly broke the news to their customers when they got the reports of a speech last Wednesday by Representative Timothy Sheehan, a Chicago Republican, in which he first broached the idea.

Sheehan, who takes an impish pride in his Irish name, found the presence of Prime Minister Winston Churchill in Washington too much to resist. He presented a bill proposing creation of a 10-man congressional committee to explore the possibility of acquiring Canada in exchange for enough cash to pay Britain's debts and put her into sound financial shape.

The congressman, who has spent several vacations in Toronto and Northern Ontario, professed surprise when informed that Canada was an independent nation and has been for some years. In any case, he said, his proposal had been "purely exploratory."

Most Canadians took the Sheehan proposal calmly. But in Moscow the story went over with a bang.

If there was any twinkle in the congressman's eye when he presented his bill, it was lost on Soviet readers.

Izvestia and Trud made it clear to them that the principal question that remained to be solved was whether Canada would be swallowed holus-bolus as one territory or as a group of states.

Car Driver, 15 In Reformatory

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 19 (CP)—Driver of a car in which three teen-agers were killed and a fourth seriously injured, a 15-year-old youth Friday was given an indeterminate sentence in reformatory on a dangerous driving charge. He was convicted a week ago.

In passing sentence, Magistrate Gordon H. Jermyn said society in general, through permitting issuance of driving permits to "children of 15", and the boy's parents were in large part responsible for the tragedy.

A car driven by the youth collided with a truck, killing Ruth Easter, 15, of Brockville, Paul Ellinger, 15, of Syracuse, NY, and John Stanistreet, 19, of Greenbush, Ont. Still in a Brockville hospital with injuries is Mona Summers, 14, of Brockville.

"I think it clear," said the magistrate, "that a boy of 15 cannot be expected to exercise proper judgment in the control of a motor vehicle and I think the responsibility for this tragedy rests very severely with his parents, who would allow him to apply for a driver's licence and supply him with a vehicle to drive."

The youth also was fined $100 and costs of $130 or an additional three months.

Stewart Resigns

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19 (AP) — Reginald Stewart, conductor of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, has submitted his resignation effective March 30, date of the last concert of the season. Stewart, who came here in 1942 from Toronto where he conducted the Toronot Philharmonic, has appeared widely as a concert pianist.

Germans Try Bypass 3 Occupation Powers

BONN, Germany, Jan. 19—(AP) —A West German attempt to go over the heads of the three occupation powers to the Atlantic Allies threatens a new delay in plans to arm German troops inside the western defence system, high allied officials said Friday.

The Germans have proposed that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's "three wise men" in Paris recommend the German financial contribution to defence for the next year.

W. Averell Harriman of the United States, France's Jean Monnet and Britain's Sir Edwin Plowden are studying plans for fairly sharing rearmament burdens among the NATO countries.

West Germany is not a member of NATO. The big three powers named their High Commissioners in Germany to handle the negotiations. But the Germans apparently feel they can get a better deal through NATO.

15% Wage Increase

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 19 (AP).—James Petrillo won a 15-per-cent wage increase for Hollywood musicians at a meeting with top movie industry executives here Friday night. The American Federation of Musicians announced the signing of a two-year contract covering more than 2,000 fill and part-time picture musicians and increasing their base pay to $46 for a three-hour recording session.

TTC Solution Hinted Coming

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP). — A move toward settlement of Toronto's street car and bus strike may come Sunday at a meeting of the 4,768 members of the Street Railway Employees' Union (AFL-TLC) who work for the Toronto Transportation Commission.

It will be the first general meeting since the men walked out on three hours' notice at 5 am Jan. 4, tying up the publicly-owned transit service of Canada's second largest city as well as the Gray Coach Lines bus system, TTC subsidiary.

A former executive member of the Toronto union has indicated he will introduce at Sunday's meeting a resolution that the wage dispute between the union and the TTC be submitted to arbitration.

Prepare For Funeral Discover Woman Alive

GREEN BAY, Wis., Jan. 19 — (AP)—An elderly Green Bay woman was taken to hospital early Friday after a mortuary assistant discovered that she was alive.

Attendants at the Henzelmann Convalescent Home found Mrs. Andrew Sobota, 80, apparently dead in her bed. They called her family, which in turn notified the Lyndahl Funeral Home. A physician was not called.

Carl Hanson, a Lyndahl employee, picked up Mrs. Sobota at the convalescent home. Returning to the mortuary, he heard Mrs. Sobota gasp. A rescue squad administered oxygen and took Mrs. Sobota to hospital.

Enjoys Farce

VANCOUVER, Jan. 19—(CP)—A "jolly good time" was the way adjudicator Pierre Lefevre Friday night described the Vancouver Repertory Players' presentation of "One Wild Oat" by Vernon Sylvaine. The three-act farce was the third play of the British Columbia Regional Drama Festival, which concludes tonight with "The Heiress", by Ruth and Augustus Goetz, to be presented by the Victoria Theatre Guild.

Africa Plans New Walkout

PARIS, Jan. 19 — (Reuters) —South Africa, which returned to the United Nations Friday after a month-long boycott, was reported preparing to walk out again today.

The decision to quit the world organization again followed an appeal to South Africa to meet with UN officials to attempt a settlement of friction resulting from dealings with the colored population of Southwest Africa.

The General Assembly voted 45 to 5 (the Russian bloc) on a resolution appealing to South Africa to make friends with the UN and resume negotiations on the future of the one-time German colony now under her administration.

An authoritative source said after the vote that South Africa would withdraw from the General Assembly meetings as a result of the vote.

Halt Demonstration Against French Rule

TUNIS, North Africa, Jan. 19— (Reuters) — Strong detachments of French police and troops broke up a demonstration against French rule here today but there was no renewal of the violence that flared Friday.

A crowd of 200 Tunisian women gathered in front of the French resident general's residence, shouting for independence.

Police squads dispersed them and arrested 50. One Tunisian was killed and six injured in Friday's rioting.

The general strike called Friday by Tunisian labor unions continued in the city though some workers were going back to work.

Public utilities were operating and some stores were open.

The strike, except for public service and administrative offices, had gripped the capital Friday, snarling food facilities.

Victoria County Grants Hospital $10,000

LINDSAY, Jan. 19—(ENS)—The Victoria county council renewed the county's $10,000 grant to the Ross Memorial Hospital on Friday.

President of the hospital board, H. S. Johnson, appeared as a deputation and explained that the hospital concluded the year's operations with a deficit of approximately $24,000. According to figures released by Mr. Johnson, the average cost per day per patient was $9.43.

Salaries totalled $97,362, dietary expenses $39,867, maintenance $16,979, bedding $16,099 and $23,267 for drugs and supplies. These figures were just some of the major expenditures for the year. More than $10,000 was set aside for depreciation. Last year the hospital had a deficit of $35,000 and council granted $10,000. Reeve of Ops, Sherman Moore said that although the council seemed favorable to granting the request again this year, he thought they should not leave the impression that the grant would go on forever.

Warden Ray Webster approved of the board's suggestion that the county council should appoint a hospital board member for a two-year term. Ex-Warden James Butler was named. "The board now is debating as to whether it should carry on as a private hospital—or become a civic hospital," continued the warden.

Family Court

Considerable discussion took place as to the formation of a juvenile and family court.

County Clerk Frank Weldon advised the members that it would probably cost in the neighborhood of $4,000 to $5,000. "I believe the idea of the whole thing is to try and keep families and children together," said Warden Ray Webster. "In family court they do not have the legal technicalities to deal with. I would think that the money spent with a family court would be well spent."

The suggestion of a court was broached by a deputation from the CAS. Council decided to form a three-man committee to investigate the possibilities of forming a court.

Fair Grants

"Two years ago, this council increased the grant to other county fairs by one-third," said Warden Ray Webster. "But at that time we did not increase the grant to the Lindsay Fair. I think we should do it this year since the fair manager, Mr. B. L. McLean, has asked for a larger grant". Last year's Lindsay Fair president, Reeve Richard Butler of the town of Lindsay and also chairman of the county council's finance committee explained that the fair had a slight deficit. Warden Webster moved that the Lindsay Fair be granted the same increase this year as other fairs two years ago. Last year's grant was $8,000 and the new grant now totals $10,000.

Egg Price Spread Reaches 18 Cents

The egg price spread between the corner store and concession 10 this morning was 17 to 18 cents a dozen.

Vincent Grainger of Co-Op said his department was paying the farmer 32 cents a dozen for grade A-large; 28 cents for medium; 25 cents for pullets; and 27 cents for grade B.

One of the neighborhood grocers were charging the consumer 49 to 50 cents for the "A large" egg; mostly 49 cents and medium was 39 cents.

Farmers all over Ontario are peeved at that middleman lifting a considerable profit while the producers can't meet the basic costs.

In that respect, they say, the market system is out of joint, that everybody today is making a profit except the man who raised the chicks to laying hens, that there would be more consumer buying if the middlemen had the price down to less than 49-50c.

Western farmers with a tremendous stock of feed grain on their hands since last year boosted their poultry production 45 per cent, so it is said, while Ontario farmers showed an increase of scarcely 15 per cent. That's one factor, and another is that of fewer eggs destined to become broilers, with a consequent backing up of supply on to the grocery counters.

The man with 1,800 chickens today feels that he hasn't a friend, and that the consumer is not aware of the low price that is reaching the producer's pocket.

Canadian Troops In Japan Get Red Cross Aid

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—The Canadian Red Cross has agreed to provide a seven-member welfare team for Canada's Korean forces, it was announced Friday.

The decision followed a meeting between Defense Minister Claxton and Leopold Macaulay, central council chairman of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

The proposal by Mr. Claxton was that the Red Cross furnish six workers and a supervisor, to be located at leave and hospital stations at Tokyo and Kure in Japan.

"While details remain to be worked out," said the two officials in a joint statement, "it is understood that the workers would be between 24 and 35, have no dependents, be physically fit, have an education at least equivalent to university matriculation and if possible previous experience in the armed forces."

Those selected would have experience either as a nurse, social worker, personnel director or in some other service having to deal with people.

Lieutenant's Rank

The supervisor's rank will be that of lieutenant. The workers will be equivalent in rank to second lieutenants. About half the workers will be bilingual and they will be in Japan for about a year.

Red Cross workers first will be attached to the Commonwealth leave centre at Tokyo, where they will do canteen, welfare and hospital work to aid Canadian service men on leave in the Japanese capital.

Similar work will be carried out at the hospital and reinforcement group centre at Kure.

The decision to seek Red Cross aid followed Mr. Claxton's recent visit to Korea where he found a need for welfare workers for Canadian forces.

caster with a droppable lifeboat from Patricia Bay, BC, 400 miles to the south.

Northwest Airlines, which was operating the four-engined DC-4, said all personnel aboard were outfitted with self-inflating life vests. It said the aircraft also carried two 20-man life rafts and one 10-man raft.

The coast guard here said it was advised that all seven persons rescued were brought in by one rowboat. It said the operator of the rowboat reported he saw no other survivors but was going back for a second try. It was not known how many other boats were available.

However, a Pan-American plane which flew over the scene of the crash shortly after the plane went down reported sighting boats going to the scene. The plane then was floating.

Northwest Airlines said the plane developed engine trouble en route from Alaska to Seattle and the pilot had feathered one propellor.

Missed Field

He was heading in for an emergency landing at Sandspit, the airline said, and apparently missed the field. He made a turn over the water in a snow squall and then disappeared from sight of airport watchers.

They called the plane by radio but received no answer.

The plane, owned by Trans-World Airlines, had been leased to the Military Air Transport Service. Northwest furnishes crews for the airlift planes.

The crew members were identified as John Pfaffinger, 39 Kent, Wash., the pilot, and co-pilot Kenneth Kuhn, 36, and stewardess Jane Cheadle, both of Seattle.

Later reports to the Seattle coast guard said the RCAF also had dispatched a Canso from Patricia Bay with a doctor aboard. A civilian doctor also was reported available at Queen Charlotte City, only seven miles from the Sandspit airport.

Lindsay Votes Police, Firemen Increase Of $200

LINDSAY, Jan. 19—(ENS)—A special meeting of Lindsay's town council was held Friday night for the purpose of discussing requests from the fire and police departments for increased pay.

At Monday night's meeting, two small committees were formed to meet with representatives from both departments.

The police department men were requesting a minimum wage of $2,400 per annum with a maximum in 10 years of $3,000 plus time off for court appearances and statutory holidays. Firemen were requesting a $300 raise along with their already instituted five-day week.

Council decided to give the fire and police departments a $200 across-the-board increase. The police were allowed two hours for court appearances which could be cumulative over a period of a year.

Council will advertise for two men to replace the two constables who resigned last month. Two more firemen will also be engaged with a starting pay of $2,100. Police chief's request for an additional man on the force was left over to a later meeting.

Alderman Lloyd Burrows, finance chairman, opposed higher salaries. "We get Toronto men down here to act as chief of fire and police departments and they act as though they want an executive position; don't want to take their shifts with the men," said Ald. Burrows.

"As an officer in the navy I had to stand shift when my men did."

Both fire and police chiefs told council they were already standing regular shifts. The meeting lasted almost three hours before an agreement was reached. The policemen hinted after the meeting that the would take their case to a board of arbitration.

Ask 63-Cent Butter Price

MONTREAL, Jan. 19 (CP). — Delegates to the annual meeting of the Dairy Farmers of Canada here Friday voted to ask the Federal government to set floor prices of 63 cents per pound for butter and 30 cents for cheese.

They also voted to ask the government to handle distribution of imported butter in such a way as not to affect the floor price.

The members, representing 400,000 Canadian dairy farmers, devoted much attention to the question of margarine. They noted that attempts were being made to legalize the coloring of margarine so that it would bear a closer resemblance to butter.

The delegates said there was no objection to manufacturers giving their product any coloring, provided the color used is "other than the natural yellow color associated with butter."

They also voted to ask the government that duties be levied on imported dairy products so as to keep the price of the imported commodity in line with Canadian

Campbellford Woman Fractures Her Hip

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 18 — (ENS)—Mrs. Euphemia Loucks, 82, of Second St., Campbellford, was admitted to the Peterborough Civic Hospital on Thursday, following a fall in which she suffered a compound fracture of the right hip. Mrs. Loucks had gone onto the verandah of her home to tell the driver of a truck, which was backing into her driveway, that he was at the wrong house and to go to the house next door. The driver could not hear her and she stepped onto the sidewalk, and fell.

Her condition is reported as only fair. She has received several blood transfusions.

Roads, Patients Give County $19,016 Deficit

A deficit of $19,016.17 on county finances during 1951 was announced Friday by Mrs. J. A. Spurway, county clerk and treasurer. Unexpected over-expenditures were on the county roads system, indigent patients, and the Old People's Home.

Members of council were visibly disappointed. At the January session in 1951 a surplus of $16,954.29 was reported. The surplus then was made possible by a year of austerity following a deficit of $35,964 in 1949.

The county roads account was the cause of most of the over-expenditure in 1949 and again in 1951.

An extra $20,000 to meet the cost of keeping up the county roads system (ie, county roads, county bridges, and the suburban area roads) was approved in November. That brought the 1951 appropriation up from $180,000 to $200,000.

By passing a supplementary by-law for $20,000 before the end of the year the county was assured of getting a 50 per cent subsidy from the Department of Highways.

Spent $17,000

The roads committee spent a little more than $17,000 of the extra $20,000 and half of this was met by the department. This over-expenditure, plus the loss in revenue when the Court of Appeal reduced the damages in a civil action favoring the county—brought the total deficit on the county roads system to $11,248.

A breakdown shows an over-expenditure of $4,650.23 on county roads; $2,270.61 on suburban area roads; and a surplus of $1,186.26 on bridges and culverts.

Mr. Kean said the biggest single item contributing to the deficit was extra wages.

Last April, instead of accepting a pension scheme as originally planned, county workmen chose a raise in pay. This item, not budgeted for, boosted the county roads expenditure about $10,000 above estimates.

Expensive Breakup

The spring breakup proved unexpectedly expensive. Roads had to be repaired and gravel trucks had to operate uneconomically, carrying half loads.

Installation of the new heating system at the county garage and insulation of the building cost another $3,600.

Loss of revenue as a result of the Supreme Court judgment was $3,200.

The expenditure on indigent patients was $14,131.65, an all-time high, Mrs. Spurway explained. The county's share of this overexpenditure is $3,785.

Two other overexpenditures were $2,700 on the Old People's Home, Lakefield; and $1,358 on fees for county councillors. The council fees were caused by extra committee meetings and extra sessions, many of them to draw up the bylaws for issuing debentures for schools in Lakefield and Norwood.

Forest Shows Surplus

The county forest account shows a surplus of $1,592. Expenditures were $5,802 and revenue $7,394. The revenue was almost all from sale of logs cut last winter in the county forest.

Here is a list of other expenditures: Children's Aid Society $10,710, other social services $821, jail $23,164, general administration $5,055, county office expenses $4,148, council and committee expenses $4,458, grants $29,033, printing and postage $474, insurance $3,015, debenture debt charges $17,516, family court $1,800, fox bounties $1,521, unemployment insurance $179, county assessor's office $3,934.

Expenditures on the administration of justice totalled $39,671.22. Revenue came to $39,997.67, made up as follows: fines $495.33, city of Peterborough $22,974.72, and Ontario government $16,527.62.

Total revenue on the county's operations for the year was $419,672.11 and expenditures were $438,688.28, giving a deficit of $19,016.17.

Fair Directors Re-elect Reg. Seymour

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 19. — (ENS—The Seymour Agricultural Society met here on Thursday evening, at which time reports from the various divisions were heard, and officers for the current year elected.

Mrs. Ernest Irwin, president of the ladies' division spoke briefly, thanking those who had helped make the 1951 fair a success.

Reg. Seymour, president of the society, told of the progress of the society during the past year. He said the cost of the fair had gone up due to the increased fees to the judges and other expenses. A new stock pen had been built on the fair grounds, lights had been installed in the cattle barn and other improvements to the grounds.

G. G. Stephens, secretary-treasurer, submitted the financial statement which showed a balance of more than $500. The board also voted to continue the field crop competition.

Given Service Diploma

Victor Irwin of Campbellford was awarded the Agricultural Service Diploma, which is awarded for "meritorious service in the field of agriculture."

Following the business the election of directors took place, from which number, the slate of officers for 1952 were chosen. The honorary directors are as follows: Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, MLA, Dr. F. Stroke Caused Woman's Death

Death of Mrs. David Huggins, 54, of 32 Ware St. was caused by coronary thrombosis, Coroner Dr. H. G. Carleton said today.

He said an inquest was unlikely.

Mrs. Huggins told police that an unidentified man walked into her kitchen Thursday morning, slapped her and thrust her in a chair. When she started for the dining room he put a rag in her mouth, nearly choking her.

Mrs. Huggins said she screamed after he threatened her by saying: "I'll shove you down the cellar."

When her 15-year-old son Arthur rushed downstairs there was no sign of the man.

Police received only a vague description of the man. He was said to be "a 25-year-old criminal."

Though upset, Mrs. Huggins did not appear to be harmed. She chatted with some neighbors later in the day but took a fatal attack after going to bed Thursday night.

Dr. Carleton said Friday's autopsy showed no evidence of any bodily injury apart from a slight bruise on Mrs. Huggins' left cheek.

Mayor And Council Hosts To County

Mayor Waddell and the members of the city council were hosts to Warden R. R. Stewart and the members of the county council from 4 to 6 o'clock Friday, and themselves were guests of Mr. Gordon Miller at Paramount Theatre at night.

Mrs. Spurway, county clerk and treasurer, was the only lady present with the rural company from the neighboring hill. They were conducted through the new city hall and afterwards had coffee and sandwiches together in the Mayor's parlor. The administrators of the county and city had a pleasant time together until around six o'clock.

Pupils Get Royal Reply To Christmas Wishes

A Royal reply came this week to the pupils of Mrs. G. Simpson, teacher of Grades 2 and 3 at Prince of Wales School.

The pupils sent Christmas and New Year wishes to Princess Elizabeth, and the reply is dated from Clarence House on January 7. It reads:

Dear Mrs. Samson,

I am desired by the Princess Elizabeth to thank you and the pupils in your school for the good wishes which you sent to Her Royal Highness for Christmas and the New Year.

Yours sincerely, Jean Elphinstone, Lady-in-Waiting.

WINS $1,000—Thinking of her coming marriage this summer, Marie Foley (above), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Foley, 338 Ludgate St., decided to take the $1,000 rather than a vacation in Florida. She won the draw Friday at the annual ball of the RCAF Association, 428 Wing, at Club Aragon. Miss Foley was in bed when a telephone call reported the news at her home. While the decision was being made between the choices, the telephone was kept busy by well-wishers.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Council Of United Counties Plans Four Sessions a Year

COBOURG, Jan. 19 — (ENS)—Proceedings delayed pending the appointment of the new counties clerk, Northumberland and Durham Counties Council Friday only started with their committee meetings. They were unable to finish the work in the afternoon, the usual closing day of the session and adjourned until next Thursday morning.

The recommendation of the finance committee that council sit four times a year instead of the customary three, was adopted. It was pointed out that by holding four sessions, the meetings will run to short enough sessions to make up the necessary days consumed by the fourth session and the cost will be the same. Incidently council will be paid only for the days they are actually in session instead of receiving five days pay for four days work.

Separate Books

At the morning session Friday, council held a brief meeting and adjourned until afternoon at which time the afternoon session was split by one adjurnment in order to permit committees to meet. Discussing a bookkeeping system for the Counties Home, council decided that there should be a set of separate books for the counties home, particularly in view of the farm production there, and it was left to the committee to look into it.

Art Wartman ex-reeve of Percy township, was in the gallery and was welcomed by Warden Harry Campbell. The warden also referred to the fact that council had a father and son sitting in the present council, Reeve Fred Broadworth of Alnwick township, and his father, Reeve George Broadworth of Percy township.

Claire Erskine, assistant clerk, resigned from her position and thanked the council for their co-operation during her two years of office. Council passed a resolution asking her to reconsider but the warden reported later that she was determined to leave her job. The warden said that he realized that it had been a strain on her carrying on the work of the office since the resignation of the former clerk. When the new clerk was appointed, it was intimated that he might be required to carry on the work by himself.

Change Auditors

The legislative and bylaws committee recommended that the hours of the new clerk be in the appointment bylaw; carried.

The special finance committee recommended that the bylaw appointing the former firm of auditors be rescinded and a bylaw be brought in appointing the auditors who are making the investigation into the clerk's accounts; carried.

The equalization committee report that the 1952 equalized assessment be the same as in 1951 was adopted. The finance committee report, which was adopted, recommended that the matter of grants to Bowmanville hospital be laid over to the next session.

Reeve George Galbraith, of Cobourg, proposed that the councillors' indemnity be boosted by a dollar a day. Members of the council took the view that, even though they lost money by their attendance at council, it was an honor and a duty to represent their municipalities, and the rate of pay was left unchanged.

In connection with the bylaw appointing the clerk, the new clerk, Art Symons, objected to only getting two weeks' vacation with pay. He said that when he enquired about the job he had been told the vacation was three weeks.

Members of the council favored three weeks but others pointed out that nobody gets three weeks' vacation in their first year of employment. Mr. Symons said he would accept the two weeks for this year at least. His salary was set at $3,000, an amount $500 less than that received by his predecessor.

Traders' Blood Washed Winnipeg Streets In Early Days

Visiting Winnipeg is like beginning a new chapter in a book. Just as Manitoba is the archway linking the Prairies and Eastern Canada, so in Winnipeg the visitor notices the dividing line. Not only does the country begin to look different, but the attitude of the people changes.

Though not as free and as easy as the Far West, the people there are more spontaneous in their kindness and interest than in Eastern Canada. It betokens a people who have had a great struggle for survival and who have learned the value of helping each other.

The first thing any Winnipegger will ask a visiting Canadian is "are you surprised to see our trees?"

Prairie city is a misnomer, because the capital is filled with beautiful tree-lined boulevards, and lovely parks. Its broad streets, fine buildings, its rivers, the many historical points of interest and across the river its sister city of St. Boniface which is the largest French city outside of Quebec, give endless variety.

MEMENTO OF STIRRING TIMES—The Old Fort Garry Gate in Winnipeg is a popular spot for visitors. This is all that remains of a fort that was originally built at the height of the fur trading era. This gate was part of the fort rebuilt in 1835 and in 1867 it was the setting for the Riel uprising. The provisional government held possession for 18 months till troops arrived.

Foreign Touch

A few miles outside the city makes a stranger rub his eyes and wonder if he has been whisked by magic carpet to some little village in Eastern Europe. Poles, Ukrainians, Russians and Icelanders live in neat villages whose names and architecture reflect their homelands. In vivid contrast again, to the north of Winnipeg are wonderful lakes and forest areas that rival those in Ontario.

From the minute a visitor steps off the train, he runs smack into Winnipeg's exciting past. At the entrance to the CPR station enthroned in her own beautiful little park is the slicked up Countess of Dufferin, where camera fans love to snap pictures. The Countess was the first locomotive in Western Canada. Winnipeg went wild in 1877 when the steamer Selkirk arrived towing her by barge. The Countess was named for the first Governor-General's wife to visit Western Canada and the engine forms one of the quarterings in the city's coat-of-arms.

Just across from the CNR hotel is the Old Fort Garry Gate, all that is left of the place that marked stirring times at the height of the fur trading era. After the union of the Hudson's Bay Company and the North West Company, in 1821, Governor George Simpson had the old wooden fort there enlarged. Though partly washed away by spring floods in 1826, it was replaced by a substantial stone fort in 1835. The walls were 15 feet high and had bastions of solid masonry at each corner a century ago. In 1867 it was the setting for the Riel uprising and the Provisional Government held possession for 18 months until troops arrived. Across from the old gate is the Hudson's Bay House, Canadian headquarters for the company.

Once Pioneer Trail

One of the most impressive things about the city is a first trip down the main street, Portage Avenue. It is one of the widest streets in Canada and in the early 1940's, any pedestrian was fair game for car drivers. Traffic signals were ignored and everyone tried to cross the vast expanse the best way he could. However when the accident toll soared to new heights, the city fathers cracked down with new traffic bylaws and today people get across in one piece without undue effort. This street follows the pioneer Saskatchewan Trail which reached as far as Edmonton.

There are many delightful shops and restaurants in the main section and a must for people interested in their own country is the wonderful museum on the fourth floor of the Hudson's Bay Company. It is a thrilling period of exploration, adventure, life and customs in the fur trade that goes back 281 years.

Only a short distance from the main street is the Manitoba Legislative Building. It is the hub of the city with its Golden Boy poised on the dome. Memorial Blvd. runs past the war memorial to the broad stone steps of the Legislative Building. Patterned after Grecian architecture and set in broad lawns on the bank of the Assiniboine, it makes a pretty picture. Queen Victoria sits regally in front of this government building. Inside are beautiful marble corridors and two life-size bison, the emblem of Manitoba, flank the impressive marble staircase.

Not far away is the Civic Auditorium which houses the Provincial Museum on several floors, the Winnipeg Art Gallery, and the two concert halls. There is nearly always some activity taking place, even on Sundays. In addition to their fine concerts, ballets and school music efforts, there is a vigorous Little Theatre movement.

Beautiful Park

The largest of Winnipeg's beauty spots is the Assiniboine Park and Zoo, which can be reached by street car on Portage Ave. It comprises 300 acres straddling the Assiniboine River. One of its loveliest spots is the swan pond, and other delightful places for roaming are the English flower gardens, the Conservatory and Palm House (the only one in Western Canada), the half-timbered pavilion reminding one of old English architecture and the zoo where the bears are among the favorites.

During the summer months, an attractive one-day boat trip is operating. The SS Kenora leaves Redwood Dock every Sunday at 2 pm. It sails up the winding Red river which was once the thoroughfare of the early settlers. On the way to Lockport, which is reached by 4 pm, the boat passes the lovely old St. Andrew's-on-the-Red, the oldest church in Western Canada, and which is always a lure for camera enthusiasts. Built in 1849 near the river, the grounds are enclosed by low stone walls of the same limestone as the church. Some of the kneeling benches still wear the old coverings of buffalo skin with patches of fur adhering.

At Lockport, where the passengers are allowed two hours to roam before starting the return trip at 6 pm, one sees old St. Andrew's Locks, the only locks in Western Canada. For those who haven't the time for a full day's boating, there are 1-hour trips daily along the Red River which can be taken from Smitty's Yacht Club in St. Boniface.

Stirring Past

Winnipeg, which gets its name from the Indian words "Muddy Water" had its beginnings in the lusty days of the fur trader and the voyageur. There were many bitter struggles between the French and the English whose forts dotted Manitoba, to gain complete control. The bloody struggle ended only in 1821 with the union of the Hudson's Bay Company and the North West Company.

The intrepid 18th century fur trader, Sieur de la Verendrye, was probably the first white man to set foot in this region. He established Fort Rouge here in 1737. In the early days, Winnipeg was known as "The Forks". It was the hub of transportation—canoe from the east; York boat from the north; sternwheeler from the south and ox-cart from the west.

The fur trader remained in undisputed possession of the region until 1812 when Lord Selkirk a Scottish nobleman obtained a vast grant of land on the Red and Assiniboine rivers for the purpose of settling impoverished Scottish fishermen and tenant farmers dispossessed by the enclosure movement. These people met with many hardships not the least of which was the bloodshed caused by the animosity of the fur traders.

Fort Garry built in 1835 was the jumping off spot for the fur trader pushing west and north and for the buffalo hunters. Later it was the base for the settler migrating into the vast plains.

Made A City

In 1867 Louis Riel leader of the half-breed settlers (Metis) took control of the settlement and formed a provisional government. A military expedition was necessary to restore constitutional government. As a result of the uprising, the Province of Manitoba was formed in 1870 with its capital at Fort Garry. Between 1870 and 1873, the district around Fort Garry came to be known as Winnipeg and it was incorporated as a city in 1873.

One of the strangest things to Easterners are the farms along the Red River which one sees past the University of Manitoba. The early settlers, because the river afforded better communications and security against attack, wanted to have their farms fronting the river. The result is that even today these farms have a 6-12 chain frontage and run back a long way, as much as two miles. In those days, they were divided among families and the people farmed on these "lanes". Compared with the broad acres of Ontario farms, these narrow strips provide an odd sight.

Plans Abuilding For Spring Fair

Representatives of the Ontario Department of Agriculture were prominent at the largely attended meeting of promoters of the Central Ontario Spring Fair that was away and winging here Thursday afternoon.

John Eccles, public relations director of OAC, Elliott I. MacLoughey, assistant director of agricultural representatives and liaison officer between OAC and the department's extension service, conveyed assurance of active support.

Agricultural representatives present were: Leroy Brown, of Lindsay; Ed. A. Summers, of Durham; Don Taylor, of Picton, Prince Edward; Newton Ashton, of Napanee, Lennox-Addington.

Mel McHolm, of Port Hope, president, turned the direction of the meeting over to Frank C. Paterson.

The Spring Fair has already moved out of the main building at Morrow Park, overflowing into two other buildings of Peterborough Exhibition. Farm implement dealers, represented by a group including Irvine McIntosh and Stewart Hall, have been dubious about getting enough space for their section of the show. They are now taking over the building used for women's work and art at the fall show. Details for their part of the Spring Fair are not yet complete, but they were thoroughly discussed at a recent meeting in Stewart Hall's store.

Committees were set up Thursday. The next meeting of the program committee will be held here January 29 with Leroy Brown, of Lindsay, chairman.

Quaker Oats, Dewart Milling and Canada Packers are three Peterborough industries who have been showing a helpful interest in the fair, which will be held during the last week of March. Directors of the Quinte District Seed Fair, the parent association, agreed in recent sessions for discussion of its future to merge their organization and identity into the Central Ontario Spring Fair which will make its first bid this season for permanent establishment in Peterborough.

Chiang Gov't Ready Negotiate With Japan

TAIPAH, Formosa, Jan. 19—(Reuters) Foreign Minister George Yeh said Friday the Chinese Nationalist government is ready to negotiate with Japan for the early conclusion of a peace treaty.

Two days ago Japanese Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida said he wants a treaty with the Chinese Nationalists and has no intention of concluding one with the Communists.

This was contained in a letter to John Foster Dulles, United Staes architect of the Japanese peace, which Yoshida made public.

Yeh said today that publication of the letter served the purpose of clearing up "certain misapprehensions in this respect."

"My government has consistently made known its desire for the early conclusion of a peace with Japan and has directed its efforts in conjunction with other allied powers towards this end," he added.

Underwriters Hear Ald. Leonard Reilly

Guest speaker at the monthly dinner Friday of the Life Underwriters Association was Alderman Leonard Reilly of Toronto, who discussed the various aspects of public speaking. Mr. Reilly is head of a Toronto public speaking institute.

About 80 were present at the dinner, representing insurance firms in Peterborough, Oshawa, Orillia and Bowmanville. Reg Crouch introduced the speaker, who was thanked by Gerry Norris.

Mr. Reilly carried on an informal discussion, answering questions from the floor. He dealt with the different mannerisms and gestures of speakers, and the work of speech preparation.

Need Leadership From School, Home, Church

MARMORA, Jan. 19 (ENS)—Continued interest in the activities of Marmora Home and School Association was in evidence on Wednesday evening as the association held its January meeting in the public school.

Mrs. R. Frost presided over a large attendance of parents and E. C. Prentice, principal, took the attendance of parents and grandparents with Mrs. F. Hannah's classroom shown to be tops for the night.

A pianoforte duet was played by two of the younger scholars of the school, Jane Glover and Bonny Johnston.

Principal Prentice then introduced the guest speaker of the evening, W. Rothwell, principal of Madoc public school. Mr. Rothwell referred to world conditions of today and the interest they should hold for high school and public school students. He sketched briefly, yet comprehensively, the picture of Russia under Lenin and Stalin.

He referred to the duties that should be performed by the teaching profession, the scholars and the church for the preservation of democracy. He considered that the school, home and church should provide more opportunity for good leadership. He concluded with this striking remark: "Progress can be made only when children excel their parents."

On behalf of the association he was thanked by W. J. Cottrell. Two pianoforte duets having been played by Mesdames A. F. Fraser and H. Rennie, Mr. Rothwell was prevailed upon to sing a song "Stars of the Summer Night" and for the encore "Billy Boy." An auction sale of home cooking and candy followed.

Solid County

Peterborough County this week sold $720,000 worth of debentures bearing four and-a-half per cent. interest at a premium price of $100.63. That financial fact is giving satisfaction all around the county and not only in the townships which will be paying off the debentures. It is the best price any municipality has got anywhere for many months. It even beats slightly the good rate that Peterborough city got recently and means that financiers regard Peterborough County as a sound investment.

* * *

Such high regard is not earned quickly. It is based as much on a municipality's past record as on its future. The county's elected and appointed officials have carried out the County's work and looked after its interests with conservative care. They look before they leap and thus do not tumble into financial mires.

* * *

Renting $720,000 at this price, the County can feel pleased that its credit is so good. The municipalities in the two High School areas where the new schools are being built and on whose behalf the County has issued the debentures, can be gratified. The transaction confirms the wisdom of the policy of a township or village using the credit of the large unit —the County—when raising money for schools. If Norwood, for instance, had had to float the loan for its school, on its own credit, the price would not have been as favourable. As it is, the charges against the debentures which the County will assess to the townships in the two high school areas will be less than if Lakefield, Norwood and the townships affected had issued the debentures. It is an advantageous way of financing.

An Advance In Coal Mining

The harrowing explosion in the McGregor coal mine in Pictou County, Nova Scotia, on Monday has shaken Canadians to a realization that coal mining is still one of the most dangerous occupations in the country, and that mining methods are antiquated. Is the production worth the effort and risk? Canadians are using less coal every year because factories, homes and railways (replacing steam engines with diesel motors) are turning to oil. Could the coal mines be closed and life and property thus be saved? Was the loss of nineteen lives at Stellarton, Nova Scotia, on Monday wanton waste?

It is too soon for Canadians to try to do without coal, despite the increasing production of oil and waterpower and the decreasing production of coal. It is estimated that in the year just ended the total output of Canadian mines was 18,710,000 tons (incidentally, Alberta has replaced Nova Scotia as the chief coal producer: 7,745,000 tons compared with 6,360,000 tons from the mines of Nova Scotia) and still Canadian requirements demand vast imports from the United States. Last year an estimated 23,000,000 tons of bituminous and some four million tons of anthracite were imported from the U.S. Canada's export of soft coal is relatively insignificant, about the same tonnage as the import of Welsh anthracite. Thus Canadians need coal, and the more they can produce from their own mines the better.

Colliery owners and management, and the government, know how dangerous coal mining is. For instance, the Allan Colliery in Nova Scotia was lost in the Spring because of spontaneous heating. This and unusually severe conditions encountered underground, resulted in a decrease in Nova Scotia's production from the 6,478,405 produced there in 1950. A new machine has been devised which may overcome the difficulties, some of the dangers, and at the same time increase and speed production. In view of the decreased output of recent years, the need for coal and the terribly dangerous conditions in some of the older mines, the new machine may prove to be the most important development that has taken place in coal mining in Canada in the last twenty years.

The "Dosco Miner" as it is called, was designed in Nova Scotia by the Dominion Coal Company. Two of them are already in operation, two more are under construction and will be ready for use by June. The machine is designed to get coal mechanically from longwall faces. It is in Nova Scotia that the longwall method of mining is chiefly used. The "Dosco miner" will have to take care of slopes in these mines exceeding 17 degrees, at about 2,000 feet underground at present, and ultimately possibly 4,000 feet underground. Many of the mines extend far out under the sea.

The new machine has cut 350 feet in 6 hours, during which time 400 tons of coal were mined by a machine crew of only six. This was done on a 500-foot wall straight up and down the full pitch of the Harbour seam at New Waterford, Cape Breton, where the coal seam has a thickness of six feet. Coal mining people believe that the Dosco miner will provide consistent results, greater speed of operation with fewer men, ease of operation and greater safety.

Whether or not the machine would have saved life at the McGregor mine last Monday we do not know. It certainly would not have reduced the gas fumes which resulted in the explosion. As well as machines to save human labour underground, the safety of communication channels must be ensured, and gas leakages prevented, as much as is humanly possible.

Any Germs For Sale?

Would anybody with a cold like to come and breathe on us? Would any cougher like to come and cough in our faces? Does anybody with a not too painful type of 'flu feel like infecting us? We are on the lookout for a mild illness, and will pay a small sum—about a dollar —to anyone whose infection will ensure us of a week in bed. For it is now mid-January, and we feel the need of a rest; we cannot afford to down tools and go to Florida, for our bank balance and—more important—our conscience will not permit such indulgence; but we can afford a nice cheap illness.

This is not mere perverse eccentricity. Dr. Henry E. Sigerist, writing in the Atlantic Monthly, says:

It is a sad comment on our way of life that we must have a sore throat, a bronchitis, laryngitis, or gastro-enteritis, in order to have a few days of real rest. An interesting essay could be written on the hygienic significance of minor ailments. By forcing us to rest, they may prevent more serious illness.

Bronchitis or some such disease is the cheapest way of having a vacation, and spending a week or even a few days in bed is the best rest we can have. The discomfort is nothing to speak of: we catch up with sleep and accumulate a reserve for the weeks to come, we eat little and take off a few pounds, and we have the time to read all the books that have accumulated on our desk.

Was it Mark Twain who said that the only ideal climate is bed? No doubt he would have said it if he had thought of it. For it is true. Where better can we retreat not so much from the problems and challenges of life, as from its boredoms and meaningless complexities? Where better can we think our way out of the entanglements which we have created in our more active hours? Where better can we restore the depleted spirit, and put our trivial worries in their proper place?

Few men, however, have the strength of mind to go to bed unless they have some minor illness for an excuse. That is why we are enquiring about cold germs.

A Tax Defeats Its Purpose

The province of Quebec estimates that revenue from its tobacco tax during the current fiscal year will be $800,000. Working on the grounds supplied by this provincial loss, the Montreal Star makes the following calculations:

"If we can safely assume that smuggled cigarettes are equally prosperous across the country, the prospect is that the loss to Ottawa will be somewhat in excess of $20,000,000.

"That figure is arrived at by multiplying Quebec's loss by three and one-half, the national population being three and one-half times that of Quebec, and that product again by six and one-quarter, Quebec's tax being four cents per package of twenty cigarettes, the Federal tax 25.2 cents, fractionally more than six and one-quarter times as great."

We are not ready to assume that cigarette smuggling is as common elsewhere in Canada as it is in Quebec, because traffic between the U.S.A. and Quebec and Ontario is greater than it is elsewhere in Canada. We do not deny that the Star's figures may be near the truth, but we think that the calculation is a little too mathematical, and insufficiently factual.

We do not suggest, however, that Canada is not losing a great deal of money over smuggled cigarettes. And although we do not condone lawbreaking, we feel that this result was predictable, and that the Department of Finance might have foreseen it and avoided it. Exorbitant taxation reminds the taxpayers that taxes are supposed to be for their benefit, and not punitive and unjust in their application. When a law is patently bad, we must not be surprised if many people break it. Excess in taxation, like every other kind of excess, is bad and brings evil results.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Nova Scotia schoolteachers threaten to strike. In our far-off schooldays our only hope of a holiday was that the teacher might catch a really bad cold.

An anatomist says that a woman who has small ears at twenty will have middle-sized ears at forty and big ears at sixty. And she will say to her husband, "All the better to hear you with, my dear."

A reader tells us that she has received a Christmas card addressed to her at "Peterboro, Toronto, Canada," from a friend in Paris. Disregarding the Parisienne's belief that this city is a suburb of Toronto, we congratulate the Post Office on a nice bit of detective work.

Notes on Winter Fiction

VENTURE TO THE INTERIOR, By Laurens van der Post (Clarke, Irwin & Co.).

HERE IS A BOOK with all the descriptive, adventurous beauty of Antoine de Saint-Exupery's 'Wind, Sand and the Stars' and yet with a mystical calm which defies comparison. Primarily "Venture to the Interior" is a travelogue telling of the author's return after the war and many years abroad to the weird, deep country of his birth, South Africa. Actually it is much more than that for, whilst the author travels and paints a kaleidoscopic picture of his country, he also presents a tragedy with such dramatic intensity that the average suspense novel pales to insignificance beside it and Colonel van der Post's calm reflections and stirring reminiscence throughout the book bestow an inspiring philosophical mood upon the reader.

"Venture to the Interior" is a Book Society choice from England and is a most fascinating and impressive study. The author has the reader alert and tense throughout with his own constant awareness of Africa's dangers and his quiet acceptance of its impenetrable mysteries; his sensitiveness to people and their reactions, to atmosphere and impending disaster are gifts he uses well without abusing them by over-statement. Although there are no boring statistics or noticeably educational factors in the book one feels, after reading it, that the lone white settlers are really just other people like ourselves instead of tyrants with a heel ground into the native neck, and the natives themselves are more childlike and pure in their outlook than we—used as we are to the educated and half-educated Negro—could imagine. This reviewer has not read van der Post's previous book "In a Province" but intends to waste no time in doing so, and recommends this present book as a first rate travel and adventure story, written in beautiful prose and presenting a kindness and tolerance of outlook seldom found in conjunction with the sort of courage the author obviously has. THE SUPREME IDENTITY, by Alan W. Watts (McClelland & Stewart)

THIS IS A BOOK for theologians and Christians to chew. The writer, a chaplain at Northwestern University, sets down his terms and thesis lucidly, with scholarly awareness of the field, and with a delicacy which shows a personal awareness of 'The Supreme Identity'.

The subtitle is "An Essay on Oriental Metaphysic and the Christian Religion". The intellectual ordering of the author's subject is indicated by this paragraph from Chapter Two: "Christianity, however, does not think of God as merely uniform, but as One in Three—the eternal Father as the subject, the eternal Son as the object, and the eternal Holy Spirit as the verb—the lover, the beloved, and the love. But if the fact that the Persons are really three and yet really one does not render God meaningless, then it must necessarily follow that the fact that selves are really many and yet really identical does not render the universe meaningless. One cannot have it both ways, stating that whereas unity in trinity makes God meaningful, unity in multiplicity makes the universe meaningless. If the One in Three God can be meaningful, then the One in Many (i.e. nondual) infinite can be meaningful—and just as remote from monism".

This is a book for students of theology and ontology. What sets its apart from other such works which also quest betwen ratiocination and mysticism is the scholarly analysis of oriental theologies, related to Christian beliefs and dogma. It is good to see a practising preacher getting down to the sinews of belief. T.J.A.

PORTRAIT OF SHIRLEY, by Nora K. Strange (Ryerson Press).

I THINK THAT THIS novel would, in the days of our more honest parents, have been termed a 'penny-dreadful'. It would have been surreptitiously sneaked past the housekeeper's watchful eye and read, with many longing sighs, by a retinue of underhousemaids, nursemaids, under-parlourmaids and scullery maids in the dim, yellow gaslight of the servants' hall, in the damp basement, and no one could blame them for wishing to believe in the nonsense tales of their times; but it is rather surprising to find such a story now.

In "Portrait of Shirley" Miss Strange (or Mrs. Stanley?) has literally 'shot the works' for her Cinderella heroine. Shirley is the daughter of Penelope and Greg Beaumont, she has a twin brother Alan and a half-brother and sister (Maurice and Poppet) by her father's second wife. They live together in East Africa as 'poor whites' with various animals, drink and their father's lady loves, and a lot of disapproving but unhelpful 'good whites'. At the beginning of the story Martin Dunston (hero) is asked by Lady Stoneleigh to fetch Alan and Shirley back to England for her as Penelope, their mother, was her niece and adopted daughter; and although she had eloped with Greg Beaumont (even after they told what he was) Sir James and Lady Staneleigh had not forgotten her. Sir James died worrying as to what had become of her and Lady Stoneleigh had, after seventeen years, decided to do something for the children, as Penelope was dead. So Martin goes to Africa, meets the family, falls in love with Shirley. So Greg, the father, tactfully goes out on a binge and falls dead leaving the way clear to take the twins back to England, only they won't go, not without Maurice and Poppet who just wouldn't fit in to English society at all, as their mother wasn't the niece of anybody who counted. Eventually Lady Stoneleigh is saddled with the lot of them and Martin returns to his Kenya farm to give them time to grow up. He receives long letters describing their development, for they were all 'like wild animals' when arriving; it was beardble in Alan who was very quiet (breeding tells!); unnoticeable in Shirley who was reserved and frightfully proper (and the heroine); but unbearable in Maurice and Poppet. Anyway after a few years and many trials, Shirley gives up her life as a theatrical dress-designer in London and joins Alan who is managing Martin's farm in Kenya (with the obvious conclusion for the hero and heroine) and Poppet becomes the next best thing to a star, with Maurice the financial wizard of the West End and everybody lives happy ever after.

This reviewer regrets not having enough spring left in her blood to appreciate this type of novel more. S.S.T.

THE QUIET GENTLEMAN, by Georgette Heyer (Heinemann—British Book Service).

MISS HEYER HAS written a murder mystery in Regency costume but the Quiet Gentleman is so quiet, and so gentlemanly about it that there is little suspense, and less excitement, involved. The Earl of St. Erth returning to his family home after the Spanish wars finds his step-mother and half-brother anything but welcoming. Being a perfect hero he ignores all insults, except for a trifling duel here and there, and though he is stabbed, has his horse tripped from under him, a bridge torn from beneath his feet and finally is shot, he refuses to jump to the conclusion that the obvious person is responsible for all this (he has plainly read some mystery stories himself)—and how right he is! There is a rather anaemic romance between the Earl and the unsuitable-through-low-birth Miss Moorville who is both house guest and companion-cum-slave to his step-mother. There is a faithful ever-present cousin and the usual county balls necessary to keep up the morale of the landed gentry of that period—also secret passages and Bow Street runners. It seems to this reviewer that Georgette Heyer's usual lightness of touch is absent from this novel, though Heyer enthusiasts may enjoy the more complicated mood. S.S.T.

AT THIS TIME OF YEAR we are already weary of winter weather, and the topic looms large in conversation. Let us reflect upon this odd little story, which pops up in a letter which Southey wrote to a friend in 1807. "One of the German Electors, when an Englishman was introduced to him, thought the best thing he could say to him was to remark that it was bad weather; whereupon the Englishman shrugged his shoulders and replied, Yes —but it was better than none".

Letter To The Editor

TYPOGRAPHICAL TEMPERS NEVER FRAYED

Sir: The Examiner's photograph of the pioneers of Peterborough Typographical Union No. 248 taken in 1906 recalls to the writer's mind those days of the old Rogers' machines when type was produced by a phalanx of compositors worthy to rank with the he-man who stood at Thermopylae.

A man-killer, surely, was the old Rogers. The demand of this immediate predecessor of the Mergenthaler Linotype fell heavily upon brawn as well as upon brains. The swinging of a fingered grain-cradle in a harvest field was a pleasant and unhurried pastime compared with the task of the composing-room operator who at the end of each line of type thrust upward the long metal arm. Hour after hour this process went on, energized solely by human sinews and elbow-grease.

In this fiftieth anniversary year of the Typographical Union it will perhaps not be deemed unfitting in an editorial worker who was happily associated with all those of the picture group of 1906 to offer a word of congraulation to the printing brotherhood who have since carried on so well the early traditions. Coupled with this expression there might well be, I believe, a suggestion that while well-merited long-service buttons are being presented to the living, a moment of silence might well be observed in hearts and minds—a moment of remembrance and honour for "The Boys of the Old Brigade" who transformed into legible pointed words the unspeakable "long hand" copy of the editorialists (or even, may it be added, of the copy-writers of the "Billy" Menzies' era?)

As a producer of copy (of sorts) under the editorship of the late F. R. Yokome, I speak with deep feeling on the subject of editorial chirography, which not infrequently was in the nature of hieroglyphics or cryptography. The Yokome genius was the Yokome genius. Just as the genius of the contemporary "Smiff" of the Bobcaygeon Independent was uniquely and everlastingly the "Smiff" genius. That is all that needs to be said. And with a transposition of names it is all that needs to be said, of those other buoyant contemporary spirits, Dan McGillicuddy of the Goderich Signal and Nicholas Flood Davin of Regina.

As the Yokome spirit mounted and the rapier thrusts of the Yokome mentality flashed in a dazzling accelerando against the clumsy bludgeons of political foes, the Yokome handwriting became increasingly like the black marks which might have been placed on a tabula rasa by a fly just escaped from an ink-pot. Let I have no recollection of an instance in which the boys who manned the Rogers machines failed to produce proofs in which the mystifying cryptography had been transformed into clean and readable typography.

It was all in the day's work. Typographical tempers never became frayed. How could they when the quiet little editor immersed in proof sheets and cramped in a corner of the tiny editorial-staff cubicle, smiled cherubically and explained: "I always like to leave something to the imagination of those who have to set the copy".

It is with pleasure that I offer a postscript to the "cut lines" below the photograph in which it was remarked that R. T. Hounsell was believed to be the only man of the 1906 group now living. I am glad to assure you that Albert Martin who was foreman of the Examiner composing room and first president of the Typographical Union, is alert, active and very much alive as he carries on his work nightly on the copy-cutting and distributing desk of the Toronto Globe and Mail. Off and on through the years I have been in working contact with Albert Martin, whose record for integrity and conscientious service entitles him, I am sure, to a rank in the highest brackets of the Typographical Honor Roll. For many years he served on the make-up of the old Toronto Daily News (for some time in association with Joe Baine, also of Peterborough); later he was similarly engaged with the Toronto Globe. On the absorption of the Mail and Empire by the Globe he succeeded John Chinn as foreman of the composing room. Giving up the exacting duties of that post, he has since occupied the copy-cutting desk (a position filled on the old Globe by the late Jack Bush who will be remembered in Peterborough and Lindsay, for his earlier work there.) Through many of these years still another Peterborough graduate, the late Hanley Goldie, was foreman of the Evening Telegram composing room.

As an editorial worker who holds in grateful remembrance the fine co-operative spirit of all members of the 1906 photograph group, there flashes in memory a living group picture of George Paxman, Charlie Reid, Walter Peters and the others who operated the battery of four or five machines. Charlie Reid later became an editorial worker with one of the Maclean trade journals in Toronto. Walter Peters was the local meteorologist of his day. Though he never peered into the future in the manner of Old Probs, he was not among those referred to by Mark Twain who constantly talked about the weather but never did anything about it, for the temperature records kept by Walter Peters claimed official status and were widely useful.

From the ground-floor pressroom, which was under the foremanship of the late Henry Donnelly, to the old third-floor "Bindery", which was graced by feminine presences and presided over by William Cowie, the goodwill and camaraderie of the Examiner family which have since prevailed were germinating auspiciously in the years just after the turn of the century.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour. And a certain man lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple; who seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple asked an alms....

Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk. And he took him by the right hand, and lifted him up: and immmediately his feet and ankle bones received strength. And he leaping up stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God... And as the lame man which was healed held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch that is called Solomon's greatly wondering.

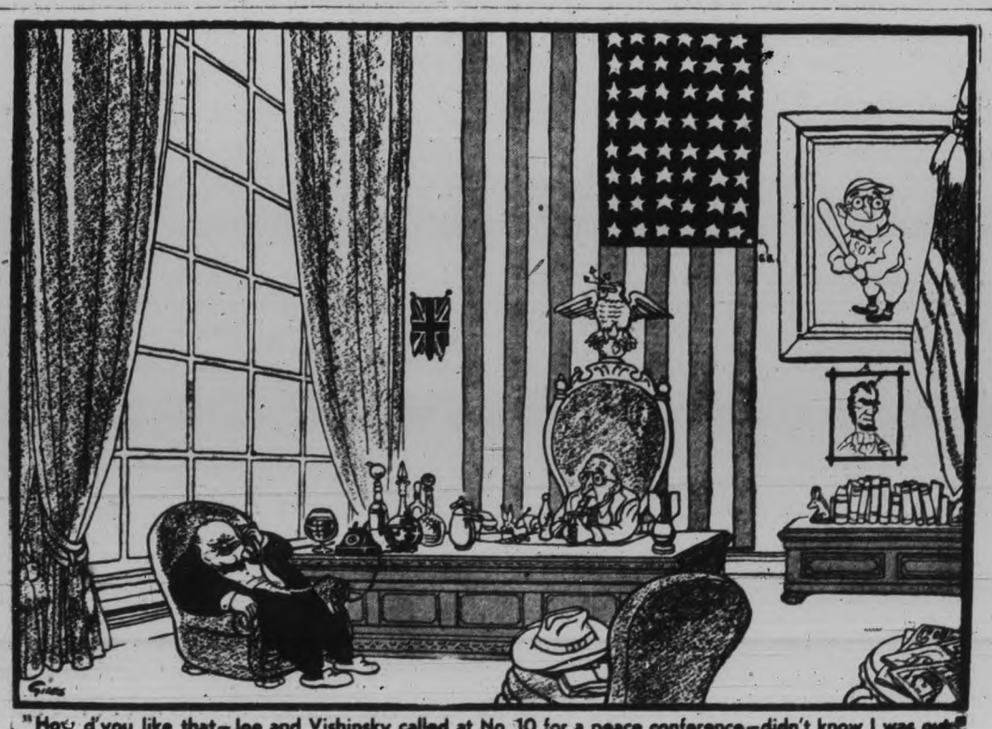
And when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power or holiness we had made this man to walk? The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus; whom ye delivered up, and denied him in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let him go... And his name through faith in his name hath made this man strong, whom ye see and know: yea, the faith which is by him hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all. (Act 3: 1-3, 6-8, 11-13, 16.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The youngest member of the house-party was persuaded to make up a four at bridge, at which game he was no expert. He was partnered by a choleric old gentleman, who made him so nervous that he committed an unblushing revoke.

"Great Scott!" boomed the partner, "haven't you a spade?"

The young man admitted that he had.



The next day it happened that the pair were partners in a golf match. At one point the choleric old man got into a bunker, where he played a dozen furious strokes without moving his ball.

"Haven't you a spade, sir?" inquired the young man, sweetly.

A·F·I·E·L·D with NICK NICKELS

Belleville is making a bid for summer cruiser business, according to a news item in their city paper this week. The west side of Victoria Park is to be laid out for a yachting centre. There will be mooring buoys at the mouth of the Moira River, gas and diesel oil pumping facilities and cruiser pens where visiting craft may tie up. Dinghy sheds are to be erected, too. All this, of course, will not be completed in this year, or the next, but work is already under way.

The Federal Government end of it has started a dredging program in the inner harbor. The city Harbor Commission and Parks Board have plans on their drawing boards.

The Lift Lock City had better look to her laurels. Perhaps to lure some of this cruiser traffic this far up the Trent something more than fresh water facilities and quick fueling arrangements at George Street Wharf should be planned.

We are doing pretty well with cruiser traffic. And it needs no second selling once craft have been over the Trent system. We shouldn't let up in advertising this great attraction in view of Belleville's grandiose schemes.

Kawartha Showman

Herb Cardwell of Wallace Point has had two new canoes built, already has them afloat in the YMCA pool and is sharpening up his trick tactics in preparation for the tank show program at the Canadian Sportsmen's Show, Toronto.

Yes, he has a contract in his pocket for this spot and may work into the Cleveland picture. If he can't be fitted into this American show this year, he has already been approached to sign a contact with them for '53.

This is all to the good.

Peterborough, the continent's canoe-building centre, should gain a deal of advertising from Herb's efforts. His new canoes have "CANADIAN" across their bows in letters a foot high. (Astute fellow, this Bill Hardwick.)

For many years Reg Bloomfield carried on the trick-canoeing tradition in the Kawarthas and though he has dropped exhibition work he can still show a clean pair of leeboards in sailing events. Watched him walk off with the John Roxborough Trophy at the annual Crowe's Landing Regatta last summer.

I predict that Herb will be a star performer in Sportsmen's tank shows in both Canadian and American circuits. Let's give him a big hand.

Discouraged Dreamer

More than 25 years ago a young pilot by the name of Mike de Blicquy tried to get a flying club going in a field beside the Crowley Line, south of Downer's Corners. His scheme was away ahead of its time and it flopped.

Last summer he came back to Kawarthas from Vancouver with another practical scheme. He built a outboard-powered shallow-draft houseboat at Lakefield. He and his family lived on it in comfort until late autumn. Mike could visualize a fleet of such craft plying the Kawarthas on a rental basis. Big Business agreed the idea was sound BUT, BUT . . .

And so another dream has evaporated. And a man can't eat houseboats. Mike goes to Toronto early in February as manager of the Toronto Flying Club. They say that flying is here to stay, anyway, Mike.

Everything Up-to-Date at Mile 496

Met Jim Parsons this week after losing sight of him for many years, since boyhood, that is. He is a tourist camp operator on the Liard River in B.C., 40 miles south of the Yukon Border. It may sound like back of beyond to us Southerners but after hearing about all his modern facilities, I feel that I, instead of Jim, am roughing it in the bush. Distance from home may lead to enchantment but Jim is a business man, not a frontier romancer and he has no use for the writers of travels "slicks" who roar past his camp at 60 m.p.h., and turn out all sorts of balderdash about his country. His true facts about his life up there make very interesting listening.

The Hudson's Bay Company, besides being one of the oldest mercantile businesses in the world, is famous for its hospitality at northern fur posts everywhere. I have stayed at many of them. Now, I see by a Lands and Forest news release that the department feels that their welcome can be worn too thin. They plan to build a string of stopping places in the Patricia district of Northern Ontario. These places, for the use of government officials and others, will house emergency food supplies, bedding and so forth.

The first building is planned for Big Trout Lake — shown as Fawn Lake on official maps—that is situated about half way between the CNR line and Hudson Bay; (the release insists on calling it "Hudson's," twice, while irreverant travellers insist on calling the dear old HBC the "Here Before Christ" Company).

No Rice for Newfies. Sorry.

Bay Roberts,
Newfoundland.

The Mayor,
The Town of Peterborough, Ont.,
Canada.

Dear Sir:

I am searching for information on wild rice, such as I understand abounds in the waters of your territory, with special emphasis on its value for muskrat propagation and wild game utility

Has there ever been made, to your knowledge, a scientific analysis of this rice at perhaps the Provincial University?

What would it cost per pound in small quantities? Is it available in 500 to 1,000-pound lots?

Any additional information with which you may be familiar on this point would be appreciated.

Yours sincerely,
ADRIEN I. DAWE.

May I suggest, Your Worship, that you advise Mr. Dawe of our very poor wildrice crop? The Department of Natural Resources, Manitoba, are the only likely people to have this sort of information. Out there, wildrice is harvested in great quantities and the U of M may have done considerable research on the subject.—N.N.

Pickerel Jigging Baffles Bruce On Ice

BRUCE MAXWELL of Lakefield

By BRUCE MAXWELL
As Told to Nick Nickels

I am a fisherman.

I like to take my boat and get out under the open sky, to whip tangled streams for trout, to try a lot of out-of-the way places. My successes over the years have been modest and my memories abundant.

But I'll be darned if I would call ice-fishing fishing.

Last week I had a chance to go down to the Bay of Quinte, off Trenton, and size up the sport that so many of my friends rave about.

It was a dull gray depressing afternoon, so dull, in fact, that the aircraft were being called back to the RCAF field. Perhaps I was in a dull mood.

I counted 50 shanties dotted over the ice and at 4:30 in the afternoon most of them had their fires going.

Shanties, the owners call them. Dog Kennels, would be more fitting. I crawled into one of them as the owner bade me welcome and after sitting beside him for ten minutes, while my eyes became accustomed to the darkness, I began to feel so cooped up that I wanted to scream.

I watched my host spear a dollop of live minnows on his gang hooks and listened to his enthusiastic tales of the sport. He sat there, jigging, jigging, jigging, his line. Quite a technique, this, I thought.

My companion said that he could jigg for a week without getting a strike. On the other hand, he might land half a dozen pickerel in a half hour, he said. How anyone could sit there over an ice hole 1-ft. in diameterr jigging for a week, escaped me entirely.

There was something about being cooped up in that shanty that made me want to throw out my chest and flail my arms, but there wasn't room. How can anyone who calls himself a fisherman sit there curled up hour after hour jigging with a bob of minnows?

My host invited me to take a turn at his ice hole. I did for a little while and made some excuse about getting back home to Lakefield.

I backed out of the ken-, pardon me, shanty, and stood shivering in the keen wind off Lake Ontario. My host pressed me to come back again sometime. Anytime. I chattered my thanks for his kind invitation and headed for my car on shore by the wharf.

I passed two fishermen dragging their shanty out onto the ice, one pulling, one pushing.

"How's the fishing?" they called cheerfully in chorus.

"It's out of this world," I answered and I think the sarcasm escaped them entirely. Hope so, anyway. They seemed like good guys.

But ice fishing leaves ME cold. And I mean cold.

CHARLIE WONG works long hours running a restaurant in Trenton and relaxes in his ice fishing shanty on Bay of Quinte

THE WRIGHT BROTHERS are novices at fishing through the ice but they have been bitten by the bug and now jig with the best of them.

Rural Starlings Take Over Heart Of London

Laurie Lee, the young poet, is a countryman born and bred and in the BBC's "London Calling Asia" program he talked about a curiously rural sight that can be seen in the centre of the capital. "Any evening" he said; "if you walk up from the Thames bank into Trafalgar Square—that broad space of fountains where Nelson's Column stands—you'll hear above the roar of the traffic a bright, high squealing of countless chattering tongues.

They are sounds that will stop you in your tracks; and as you stare, amazed, at the buildings and sky around you, you will see not one but tens of thousands of birds. For Trafalgar Square has become a gigantic roost of starlings—in fact during the last few years it has become one of the biggest roosts in the country."

Take Over From Workers

Central London teems with human workers in the daytime but at night most of them migrate to their suburban homes to sleep. It is then that the rural starling flies in to roost and takes over from the humans.

Lee feels this to be an admirable arrangement designed to make the most of the small and crowded Island, but it is with a peculiar mixture of wonderment, half-pleased, half worried, that he views this gigantic avian occupation. It is as though the world of birds had suddenly broken loose from its remote, traditional settlement and decided to muscle in on man's own territory. It brings to the Londoner the same feeling of uneasy excitement that he might get if a herd of Dartmoor ponies were to take over a block of flats, or if swarms of wasps suddenly began to leave their nests and settle in all the letter-boxes in town.

Scurrying Flocks

He described a recent evening when he watched the starlings taking over. As the sun went down swift, scurrying flocks of birds "came in low over the roofs in tens, twenties and thirties, like handfuls of black pennies, like spots before the eyes." They joined forces and began to circle over the Square, massing, dividing and merging again, climbing and swooping but in such order and in such numbers that the eye became dizzy with their rhythmic complications.

"They swept the sky like bursts of grape shot" he said, "they bombarded Nelson's statue with black confetti, they settled thickly on the rooftops, they blow away like dust." Londoners, homeward bound, watched the sky become veiled with a storm of birds that never broke.

"And still the birds massed and multiplied in the air," marvelled Lee, "condensing one moment into a small black cloud, then spreading out into a fast floating web so tenuous at times it seemed to cover the whole sky."

This miracle happens every night and as darkness gathers the flocks break up and drop down to their roost. "Then the face of the National Gallery, St. Martin's Church, Admiralty Arch and all the shipping offices down Cockspur Street are suddenly veiled as though with antique Spanish lace. The slender scaffolding above Charing Cross Station is threaded as though with beads and the trees in the Embankment

Your Garden:

How To Grow Beautiful Amaryllis

By HENRY PREE (NEA)

The old gardener, passing out gifts at a recent party, distributed a number of hybrid Amaryllis bulbs.

Several of the recipients, evidently unaware of this beautiful, exotic flower, asked, "How do you grow this funny-looking thing?" Fortunately, the bulbs were ready for immediate forcing

For best results Amaryllis bulbs are placed in pots which are only an inch or two larger than the diameter of the bulbs themselves. Mine are in six-inch pots. Failure of the bulbs to bloom is usually due to planting in a large pot where it develops roots at the expense of top growth, and planting too deeply.

At his best man is the noblest of all animals; separated from law and justice, he is the worst.

Aristotle: Politics, I, c. 322 B.C.

Dorothy Jenkins and Helen Van Pelt Wilson, in their grand book, "Enjoy Your House Plants," write:

"In each pot is first placed an inch layer of coarse gravel or broken pot, thena layer of rich garden soil to which a teaspoon of bonemeal has been added. The bulb is then set and just enough soil packed firmly about it so that its neck and shoulders are above the top level of the soil. This means that from one-third to one-half of the bulb is uncovered.

"Then water thoroughly and set in a cool, dark place to force root growth, during which time, six to eight weeks, watering once a week will suffice. As sooh as rooting is satisfactory the bulb will push forth a flower bud to announce that it wants to be brought up into the light and warmth.

"Water once a week until the flower stalk is about four inches long, then water as often as is necessary to keep the soil well moistened. And once in two weeks apply a half cup of weak liquid fertilizer when you water it."

For its flower-producing period, a sunny east window is ideal and there it is best if the temperature does not rise above 60. A too-dry atmosphere also is to be avoided.

The leaves will not grow much until the flowers have faded, then after the big, flowering stalk is cut away, a fine green, strap-leaved plant will demand your attention. Continue watering until early summer when the plant, pot and all, is plunged into the ground under the shade of some shrub where the Amaryllis bulb will be developing the embryo blooms for next year.

Keep watering and feeding until early September when the plant is brought indoors, kept dry until the foliage is loose and can be removed, to be stored in a cool and dark place until early next Christmas. Watering once a month is sufficient during the early winter resting period. Do not repot the Amaryllis until it either breaks the pot or forces itself out of the pot. It will not flower unless root-bound.

JESSE BAKER is in the dark, by choice, but not about the ways of ice fishing; he has been at it for more than 50 years.

Hybrid Amaryllis has a dainty, but handsome flower in a delicate shade of Indian red.

Gardening Questions

Q—The speaker at a recent garden club meeting spoke of "Rosemary and other labiates." What are labiates? D. C.

A—Rosemary, lavender, salvia, mint and thyme are labiates or members of the mint family, the botanical name of which is labiatae. These plants are excellent for the rock garden.

Q—Several of our larger potted foliage plants which were set into the garden soil last summer are infested with earth worms. How does one eliminate the worms? W. L.

A—A simple way is to make a solution of chlordane, one tablespoon to a quart of warm water and either saturate the soil or stand the pot in the solution until the fluid is drawn into the soil. Permanganate of potash, one-half level teaspoon to a quart of warm water is equally effective. Permanganate is likewise useful to get rid of moss on the soil.

Q—Is there a winter-flowering shrub which blooms out of doors in our cold part of the country?

A—The Vernal Witch-hazel, hamamelis vernalis, depending upon weather conditions, sometimes blooms in January and sometimes in February. It has small very fragrant yellow flowers, about one-half inch in diameter which open on warm winter days. The Chinese Witch-hazel, hamamelis mollis, with one-and-a-half-inch flowers, blooms in March.

It isn't listed under your name, but it can be — at a cost of LESS THAN ONE CENT A DAY. A box in our modern vault will protect your bonds, insurance policies, jewellery and other valuables from fire and theft, and gives you the use of a private room in which to examine them.

Once in a while we like to remind young athletes to keep a scrapbook of news clippings on their activities. It makes interesting reading in later life. Surprising how many former players in hockey, ball, etc., who never kept any of their clippings from the sports pages and now regret it. Some drop around to the newspaper offices years after they've hung up their gear and ask if they can now obtain some pieces for a scrapbook. Too late. We recall Irvin Bailey, after his recovery from the injury that put him out of hockey, coming down from Toronto to seek old Examiner items about his play when here. Recently a boxer of about '34 vintage dropped in for similar clips. So, we advise athletes in their prime to keep up their scrapbooks.

Basketball on two fronts here tonight. Three boys' school exhibitions at the Collegiate: Orillia OABA midgets vs. PCVS junior "B" team; Orillia High seniors vs. PCVS senior "B" squad, and the OABA Orillia juniors against the senior "A" PCI-ers, coached by Bev Goulding. At the YM tonight at eight, Belleville Glen Roys play Gord McIntyre's Marines in an Eastern League fixture. A win for Marines would tie 'em for top place with the Quinte cagers. Marines will have Hugh Dibben and Joe Stewart for centre; Neil Thompson, Ted Payne, Ab Stewart and Warren Smith, forwards; and Dough MacPherson, Chum Gillespie, Harold Grafstein and Bill Trimm as guards.

Now Lou Faces Trouble

He shouldn't ha' done it — Lou Pitoscia, mat trainer of Athol Layton, shouldn't have interfered on behalf of his nibs here last week 'gainst Bobo Brazil. Now, Lou and Layton have to face Brazil and fiery Pat Flanagan in a team main grapple bout Tuesday night at the Brock. Flan had to help Bobo two weeks ago when Lou again mixed into it. This team bout should produce heaps of hectic action with the popular pair of Pat and Bobo probably beating the bejabers out of the rough duo. Zorra meets Warren Bockwinkle in the semi-final on this card, while the prelim pits big Bill Stack against mean Stan Mayslack. Sounds like quite a pro wrestling program.

Belleville Hawklets, who have been fighting it out all season with Lindsay Kin for top spot in their OHA junior "B" group, face a hot team here Monday. They're in against Johnny Godfrey's local IOOF-ers, a team that has taken its last three games in a row Even knocking off the strong Scugog squad here Wednesday by a 7-5 count. Oddfellows are well in third place now and threatening to keep moving up the ladder on the Quinte and Lindsay huskies with the schedule having less than a month to go. The Monday eve melee shapes up as another sizzling junior puck scrap, one that deserves a hefty crowd of hockey followers.

K's Were "On" Again

Hockey is a peculiar game and a team that is "off" one night can be very much "on" two nights later. Like Kingston. They lost 14-1 to Eagles in Kingston on Wednesday, yet they pulled out a 6-5 win o'er the same squad here last eve. It's enough to make an honest gambler take up bingo. Actually, they deserved it on their sustained drive, though 'twas quite an even joust throughout. Just a tossup, but it came up heads for them, and now they're alone in third place. Mulholland, one of their newer imports, looked good, and Murray, Ohlke, Aitken and Stewart showed up well. Fred Mortimer, Toodie Greenlaw and Reg Stewart were best for Eagles, with Jim Munroe solid both ways. A swell fast game to view, but a tough one for Ned's pack to drop.

A salute to D. A. McGillis Sr. for paying the way into this game for a raft of kids. Crowd was better than 1200 and it looked like nearly half were kids, Mr. McGillis paying the whole shot for them. We can't recall a similar generous gesture of such proportions. The Eagles' sponsor also put up two pairs of CCM boots and skates as draws for a lucky boy and girl, as well as two pucks and two sticks. Bill Casey and Barbara Woodhouse won the skates. On the boys' draw, no one responded when the ticket was announced so they drew again. No sooner was the draw made—which Billy won—than Bob Ritchie arrived with the first drawn ducat! He looked so disappointed that Mr. McGillis said: "All right, lad, you come in and see me tomorrow and I'll buy you a pair too." You can't beat that. The kids sure made a lot of noise just like at the oldtime roarin' games in the Brock.

Lindsay Victors Over Port Hope

LINDSAY, Ont., Jan. 19 — (ENS)—Lindsay's league-leading intermediate "A" Muskies came through with another 5-3 win on home ice last night against the second place Port Hope Redmen to go five points ahead in the running.

Final score was 5-3 with the locals drawing first blood mid-way in the first frame and they were never headed. Playing coach Al Burns, formerly of the Peterborough Eagles, had his team in top shape for the tilt and they carried play throughout the game. They rapped in two goals by Lewis and Crawford in the first with one answering tally from the Redmen by Coon Medhurst, assisted by young D'Arcy Campbell. They scored two more in the first five minutes of the second period by Hicks and Mike Burns and the Redmen got one back at the half by H. McKeen. Mike Burns got his second tally of the night a few seconds before the period ended. Only one goal was scored in the final frame by Free, assisted by McKeen.

Nurses-Lindsay Take Wins In Cage League

Results in the girls' city basketball were as expected Friday night as the Nurses easily trimmed the Normal School 35-22 and the Lindsay lasses tripped the CGE girls 25-10.

In the first game the Nurses had only five players to carry the whole game and that was all they needed for three players accounted for all the points. They ran up a healthy lead in the first half and settled back for a close last session.

Led by Bev Dawe with 11, Susan Slater and Marj Flavelle each with eight points, Nurses racked up 27 points in the first half. The best Normalites could do was 12 points, mostly scored by B. Orsborn.

Orsborn whipped home five baskets for 10 points for Normals in the second half but they needed more than that; the rest of her team weren't scoring. Slater and Flavelle each added two baskets to keep the lead intact.

But the scoring honors went to Normals' Orsborn who totalled 20 of her team's 22 points. The other basket went to L. Faircloth.

An Easy Win

Lindsay kept just ahead of the CGE cagers by five points throughout the second game for a comparatively easy victory.

Marj Owen, Ruth Beard, R. Gilson and A. Hawkins all dropped in baskets for Lindsay in the first half. The CGE girls mustered three points on foul shots and a single field basket as they fell behind 11-5 at half time.

Lindsay opened up further on the scoring in the second half with R. Gilson leading with six points on three baskets, Shirley Meath, Beard and Owen accounting for the other eight points. Again the CGE girls could only total five points.

R. Gilson led the scoring with nine points, followed by teammate Owen with seven and CGE's Pat Nixon with six.

Lineups—

1st Game—Nurses (35)—Stackhouse, Smith, Dawe 11, Slater 12, Flavelle 12.

Normal school (22)—Scollard, Waddington, Todd, Wallace, Faircloth 2, Jermy, Orsborn 20.

RECEIVE CHAMPIONSHIP JACKETS. The Board of Education honored the COSSA senior "A" football champions Friday at the PCVS collegiate assembly when they presented the boys with garnet and grey jackets. The players surprised Coach Bev Goulding (left) by presenting him with a caddy cart for his golf as well as some golf balls. Warren Brown, captain, (right) made the presentation.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Jackets, Crests Presented PCVS Sr. COSSA Champs

PCVS' senior "A" Garnet and Grey football team, COSSA champions, were honored Friday at the assembly when the Board of Education presented the players with satin jackets. W. B. Gordon, chairman of the board, in making the presentation recalled the early days when championships in football were won at PCI. He told the students that on the team he played inside wing for the second string, the first string position was held by Mayor Hugh Waddell.

He extended his congratulations to the players and coach on bringing the senior championship back to Peterborough after a lapse of two years.

Presents Crests

John Kitney, chairman of the Peterborough Suburban High School Board, presented the COSSA championship crests.

Warren Brown, captain of the team presented Coach Bev Goulding with a golf caddy cart and golf balls on behalf of the team.

Mr. Goulding recalled moments from the season's games, pointing out that PCVS triumphed over Stamford by practically the same margin as Hamilton Cathedral beat Stamford to win the All-Ontario title. This indicated that PCVS team was on a par with Hamilton.

"Anyone would be proud to work with such a fine group of boys", said Mr. Goulding when he thanked the team for the gifts.

The PCVS cheerleaders led the students in several yells and songs.

Those receiving the jackets were: Spin Hope, Jim Wilkinson, Jack King, Paul Frise, Bus Jensen, Bob Craw, Don Scriver, Doug Ash, Don Clapper, Jack Adams, Bryan Young, Bill Nichols, Ted Sanders, Stan Facendi, Doug Graham, Howard Hempstead, Murray Grafstein, Norm Hayward, Gary Gilders, Ken Pammett, Larry Forbes, John Milburn, Warren Brown, Jim Telford, Hugh Outram, Dave Langhorne, Fred Russell and Mr. Goulding.

Two Canadians Still In Running

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 19 —(CP)— Ontario's two amateur women golfers Friday posted second-round scores that kept them in the running in the Tampa open tournament's narrowing field.

The darkhorse, Marjorie Row of Riverside, Ont., kept ahead of Canadian amateur champion Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont. Miss Row added an 82 to Thursday's 77 to wind up in a three-way tie for 15th place in the field of 34 with a 159.

Miss Stewart, flashy 17-year-old who beat out Marjorie in the Canadian women's open quarter-finals last year, took an 80 to give her 161 and a four-way tie for 22nd place.

Both girls were well behind the sub-par performance of Louise Suggs of Georgia, who duplicated Thursday's 72 for a four-under-par 144.

Nearest to Miss Suggs was Peggy Kirk of Ponte Verda Beach, Fla., who also had 72 Friday for a 36-hole total of 147.

Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., was another stroke back at 148. Miss Jameson, a former winner of the Tampa Open, had 74's both days — even par over the well-trapped, 6,093-yard course.

Warsaw Victorious Over Lakefield, 9-3

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 19—(ENS)— Warsaw Flyers pounded out a 9-3 EPHL win over Lakefield here last night in a nifty number. It was fast hockey on good ice before a fair-sized crowd, the tilt being rough in the first period. T. Birch and G. Payne drew majors for mixing it in that number. The losers drew seven of the 12 penalties in the game.

Warsaw scored four in the first, L. Lonsberry, Evans, B. Batten and Clements hitting the rigging, as Paterson aided on two and McMillan and G. Payne one each. S. Lonsberry and Clements each scored one and helped on the other in the second for Warsaw, while Morrison and R. Calberry counted for the homesters. Wilford got their lone marker of the third, the Warsaw snipers being Patterson, Clements and S. Lonsberry. The latter and L. Lonsberry each had an assist. Teams:

Warsaw: B. Payne, G. Payne, Eadie, L. Lonsberry, Paterson, Evans, Sharp, Watts, S. Lonsberry, E. Payne, M. Batten, B. Batten, McMillan, Clements.

Lakefield: Wasson, Coons, E. Sabatino, Chittick, Henry, G. Birch, T. Birch, P. Calberry, R. Calberry, Hockaday, Morrison, Wilford, Wannamaker.

Referee: K. McArthur; linesman, T. Junkin.

Dick Savitt Winner In Second Round

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 19 (AP).—Dick Savitt continued his triumphant march in the Australian national tennis championships today, but Ham Richardson, the only other American competing, was eliminated by Frank Sedgman, Australia's top player.

Savitt won an easy straight set second round victory over Neil Fraser, a junior southpaw, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2. Sedgman bowled over Richardson, 6-4, 6-4, 6-0.

Patrick Not Satisfied With Detroit Officiating

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP). — Coach Lynn Patrick of Boston Bruins said Friday night he was "far from satisfied" with the refereeing of the National Hockey League game the Bruins lost 5-0 to Detroit Red Wings in Detroit Wednesday night.

"It's not because we lost," he said. "I never am satisfied with the refereeing when we play there."

Patrick, here with his Bruins for a game with the Toronto Maple Leafs tonight, didn't elaborate.

Havelock Edged Out By Flyers, 8 to 6

HAVELOCK, Jan. 19—(ENS)— A powerful Trenton Fliers' squad yanked out an 8-6 TVL win over Havelock here last night to halt a winning streak by the local team. It was 6-6 at the end of regulation time. Flyers made it 7-6 in the extra inning, and with the Havelock goalie pulled in the final minute of play, the potent visitors flew in for one more in the best game seen here this season.

The speedy struggle drew a full house and the fans were treated to some sparkling hockey by both sides, with little to choose between the teams. Another thriller is expected here Monday with Belleville the visitors in the interlocking TVL schedule. Young Bill Lang counted his second goal of the season for Havelock last evening and turned in a solid effort throughout.

PCVS Lasses Divide With Hopers

Port Hope high school and PCVS divided a basketball doubleheader in the collegiate gym Friday night as the girls' Lake Ontario district league opened. The lakeshore lasses finished stronger than the Garnet and Grey girls to win the junior game 20-12 while the PCVS cagers outplayed Port Hope seniors throughout a low-scoring game for a 14-8 victory.

The Collegiate girls were encouraged for their 1952 debut by the large following which attended both games. In previous years the girls played before only a handful of spectators but Friday night had close to 200 lining the gym. To promote girls basketball this year at the school admission to the games is free.

Mabel Gillen's PCVS juniors, who have only one player from last year's COSSA finalists, held the lakeshore cagers to a 9-5 score at halftime, points going to Maizie Shearer, Bernice Callan, and Margaret Dobson for PCVS. But five points by Pat Thompson and two other baskets were enough to give Port Hope the slim edge.

Pat Thompson kept sinking baskets for Port Hope in the second half as they again outscored PCVS, this time 11-7. Maizie Shearer kept up her first half pace but more than her scoring punch was needed to overcome the lakeshore lead. Pat Thompson easily led the game scoring with 11 points.

A Low Score

The PCVS senior girls outplayed the Port Hope team throughout in their game, but poor shooting, sometimes not enough shooting while in the keyhole area, kept the score down. In fact it was practically nothing at halftime; the Garnet and Grey were ahead 4-2.

Marg Clark with shifty footwork and accurate shooting sparked the Garnet and Grey in opening minutes of the third quarter and they went on to build up a 12-2 before Port Hope could turn the tide.

The Port Hope girls began to pass and shoot better in the final quarter when they broke through PCVS' tall guard section several times. They crept up to 12-8 before PCVS counted the final basket.

PCVS' scoring was distributed between Marg Clark, Shirley Frost, Betty Jones, Betty Thomson and Joan White. Six of the 14 points scored by these girls were via the foul shot route.

Kingston Surprises Eagles To Grab a 6-5 Win And Take Over Third Place

Showing a startling reversal of form last Wednesday when they lost at home 14-1 to Eagles, Kingston Sacs yanked out a 6-5 senior "B" puck verdict over the Eagles here last night before more than 1200 fans. The win hoisted Kingston into undisputed possession of third place in their Central Ontario grouping ahead of Eagles. The winning goal was tallied by Don Murray with more than seven minutes to go in the final frame.

It was a very speedy struggle all through and with play quite even, each side in turn threatening in spots. It was generally clean, but Eagles drew seven of the 10 penalties, which hurt their cause to a considerable extent. Kingston took a 3-2 lead in the first period, but Eagles battled back to take a 3-1 second-stanza edge and lead 5-4 going into the third. The visitors sewed it up at 7.02 in the last heat and later counted the winning marker.

Speedy Sam

Both goalies were good, but Nicholls didn't get quite as good protection in front of his net by his mates. Speedy Sam Mulholland caught the eye with flashy work in every period for the K's. Don Murray and Cliff Aitken potted two goals each for them, Mulholland and Stan Stewart getting the others. The latter had two assists, Bud Ohlke three, as singles went to Murray, Jack White and Jerry Wagar.

Freddy Mortimer notched three goals for Ned Vitarelli's squad, all in the second period, while Bill Crowley and Jim Munroe each netted the disc once. Two assists went to Toodie Greenlaw and Reg Stewart, singles being marked to Munroe, Fred Mortimer, Bert Hill and Dootch Vitareli. Cut on the eye lid, George Brabin missed part of the last chukker.

Scores Early

Munroe scored early on a pass back from Fred Mortimer, the goalie's view being blocked. Eagles had an edge on play but Murray evened it up halfway through on Ohlke's rebound, and then Aitken tore in fast with Stewart's pass to make it 2-1. Crowley tied it up on a corner passout and rebound from Vitarelli and Hill at close angle. It was speedy and even near the close, and Aitken's slap shot on a passout, Ohlke and Murray aiding, beat Nicholls just before the bell to make it 3-2 for Kingston.

Larmer and Doug Mortimer went off for roughing in the second and Mulholland scored from Stewart on a screened shot at defence. Berwick went over for high-sticking but all were back when Munroe got it for tripping. Nicholls held Kingston off till his return after a fine Berwick-Samalenko rush and a solo thrust by Ohlke. Fred Mortimer tallied from Stewart and Greenlaw on in-close combination after one player skirted the visitors' net. Fred Mortimer counted another to tie it up as he batted in Munroe's forward pass at the crease. Mulholland went over for holding and Wilson for butt-ending. All were back when Fred Mortimer completed his period hat trick on fine teamplay right in with Stewart and Greenlaw to put Eagles up 5-4.

Gets Winner

Doug Mortimer drew an early third-period penalty for boarding, and Fred Mortimer followed for high-sticking. Both were back when Stan Stewart sewed it up on a screened shot in close and fast with White and Wagar fashioning the play. Brabin went off hurt and Goodfellow later got it for high-sticking. Montgomery followed for interference and play was hot and even. Crowley came close before the sinners returned, and then Murray slapped the puck into the twine in a scramble, after a pass from Ohlke. That proved the winner, though Eagles pressed hard for a short space when Goalie Ross Nicholls was pulled, later returning to the cage. Teams:

Kingston—Goal, Anderson; defence, Stewart and Sweetman; centre, Murray; wings, Ohlke and Aitken; alternates, Mulholland, White, Tinkess, Larmer, Wagar and Goodfellow.

Eagles—Goal, Nicholls; defence, D. Mortimer and Munroe; centre, F. Mortimer; wings, Stewart and Greenlaw; alternates, Hill, Crowley, Vitarelli, Samalenko, Wilson, Brabin, Montgomery and Berwick.

Referee—L. Lecompte; linesman, R. Ouimet.

Richard Seems Ailing Again But Rookies Cheer Habs

By The Canadian Press

Coach Dick Irvin is prepared if his scoring ace Maurice (Rocket)) Richard is unable to play against Detroit Red Wings tonight. Irvin said he will call up Les Douglas and Cliff Malone of the Quebec Senior Hockey League Montreal Royals. Douglas is the leading scorer in the QSHL and teammate Malone is one of the outstanding stars of the league this year. Club officials report nothing new on the Rocket's condition. In Thursday's game against Toronto, Richard was forced to retire in the third period when a pain in his stomach slowed him to a walk. This was early in the final frame, and after two brief appearances later, he went to the dressing room.

Irvin says it is up to the Rocket. If he feels able and desires to play tonight it's all right with the club. If not, he will sit the game out.

There is cheering news in the Canadien camp because of the fine showing of the rookies. Dollard St. Laurent defenceman, and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion have been flying and dour Dick is plenty pleased with their performances to date.

Important Games

While the Habitants are entertaining the Red Wings, the Boston Bruins will be playing Toronto Maple Leafs in the latter's home bailiwick. The games are important ones for both teams.

Toronto, in second place, still leads the Montreal by three points. If the Maple Leafs lose and the Habs win, the Montrealers will be only one point out of the second slot. The Maple Leafs however have a chance to draw farther ahead if they win, because the Detroiters are always tough opposition for Canucks.

Sunday night the Canadiens travel to Boston, Toronto goes to Chicago and Rangers are visitors to Detroit.

Montreal Curlers Fall By Wayside

MONTREAL, Jan. 19 (CP). — All Montreal curlers fell by the wayside Friday night in the hunt for the Royal Victoria Jubilee Trophy and four out-of-town rinks remained for the quarter-final matches today.

H. C. Johnston's four from Ottawa Glebe came through with double victories. The capital city curlers first disposed of the Vankleek Hill, Ont., crew, skipped by J. T. McDonald 12-11 and followed up by beating K. Roobs' Aubrey rink 11-9.

The Glebe foursome will meet the Renfrew representatives piloted by F. E. Dench who scored over T. E. Rouleau's Cornwall four 15-14 and Royal Montreal, skipped by R. C. Braithwaite 15-9.

J. R. McMillen's Rideau quartet meets the Smiths Falls team headed by R. Fraser, Rideau rose to victory over Ray Reddick's Huntingdon four 17-11 and R. L. Guilmette's St. Francis crew 13-9. Fraser's foursome defeated Montreal West, skipped by T. Sommerville.

Marlboros Failed To Obtain Jago

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP). — Toronto Marlboros failed Friday night in their bid to have Paul Jago declared eligible for Ontario Hockey Association Junior A hockey.

Jago played for suburban Weston Dukes last season. Considered too small for immediate Junior A use at the start of the present season, he accepted an offer to play for Washington Lions in the United States Eastern League. The Lions folded this week.

Marlboros tried to get him as a replacement for rightwinger Rod McElroy, out for a week or two.

However, the OHA executive Friday night ruled him ineligible, because he had played for the Lions after the Dec. 15 deadline.

Russia Applies To Join Ice Hockey Federation

ZURICH, Switzerland, Jan. 19 (AP).—Russia has formally applied for membership in the International Ice Hockey Federation in order to play in the winter Olympic games at Oslo next month, Dr. Fritz Kraztz, president of the Federation, said today.

A cable signed "Korotkov" asked that the Soviet application for membership be put before congress of IIHF, opening at Oslo, Feb. 14.

"Meanwhile," the cable said, "request provisional admission to all international games 1952."

Kraatz said he did not know whether the Oslo congress would accept the last minute Soviet application. The deadline for entries to the Olympic hockey tournament expired Dec. 31, but Kraatz said the congress is free to make an exception to the rules if it wished.

Meanwhile, Kraatz said, he cabled Russian hockey authorities to send him immediately copies of their statutes and regulations and to add to their application, a formal promise to abide by federation rules.

Italy's withdrawal from the tournament reduced to nine the number of countries definitely competing in hockey tournament. Kraatz said it would be "much easier" to organize tournament for nine teams than 10.

Owe To Matthew Recording Of Sermon On The Mount

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

Traditionally, a government official is not easily pried loose from his job. Yet Matthew, a customs official, gave up handsome receipts to follow Jesus and later became a Saint and Apostle. Earlier, four fishermen had thrown down their nets to become His followers, dramatic proof of the magnetism of Jesus' personality.

But Jesus was not concerned about His reputation. Proof is that he chose the tax collector for the Roman power and later became the guest, and Savior, of another tax gatherer, Zacchaeus (Luke 19). He chose men for what they were, not for what others might think about them.

How wisely and with what insight Jesus chose the earliest Christian leaders was soon evident in the impulsive, foremost Peter, and in the strength, courage, and ambition of James and John, but no less in this Matthew.

He does not appear so prominently in the narrative incidents, but he was destined to be the greatest recorder of the sayings of Jesus.

It is to him that we owe the three chapters of his Gospel (5th, 6th and 7th), that we call the Sermon on the Mount.

Jesus said that the Holy Spirit would bring to the remembrance of the disciples all things that He had said to them. Surely this was verified by so amazing an achievement of listening, remembering, and recording as Matthew has given.

Here in these three chapters is set forth the nature of the Kingdom, which Jesus said was among men, but not of this world. Here is its constitution, its principles, its way of life. Here is the heart of the Gospel.

The parables of God's love, in the story of the Prodigal Son, and of human brotherhod in the story of the Good Samaritan, and the accompanying parables, are but amplifications and exemplifications of all that the Sermon on the Mount teaches and implies.

It is a Sermon for this world, if not of this world. At almost every point the principles of action and motives that commonly actuate men are challenged: it is more blessed to give than to receive; love is better than hate and man by his own spirit of forgiveness defines the nature and the measure of the forgiveness that he seeks. "Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors."

It might all seem visionary and impractical but the fact is that many have lived it and demonstrated it in action.

People like the late Jane Addams, or Wilfred Grenfell, or the still-living Albert Schweitzer, reveal how truly more blessed it is to give than to receive, and how the Sermon on the Mount can be put into actual living.

And many lesser ones in their humble spheres have shown the practicability and beauty of lives lived under the Master's principles and guidance.

United Church Ministers Give Support To Temperance Campaign

Peterborough Clergy Will Endorse Proposal of Church Group; Say "Best Thing In Years" If Successful

Unlike their Toronto colleagues, who differ in their views on the issue, local United Church ministers are united in their support of a campaign urging church members to sign pledges that they will not use liquor. Commenting on the mixed reception the move has received in Toronto, the Rev. H. G. Douglas of Knox United said: "The clergy endorse the principle but do not necessarily endorse the method." This probably accounts for the divergence of opinion, Mr. Douglas added.

A meeting of 60 conveners of presbytery Christian education committees and groups of evangelism and social service decided to launch the pledge signing campaign at a meeting in Toronto Thursday.

Sunday, February 24, has been named as Commitment Sunday in the voluntary abstinence program. The church is shooting at a target of half a million signatures and expects more than 50 per cent of its members will support the anti-liquor movement, stated the Rev. W. G. Berry, associate secretary of the church's Board of Evangelism and Social Service.

No Official Word

None of the local ministers interviewed had heard of the campaign through official church channels. However, all except one said they had read the press reports, and expected more detailed discussion on the subject when the Peterborough Presbytery meets early in February.

Differing slightly from the standard type of pledge circulated among congregations by visiting Ontario Temperance Federation speakers, the proposed pledge is much more sweeping. In addition to asking for personal abstinence, it also exacts the promise not to invest money in brewery firms and to work in support of temperance causes.

Dr. Stanley Russell, of Deer Park United Church in Toronto, declared, "Temperance is one thing, teetotalism is another. This action will divide congregations. I think it is not a wise move."

By contrast, the Rev. Arnold Mathews, of George St. United Church, hailed it as being "perhaps a little radical but when you are dealing with an evil of the magnitude of the liquor traffic, radical measures are needed to contain it."

In regard to the part of the pledge covering financial interest in alcohol manufacturing concerns, Mr. Mathews said: "It will certainly hit quite a few in the big cities who have holdings but there are not as many to affect in the United Church as some others."

Best For Years

"If it is successful, it will be the best thing that has happened to the country in many years," said Dr. Bruce Gordon, of Trinity United Church, in giving his personal stamp of approval to the scheme.

Although he said he knew nothing officially about the wording of the pledge, Dr. Gordon said he believed the part concerning the withholding of financial support would be separate from the part of the peldge dealing with personal abstinence and adherents wishing to do so would probably be free to sign either or both.

Asked why members should be asked to sign a pledge that they would abstain from alcohol, Mr. Douglas replied that "the church is not seeking to interfere with anyone's freedom but is simply asking church members to pledge themselves to these principles which demand self control."

Emphasizing that members were being asked to voluntarily abstain from drinking, Mr. Douglas agreed that "some people would be rather hesitant to sign simply for the reason it would involve moral responsibility. Most people take

Kiwanis Club Enlarges Music Festival

An expansion program for the 1952 Peterborough Music Competition Festival has been announced that may place it among the five top festivals in Canada.

The expansion program was motivated by the announcement that the Kingston Rotary Club was discontinuing the festival in that city. This means that Peterborough will have the only major music festival between Toronto and Ottawa.

The festival committee of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club have decided that the 1952 festival will be the Peterborough Music Competition Festival serving Central Ontario.

Address Meetings

The committee have already started an organization and publicity campaign covering the area west to Toronto, east to Kingston and north to Gelert. Speakers from the Peterborough club will give addresses at the 12 Kiwanis clubs in the area and also at Home and School associations as well as other organizations. Extensive advertising in all the area newspapers will also be a part of this campaign.

The result of this expansion is expected to raise the number of entries from the 642 total in 1951 to approximately 1,000.

In order to take care of this increase the committee has arranged for three centres instead of the usual one for the festival sessions. The headquarters will be in the Legion Hall on Murray St. Daytime sessions will be held in the Legion Hall and in Murray St. Baptist Church. However, the night sessions are going to be held in Queen Mary School auditorium.

Finals In Evening

Another change which will be put into effect in the 1952 festival will be the arranging of more interesting and varied evening sessions. From each class held during the daytime the three or four best contestants will be picked by adjudicators to perform in the evening finals.

This system of finals in the evening sessions will result in considerably shorter classes and allow the audience to enjoy a more varied program.

The final concert of the festival will be held May 23 in the PCVS auditorium.

The festival committee also has announced that if the number of entries warrant it a special adjudicator will be brought for the barbershop quartet class. A class for accordion bands will also be added to the program if there are enough entries.

If an additional adjudicator is secured, there will be four adjudicators at the 1952 Festival. The two music adjudicators will be Alex Redshaw and Ronald Biggs, both well-known English musicians and adjudicators. Miss Irene Fairclough of Hamilton will again adjudicate the drama and verse speaking classes.

PCVS SINGS, SINGS AND SINGS—Football and basketball are rivalled by the PCVS Choral Club as the largest curricular activity in the collegiate. The club now boasts a fine girls' choir, barber shop quartets and a mixed choir. Phil Chevalier, Ron Wilson, Bill Frisken and Roger Ingall, UPPER LEFT, form the most popular barber shop quartet. M. J. Curtis UPPER RIGHT, directs a section of the 90-voice girls' choir which placed second by a fraction of a percentage point last year at the Toronto Music Festival. Out of the girls' choir has developed the double trio, called the Six Hits and a Miss. PCVS Singers Busy In Choral Club

By DON GRANT

Gulp down sandwiches and milk in a lunchroom and then dash for the auditorium. That's the routine four noon hours a week for more than 90 students at PCVS. As they stream down the corridors toward the stage they nod and smile to their teacher-instructor, also hurrying along. They line up on the stage, the teacher speaks briefly to them, a piano plays an introduction and the students begin to sing.

Students of the school's largest extra-curricular organization have started to work. It is the PCVS Choral Club.

Enthusiasm in singing has grown in PCVS during the past four years from none at all until one of the best collegiate girls' choirs in Ontario has developed and has tacked on a barber shop quartet and most recently a mixed choir.

Began In 1947

In 1947, when PCVS was without an orchestra, band or choir, an enthusiastic singing teacher, M. J. Curtis, joined the teaching staff. Before a school month had passed, he held an organization meeting for mixed choir; the result was 100 girls and only six boys attended.

From the 100 girls and six boys Mr. Curtis formed the first girls' choir and a boys' quartet and the PCVS Choral Club became an affiliate of the students' council.

But some girls found the steady grind of practices too difficult and tiresome and soon the choir was whittled down to those most interested, 35 girls.

For two years the 35 girls held the club together, turning out 100 per cent strong for almost every practice. Then came the boost which has sent girls in flocks to join the club.

Entered Festival

Quietly the girls' choir entered the Toronto Kiwanis festival in the class for girls' choirs from high schools in cities with a population less than 75,000. They placed first and when the news broke quite unexpectedly over the Happy Gang program, the choir's success was nationally known.

"Since then the club's been going great guns," said Mr. Curtis, "and it's my job to keep the club membership down."

The club's membership increased this year to more than 100 students and it now has only 94 members, of whom usually 85 attend the weekly practices. This high level of attendance is partly maintained by a club rule which states that if a girl misses more than three practices she's out. That's the last thing a member wants.

But the high membership presents a problem to Mr. Curtis. Without hurting anyone's feelings he must cut the choir down to 75 before the Toronto Festival and everyone wants to go.

After the comparatively easy win in 1950, the club last year entered the open class for all schools in the province and missed first place by one-half of one per cent.

"If we win that class, which is very difficult, we'll be considered the best in Ontario," said Mr. Curtis.

Win Every Year

The choral club has an annual habit: every year since 1948 it has won in the girls' choir class in the Peterborough Kiwanis festival. As a result, the girls have been asked to sing at churches and at various functions.

The girls sponsor money-raising schemes for music, such as the joint concert with the school band, and rummage sales, candy, and home-baking sales.

"When people ask us to sing little do they realize what is involved. For the music alone it costs us from $6 to $15 a song. We have about 40 songs in our repertoire," said Mr. Curtis.

Barber shop quartets started four years ago from the male quartet. Barber shoppers lost interest for a time but are now thriving.

In this group, which practices every Friday noon, there are several quartets and a boys' chorus of 12. The most popular group includes Roger Ingall, Bill Frisken, Ron Wilson and Phil Chevalier.

Closely connected to the girls' choir is the double trio, or known to the students as "The Six Hits and a Miss." These lasses are part of Mr. Curtis' work and have selections both in light comedy and more serious moods.

The girls are favorites at variety shows held in the school and have presented selections at meetings throughout the city.

The most recent group is the mixed choir which grew out of the barber shop quartets and girls' choir. This choir now has 40 members and is also an affiliate of the students' council.

The mixed choir's first official appearance in competition will be at the Peterborough music festival.

Gradually through Mr. Curtis' efforts the bathtub criers are changing to concert choral study, building an organization far beyond his original dream.

Gifts To Civic Top $45,000 In Three Years

Gifts to Peterborough Civic hospital during the past three years have now reached more than $45,000.

Twice-remembered in wills, the Civic has received 67 other gifts, mostly in cash and mostly earmarked for special purposes.

Biggest year for donations was 1950, when a total of $31,338.75 was given to the hospital. Before 1950, $6,152.68 came in donations, and in 1951, $3,629. A single $500 cheque makes up the 1952 gift total to date.

Total donations are $45,897.94.

Auxiliary's Gift

Largest single donation, making up almost a fourth of the total, was the $11,050 given by the Civic Hospital Women's Auxiliary. This was given to furnish the entire west wing of the hospital.

Since that first large gift, the Women's Auxiliary has given a further $1,504, to be used for an oxygen tent, a mastic tile floor for the nurses' residence rumpus room, and for re-decorating and re-furnishing the rumpus room.

The biggest donations from individuals—$5,000 and $3,125—came from Mrs. Nina McKee and the estate of the late E. R. Wood. Mrs. McKee's donation was for furnishing the reception room at the nurses' residence. Purpose of Mr. Wood's gift was not specified.

Service Clubs

Service clubs have given hundreds of dollars to the hospital, and much of this money was tagged for children's work, such as the largest single gift—$2,000 from the Rotary Club.

Most recent service club gift was a $500 cheque from the Lions Club, for furnishing a private room. Presentation of this cheque was made Monday night.

To furnish a nurses' rest room, the Civic Hospital Alumnae Association gave $1,000; the Thursday Club, a women's group, gave $2,000 for nursery furnishings.

The Scottish Rite Masons of Peterborough gave $1,100 for furnishing two private rooms, and the medical staff of the hospital gave $1,455 for furnishing a medical library and a doctors' room in the operating suite.

Other gifts, ranging from $950 to $2.68, came to Civic. Almost every organization in the city, and many in the county, gave money.

Two paintings have been presented to the hospital. One, by J. W. Beatty, came from the Women's Art Association, and another, of Toronto harbor, from Mrs. Alfred Dunford, of Lakefield.

The stained glass window in the hospital's tiny chapel was a gift of the Silver Cross Mothers of Canada.

Police Request 40-Hour Week

A six-point brief from the City Police Association was tabled at the January meeting of the Police Commission.

The brief asks:

(1) for a 40 hour week
(2) that officers be given three weeks holiday when they have ten years' service.
(3) that two pairs of boots be issued annually instead of the one pair as at present
(4) that light weight trousers be issued for summer wear
(5) that an appropriate "baton" or wooden night stick be issued
(6) that the cost of living bonus at the end of 1951 be added to salaries as a raise for 1952 and that a one per cent rise increase be granted for each rise of one point in the cost of living index

The brief thanked the commissioners for their co-operation in the past in bettering the conditions of the department.

In order to discuss the brief fully, the commission decided to arrange a mutually convenient time, sometime next week to meet with the association's three-man bargaining committee.

Pays $10 Fine

Charged with being intoxicated in a public place, Douglas Kelly, RR 6 Peterborough, pleaded guilty in police court Friday. He was fined $10 and $2.50 costs or ten days in jail.

Double Murder

TRENTON, Jan. 19 — (AP) — Two bodies were found Friday on a lonely "Lover's Lane" and Sheriff Dock Garrison pronounced it a "straight-out double murder." He said the victims were Robert Hays Phelan, 28, member of a prominent Trenton family, and Mrs. Kathleen Wilson McGage, 25, a divorced waitress. Both had been shot. Phelan was married and had two children.

Planning Board Hamstrung Still Lack Bylaw Authority

In a mood of impatience and frustration, the city planning board Thursday night briefly reviewed the position of its too long suspended zoning bylaw.

This was the first meeting of the board of 1952. It recommended to the council the rezoning of the lot on Rogers St. in Ashburnham for light industrial industry. On that property, Canada Bread Co., Ltd., is prepared to build a $500,000 factory, according to the information received by the council a month ago. But, the board did not approve of a transport truck depot on Romaine St.

The authority of the board in these decisions resides in the zoning bylaw, but that bylaw has not yet been approved and passed.

Consequently, it must be a continuing embarrassment to the board to deal with important questions variously affecting property categories without unquestionable sanction. It is conceivable that Mr. Payne might consider some further action to secure permission to construct the building he has been planning, but there is no information that he intends to do so.

Requires Publicity

The main obstruction to the board, and to the council in this completion of the establishment of the authority of planning and zoning lies in the requirement of publicity as set out in the Provincial Planning Act.

This is now a perennial difficulty, but with the new board facing it once more, it may be freshly outlined for the renewal of information to the public who gave their approval to the entire planning scheme.

The Ontario statute says that notice of the bylaw must be placed before every property owner, as those primarily concerned. Printing of the bylaw and mailing it to those entitled to receive a copy involves substantial expense, and has been a delaying obstacle.

As an alternative it has been suggested by the board and the council, from time to time, it would be cheaper to publish the text of the bylaw in the Examiner.

Suggest Digest

James Dutton reviewed these proposals Thursday night, and recalled a proposal in economy to print only a digest of the bylaw and distribute it by mail. On that point, in this week's discussion, Hubert Sills said he was inclined to hold out for the printing of the whole bylaw. His reason was to the effect that, in this detail of procedure, the bylaw could not be invalidated in any court action, that it would stand up in law.

As to newspaper publication, there appeared to be an objection as to whether any particular property owner would see and read the official notice.

Mr. Dutton commented that press publication is sufficient in announcement, for example, of the intention of the city council to close up a street. It was also said that since the planning statute came into effect there have been several cases in which courts have upheld zoning decisions of local planning boards on the ground that zoning bylaws were in progress of drafting.

Probably to the new members of the committee Mr. Dutton said "we have been fortunate in enjoying the goodwill of a great many people, as we tried to do justice in the matters that have come before us."

Recommendations of the board have been generally accepted, in the spirit of that goodwill, but in the meantime the zoning bylaw has not yet reached the council. The underlying difficulties of publication remain, and Mr. Dutton has suggested that Ontario Municipal Board and provincial planning authorities might profitably be interviewed in the near future for fresh advice from experience accumulating since the planning act went into effect.

City Engineer Chalmers remarked that the original Faludi zone map, essential to planning, had been changing.

"Half the park areas on that map are now full of houses," Mr. Chalmers said. "The board should review the map for other park purposes."

That was the exent of the board's discussion of this topic Thursday night. Senior members, especially, proposed that some fresh action should be taken in the near future to obtain full warrant of a zoning bylaw.

Cigarette Price Cut Essential To Revive Sales

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 (CP)—The Ontario tobacco industry, alarmed by a sharp drop in cigarette sales, Friday announced a drive to cut the federal tax to a point where cigarettes can be sold to the consumer at 30 cents for a package of 20.

Currently, the price for a package of 20 cigarettes is 42 cents in all provinces, with the exception of Quebec where a provincial tax boosts the price to 46. In the US most brands sell for about 18 cents.

The committee, in a statement, estimated that the federal government's taxes—about 25 cents on a package—have reduced Canadian sales by 1,500,000,000 cigarettes in the last eight months and created a big market in Canada for low-priced American cigarettes smuggled across the border.

Defeated Purpose

More than that, the government by boosting the tax last year, defeated its own purpose. Instead of gaining increased revenues it was suffering revenue losses, the committee said. It estimated the revenue loss to the government during the current fiscal year at $30,000,000.

Francis R. Gregory of Leamington, chairman of the association's marketing board, said an emergency meeting of the taxation committee will be held in Simcoe next week to prepare for a meeting with Finance Minister Abbott, after his return from overseas early next month.

Mr. Abbott wrote us to say that he was sure there would be no falling off of cigarette sales," said Mr. Gregory. The facts have proved how wrong he was and we hope that he will now admit that the industry knows what it is talking about.

Wollen Strikers Demand Gov't Action

ALMONTE, Ont., Jan. 19 (CP)—Unemployed Almonte woollen workers met Friday and demanded immediate Federal and Provincial action to restore full employment to Almonte's textile mills.

About 75 unemployed mill hands met to endorse a series of resolutions. Two of Almonte's mils aret pracically closed down with a total of 226 workers dependent on unemployment insurance benefits.

The resolutions urged immediate stoppage of immigration so long as unemployment persists in Canada, immediate Provincial Government action to provide work for people in the Almonte district and cancellation by the Federal Government of credit restrictions on textile articles and an embargo on imports of textiles into Canada.

Confiscate Machines

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 19 — (AP)—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, aided by local police, confiscated 3,230 gambling machines valued at nearly $900,000 Friday as they staged lightning raids throughout Kentucky.

Search Abandoned

SEATTLE, Jan. 19—(AP)—The Coast Guard announced Friday night that it has abandoned its search for 45 survivors of the freighter Pennsylvania which disappeared in the North Pacific nine days ago.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Carl Voyles, it seems, has won his first major football victory of 1952.

That's the way Hamilton's red-hot football fans look on the surprise shakeup that removed Brig. Denny Whitaker and Jack Langs from the executive of the Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union.

Whitaker, former star player with Hamilton teams, was vice-president of the club last season and was slated for the presidency this year. It's an open secret that he and other members of the executive had disagreements with Voyles.

The story today is that Voyles won his point with an ultimatum of which there are two versions: one that he wouldn't be back if Whitaker were president; another that he wouldn't return if any member of last year's executive were back for 1952.

There was no comment from Voyles, who left a month ago for his home at Vero Beach, Fla.

The Ontario Jockey Club is making one last attempt to prevent "the time-honored sport of steeplechasing" from disappearing in Canada. For years now the OJC's Woodbine track has been the only racing strip to card steeplechasing races. The club notified owners that unless more interest can be obtained "the time-honored sport of steeplechasing would necessarily cease." The owners have been asked to notify the club by Feb. 5 of their intentions.

A team of teen-aged Royal Canadian Army cadets has won Canada the Earl Roberts Imperial Cadet Trophy for service rifle marksmanship for the third consecutive year in an empire-wide competition, army headquarters announced Friday. Five members of No. 1195 Ecole Superieure St. Stanislas Cadet Corps, Montreal, posted an impressive score of 312 points of a possible 320 to give Canada its third win in as many years and its fifth in the 23 years the competition has been held.

King Clancy's Pittsburgh Hornets appear a shoo-in for their first American Hockey League division title in 15 years and it's all the result of constant practice. Clancy, got generous for the first time this week. He gave the boys a 24-hour breathing spell after they twice thumped the Calder Cup champion Cleveland Barons.

"It's practice that counts," said the 49-year-old mentor. The Hornets took the sting out of the western division by winning their first eight games. They now ride the league table with a 16-point advantage over the challenging Cleveland Barons.

Both sides got stubborn Friday as Chicago White Sox' board of directors accepted the offered resignation of Charles A. Comiskey II as club vice-president and secretary. The mother of 26-year-old Chuck, White Sox president Mrs. Grace R. Comiskey, hinted that the action was a temporary chastisement with the comment "The door is still open for Charles to return."

Comiskey flounced out of the conference room. He said: "There isn't a chance I'll reconsider."

Shooting under par for the second straight day, Ted Kroll of New Hartford, NY, widened his lead over the field Friday at the halfway point of the $10,000 San Diego open golf tournament. Kroll 32, followed his spectacular seven-under-par first round with a 69 Friday for a 36-hole total of 134. He has a four-stroke lead over his nearest threat, Felice Torza of St. Charles, Ill., whose 70 with Friday's 68 kept at 138.

Alex Kinikowski, 22-year-old New York Giants pitching rookie, has received his induction notice and probably will be called to the armed forces next month, it was reported Friday.

The big rain knocked out Santa Anita's racing program Friday, and took an advance swipe at today's card at the Arcadia, Calif., track. Hiss Prince will stay in the barn instead of trying for the $25,000 San Carlos.

A. H. (Al) Nun, 68, widely known racing official at many of the major US tracks, died Friday at Miami.

Dick Savitt of the US opened defence of his Australian tennis championship Friday with a one-sided 6-1, 6-0, 6-2 defeat of Bill Leane of Adelaide. The temperature reached 96 degrees during the match at Adelaide, Australia. None of Australia's top seeded stars was extended beyond the regulation three sets.

Germany Opens Sports Festival

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Jan. 19 (AP). — Heralds in medieval costumes will open West Germany's international winter sports festival tonight with music written by the late Richard Strauss for the 1936 Olympic games.

The festival, biggest of West Germany's winter season, is expected to lure more than 100,000 spectators before the show ends Jan. 29.

Hotels and boarding houses in this little Alpine village, site of the 1936 winter Olympic games, report record reservations. Snow and ice conditions are perfect.

Organizers of the games, which will be the final elimination for Germany's Olympic sports team, expect entries from the following countries:

Sweden, Italy, Austria, Switzerland, France, Yugoslavia, Australia, New Zealand, England, Canada, Spain, and Germany.

The games will include all features of the Olympic winter program except ice speed skating and the 50-kilometre (about 31 miles) cross-country ski race.

The first four days of the meet are almost exclusively reserved for bob sled races.

Next Tuesday the German Olympic hockey team clashes with Edmonton Mercurys, which will represent Canada at the Oslo games.

Building Construction Costs Still Rising

TORONTO, Jan. 19 — (CP).—Earle L. Sheppard, president of the Ontario Association of Architects, said Friday building construction in Ontario likely will continue at a high level and its costs will rise.

Speaking at the start of the association's two-day convention he predicted that industrial development will remain high due to defence spending. House construction would remain about the same while construction of schools and hospitals would drop off.

Wins Chant Medal

TORONTO, Jan. 19—(CP)—The Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, at its annual meeting Friday night, announced the award of its Chant Medal to DeLisle Garneau, of Montreal. The medal is offered annually to amateur members of the society for outstanding contributions to astronomy.

Winnipeg Girl, Toronto Boy Best Skaters

By ROD CURRIE.

OSHAWA, Jan. 19 (CP). — A blonde Winnipeg beauty and a confident 14-year-old Toronto boy have won the Junior Canadian Figure Skating Championships.

Rosemary Henderson, 19, who will compete in today's senior ladies' events, edged Ann Johnston, 15, of Toronto, in the free-skating event after placing, on a point basis, just slightly below the slim brunette in the compulsory school figures.

Charlie Snelling, also of Toronto, performed with ease to skate off the ice as Canada's new junior champion. The title was held last year by a fellow-Torontonian, Peter Dunfield.

An Oshawa lad, Allen Anderson 15, was a close second.

Miss Henderson left the arena immediately after her free-skating performance without waiting to see how she had fared. She said she wanted to get "a good night's sleep" before taking part in today's senior competitions.

Wearing a royal blue costume, scattered with shimmering sequins she executed her routine with near perfection. A slight stumble during a difficult split spin was overshadowed by the easy style of the rest of her performance.

Scoring Close

The scoring was so close that neither she nor Miss Johnston had a clear majority in judge placements. Thus it was necessary to decide on total ordinals, a system of counting the number of second-place and third-place awards each had been given by the five judges.

Miss Henderson, a third-year home economics student at the University of Manitoba, performed to the accompaniment of George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

Yarmila Jane Pachl, 13, of Montreal, who placed third in the compulsory figures, also held third spot in the free style.

The content of her performance was one of the most difficult seen but four falls reduced her score.

Barbara Jean Jacques of Toronto, who placed fifth in the figures, was better in the free style, coming fourth. Judy Lawrence of Oshawa was fifth.

Shows Confidence

Allen Anderson, wearing a business suit rather than the usual formal garb, got right down to business in the free style. Warming to the applauding hometown crowd, he showed considerably more confidence than last year when he first competed for the junior crown.

Snelling performed to von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant" overture.

Behind Anderson in the final standings were Doug Court, Ottawa; Paul Tatton, North Bay; Bernard Youlton, Schumacher; and Ian Campbell, Toronto.

Patricia Spray and Norm Walker of Vancouver, who placed poorly in the junior singles, won the Canadian junior pairs championship.

The brother-and-sister team of Clifford and Arden May Spearing of Toronto placed second.

Marmora Wins 7-5 In Trent League

MARMORA, Jan. 19 (ENS) — Marmora registered their first home win in the central section of the Trent Valley Hockey League on Friday evening when they defeated Frankford 7-5. The game, played on ideal ice, was fast and exciting. Frankford were the first to score and led at the end of the first period 2-1.

The homesters got going in the second period and netted four times to Frankford's once in that period. In the final period end to end rushes resulted; Frankford endeavoring to break even. Each team scored twice, the visitors getting their last goal in the final minute of play. The homesters showed return to form that was heartening to their supporters. About 400 fans witnessed the encounter.

Get $250,000 Bail For Narcotic Suspects

VANCOUVER, Jan. 19 (CP).—Fifteen suspected narcotic sellers appeared before Magistrate W. W. B. McInnes Friday and bail was fixed at a total of $250,000.

All, including one woman who pleaded guilty, were remanded for one week.

In the biggest anti-narcotics drive in the city's history 33 suspects were taken into custody on Thursday during a series of underworld raids.

OLYMPIC HOPE — Andre Bertrand, 20-year-old skier from Quebec city, is one of Canada's brightest hopes in the winter Olympics to be held next month at Oslo, Norway. Mixed Marriages Permitted Inside Church

WINNIPEG, Jan. 19 — (CP) — New Roman Catholic regulations governing marriages between members of the church and non-Catholics have been put into effect in the Archdiocese of Winnipeg, Archbishop Philip E. Pocock has announced.

The new regulations permit a Catholic and non-Catholic to be married in the church. Previously such ceremonies could be performed only in the rectory or sacristy.

The Rev. J. E. Campbell, chancellor of Winnipeg archdiocese, said the purpose of the change is "to bring before the people the sacred nature of marriage . . . to bring home to people that marriage is a sacred contract."

The change was contained in a letter from the archbishop to all pastors in the archdiocese of Winnipeg. The letter was read to congregations last Sunday.

Left To Discretion

Father Campbell observed that under canon law a general rule is that mixed marriages are not to be performed inside the church proper. Individual cases, however, are left to the discretion of local bishops under a recent Vatican pronouncement.

Although there is a "general trend" toward adoption of the new regulation, said Father Campbell, he did not believe it had been widely accepted in Canada. A number of United States dioceses, along with Australia and New Zealand, already have adopted it, however.

Teepees Wallop Biltmore 6-2 As Sarnia Trips Owen Sound 3-2

By The Canadian Press.

It was underdog's night in two Ontario Hockey Association games Friday night, one Senior and one Junior A.

St. Catharines Teepees, in sixth spot in the Junior A listing, went to Guelph and trounced the second-place Biltmores

In the Senior A loop, the tail-end Sarnia Sailors beat fourth-place Owen Sound Mercurys 3-2 in the losers' home town. There was perhaps a little luck attached to the Sailors' win—a long shot by Ollie Haddon bounced through players' legs like the ball in a pin-ball machine to score the winning goal.

At Kitchener, the Windsor Spitfires, low men on the Junior A totem pole, took a 7-1 trimming from the Kitchener Greenshirts. Barrie Flyers beat Waterloo Hurricanes 3-2 at Barrie to tie the Hurricanes for seventh place.

Tigers Downed

At Hamilton, the largest hockey crowd of the year—2,000 fans — saw Stratford Indians beat the Hamilton Tigers 7-2 in a Senior A game. Brantford Redmen played overtime at Brantford to defeat Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 4-3 in the third Senior A game of the night.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League, goaler Hap Finch of the Sudbury Wolves got his second shutout of the season when the Wolves beat North Bay Black Hawks 6-0 at Sudbury.

In the St. Catharines victory—their 12th in 15 games — Joe Schnurr put in two goals and Gerry Foley, Buddy Boone, Billy Young and Allan Kellog one each. Ron Murphy and Ken Laufman scored Guelph's goals.

Kitchener's goals against Windsor were scored by Graham Joyce with two, Jim Farelli, Frank Toyota, Gary Collins, Orv Tessier, and Herb Dares. Windsor scorer was John Brown.

Leads Barrie

Don McKenny led Barrie with three goals and Chuck Wood scored two. Singletons were scored by Johnny Martan, Danny Macdonald, Ken Collins, Fred Pletsch and Doug Mohns. Ken MacNeill scored two for Waterloo and Bob McIntosh and Bill Oliver one each.

Don Gardiner placed two goals for Sarnia at Owen Sound and Ollie Haddon's long shot capped the score. Owen Sound's two were knocked in by Gino Antoniazzi and Roy Leckie.

George Aitken and Bruce Burdett each scored two Stratford goals while Jack White, Don Heinbuch and Elwood Ritchie scored singles. Fred Pankoski and Ab Conick found the range Scorers at Brantford were Robin Hewson, Don Oberholtzer, Ferguson and Walt Hnatiuk. Scotty Mair, Jack Pernfuss, and Maurice Levesque scored for Kitchener-Waterloo.

CAHA Must Approve Toohy OHA Transfer

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP).—Before Ralph Toohy can play hocgey for Hamilton Tigers of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A loop, he must get the approval of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Toohy plays end for Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Football Union.

The Ontario Hockey Association made the ruling after hearing an application for Toohy's transfer from the St. Laurent Beavers of the Quebec Senior B League. The OHA said it lacked jurisdiction, since the proposed transfer is from one CAHA branch to another.

Toohy has moved to Hamilton for business reasons.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The man who hung the tag "bafflegab" on complex governmental language got an award Friday for coining the word. Milton A. The Herald wrote an editorial saying: "Gobbledgook is mouth-filling, but it lacks the punch of bafflegab."

EVEN WHEN SICK IN BED a small patient must learn to spend part of his time happily by himself. Care must be taken not to permit eye strain through too much reading or handiwork. When Child Sick In Bed His Time Should Be Planned

By NANCY CLEAVER

"You'll have to keep Tommy in bed for a couple of weeks. There's nothing to worry about. He'll make a complete recovery, and be better before you know it!" The doctor's voice sounds almost too hearty, as he bids you goodbye. It's easy enough for him to be cheerful. Tommy is your child—not his. He can't know how hard it is to keep Tommy in bed, let alone try to keep him in the "Land of Counterpane."

The doctor's orders should be implicity followed. A mother should make sure she understands clearly his instructions and then follow them to the letter. Friends and neighbours—and relatives too, may think they have much wiser ways of treating this particular illness. You may have to listen politely to their ideas, but hold fast to the resolution that the doctor is the person who is in full command of your child's recovery.

Map out your child's day so that there is a routine which is followed with time to wash, breakfast, tidying up the patient's room, free time for Tommy to amuse himself, a fruit drink, more free time, dinner with a rest after his meal and definite things to do during the remainder of the day. If Tommy can write he may enjoy working out with you his own schedule, and tacking his own copy up on the wall. A day broken into different hours of purposeful activity does not seem to stretch out endlessly.

A patient, even a young one, must learn to spend part of his time happily by himself. A mother must be careful that her child's eyes are not strained by reading or handiwork during a convalescent stretch. Listening to the radio, singing favorite songs, making up and telling a story are all activities which are "easy on the eyes."

Children love handicraft and a small patient should have crayons if he likes to color, blunt scissors for cutting out pictures or designs, and other play material. Simple weaving, sewing or knitting are other possible occupations. If there is a portable phonograph in the house, a child can have many happy hours playing it himself. A big calendar on the wall, with each day stroked off at night time, makes a child feel that his time for being in bed is passing.

A sick child needs more attention than a healthy one, but parents must not allow him to become a small dictator. If he is an only child, or if his illness has been serious and they have been very anxious about him, this can easily happen.

Nor should the parent, in his zeal to get the child better, assume the dictator's role. There is no point in trying to force a sick-a-bed child to eat large meals or sleep a certain number of hours. Appetite is apt to be fickle and sleep broken during sickness, but with returning health these will right themselves. If the doctor says the child's progress is satisfactory, parents can rejoice and get through the convalescence days as happily as possible for everyone in the family.

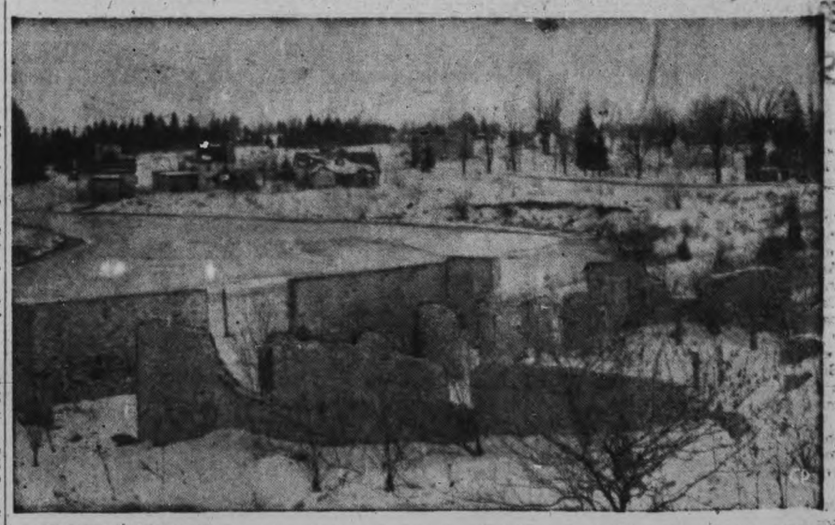
30,000-Mile Flight Made To New Zealand



OTTAWA, Jan. 19 — (CP). — A Canadian airman is learning that the Royal Air Force's Flying College is well named. As an RCAF student at the British school in Lincolnshire, he has taken off on a 30,000-mile flight to New Zealand and will return to England via Sinpagore by February 6.

Sqdn. Ldr. R. J. (Pop) Lawlor, DFC, of Pictou, NS, and Trenton, is among a group of British, Australian, New Zealand, South African and American airmen who left England in a Lincoln bomber on a flight that is the climax to a one-year course in a wide variety of subjects.

Another group is coming to Canada on the same sort of a flight.

SARDINE CENTRE

Virtually all the sardines taken on the Canadian Atlantic coast are caught in southwestern New Brunswick.

GHOST TOWN—Stone ruins of a once-thriving centre near the southwestern Ontario hamlet of Salem near Kitchener now are a popular tourist attraction. They once housed breweries, mills, a tannery, shoe factory and other buildings in a village founded in 1845. The village was a busy centre for 20 years but then gradually began to die. The nearby hamlet of Salem (part of which is shown in the background) has a population of 100.

Judge Dismisses $25,000 Lawsuit

TORONTO, Jan. 19 — (CP).—A lawsuit in which one of the issues was whether a cloudburst occurred July 29, 1950, ended on Friday with dismissal of two actions for a total of $25,000 brought against Dr. Alan Secord, Toronto veterinary surgeon.

Dr. Secord was sued by owners of two farms who claimed their farms were damaged by water. One question was whether the water damage was caused by a channel deing dug on the Dr. Secord's farm or whether a cloudburst made a pond overflow.

Mr. Justice Dalton Wells said there was contradictory evidence as to whether rain that fell the day of the flooding was light or heavy.

Since 1946, he has been chief clerk in the mail and baggage department in Vancouver. His father was a master mechanic with the CPR and his grandfather a locomotive foreman in Havelock for several years.

Lonely Stone Ruins Recall Bustling Ontario Mill Town

SALEM, Ont., Jan. 19 (CP) — About a century ago a busy and prosperous future seemed in store for this community 16 miles northeast of Kitchener. Its 500 residents found employment in two breweries, a tannery, a shoe factory, a grist mill, a sawmill and a pot-barley mill.

Today, crumbling ruins of stone buildings are the only tangible reminder to the 100 or so remaining residents that their hamlet was for 20 years one of the busiest in the northern part of Wellington county. Only the grist mill is still in use.

Except for artists who visit the community for subject matter, few know the picturesque beauty of the deep gorge of the Irvine river which was harnessed to operate its mills in the last century.

Founded Village

A man named Sem Wissler, who came with his brothers from Clay county, Pennsylvania, founded the village in 1845. He was the guiding genius of the industrial development that followed his first clearing of the land. His influence grew until he was able to arrange that a railway serve the community. But he died suddenly in 1865 and the railway branched miles out of its way to nearby Fergus instead. Those two blows marked the beginning of the end.

As the surrounding land was cleared for farming, the tannery closed for lack of tanbark and the sawmill for lack of timber. The shoe factory closed because there was no leather from the tannery. Farmers began to feed their grain to livestock and there was none for the barley mill and the breweries. People moved away.

Now, even the stone ruins are sinking and crumbling, a ghost town's last monument to high hopes.

Scientific Investigation Of Prov. Crime Outlined

Scientific investigation of crime and the failures and triumphs in criminal courts were outlined in a series of personal anecdotes at a meeting of the CGE Foremen's Association by Professor Joslyn Rogers, Ontario's best known scientific crime invesitgator, at the Kawartha Club Friday night.

A professor of the University of Toronto and on the staff of the Attorney General's department, Prof. Rogers has two pet projects he is promoting. First is that he is extremely interested in seeing the drinking drivers are taken off highways. The second is that he wants policemen to stop being considered bogey men distorting citizens' attitude toward law.

Prof. Rogers recalled that in the '20s before the Liquor Control Act was in force in Ontario, he saw a never-ending stream of men and women killed by the gluttonous drinking of good liquor (10 per cent), the drinking of wood alcohol (15 per cent), or the drinking of swamp whiskey or raw alcohol (75 per cent).

Greater Problem

But the province is faced with an even more serious problem today: intoxicated drivers. He said he and his associates were constantly "astonished, amazed and horrified" at the results they saw of drunk driving.

In almost every crime he helped to investigate, drinking had played a prominent part. A person who started to drink first felt a sense of well being, then his reflexes began to slow up and then he blacks out. But it was all a matter of degree. All were intoxicated.

The Attorney General's department was interested in getting them off the street because they were all potential killers.

He said he was not sure yet whether the newest law which brought drivers into court on a charge of driving while their ability was impaired by alcohol was going to be a successful law or not. In any case the department was getting more convictions.

Canadians have not yet learned to drink like gentlemen, he said.

Investigate Arson

Arson presented another branch of investigation for Prof. Rogers. Fires were lit deliberately for spite, to cover up a crime or were the acts of a pyromaniac. The key each time was to find the cause of the fire.

Toronto's "weekend sport" of safecracking also helped keep investigators busy and added danger to their job. Traces of nitroglycerine left after safe blasting could result in some nasty explosions.

Prof. Rogers said he was very enthusiastic about the elevation of the police training and the type of police recruit in recent years. For most people, said the professor, the police officer was the law.

Police officers who were sarcastic and bullying made people angry with the law and as a result were poor citizens. But if a police officer is civil, the people he is in contact with will respect the law and be better citizens as a result.

Prof. Rogers was introduced by James E. Girven, works manager, and thanked by C. Krug. Vice-president Len Anderson was chairman.

Belmont Institute Plans Activities To Raise Funds

HAVELOCK, Jan. 19 (ENS).—Despite the icy roads, 22 members and seven visitors were in attendance at the January meeting of the Belmont Women's Institute held Thursday at the home of Mrs. George Smith in Havelock. The president, Mrs. William Ketchen, presided.

It was decided to hold a sale of home baking in the Legion Hall, Havelock, on Saturday, January 26. The proceeds from this event will go towards the purchase of curtains for the Legion Hall. The following committee was appointed to make the arrangements: Mrs. G. Gawley, Mrs. R. Vansickle, Mrs. W. Anderson.

As a means of raising funds a card party will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace King on January 29.

An all-day quilting was planned for January 30, in the township hall when two quilts are to be done. A pot luck dinner will be served at noon.

A donation of $10 was made to the tuberculosis fund.

An invitation from the Havelock branch to attend their meeting on February 4, when a cancer film will be shown was accepted.

Mrs. W. Aunger and Mrs. Alfred Althouse were conveners for a short program with the latter presiding. Three solos were sung by Lynn Anderson, small granddaughter of Mrs. W. Anderson, who played the accompaniment. Community singing and a contest won by Mrs. W. Anderson completed the program.

Hostesses for the tea hour were Mesdames G. Hartin, C. King, G. Vilneff, A. Althouse, J. Anderson and A. Anderson.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. L. Keene in Havelock.

Women Will Drive Siberian Huskies In Big Dog Derby

BRONTE, Ont., — (CP) — A 26-year-old Bronte housewife, Mrs. W. (Bunny) Dunlop, will be mushing along with the best of the drivers in the International Dog Derby at Ottawa next month.

Mrs. Dunlop, who looks after 23 Siberian huskies and trains 20 to 25 miles daily, will be one of the leading contenders for the 1952 sled-dog championship. She has been training for two years to enter the derby to be held Feb. 7-9. Last year a month before the race several of her dogs were stricken with distempter and died.

This will be the first time Mrs. Dunlop has participated in a big event, having retired from dog racing when she was married seven years ago. Before that she had entered several small point-to-point events in Canada and the United States.

Special Training

Mrs. Dunlop has initiated a special training grind for her favorite canine, Ravna, who will lead the pack in Ottawa — she takes the sturdy husky out singly to tow her on skis.

Ravna, a pure Siberian, is only two years old. The animal comes originally from a strain developed by Leonhard Sepala, the man who became a hero by rushing the diphtheria serum to Nome, Alaska, during the 1904 epidemic.

Mrs. Dunlop will be one of five possible woman entrants in this year's race and before that time she plans to lose some 20 of her 110 pounds, Because she believes training on the trail doesn't just mean riding the sled. A good racer doing a 33-mile course should run from 10 to 15 miles with the dogs. The hard part is that the drivers must run up the hills to ease the strain.

GREAT QUAKE

The Japanese earthquake and tidal wave of 1923 destroyed much of Tokyo and cost about 143,000 lives.

Miss Jean O'Brien Is Choice By Sodality As Snow Queen

Choosing the Snow Queen is a highlight of each winter season in the St. Peter's Sodality year and this year's choice to exemplify the Sodality is Miss Jean O'Brien. A Queen must be crowned and it must be a public ceremony, tradition lays down. So, a big social function is held, the "Snow Ball," and it was staged Friday evening in St. Joseph's Nurses' Residence with more than 80 couples in attendance.

The delightful young Queen wore a very becoming frock of frothy white net and the glittering white crown was placed on har dark hair by last year's queen Miss Mamie Sullivan. She also received a sheaf of lovely red roses. Miss O'Brien reigned gracefully for a brief period during which her subjects were told the significance and import of the honor bestowed on her by the Rev. John Hickey.

Assisting in the crowning ceremony were the vice prefect Miss Anne Szammers, Miss Margaret Caravaggie, convener of the dance and Miss Kay Lucas, social convener. These girls are receiving congratulations for their success in holding a truly lovely dance.

Quite interesting were the decorative wall pictures of young ladies in formal evening gowns painted by the committee consisting of Miss Frances Ryan, Miss Betty Strano, Miss Anne Howell, Miss Maurene Finn and Miss Gloria Graham. Also fuzzy snowmen with black buttons down their fronts on walls flanking the bandstand. Blue and white streamers and colored balloons completed the setting and tables were arranged in cabaret style.

Miss Ella Foley was the lucky lady winning the make-up kit offered as a door prize. Other gifts to the Sodality were given out as spot dance prizes.

A lunch was served by members of the Junior Sodality, Misses Roma Houlihan, Margaret Torpey, Teresa Gordon, Arleigh Fitzgerald, Marie MacFarlane and Cathy Howell.

Prefect Miss Mamie Sullivan was also in the receiving line, assisted by her escort Mr. Bill Strano and the patrons and patronesses Mr. and Mrs. Arnold O'Heron, Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Cahill and Mr. and Mrs. E. V. O'Toole.

Guild Re-elects Mrs. H. Mainland

NORWOOD, Jan. 19—(ENS).—The annual meeting of Christ Church Guild was held Wednesday in the parish rooms. The president, Mrs. Harold Mainland, opened the meeting and asked the Rev. H. E. Peasgood to take over for the nomination and election of officers. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Harold Mainland; vice-president, Mrs. Leslie Tolley; secretary, Mrs. Stanley Fisher; treasurer, Mrs. A. Dickinson; press reporter, Mrs. John Chevers; program committee, Mrs. Joseph Rae, and Mrs. John Chevers; advisory board representative, Mrs. Harold Mainland; lunch committee, Mrs. Wesley Lywood and Mrs. Drummond; honorary patronesses, Mrs. T. E. Peasgood, Mrs. Arthur Townsend, Mrs. Walter Bitten, and Mrs. Harry Rogers. After the election, the new officers took over.

The president conducted a short business period in which ways and means of raising money were discussed. A parcel post sale and tea will be held in April and there will be a fall bazaar. Each memebr was asked to either donate or make one article a month of wool or print for the bazaar.

Mrs. Josepr Rae gave a piano selection, and Mrs. Mainland conducted a quiz contest. The lunch committee served lunch.

Civic Alumnae Draws 700 To Purple and Gold Ball

About 700 attended the Purple and Gold Ball at the Brock Ballroom Friday evening, proving that this annual event of the Civic Hospital Alumnae can withstand a heavily crowded social calendar for Peterborough dancers. The event was, as usual, most enjoyable and another crowning success for this energetic organization, and Mrs. Rex Rose and her committee worked hard to make it so.

Favors given the guests included plastic aprons, skin lotion and cream for the ladies and plastic cigarette cases and a telephone dial cap for the gentlemen. Mrs. Allan Lockington secured these gifts and they were given out at the door by Miss B. Greatrix and Mrs. S. Cotton.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Hale were the luckiest couple present for they won the door prize, a lovely woollen blanket, and then won the prizes for the elimination dance. Prizewinners in a spot dance were Miss Mabel Lawless and Mr. Thomas Gaskell. The prizes were chosen by Mrs. Wm. Clark.

A most effective backdrop on the bandstand was produced by the committee with the silhouette of a nurse and a replica of the hospital flanking a purple and gold Association identification symbol. Mrs. D. Whittaker had charge of the decorating. The advertising posters seen recently about town were arranged by Mrs. A. Watson.

Tickets and registration was taken at the door by Miss Florence Vickers, Miss Alta Moncrief, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Wade and Mrs. E. Brackenridge. The convener of ticket sales was Mrs. Reg. Pearson and the reservation of tables was looked after by Mrs. E. Roberts, assisted by Mrs. M. Pringle, Miss B. Greatrix, Mrs. G. Bryett and Mrs. R. Taylor.

New president Mrs. Phyllis Kingdon was on hand to receive, assisting Mrs. Rose and her husband and the patrons and patronesses were Dr. A. R. Atkinson and Mrs. Atkinson of Norwood and Miss Evelyn Robson, director of nursing.

For Bad Cough, Mix This Splendid Recipe, at Home

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this easily prepared mixture and try it for a distressing cough. It is no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle, yet it can be depended upon to give quick relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water until dissolved. No cooking needed. (Or use corn syrup or liquid honey instead of sugar syrup.) Get a 2½ ounce bottle of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a 16 ounce bottle and fill it up with your syrup. The 16 ounces thus made gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and is a very effective relief for coughs. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

This splendid mixture soothes the irritated membranes, loosens the phlegm and helps to clear the air passages.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known as a soothing agent for winter coughs. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

By-Way Wandering Pleases Led By History Professor

An urge to wander down the by-ways—the by-ways of Ontario history that is—was left with the ladies of the Art Association Friday afternoon when Professor J. M. S. Careless of Toronto University's history department sketchily explored three of them during the studio meeting.

Highways are the main lines of development of nations, people and the world itself but sometimes the by-ways are more interesting he remarked at the beginning, and in this case they proved to be. Perhaps becuase for each of the three he chose there was more than an inkling of interest already planted in the audience.

First he talked about the "plain folk" who settled on the rich, heavy soil of western Ontario "where the black walnuts grew". They were devout, simple farmers, members of some Protestant sect, the largest element German people who came over from United States because they were driven out and sought protection under the British flag. Descendants are proud to claim their United Empire Loyalist forefathers but in many cases they were Germans who changed their names. Similarly the Pennsylvania "Dutch" were originally "Deutch," he remarked.

Good Farmers

These people are important to history becaue they opened up western Ontario first, but one of their great contributions was to teach good farming methods and to introduce the practice of pedigreed stock breeding.

A fine barn painted red was a German practice and this they also gave to Ontario along with the do-nut and raisin pie, he said. From their conistoga wagons, used in America came the practice of driving on the left and also the term for a long cigar "stogie" which the drivers smoked all along the trails.

Inland "Halifax"

The second by-way was Kingston—not the military city that it is today, but the naval city of 1814, an inland "Halifax" where ships larger and more powerful than Nelson's "Victory" were built. The British fleet and Upper Canadians guarded against American invasion and an American wrote of the fortress in 1812 "the greatest depot of the enemy's forces".

Because it was one of the most strongly fortified cities of the time, Kingston was never taken, the speaker reminded. Another by-way came up in the story—the founding of Bytown, now Ottawa, through the building of the Rideau Canal inland waterway.

This account ended with remarks about Fort Henry, now a memorial to the days when Kingston was a great naval base, and open for exploration in search of more by-ways.

Great Newspaper

"The greatest newspaper of Old Ontario—the Toronto Globe founded by George Brown, Liberal, and Father of Confederation," was announced by Professor Careless as his third topic. He said this paper was the largest in British North America and the third largest in the British Empire in the 1850-60 period.

Good journalism put it ahead, he said, and the editor arranged the first and biggest "scoops" of British history. His greatest was printing acceptance of the British North America Act by the British Parliament four days before the news reached the Government of Canada. It was never discovered how he got the news across.

Dies Penniless

The speaker's story continued with the life of Mr. Brown who became a very rich man when the railways went through his western Ontario property and oil was found on the property, but he lost everything including his prized cattle and barns by fire, before he died in his bed six months after he was shot in the thigh by a deranged workman. His death might be called an assassination but the speaker offered the theory that he died of a broken spirit.

Concluding Professor Careless recommended that sharp-tongued old Globes on file for interesting reading. Also travelling on more by-ways of Ontario. President Mrs. N. D. Seaton and members expressed their interest and enjoyment of the afternoon and began thinking of their own special by-ways.

300 Air Force Ball Patrons See "Dream Vacation" Draw

Dreams of an all-expenses-paid vacation in the sunny south this winter hovered over hundreds of Peterborough homes Friday evening, but suddenly, at 11.15 o'clock to be exact, they darted in a body over to 338 Ludgate St. in Ashburnham to the home of Miss Marie Foley. It was just at this moment that Mayor Hugh Waddell drew her ticket from among thousands before the eyes of 300 aspirants attending the Air Force Ball at Club Aragon.

Miss Foley had gone to bed, unaware that Lady Luck was to visit and first heard the news when a lady, who didn't give her name, telephoned after hearing her name on the radio. Later Mr. Russ Baer of the RCAF Association, No. 428 Wing, called to confirm her good fortune. "The phone has been ringing ever since" said Miss Foley today.

A consultation followed with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Foley, and since Miss Foley plans to be married this summer and is busy furnishing a new home, it was decided to take the alternative prize—$1,000.

The flurry of excitement the draw caused among the dancers added to the enjoyment of a splendidly conducted affair for which Mr. Tom Casey was committee chairman. Mr. E. A. Adams, president of the association, also abdicated.

Four spot dance prizes were given out during the evening to Mrs. George Bennett, Mr. J. Kerr, Miss Helen Anderson, Mr. Bill Murray, Miss Cathy Craig, Mr. Keith Wood, Mrs. M. Rogers and Mr. Bob Record.

The guest register was in charge of four ex-Air Force WD members, Miss Helen McFarlane, Miss Edna Rule, Miss Betty Shields and Miss Grace Simpson. Those who signed were:

Theobald and Harry Corbett, Miss Kay Newman and Bob Evans, Miss Nancy Graham and Jeff Hudder, Miss Lorraine Reader and Pat Larock, Miss Donna Lean and John Cameron, Miss Margaret Lamey and Fred Mantle, Miss Mary Rice and Don Shea, Miss Rosemarie Bosley and Frank Doran, Miss Olive Chambo and J. FUNNY BUSINESS -- By Hershberger

"There must be an easier way to eep week-end guests away!"

1952 Suit Story For Spring One of Softness in Look

Softness is the look that characterizes the suit for Spring, 1952. It's a softness in fabrics, in detailing, in sleeves and in wide, full skirts that are either gored or pleated.

The waistline for this suit is small, neat and curved. With it, there's a new kind of sleeve, one that's crescent in shape, curving to gradual fullness outside the elbow. It's not an extreme sleeve but it looks different and is an aid in giving softness to even the most conservative suit.

The wide and pleated skirt provides natural balance for the tiny waistline. The crinoline, a holdover from last season, gives these all-around fullness. There are all-around stitch-pleated skirts, some with massed back fullness, others with pin tucking. A few have side fullness over an arched hipline. The gored skirt sometimes has a front-controlled fullness.

But the slim skirt has not disappeared entirely from the Spring scene. It's present in many suits but is used with jackets that are distinctly feminine in cut.

White pique touches, soft bows, dickey fronts in gleaming white all round out a theme of softness.

Gray carries on into Spring for suits, but it's a gray that's lightened by white, whether in checks, stripes or weaves. Blues are strong, with the classic navy gone lighter and brighter than in the past. White and natural streaked with black are important in suitings and so are the beiges. These beiges range from pale tones to warm, sandy colors.

THE SUIT WITH SOFT LINES and controlled skirt fullness is favored for spring. Dressmaker suit (left) is in black-and-white checked worsted. Double-breasted jacket is completely lined, has narrow belt at back. Trim is black silk braid. Flared skirt has two slash pockets with broad trim. Smoke grey sheer wool (right) makes suit with curved jacket that's lined in grey polka-dot silk surah. Lining matches separate, short-sleeved blouse. Jacket has rolled lapels; skirt has wide knife pleats and slash pocket at one side.

Sheer worsteds, soft flannels, featherweight tweeds, and silky gabardines help to give Spring's suits their new, dressy look.

Readers' Saturday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

ATTENTION READERS: You speed up my answers to you when you enclose stamped self-addressed envelopes.

Right now I want to thank those of you who always do this. If you do not, allow about three weeks to elapse before expecting to see my answer in this column.

However, if your question is one that is of current interest to a large number of us I might substitute it for something already scheduled, so such a question might be answered before three weeks' time.

Write to Mary Moore, c-o this newspaper if you have cooking problems or want some specific recipes.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: I used your Xmas cake recipe and we found it especially delicious — we just couldn't resist sampling it. I was wondering if I could have used a 10-inch tube pan to bake it in, instead of the two 8-inch square ones. What would the baking time and temperature be for the 10-inch? My glass ones were satisfactory but the cake had a tendency to burn a little bit on the corners. I know now that I should have had the oven 25 degrees lower and not left the cakes in quite so long—isn't that right? However it was a very, very, wonderful recipe—we all loved the pineapple in it. Could you tell me what size pans to use when using recipes that do not specify? I'm a novice cook and there are many things I do not know, so I like a recipe that I can follow easily, even to the exact size pans to use. Sometime ... would you give a recipe for raised doughnuts with a honey-gelatin coating?... I do appreciate your columns. Keep them coming...

Marjory B.

ANSWER: In some of the columns previous to this I have answered parts of your letter — which are deleted here.

Yes you can use the 10-inch tube pan. You are right to reduce the temperature for the cakes. I baked some of my large batches at 275 deg. Fahr. throughout. They must be baked, though, until they turn golden or darken in colour. The 10-inch tube pan at 275 deg. Fahr. might easily require 4½ to 5 hours—the difference in time depending on the depth of the cake.

The size of pans is difficult to give you. If it is a white cake using 2 eggs and 2 cups flour two layer cake tins or 1 tin 8x8x2 will hold it. I will try to remember to give specific sizes of pans when I give a cake recipe, until you get used to baking.

Raised Doughnuts

One and one-quarter cups milk, 1 cake fresh yeast, ¾ cup sugar, 4½ cups sifted bread flour, 3 tablespoons margarine, 1 well-beaten egg, 1½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon salt; scald milk and pour into a medium-sized bowl. Cool to lukewarm. Crumble the yeast and add it to the milk with 1 tablespoon of the sugar. Stir. Add 1½ cups of the flour, and beat to mix it well. Cover and let rise in warm place about 1 hour. Cream the butter until very light and beat the remaining sugar into it until they are both creamy. Beat in egg, nutmeg and salt, then stir this into the yeast mixture after the yeast mixture has had its hour of rising. Add the remaining 3 cups flour and turn into greased bowl. Brush dough with melted butter or cooking oil and cover and let rise until doubled in warm place. Turn out on floured board and roll to ½ inch thickness. Cut out with floured doughnut cutter and let rise on board uncovered until doubled. Fry about 1½ minutes, turning once in lard or oil at 370 deg. Fahr. Drain on unglazed paper. Coat with honey-gelatin glaze made by soaking 1 teaspoon gelatine in 1 tablespoon cold water 5 minutes. Dissolve by stirring over hot water. Add 2-3 cup strained honey. Spread on doughnuts while they are warm, let cool while standing on board.

Husband's Pity For Girl Bodes Disaster For Family

DEAR MISS DIX: At 29, I am the mother of four children. I have been married ten years, during which time I have worked very hard for our home.

Recently my husband hired a girl as baby-sitter; she had formerly been in trouble with a married man. She has had bad breaks in life and my husband felt very sorry for her. As time went on, she told me she loved my husband. He said she meant nothing to him. I stopped having her at the house, but she took to visiting him at business. Now he has asked me if it would be all right to hire her as a cashier. He feels she needs the help. She has retracted her statement regarding her feelings for my husband. Shall I let him hire her or not?

S. T.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER. Your husband has proven his sincerity to you by leaving in your hands the decision as to whether this girl should be hired in his office or not. The answer, by all means, should be "no". Your husband's loyalty is not to be doubted, and his interested efforts to lend a helping hand are commendable. The girl, herself, is your potential source of danger and you are right to discourage and disapprove of any further association between them.

Outwit Homewreckers

There is a form of the female species that delights in breaking up homes. It is for the astute wife to ferret out such individuals and, by being forewarned, ward off attack. Men are very vulnerable to the pitiful guise, which is the usual affection of these creatures. Unfortunately, they repay kindness with malice. Their methods are those of a preying spider, luring the victim to disaster at the expense of his family's welfare and happiness.

With so many worthy objects of charity in the world, it's a shame to waste effort trying to rehabilitate someone who clearly will not appreciate the effort. This judgment may seem harsh, but it isn't nearly as harsh as the heartbreak that can befall a household through the gullibility of an impressionable father.

If this girl needs help of any kind, you can easily see that she is directed to the proper channels of assistance; your husband isn't one.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I will graduate from grammar school this year and am going on to a private girls' school. Some of my friends tell me I'll be better off in the community high school, where I'll mingle with boys and girls. My parents are leaving the decision up to me. The girls' school will have no dances, proms, etc.

L. S.

ANSWER: Your parents should not leave so momentous a decision entirely up to you. Why not have an interview with the head of the girls'school and let her point out all the advantages she has to offer? Against them, you have only the problem of boys. While co-education has many advantages, you can't depend on it to provide you with an endless succession of dates. Nor can you expect to achieve anything in your studies if your mind is constantly wandering over to the boy two aisles away. Since the private school has such a high standard of scholarship it probably has more to offer if you are primarily interested in acquiring an education. If you and your parents are willing for you to spend the high school years with pleasure as your goal then the community school. Don't let friends sway your decision.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 19 years old and am going steady with a man 27. We are very much in love and have known each other for about a year. We would like to become engaged, but my parents say I'm far too young and he's too old for me.

PEGGY C. L.

ANSWER: If your young man is acceptable in all other respects, your parents' objection on the grounds of ages is not entirely justified. You are old enough to become engaged, if you are sure of your own mind, and the difference in age between you is not too great.

Ask your parents to give the young man a chance to prove himself. Let them become better acquainted with him and see if the objections won't melt away.

Discuss Patients' Rates In New Home For Aged

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 19—Discussion of patients' rates at the new Hastings county home for the aged took up much of Wednesday's session of county council.

Opinion was split on whether patients able to pay their own way should pay more than the regular charge of $35 monthly. Finally, Reeve Vincent Lynch of Marmora suggested that a special rate be set for "paying patients." No action was tkaen, however.

The administration of justice committee reported that law enforcement cost the county $74,237.68 in 1951. No final figures for Belleville's share were available, but the share would be considerably greater under a recent agreement.

Firing Welders Will Go To Arbitration

An arbitration board is being set up to rule on the dispute over the firing of 11 welders at CGE.

Local 524, United Electrical Workers, are trying to get the case of five other welders, also fired by the company, presented at the same arbitration hearing.

The 16 men are from a group of 22 welders who went out on a wildcat strike Dec. 10 when the company changed the classification of a welding job.

Both the company and the welders accused each other of violating the collective bargaining agreement. Local 524 said they did not authorize the strike and in fact, had urged the men to return to work.

The company warned the men to return to work and carry on with their welding job. They could then file a grievance if they wished. When the men didn't do so the company fired 11 of them and, a week or so later, another five.

The arbitration board will just consider the grievance claiming unjust dismissal, not the pros and cons of the original dispute over the welding job.

Drummond Wren, Toronto, has been appointed union nominee on the three-man arbitration board. McCauley Dillon, KC, Toronto, is the company nominee; and the minister of labor has been asked to name the chairman.

C. R. Sullivan, UE area representative, said the union has been trying to get both groups of grievances settled in the one arbitration.

Australian Butter Deal Breaks Down

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 (CP)—Canada has imported or has on order a total of 17,000,000 pounds of butter from New Zealand, Sweden, Denmark and Holland to ensure an adequate supply through the winter months.

The latest importation of 2,500,000 pounds will be delivered during February and March and comes from New Zealand. It is half of a 5,000,000-pound option Canada holds in that country.

Agricultural officials said the new order, together with existing stocks and expected domestic production, will provide adequate supplies to meet Canadian demand.

The Canadian Press in a story Jan. 16 erroneously reported that Australia is among the countries exporting butter to Canada this winter. Canada did make an offer for Australian butter, but the deal was never completed because of lack of agreement on the price.

Mayors, Reeves Present List Of Remedies For Money Ills

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP)—A list of remedies for the financial ills of Ontario municipalities has been presented to the Ontario government's provincial - municipal committee by the Ontario Mayors and Reeves Association.

They told the committee that "alarming increases" in the cost of social services and education threaten the economic life of the municipalities, and quoted figures to support the view.

The mayors and reeves Friday learned that the committee might not report until 1953. They voted to petition the government immediately for a grant of at least $5 a person to carry municipalities over 1952.

The Association of Assessing Officers gave the town, city and village fathers a few hints on how to bring in more revenue: double the assessment on hotels and restaurants which have a liquor licence, double it on brewers retail stores and triple it on mail order houses.

Need Approval

Provincial approval would have to be obtained first.

The mayors' brief to the committee suggested:

That municipalities should be given more control over money spent by independent boards. Councils raise the money and school boards spend it. Police commissions, library boards and interprovincial road commissions were included in the request for more control.

That education and social services should be wholly paid for by the federal and provincial governments.

That municipalities receive more revenue from the gasoline tax and motor vehicle licences to aid in keeping up good roads.

That conditional grants—money from the government with instructions on how to use it—be abolished. Such grants have a deterring influence on municipal autonomy.

Reeve Ann Shipley of Teck township, which contains Kirkland Lake, said that expansion of the province has resulted in the highest provincial tax receipts in history. The province could well afford to increase grants to municipalities.

EnthusiasmHelps Boost Oils On Stock Market

By DICK BAIDEN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Western oils rode the crest of a wave of buoyant stock market enthusiasm again this week to close Friday at the highest level in 15 years.

The Toronto Stock Exchange's index of 15 selected issues posted a gain of more than five points as enthusiastic speculation carried the oil index to the highest level since it was developed in 1927.

Since oils started their spectacular climb about two weeks ago, the index has climbed almost 10 points. Strikes and reports of strikes in Alberta touched off speculation that carried a wide list of issues to record highs.

Dominated Dealings

Western oil trading dominated exchange dealings during the two weeks and almost doubled the volume of the previous month. Daily volume this week averaged more than 3,000,000 shares.

Almost obscured by the oils was the advance of International Nickel to a six-year high of $47.25. Traders were at a loss to account for the gain.

Other market sections—industrials, golds and base metals — made little headway during the week despite a general advance yesterday.

Toronto opened the week Monday with a strong western oil gain. Industrials and base metals strengthened slowly. In Montreal industrials and combined issues edged to highs.

Irregular Support

Toronto prices closed lower on Tuesday and papers and industrials eased in Montreal. Irregular support in Toronto Wednesday held prices for little gain. Montreal eased.

Western oils and industrials edged upward in Toronto Thursday. All sections slipped again in Montreal.

Yesterday's general advance in Toronto carried all sections upward although golds attracted little enthusiasm. Western oils and industrials posted the best gains. Papers and industrials dipped in Montreal but golds strengthened.

New York's early rally Monday failed to hold and prices turned mixed. Rails led a rebound Wednesday and were joined by oils Thursday. Steels featured yesterday in a general advance.

From Friday to Friday the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials up 1.16 at 342.45, golds down 1.43 at 81.24, base metals up .54 at 196.73 and western oils up 5.10 at 134.61.

Will Ask Better Deal On Road Payments

GALT, Jan. 19 (CP)—A delegation representing some 50-odd Ontario urban municipalities will meet officials of the municipal affairs department in Toronto Monday to ask for a better deal on their payments toward county roads.

The delegation is headed by Reeve W. C. Woods of Preston and Town Clerk O. M. Kennedy of Hespeler. It will ask for an amendment to the highway improvement act to place towns, villages and townships on the same basis as cities in regard to county road costs.

The movement to seek the change was initiated by Mayor W. C. McVittie of Hespeler. That town has already begun action to become separated from Waterloo county, claiming that it pays $3,000 a year more than it should for county road costs. Mayor McVittie sent circulars to urban municipalities across the province and later called a meeting in Hespeler to discuss the problem.

Played Hockey Here, Faces Vagrant Charge

Ernie Holmes, 57, of Toronto, who said he used to play hockey and baseball here several years ago, pleaded guilty to two vagrancy charges in police court Friday.

He was fined $5 and $2.50 costs or five days on each of the charges.

Public Relations Poor Growers Told

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP)—Mrs. W. R. Walton, Jr., president of the Canadian Association of Consumers, Friday told the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association that its public relations methods are poor and that its grading system accomplishes little beyond confusing purchasers.

One of the speakers at closing sessions of the association's annual meeting, she said that, because of the producers' faulty publicity efforts, customers are not made aware of the growers' problems.

She said consumers do not understand the "complicated" grading system for fruits and vegetables. She herself could make no sense of it.

C. M. Bonham of Grimsby, chairman of the tender fruit section, urged adoption of a marketing scheme for Ontario's fruits and vegetables.

If growers of fruit were to succeed with a decent living standard and on a profitable basis, "a strong measure of all out control must come to the industry."

Growers must remember, too, that packaging and quality are important if they are to succeed, he said.

United Church

moral and religious obligations seriously," continued Mr. Douglas, "and they would rather observe these things voluntarily than make pledges."

In giving his "wholehearted endorsement" to the plan, Mr. Douglas said "the issue will probably be brought to the foreground when the Peterb ourhgo when the Peterborough Presbytery meets February 13." He added that the idea behind the move was probably a desire by church officials "to see enough weight of evidence through the signing of pledges, as proof of the wave of popular feeling against the rising wave of drinking throughout the province.

"They are being asked to indicate their protest by going on record as opposing the liquor business," he said.

Another minister who desired to remain anonymous indicated that onl a small percentage of the congregation usually sign similar pledges when they are circulated on temperance Sundays but he said he would refrain from making any statement on the matter until it has been discussed at the February Presbytery meeting.

Rural Starlings

Gardens sag with dark loads like fruit."

The many neon signs begin to glow and flicker and the starlings, loving the lights continue to chatter like excited children far into the night.

Lee, late one night, saw a stout, motherly old lady in a bus queue give them a stern but affectionate glance. "Them birds", she said, "they ought to be asleep." This is really the prevalent attitude towards the starlings—affection mixed with concern and wonder.

London's sanitary authorities, of course, feel less indulgent and have unavailingly tried many ways to discourage the birds. "As they shower down out of the evening sky," said Lee, "we are stirred by strange far-off instincts at the sight of them, reminding us of other worlds and other ways . . . If starlings can occupy so spontaneously the heart of a city, might not man just as easily go back to roost in trees?"

Gee Dismisses Driving Charge

LINDSAY, Jan. 19—(ENS)—Careless driving charge against W. E. Richmond of Toronto and Lindsay was dismissed by Magistrate Gee in court here today.

Defended by W. J. Arthur Fair of Peterborough, Richmond pleaded not guilty to the charge.

First crown witness, John Hamill, said he had been driving east on Highway 7 east of Manilla when he slowed to a stop, pulled towards the centre of the road to make a left-hand turn into his farm laneway. When he looked into his rear-vision mirror he noticed a car coming towards him and swing to the north-east with a screech of brakes, then hit his car on the left rear. Richmond, the driver of the car that struck him said that he did not notice the lights at the rear of Hamill's car, alhough he would not swear that they were off.

Magistrate Gee ruled both drivers were negligent but the accused could not be found guilty under the section of the act as there was not enough negligence on his part to warrant a conviction.

Choice Of Furniture Finish Determined By the Wood

Unpainted furniture may be finished with oil, varnish, seals, shellac, paint, enamel, or wax. Your choice of a finish will be determined by the kind of wood in the furniture, how you will use it, and your personal taste. Of course, woods which you have stained will need a transparent finish such as shellac, varnish, or wax.

Oil Finish

An oil finish is very satisfactory on close-grained woods such as maple, birch, cherry and mahogany. It does not show water spots and marks caused by hot dishes. It will bring out the natural grain of the wood and give the furniture a beautiful soft sheen. The beauty of an oil finish depends, however, on the number of coats you apply and the time and "elbow grease" you spend in polishing.

To obtain this finish use a mixture of 2/3 boiled linseed oil and 1/3 turpentine. This mixture may be applied warm or cold. If it is to be applied warm, heat water in a pan, remove it from the stove, and then place container of oil in the water. The warm oil penetrates more quickly and produces a richer tone. Apply the oil with a soft woollen cloth or brush, rubbing it well into the wood with the grain. Wipe off any excess oil in about 20 or 30 minutes, since it may form a film which is troublesome to remove. Let stand several hours, then rub vigorously with a dry cloth.

From four to 12 coats of oil may be needed to bring out a good lustre. Allow about two days between coats, as each coat must thoroughly soak in before the next coat is applied. The piece of furniture may be used during this process of finishing. As a final finish, apply a coat of wax.

Oil and Varnish Finish.

By adding from 1/3 to ½ waterproof varnish to an oil and turpentine fixture, you can obtain a lustre more quickly than with the oil alone, and the pores of open-grained wood are filled more easily. Apply this finish exactly like the oil and turpentine mixture, by rubbing it into the pores of the wood, wiping off all the excess, and polishing. As many coats are needed as will give a beautiful, even lustre to the piece.

Oil and Shellac Finish

An oil and shellac mixture makes a good finish for some woods. It may be applied over stains that contain their own sealer.

Mix equal parts of orange shellac and denatured alcohol. Take 1/3 of this mixture and add 2/3 boiled linseed oil. Mix thoroughly.

Apply the oil and shellac mixture in the same manner as described for the oil finish. The oil and shellac mixture acts faster than the oil mixture, so only a small amount of the surface should be covered at a time, and any excess liquid should be wiped off before it becomes sticky. Wax may be applied as a final finish if desired.

Varnish Finisa

A varnish finish is the most difficult for the amateur, but no other finish can be guaranteed waterproof. It is recommended for surfaces where this is important. Three coats are needed to get a good finish. Use only good-quality varnish.

Pick a clear dry day to varnish. Have the varnish warm, and work in a warm, dust-free room, 70 deg. F.

Using a perfectly clean brush, apply varnish with the grain of the wood, then across the grain, and finally with the grain. Work quickly.

Allow varnish to dry 48 hours. Then rub with fine 00 sandpaper or 000 steel wood to remove any brush strokes, bubbles, or rough places. Dust thoroughly.

Two or three coats of varnish should be enough. Rub down with sandpaper or steel wool to smooth the surface between each coat.

When the last coat is dry and the surface has been made as smooth as possible, rub gently with a piece of woollen cloth moistened with boiled linseed oil and dipped in powdered pumice stone. Be sure to keep the pumice moist, otherwise too much finish may be removed. Excess oil should be removed so the surface will not become gummy. When the surface is smooth and dull enough, clean thoroughly and wax.

Lime or Pickle Finish.

In recent years a lime or pickle finish for wood has proved popular. This is obtained by bleaching the wood, then applying white lead or flat paint. When this begins to get partly dry, it is wiped off across the grain of the wood so as not to remove the paint from the cracks.

To bleach the wood, prepare a solution of oxalic acid. This is made by adding oxalic acid crystals to hot water until no more will dissolve. Now wash the furniture thoroughly and apply the oxalic acid solution to the wet surface with a dish mop. Be sure to wear rubber gloves to protect your hands. Allow to stand until almost dry.

Wash off all the bleach; you then neutralize by applying one of the following solutions to the surface:

1 oz. of borax dissolved in 1 quart of hot water, or

¼ cup of ammonia added to 1 quart of cold water.

After applying the neutralizer, wash with water and allow to dry thoroughly. Sandpaper smooth, working with the grain of the wood.

Apply one coat of paste filler, brushing well into the cracks, crevices, and holes. When it dulls, wipe immediately across the grain with a soft absorbent cloth. If you wipe with the grain, you will remove some filler.

When thoroughly dry, brush on a coat of white lead or flat paint. When this is partly dry, wipe off as much as you wish ACROSS the gain so as not to remove from the cracks. Dry thoroughly.

When dry, you may put on several coats of a good grade of clear varnish or shellac, drying and sanding lightly between coats. To get a satin finish, rub the last dry coat with a mixture of linseed oil and powdered pumice stone (see directions under varnish finish) or use a wax finish.

Junior Chamber To Sponsor Cancer Drive

Plans were discussed for the Peterborough Cancer Society's fund raising campaign to take place Feb. 1 to 4, at the society's meeting in the Public Library Thursday night.

It was reported that the Junior Chamber fo Commerce would be in charge of the campaign.

William Ovens, chairman of the lay education committee reported that industries had cooperated in the overall educational campaign.

Mrs. John Bradshaw, chairman of the service committee reported that the women of Stewart Hall had made 30 dressings and the Young Married Couples group of Murray St. Baptist Church had made 70 dressings. She also reported that the committee were taking care of five patients who were in need of dressings.

Three films were shown at the meeting—Traitor Within, Time Is Life, The Doctor Speaks His Mind. President Mrs. Maurice E. Holt reported two of these films, Time Is Life, and The Doctor Speaks His Mind, have been purchased by the society and are available to organizations for showing.

Mrs. Holt also reported that the society would hold an open meeting at the Public Library on March 20 for the showing of films and discussion on cancer.

Three new members, Mrs. S. Seagrove, Miss Harriett McGreary and Mrs. Richard Stewart were introduced.

WINSTON CHURCHILL received the emblem of the Society of Cincinnati from Major-General Edgar Hume, president-general of the organization, at an initiation ceremony in Washington recently. The society is made up of male descendents of American Revolutionary War officers. Mr. Churchill who returned to Washington from Ottawa earlier in the day, qualifies through his maternal ancestors.

Ready To Act If Truce Violated

LONDON, Jan. 19 (CP)—Britain has not pledged automatically to strike Red China if the Chinese Communists breach a Korean truce, the foreign office said Friday.

However, a spokesman affirmed at a press conference today that "wide" Anglo-American agreement has been reached on the sort of action which would follow a major truce violation.

Prime Minister Churchill told Congress in Washington Thursday that British response would be "prompt, resolute and effective." But the foreign office spokesman refused to define the form such response might take.

Under questioning, the spokesman said:

United States and British military leaders have studied the pros and cons of bombing strategic targets in Red China. They have also considered imposing a naval blockade of mainland China, but with less favor, however, because of the danger of involving Russia whose territory borders China.

The US and Britain also have agreed on actions to be taken in the event the current truce talks break down. Presumably UN forces in Korea would mount a new offensive against the Reds.

21 Policemen Use Y Commission Pays $200

City policemen are taking a more active interest in YMCA physical training facilities than ever before.

At Thursday's meeting of the police commission, a letter from YMCA secretary Charles Forsythe was read informing Police Chief John Thompson that 21 policemen were enrolled this year.

In moving a grant of $200 for YMCA privileges for the police force, Mayor Hugh Waddell said, "For the 21 employees, the amount involved would be a good investment."

Magistrate W. R. Philp agreed and the grant was authorized.

The $200 grant is double the 1951 grant of $100 when only 10 policemen took advantage of YMCA facilities.

Increased Income Offsets Fair's Drop In Attendance

Increased income from other sources offset a drop in attendance at Peterborough's 1951 exhibition and the Exhibition Board reported a record revenue of $51,112.10 at its annual meeting Thursday night.

Total intake from the exhibition itself amounted to $36,050.50. Of the $7,761.60 received from rentals, $860 is for 1952 rents already received. Matching grants for improvements from the federal and provincial governments of $3,000 each were received and $1,300 was received from the city for roads constructed through the Memorial Park by the exhibition authorities. A grant of $300 was received from the county.

After paying expenses, a net profit of $2,015.90 was realized on the exhibition operations and the net earning from rentals amounted to $3,240.31.

"It's getting to be quite a business," commented president Norman McConkey, after treasurer R. B. Arnold submitted the financial report.

"Increasing numbers of outside enquiries indicate the enthusiasm is spreading," said secretary-treasurer G. A. Gillespie in outlining some of the year's operations.

Mr. Gillespie said that $67,000 has been spent in capital expenditures the last four years he has been secretary-manager of the fair.

Trust Buys Gates

"When someone knocked down the gates to the grounds during the winter," Mr. Gillespie said it was necessary to replace them. "The Morrow Memorial Trust always intended to erect memorial gates at the park, added Mr. Gillespie, and the $3,923.21 spent on the gates will be recovered from the Morrow Trust.

Taking advantage of a prepayment discount, the board paid the city $973.53 for storm drain assessment covering the next 15 years.

Mr. Gillespie said that reserved seats for the grandstand were "bought for a song" when a theatre was disposing of them and that besides erecting a new office, three new sheds had been erected adjacent to the barns.

In submitting the financial report, Mr. Arnold said the surplus of $2,015.90 was "the best yet."

Polio Threat

Commenting on the success of the board's 1951 operations, Mr. McConkey blamed "the polio threat" and an unusually late and heavy harvest for the drop in attendance.

"These two factors coupled up had quite a bearing on the rural section," declared Mr. McConkey. I feel that as long as the rural and urban sections of our exhibition are tied together, it will prosper with the same degree of success."

Emphasizing that " a balanced exhibition," was essential to its success, Mr. McConkey said, "I don't like to see the exhibition either all agriculture or all industry. If we want a vaudeville act, we can bring a circus. If we get people interested, they will come to the fair. The job of getting people interested and keeping them interested is the job of the new directorate."

From a slate of 33 names proposed when the meeting was thrown open for nominations, the 18 member board of directors was elected for 1952. Six more are to be nominated by county junior farmers.

Nuisance Charge Ends In $1 Fine

LINDSAY, Jan. 19 (ENS) — Bowden Myers, 38-year-old businessman appeared in court here this morning to plead his own case when charged with failing to produce his driver's licence.

Myers said he had taken his own car to be serviced and had been given a car to use until his own was ready. He said the constable stopped him on the highway because the tail lights were not working.

"I think this summons is a nuisance," said Mr. Myers. "I told the officer the circumstances. So, when my licence was not readily available, I get charged. I always thought police were here to protect the public, not to hinder them."

"What should we do then, discard the highway traffic act?" said Magistrate Gee.

Constable Al Russell of the OPP said that he had met the car and it only had one headlight and no tail light. "It was a bad night for driving and when he asked the accused to produce his licence, he couldn't," said the constable. "I had no alternative but to charge him." Magistrate Gee upheld the charge but fined Myers a minimum of $2 plus cost of $1.

Boyer Enjoys Touring With Don Juan

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19 (AP)—Charles Boyer, Charles Laughton, Cedric Hardwicke and Agnes Moorehead have been back in town, and it's hard to get them to talk about anything but their tours with "Don Juan In Hell".

Boyer almost glows. Between rehearsals for his new film, "The Happy Time," he enthused about the foursome's success with the Shaw classic. I asked if they ever encountered a bad audience.

"Never," he replied. "And we never played to an empty seat in the United States. Only in England did we have bad houses. Our engagements in Liverpool and Manchester were not successful because the local promoters made the admission price too high. That was no fault of ours."

Enjoyed Trips

Boyer has been enjoying his US and Canadian travels with "Don Juan," having visited more than 100 localities. "It is a wonderful way to see the country," he remarked. He was especially impressed with the college towns he has visited.

"In many cases, we live with the students in the hotels operated by the student unions," he said. "They treat us with dignity and respect, never asking for autographs or bothering us in any way."

The quartette returns to New York in March for a two-month run, then will play about 16 cities next fall. Boyer expects that will end their travels, since by that time they will have been playing "Don Juan" for the better part of two years.

Hastings Auxiliary Hear Reports On Year

HASTINGS, Jan. 19 (ENS)—Mrs. Clarence Lockhart opened her home to the Evening Auxiliary of Trinity United Church for their January meeting. The president opened the meeting with a reading, "Why Don't We Talk About God."

The worship service was in charge of Mrs. J. G. Thompson, assisted by Mrs. J. M. Baker, Mrs. Iden Bonds, Jr., and Mrs. F. S. Crate.

The treasurer reported that $123 had been sent to the presbyterial treasurer. The supply seceretary reported that two sweaters and a quilt had been donated for the bale.

Auditors for 1952 are Miss M. Webster and Mrs. Clarence Lockhart; flower committee, Mrs. C. Scures and Mrs. Lorna Nelson.

Mrs. J. G. Thompson was appointed delegate to attend presbyterial at St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, on Tuesday. Mrs. R. Burnham and Mrs. J. G. Thompson are to pack the next parcel for Britain. Last year the Auxiliary packed a bale of used clothing and a new layette was made for this bale.

Community friendship reported 20 home calls . Literature secretary reported 15 subscriptions ordered to the Missionary Monthly. The treasurer reported a letter of thanks from St. James' Auxiliary for the donations to help with the postage on books sent to Constance Wager in Trinidad.

South Smith WI Meets

FAIRVIEW, Jan. 19—(ENS)—The South Smith Women's Institute held their January meeting at the home of Mrs. Leo Allen. There were 18 members present and three visitors. In discussion it was felt that a community hall was needed. The ladies decided to hold a box social in SS No. 4 school house on February 8. Miss Olive Bell, public relations convener, gave a report on the local Council of Women. Lunch was served by conveners Mrs. Fred Bell and Miss Oilve Bell.

TOO WINDY FOR WINDMILL — Rescue workers and others crowd around a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter after it was forced down near Colfax, Calif., on what was to have been a rescue mission to the snow-stranded streamliner, City of San Francisco. Winds of seventy miles an hour kept the windmill from bringing out stretcher cases aboard the trapped train.

Exhibition Board Urged To Review Date Changes

The controversial question of dates for Peterborough's exhibition cropped up again at the annual meeting of the Industrial Exhibifon Board Thursday night.

"The incoming board of directors should give the change of dates serious thought," declared former president and director Hugh Stewart. "If we are going to change, the other fair boards should be notified after the 1952 fair."

At a directors' meeting last week, it was decided to hold the 1952 fair from September 13 to 19, instead of the week before the CNE as has been the practice since the end of World War II.

Stick To Date

Juggling fair dates is a losing proposition, B. Arthur Brethen, president of Norwood fair and a member of the local board told the meeting. "Fairs that bob around trying to hit good weather, are just like an in and outer in any other business who is in when he should be out, and out when he should be in," said Mr. Brethen. Mr. Brethen said he had shivered at early September fairs and sweltered in summer heat at October exhibitions and believed that in the long run it paid off to stick to the same date every year.

Using an eastern Ontario fair as an example, Mr. Brethen said the government grants are for the building up of agriculture, but when a fair board had taken in $55,000 as the fair board he had in mind and paid out only $4,000 in prize money, the amount spent on entertainment and other features was all out of line.

Mr. Brethen said that 50 per cent of the revenue from a fair should be spent on prizes. "If Peterborough does that this year and in the years to come, it will be doing what it was organized to do. Service clubs have carnivals but don't try to take too much away from them," urged Mr. Brethen.

"Your job is to be an agriculture fair. Live up to it. This may sound like preaching," he added, "but I believe it will pay off in giving value to the community by benefitting agriculture, and everyone will benefit indirectly."

Many Discussions

"There certainly have been a great many discussions pro and con about the date question," said vice president Don Millburn. "The reason the outgoing board felt they should express an opinion was that they were being pressed by the midway people, who said their dates were all being taken up. It should be one of the first things on the agenda for the new board to discuss," said Mr. Millburn.

Archie Campbell, second vice-president of Roseneath fair board; Gordon Parker, secrtary of Norwood fair; Charles Moore, senior member of the local exhibition board; Agricultural representative Frank Paterson, director Ross Dobbin and alderman Harold Rehill, former director of the board, spoke briefly on exhibitions and the part they play in rural-urban life.

AstronomersFind Ideas Changing About Stars

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP)—Probably more than half of the material in the universe is not in the stars themselves but is floating around as molecules of gas or grains of dust in the spaces between the stars, Dr. C. S. Beals of Ottawa, Dominion astronomer, said last night.

Dr. Beals in his presidential address at the annual national meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society, told how astronomers' ideas of space have changed in recent years.

"Only fairly recently has the cosmic significance of this interstellar material been fully recognized," said Dr. Beals, who was re-elected president of the meeting.

Not long ago it was thought this space-dust was material thrown off by stars in the process of formation. The new idea is that "the building up or creation of stars from this material may still be going on, and some recent theories even hold that the planets like the earth may find their origin in this interstellar material."

Overwhelming Evidence

"In any case the evidence is overwhelming that the stars, the planets and the interstellar gas are all made of the same material and that this material comprises the familiar list of atoms found in our elementary chemistry textbooks."

The material that occupies the space between the stars probably yaries in size from microscopic gas molecules up to "gross rocks or bodies of asteroid or planetary dimensions." The average size "would probably be about one-25,000th of an inch in diameter." This matter is not uniformly distributed "but often tends to occur in great clouds."

Marmora WMS Meets

MARMORA, Jan. 19 (ENS)—The January meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was held Tuesday afternoon at the parsonage. The president, Mrs. E. C. Prentice, opened the meeting with a new year prayer. Mrs. L. Tupper had charge of the devotional period, being assisted by Mesdames H. C. Barlow and W. J. Pack. A short business period followed in which it was disclosed that the local allocation was the same as last year. The members were each asked to take turns in corresponding with the association's missionary Miss Florence Fee. The study period was led by Mrs. L. Tupper.

TTC Settlement Hopes Rise At Special Meeting

TORONTO, Jan. 21. (CP)—A meeting that could lead to settlement of Toronto's transit strike opened today. Negotiators for the Toronto Transportation Commission and the striking streetcar and bus operators met at 11 a.m. in the office of Labor Minister Daley of Ontario to iron out details of an agreement which Mr. Daley said could enable the men to return to work Tuesday. Agreement depends on what up to now has been a secondary issue in the wage dispute—fringe benefits.

The strikers Sunday decided to submit their wage demands to arbitration provided that settlement is reached on certain items in a proposed new contract viewed as fringe benefits.

The meeting today was scheduled for 2 p.m. but ws advanced at the insistence of the minister "because it is senseless to waste three hours." He expressed hope that "out of the meeting will come an agreement which will end the strike today."

"Negotiations started yesterday after a mass meeting of union members.

Negotiations that started Sunday in the office of Labor Minister Charles Daley continue today.

Mr. Daley said when the sessions adjourned Sunday night that the two sides were closer to agreement than they had been before—"but that doesn't mean they will agree."

The meeting was called shortly after a gathering of some 3,700 of the 4,700 striking tram and bus operators, members of the Street Railway Employees' Union (AFL-TLC), gave the union executives the green light to reach a settlement within a certain framework.

During the 2½-hour meeting of the union men at Massey Hall, nearly 500 members, for whom there was no room in the auditorium, waited outside. Another group gathered in the nearby Labor Temple to await the results.

Still Emergency Methods

As representatives of the Toronto Transportation Commission and of the union prepared for today's talks aimed at settlement of the strike that started Jan. 4, the 1,300,000 citizens of the Greater Toronto area went to and from their jobs by emergency means of transportation.

The fringe items — certain benefits sought apart from the wage increase—still stood as a barrier to settlement as the strike entered its 18th day. In addition, the union insisted on one-man arbitration, with the arbitrator appointed by an agency acceptable to the union.

DCM Winner Arrested For Robbery

TORONTO, Jan. 21 (CP) — Three months ago Sgt. David McCuish of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, won the Distinguished Conduct Medal for "outstanding leadership and courage" in Korea.

Saturday night he was charged with attempted robbery of Toronto cab-driver Charles Knight.

Knight told police a passenger he picked up in North Toronto said to drive to a street in West Toronto, then, pulling a gun, demanded Knight's money.

The cabbie said he grabbed the man's gun hand and after a struggle got hold of the weapon. It turned out to be a toy gun.

"You're sick, buddy," Knight told his passenger. Let's get a cup of coffee."

He bought the man something to eat and recommended that he "go home and see a doctor."

Knight said he drove the man home and let him out. However, the cab-driver's wife thought this was a mistake.

"He may try it again," she warned Knight. "With a real gun."

Calls Police

Knight telephoned police and McCuish was picked up.

McCuish, 34, arrived in Toronto Dec. 6, after nearly a year in Korea.

A news dispatch from Korea last November quoted him as saying that the months there really weren't "so tough."

"I guess, too, that Korea has taught me that we as Canadians do not appreciate the full fact of freedom and democracy," he was quoted as saying at that time.

McCuish was a merchant seaman in the Second World War. He won the DCM for his courage in leading his platoon last September in a bayonet attack to dislodge the enemy from two hills near the Imjin River.

McCuish's father, Sgt. Jim McCuish, decorated veteran of two world wars, was shocked at news of his son's arrest.

Bridge Collapses 150 Fall 25 Feet

BURY, England, Jan. 21 (AP) —A crowded railroad overpass footbridge collapsed Saturday and plunged 150 football fans 25 feet on to the tracks in path of a speeding express train.

The train was flagged down just in time to avoid running down helpless victims sprawled over the right-of-way.

More than 120 were injured by the drop and 50 had to be taken to hospital.

About 300 were on the bridge when it broke down, but many managed to scramble back to safety. Many women and children were in the crowd elbowing across the narrow bridge to the railway station in this suburb of Manchester.

5 Inches Of Snow Predicted For Toronto

TORONTO, Jan. 21 (CP)—Five inches of snow, starting late tonight and continuing until Tuesday noon when it will be followed by rain, was forecast for the Toronto area today.

The outlook was a sorry one for Torontonians who have been getting around by foot, hitch-hiking or by car pools since the streetcar operators went on strike Jan. 4.

At Fairbanks, Alaska, the temperature skidded to 60 degrees below zero Sunday and Fairbanks' 20,000 residents, their regular air communication virtually cut off, shivered in a frosty world of their own.

The cold spell, second in 10 days, held most of the far north in its grip. It was 78 below at Snag, YT, and many interior Alaska points reported readings of 70 below or colder.

Will Speed Aid To Europe

Truman Plans New Policy On Arms Delivery To Allies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)— President Truman, asking new billions for foreign aid told Congress today the United States is about to speed up its arms deliveries to western Europe and other Red-threatened areas under a new allocations policy.

Within the year, he said confidently in his budget message, western Europe with this American help "can have a compact force which would offer strong resistance in the event of an attack."

But it will be "a few years," he said, before the force will be powerful enough to make remote the danger of an attack.

To finance his projected mutual security program, including economic as well as military aid to friendly countries, the President proposed to spend $10,525,000,000 in the 12 months beginning next July 1.

Some of this money already has been provided so he asked Congress to vote a lesser sum of new money—$7,900,000,000—to make up the balance.

The spending estimate of $10,825,000,000 compares with a total of $6,868,000,000 which Truman said the United States is spending on mutual security this year.

About 45 countries probably will receive either military or economic aid—or both.

The growing spending figures mainly reflect a steady swelling of the flow of military equipment to allies abroad, although deliveries have been behind the schedule originally planned after the outbreak of war in Korea. Now the President said, this situation is changing.

Truman told Congress the efforts of America's North Atlantic Treaty allies in Europe, plus the help of the United States, have resulted in "real progress . . . toward the urgent objective of achieving adequate defence forces."

Eighteen months ago, the allied nations there had virtually no units ready for battle except some naval forces and the occupation troops in Germany. Since then, the forces have grown so that " in terms of men on active duty their effective ground strength now exceeds that of our own army."

British Clear Arab Zone As Nun Slain

Renewed Battle Starts At Cemetery During House Search

ISMAILIA, Jan. 21. (CP)—A cemetery near this Suez Canal zone town was the scene of a renewed outbreak of fighting today between British troops and Egyptian guerrillas.

British authorities reported four Egyptians killed and one British officer seriously wounded in the fighting. They said 2,000 rounds of ammunition were found hidden in a cemetery tomb.

The violence outside Ismailia followed completion of a British cleanup of the Arab quarters of this blood-stained town in the wake of the slaying of a New York-born nun.

British troops had moved in on the cemetery to cordon it off in the course of their house-to-house search of the labyrinth of dirty, evil-smelling streets of Ismailia's arab town for terrorists and hidden ammunition.

Terrorists hidden among the tombs opened fire with rifles and machine-guns. Late reports said British troops sealed off the area and were going in with fixed bayonets.

Private Service

A private requiem mass was held here for Sister Anthony, 52. She was killed by a bullet in the heart as she stepped from her Catholic convent door Saturday to greet a British tank detachment.

A British Army announcement Sunday night said "it has been established" the nun was killed by one of a group of Egyptian "thugs" who invaded the convent garden to throw bombs at the Britons.

Egyptian authorities and Cairo newspapers claimed that a British bullet killed her. The papers accused British officials of "attempting to rouse Americans against Egypt" by giving a false account of the shooting.

World Tension Brings Headaches

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (AP). — The United States is filling up with a lot of new headaches, all due apparently to tension.

World tension — the worry about what is going to happen—is doing it to adults. But even the children are hit. They get their newest tensions from television, a hospital report says.

Ten tension headaches were described today in a report of the headache clinic of Montefiore Hospital.

The evidence pointing to the world tension came from analysis of more than 15,000 headaches treated at the clinic last year.

Headaches are classified according to causes, such as sinus, eye and constipation and emotions. The emotional type increased.

"Headaches often experienced by children after television," says the report, "were more likely due to emotional excitement induced by the type of program rather than to actual eye strain."

Arabs Make Overture To Russian Leaders

PARIS, Jan. 21 — (AP). — The Arab bloc in the United Nations is reported to have made new gestures of friendship toward Russia during the weekend.

Abdl Rahman Azzam Pasha, secretary-general of the Arab League, entertained Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky and Soviet delegates Jakob Malik and A. A. Sobolev at dinner on Saturday night.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Salah El-din and Mahmoud Fawzi Bey, permanent Egyptian delegate to the UN, also were present. On Sunday Malik and his legal adviser held a long conversation with Salah El-Din over general UN problems.

Caviar and vodka were served by the Arabs at the Saturday night diner. Vishinsky is reported to have been reluctant to drink the powerful Russian specialty out of respect for his hosts' religious views against drinking alcoholic beverages.

Watch 26 Swept Off Plane Wing Into Sea

Seven Survivors Pray In Unison As Comrades Drown One By One

McCHORD AIR FORCE BASE, Wash., Jan. 21—(AP)—Seven survivors told Sunday of praying in unison as they watched 26 passengers of a Korean airlift plane swept one by one to their deaths in icy seas off the British Columbia coast.

One soldier told of baptizing a youth just before he slipped beneath the waves.

Thirty-three of the 43 persons aboard got out of the plane safely after it hit the water off the Sandspit airport. Only seven remained huddled on the half-submerged wreckage when fishermen arrived with a skiff.

The survivors, flown here Saturday night from the airport in the Queen Charlotte Islands, told of a 90-minute struggle for survival in the water.

The four-engined plane, inbound from Japan with troops en route home on leave, crash-landed a mile off Sandspit early Saturday after it developed engine trouble.

10 Died In Crash

The survivors said 10 were killed in the crash. The others managed to reach the wing.

Lieut. Donald E. Baker, 26, of Glendale, Calif., said the plane was "flying well on three engines" when it touched the runway at Sandspit in an attempted emergency landing.

"We ran part way down the runway," Baker said. "After he (the pilot) touched down, evidently, he decided he couldn't make it. He hit the throttle. The plane would not climb."

Baker said he tried to distribute life jackets, but apparently nobody used them.

He said the co-pilot, Kenneth Kuhn, 32, Seattle, apparently was lost trying to reach the wingtip after the fuselage sank.

Slip Off Wing

"While I was on the wing, two or three men slipped off near me. We pulled them back. One man lost his head and couldn't help himself. He wouldn't stand up. . . I don't know when he went."

Baker said the survivors on the wing "slowly fell away. About three minutes before the boat came, there were 10. We were numb with cold and they kept slipping away from us".

Pte. Demetris G. Apostolon, 23, Hinton, W. Va., said he baptized one boy. "He said he believed in God, but hadn't been baptized. He slipped off and drowned a few minutes later. . ."

Hint Truce Convoy Violation

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 21. (AP)—The United Nations command said today Allied jets without meaning to may have attacked a Communist truce convoy on the Kaesong-Pyongyang highway Friday. At the same time, the Allies accused the Reds of violating the agreement guaranteeing freedom from attack to one northbound and one southbound convoy daily. These developments came as sub-committees working on a Korean armistice again reported no progress.

The UN acknowledged that four planes bombed and strafed a bridge and anti-aircraft positions near where the Reds said a plainly-marked convoy of two trucks and a jeep was hit.

Pilots who took part in the attack said they sighted no vehicles in the area, reported Marine Col. James C. Murray, UN staff officer who investigated.

Murray added if the convoy had stopped or parked in shadows it might have escaped observation.

Hint Violation

He said that if a Red truce convoy were in the attack zone, it apparently was in violation of the agreement permitting a limited number of vehicles to travel between the Pyongyang and Communist truce headquarters at Kaesong.

During a fruitless two-hour sub-committee session on prisoner exchange, the Communists again accused the Allies of scheming to deliver prisoners of war to South Korea and Nationalist China by insisting on voluntary repatriation.

UN delegates, on the other hand, argued that the Reds are seeking to build up their armies by demanding the return of all prisoners without giving them a free choice.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, official UN spokesman, said the Red all-for-all exchange plan would give the Communists a net gain of more than 150,000 "effective fighting men."

Nuckols said there was no mention by either side of the Allied offer to drop its demand for a man-for-man exchange of prisoners for displaced civilians in North Korea—if the Reds agree to let all civilians return home if they wish.

County Needs $225,000 For Roads and Deficit

To wipe out the present deficit and keep up the county roads system, county council this year are appropriating $225,000. To pay the county's probable share of this amount, the country road rate has been raised two mills. This total expenditure includes money raised by levy, debentures and government subsidy. In 1951 the expenditure approved at the January session was $180,000, but this proved insufficient. To tide them over, the county roads committee in November passed a supplementary bylaw for another $20,000.

The Ontario government gives a 50 per cent subsidy on the approved expenditure on county roads and an 80 per cent subsidy on bridges and culverts.

The $225,000 appropriation must still be approved by the Department of Highways. Ewart Marston, district engineer, said the department this year wants an accompanying letter when a municipality asks for a larger appropriation. The reason for the increase must be stated.

$195,000 On Roads

County council plans to spend $195,000 on the county and suburban area roads and $30,000 on roads and bridges.

Maintenance of existing roads is the major item. It comes to $113,800. Other county roads expenditures: construction $39,300, new machinery $16,000, machinery repairs $7,000 and miscellaneous $18,900.

Construction on roads and bridges will cost $15,500 and maintenance will come to $14,500.

Eight Mills For Roads

For 1952 the road rate has been set at eight mills, two mills more than last year. (For county road purposes a mill raises more than $12,000.)

The share allotted to the suburban area commission is $20,000.

Four-tenths of a mill is to be levied for bridges and culverts. In 1951 the levy was half a mill.

A major object of the county roads committee is to wipe out the deficits of $11,248 incurred in 1951. The overall county deficit was $19,016.

The main reason for the deficit on county roads was an increase in wages to county workmen. Instead of accepting a pension plan the employees chose a wage increase and that boosted expenditures $10,000.

Jack Kean, county engineer and road superintendent, said the spring breakup was unexpectedly costly. Extensive repair work was done on roads and gravel trucks carried only half loads.

Installation of a new heating system in the county garage and insulation of the building cost $3,600. And the loss of revenue because of a Supreme Court judgment was $3,200.

Fight Rages In Three Houses

WHITBY, Jan. 21 — (CP)—A fight that raged through three houses ended Saturday when Jack Mitchell, 43, was taken to hospital in Oshawa, five miles west of here in serious condition.

Mitchell was attacked Saturday night in a running battle which started on the street and continued in the homes of three strangers. In one of the homes, the ashtray and lamp were commandeered as weapons.

Soon after Mitchell escaped, one ear almost severed, Ontario provincial police arrested Ross Keeler, 23, of RR 2, Blackwater, on a charge of wounding. He is scheduled to appear Tuesday in magistrate's court.

Police said the two men and Miss Ethel Mackin, Keeler's aunt, started arguing after leaving a Dufferin St. house. Mitchell ran into the home of Martin Gouldburn and told Alan Gouldburn, 17, to telephone police.

Keeler dashed into the house and the two began fighting again. Mitchell broke away and raced upstairs with Keeler in close pursuit. In one of the Gouldburns' rooms, the ashtray and lamp were brought into play.

Mitchell ran downstairs and out a back door, Keeler right behind him. The two entered the next-door home of Earl Haley, continued their fight, and rushed out again. They then entered the home of J. N. Wilkinson. But here the fight ended. Bud Howe, a roomer, pinned Keeler's arms down until police arrived.

Introduce Bill Authorizing Construction Of US Navy's 2nd Nuclear-Powered Sub

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (CP) —A bill to authorize construction of the US Navy's second nuclear - powered submarine was introduced today by chairman Carl Vinson of the House of Representatives Armed Services Committee.

The measure also includes authorization to build a second giant aircraft carrier—up to 60,000 tons—capable of berthing atom bomb-carrying aircraft.

The bill would authorize construction and renovation costing approximately $1,150,000,000.

Vinson, Georgia Democrat, in announcing the bill, said it would permit construction of 237,500 tons of combatant vessels. This includes two aircraft carriers (one up to 60,000 tons), four destroyers, four submarines, thirty minesweepers, three destroyer escorts, two refrigerated store ships, two tankers and twenty-three landing ships.

Also proposed are 450 landing craft and 33 service craft of all types, he said.

The measure also sets up a conversion program for 90,000 tons of combat vessels — two aircraft carriers of the Essex class, two light cruisers and six escorts.

UN Raiding Party Stopped Cold By Reds

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 21 (AP)— A United Nations raiding party swarmed up a Communist-held hill in western Korea twice early today, then pulled back to the main UN line after being stopped cold by Red riflemen and mortar crews.

Eighth Army headquarters said the raiders back-tracked part way down the hill northwest of Yonchon after running into intense small arms and mortar fire

Allied artillery raked the Red positions, then the Allied infantrymen tried again. But the dug-in Communists hadn't been hurt.

Elsewhere UN forces threw back light probing attacks by 15 Red soldiers west of Chorwon and south of Pyonggang on the western and central fronts.

UN To Spend $200,000 Study Forced Labor

PARIS, Jan. 21 (Reuters). — The United Nations has earmarked about $200,000 for investigations into forced labor in the world—including Communist Europe—in 1952.

The investigations are being conducted by a special three-member committee of experts on forced labor presided over by Sir Ramaswami Mudaliar of India.

The committee's main task is to sift evidence contained in documents submitted by government organizations and individuals.

Asks 85 Billion Dollars For 1952-53 Mostly For Defence Plans

5% Increase In Personal Income Tax Requested By President Also Needs 5 Billion For Atomic Facilities

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—President Truman today sent Congress an $85,444,000,000 budget for 1952-53, an unprecedented figure for the United States except in all-out war. He said it was "a heavy burden . . . the price of peace." It would amount to $550 for every man, woman and child in the US. Over-all, national security programs would take 76 cents out of every dollar, the President said. Non-defence spending would be slashed $1,000,000,000 under the current fiscal year ending June 30.

To Congressmen talking loudly of economy in this presidential election year, Truman outlined an $11,000,000,000 expansion in armed forces spending bringing the total to more than $51,000,000,000 including a start on building the air force from 90 wings to 143.

(A wing consists ordinarily of one group of planes and their crews, plus necessary supporting elements for maintenance and supply. The number of planes in the group vary from 30 for heavy bombers to 75 for jet fighters.)

Not Included

And he gave notice, in a budget preview for reporters, that a new $5,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 five-year expansion program for atomic-energy facilities will go to Congress soon. This isn't included in his budget, Truman said, because it would be spent later—in connection ith some fantastic weapons.

Truman said his foreign-aid program, under heavy criticism, "is vital and indispensable . . . in the total fight for security and peace." He called for expanding total foreign aid from $6,868,000,000 this year to $10,844,000,000 next fiscal year, with military aid alone jumping from $4,000,000,000 to $8,000,000,000.

His budget, he said, "is carefully planned to carry us a long way forward on the road to security." He warned there is grim evidence "the Kremlin would not hesitate to resort to war in order to gain its ends."

Truman said without new taxes, his budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 would plunge the government $14,446,000,000 further in the red. This would com-

Suspend Jail Governor For Laxness, Escape

HAMILTON, Jan. 21 —(CP)— Governor Frank Lalonde has been suspended for two weeks because of "general laxness and the escape of Edwin O'Connor." The suspension dating from Jan. 9 will be completed by Jan. 23.

The order for suspension was issued by the Rev. John W. Foote, VC, Minister of Reform Institutions.

O'Connor, 30-year-old convicted shopbreaker who broke out of Barton Street jail on Christmas Eve, escaped by making a key out of a prison spoon and climbing over the prison wall with a prison ladder.

He was recaptured 38 hours later.

Canada Sets World Example St. Laurent Says

SUDBURY, Jan. 21 — (CP) — The disputing nations of the world could well take the example of Canada, where diverse racial and cultural groups have learned to live in peace, Prime Minister St. Laurent said Sunday night.

The Prime Minister was making his first official visit to Sudbury after a visit Saturday to Sault Ste. Marie, where he opened a $1,000,000 armoury. An audience of some 4,000 Sudbury citizens braved a six-inch snowfall and five-below-zero weather to hear him.

The speech was broadcast.

Mr. St. Laurent stressed the developing unity of Canada. He drew attention to a statement by J. L. Gauthier, Liberal member of parliament for Sudbury, that the people of this area constituted a miniature United Nations, with 27 languages spoken here.

"I appreciate the sentiment," said Mr. St. Laurent, "and I appreciate the fact that the Canadians of these 27 different nations are all living together in perfect harmony. But I do not wholly agree with the way in which he expressed it.

2 Being Held In Bad Beating

OTTAWA, Jan. 21 (CP).—The Evening Citizen reported today the detention as material witnesses of the wife and an employee of Harry Brading, 54-year-old Brampton taxi operator unconscious in hospital here from a severe beating.

The newspaper quoted Police Chief Frank Keates of Brampton as saying in a telephone interview that Mrs. Eileen Brading, 26, and James Hutchison, 30, taxi driver employed by Brading, were detained as material witnesses when they returned to Brampton this morning from Ottawa.

"We now are in possession of most of the facts, we believe," Chief Keates was quoted as saying. "It seems to have been one of those things—a love triangle.

"Just what the ultimate charges will be must depend entirely on whether or not Brading survives his injuries. But they are being definitely held here, and in the meantime we are winding up the loose end of the case."

Scores Twin Victory

Iran Gets $24,000,000 Ousts British Diplomats

TEHRAN, Iran, Jan. 21 (AP)— Premier Mohammed Mossadegh won a double victory from the west today—$24,000,000 in American aid with virtually no strings attached, and the closure of Britain's nine consulates and vice-consulates in the country.

The aged Nationalist Premier also was threatened with death by the fanatic Moslem sect, unless he releases the sect's imprisoned leader.

Mossadegh announced Sunday that his cabinet had approved a working agreement giving Iran the $24,000,000 in aid for technical assistance and development. Because the US wants to retain a foothold in this strategic Middle-East domain on Russia's southern border, the Americans waived a requirement of the mutual security act that aid beneficiaries must contribute actively to western defence.

The British consulates closed their doors in obedience to an Iranian order which charged British officials had been interfering with Iranian affairs. Britain denied the charge and cited an 1857 Anglo-Iranian treaty permitting them to maintain consulates in all places at which other countries are represented.

Iran rejected the British contention and said the United Nations charter had superseded the 1857 treaty.

Mossadegh's life, and that of Justice Minister Amir Alaie, were threatened in letters from Fedayan Islam. The sect's second-in-command, Seid Abdul Hossein, told a press conference that his group "will kill Mossadegh if our leader, Navab Safavi, is not released from prison immediately."

Safavi was imprisoned early this month on undisclosed charges.

Mercy Plane Crashes On Mountain

Seven Survivors Of Earlier Crack-Up Alive After Accident

PORT ANGELES, Wash., Jan. 21. (CP) — Five crew members of a B-17 mercy plane and seven survivors of a crashed Northwest airliner today were the only known escapees from a freak accident sequence that claimed at least 36 lives during the weekend.

The five survived after their ship, sent to search for victims of the Northwest airliner's crash off Sandspit, BC, itself crashed on an Olympic Peninsula peak on Saturday night.

The B-17 was returning from the Sandspit crosh, where 36 persons died when the plane overshot the runway and plummeted into 15 feet of water. There were seven survivors.

Three other men, presumably thrown from the B-17 during its 1,300-foot plunge down a snow-covered slope, were listed as missing. A para-medical team of four pressed a search for them.

And in still another west-coast crash, six persons were burned to death and 61 others injured when a disabled B-25 bomber crash-landed and exploded on top of a crowded guardhouse at Mather Air Base, Calif.

Guardhouse Casualties

All three men aboard the bomber were injured but crawled to safety. The casualties were inmates of the guardhouse.

The northwest Pacific sequence began when the Northwest airliner, inbound from Japan with troops en route from Korea and other passengers, spanked the sea a mile off Sandspit Airport early Saturday. Sandspit is on Moresby Island, most southerly of the Queen Charlotte Island group, about 486 miles northwest of Vancouver.

Survivors said 10 persons were killed in the crash. The others managed to reach the floating wing, but all but seven slipped off into the icy waters.

Eight bodies were recovered Saturday by boats probing the darkness. An RCAF helicopter was scheduled to leave Vancouver today to help search for other bodies. It will be piloted by Flt. Lt. Shorty Macleod of Prince Rupert, BC.

The B-17 picking up the eight bodies left Sandspit late Saturday. It was reported overdue at McChord Air Base, Washington, late Saturday night.

The ship clipped the top of 6,359-foot Tyler Peak in a blinding snowstorm, bounded over the peak and skidded through the snow down to the 5,000-foot level. Search planes located the wreckage Sunday.

Two of the survivors required hospital treatment for cuts and bruises.

CRATER CRISIS—UN and Communist negotiators examine the crater near Kaesong, Korea, which the Reds claim was caused by an Allied bombing, thus violating the neutral area. The UN team has not yet issued any statement on the incident.

Canada's Naval Chief Goes To Washington For Talks

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, Jan. 21. (CP)—Vice-Admiral E. R. Mainguy, Canada's new naval chief, will go to Washington for talks that will embrace the question of where Canada's tough little east-coast fleet will stand in relation to the Atlantic Pact's new "Eisenhower of the Atlantic." He is expected to leave by air today.

The feeling here is that in peacetime, except for specific training exercises or periods, Canada won't turn over to the over-all commander any elements of her navy in the way she has turned over army brigades to NATO in Europe and to the United Nations in Korea.

Admiral Mainguy's mission is primarily a get-acquainted one, but he will be discussing the command in the wake of the Churchill-Truman agreement that an American should direct a combined naval effort in the Atlantic, the sea where the RCN would make its big effort in wartime.

Meanwhile, today brought one indication of what Canada has ready to throw into any new battle of the Atlantic. Two RCAF Maritime or coastal squadrons of Lancasters from the Greenwood, NS, base joined the US Atlantic fleet for three weeks of cold-weather exercises that will range along the northwest Atlantic seaboard of Canada.

In Charge of Exercise

The man in charge of the exercise is Admiral Lynde D. McCormick, chief of the US Atlantic fleet and the man rumored likely to become the Eisenhower of the Atlantic.

The exercise points up that Canada is preparing to battle submarines in the Atlantic not only with warships but with planes, too.

Her active Atlantic fleet consists of the aircraft-carrier Magnificent, two destroyers with a third on route to Korea, two frigates and four minesweepers with the cruiser Quebec and the modern destroyed Haida due to join them by spring. Backing them are two more destroyers being modernized, six frigates and 12 minesweepers, all in reserve.

In the air, Canada has four naval air-arm squadrons, two fighter, two anti-submarine, and the RCAF's Maritime wing at Greenwood. The primary concern of the whole effort is learning how to fight submarines and mines.

Because the Atlantic-command decision has just been made, Admiral Mainguy may not find out too much in Washington in his talks with the US counterpart, Admiral W. M. Fechteler and other senior officers including the head of the British naval mission.

But this appointment has been in the air for months and this is the way it is felt it will work out for Canada:

In peacetime, the fleet would carry on as it has been, training for anti-sub warfare, but the elements of it will likely be assigned to the over-all commander from time to time for joint training. He may well call a joint exercise fairly soon just to see what he has available.

Great Unity

"I do not think there is any part of Canada that is not more than a miniature United Nations. There are still too many differences between the member of the United Nations. I like to think that every part of Canada is coming to be a miniature of one single really-united nation of its own."

Defence Minister Claxton and External Affairs Minister Pearson also spoke briefly.

Mr. Cyaxton described a recent trip on which he had inspected Canadian trops in Germany and Korea.

"If we have to face these troubled times, there is no country in which I would rather face them than Canada," he said.

Mr. Pearson urged his audience not to feel that the United Nations was a complete failure as an instrument for world peace. While it was hamstrung by the efforts of Communist countries, the international body still held some hope for the future.

Court Suggests Drunks Treated

OTTAWA, Jan. 21 (CP)—Deputy Magistrate Joachim Sauve said Saturday he has written to reform institution authorities requesting medical treatment for certain habitual drunkards from the Ottawa area.

The magistrate's comment followed the appearance of nine persons charged with drunkenness, including two women and six regular offenders.

Magistrate Sauve commented: "It is a sickness and should be treated as such. The Department (of Reform Institutions) has started to treat alcoholics. This will be unique in Canada.

"I have written to the minister requesting this treatment program be put in our reach. These men should be sent to Burritt's Rapids (Reformatory) or some other institution for terms like six months for special treatment.

"If we save one of these men out of 20 I think it will prove the program will work."
